DICKSON HALL RETURNS

MADE EXTENSIVE PURCHASES FOR RICHARD HALL AND SON.

Visited Many of the Manufacturing Centres of Britian and also Germany and France — A Larger Stock than ever before.

Mr. S Dickson Hall has returned from a buying trip in the Old Country and Europe for Richard Hall & Son, Peterborough's big store. This is the eighteenth successful crossing of the Atlantic for Mr. Hall and that is certainly something of a record. He is therefore thoroughly acquainted with the market and the advantage of wide experience in purchasing and an appreciation of what will meet with the approval of the consumer at home, must be obvious to all. He states that Canada has grown greatly in popularity in Britain and Europe during the past few years and that she has now reached a very high position. This was more noticeable on his recent trip than ever before. The manufacturers regard this country and Australia as two of their best and most promising markets.

Mr. Hall left here on the 12th of June, and in returning left Liverpool on the 5th of August, sailing by the White Star Line Cedric, arriving in New York on the 13th inst. The exact length of passage was seven days, ten hours and 35 minutes. Arriving in England he first went to Manchester, thence to London, where he spent four or five days and then on by way of the Hague to Berlin, Germany, where for a week he was engaged in buying mantles, children's coats, rain coats, and selections from other lines. By rail he proceeded via Cologne to Paris and there another week's business was done. Extensive purchases of Parisian novelties and other French goods that meet with such great approval in this country, not forgetting millinery, were made there. He again returned to London spent two weeks with the manufacturers there and then left upon a trip which included Nottingham, Bradford, Bailiff's Bridge, Manchester, Belfast, Glasgow and Liverpool, and made purchases considerably larger than was ever made by this well known firm before and embracing selections that will assuredly meet with the approbation of the consumer. Business was carried on with the manufacturers direct in every case.

Discussing the condition of trade in the Old Country, Mr. Hall stated that to him it appeared to be slow at the present time with prices tending to lowness in quite a few lines.

NIAGARA FALLS—Special G. T. R. train at 6.30 a.m. 3 days. Big time. Only $2.20 return.

THE PETERBOROUGH FAIR

Prize lists Lists are being eagerly sought after and Directors being Congratulated.

The directors of the Peterborough Industrial Fair, to be held here on Sept. 26th, 27th and 28th, have been flattered by the number of applications coming in for prize lists and circulars. This year's fair promises to be the best and largest ever held in this county. On every side the Board has been congratulated on the liberality of the prizes and the enterprise they have shown in getting, at great expense, the band of the 42nd Scotch Highland Black Watch Regiment. This band is pronounced to be the best in England and everyone is delighted to have the opportunity of hearing it.

One feature of the fair that shows out prominently this year is that the attendance will be very large on account of the street railway being very convenient, and passengers will be taken to the grounds at the small expense of 5 cents each way. All communications in reference to the fair should be addressed to the secretary, Mr. K. Eardley-Wilmot, manager of the Bank of Montreal.

EXCURSIONS TO-MORROW

Town will be Deserted — Long List of Excursions.

Peterborough will likely be deserted to-morrow, as excursions are going out in all directions. Single-fare rates have been granted on both the G.T.R. and C.P.R. lines, and a large number intend taking in Father Phelan's picnic at Young's Point. Following are some of the excursions:

The Peterborough Lodge of Oddfellows, around the Kawartha Lakes, leaving the G.T.R. station at 8 o'clock for Lakefield and returning by Lindsay. Fare—Adults $1.20, children 60 cents.

Canadian Order of Foresters, to Toronto and Niagara Falls, leaves G. T. R. station at 6.30 a.m. Fare to Toronto $2.05; to Niagara Falls, $2.20.

Maccabees' excursion to Midland leaves the G.T.R. station at 8.15 a.m. Fare, adults $1.35, children 70 cents.

Oddfellows' excursion to Rochester for three days, leaves G.T.R. station at 10.45 a.m. Fare, adults $1.80, children 90 cents.

Salvation Army excursion per Str City of Peterborough, leaves Wolfe st. wharf at 8 o'clock, up the canal and Stony Lake.

SEE NIAGARA FALLS — Last chance this season. Little cost only $2.20 with the Foresters' Civic Holiday.

For the Holiday

There are lots of little things you will want for the holiday, that you can buy to advantage here. There are lots of little things that will add greatly to your comfort and general holiday appearance as well, that can be bought for very little money at this season of the year here. For instance:

ABOLISH CORPORAL PUNISHMENT.

Probable Act of Grace Signalizing Birth of Russian Heir.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 17.—One of the acts of grace signalizing the birth of an heir to the throne will be the total abolition of corporal punishment throughout Russia. A ukase to this effect is expected to be issued to-day.

It is reported that Emperor William of Germany has asked for the privilege of acting as one of the godfathers of the heir. The christening will occur Aug. 25.

Carnegie's Benediction.

Toronto, Aug. 17.—At the business meeting of the Friend's Convention last night, Dr. Courtice, the secretary, announced the receipt of a letter from Andrew Carnegie, expressing his interest in the effect being made to organize the peace-loving citizens of Canada, and in joining its membership promises a donation to help the cause. Delegates from the Friends' conference will attend the peace convention in Boston on Oct. 3, and it is probable a meeting will be held in Toronto immediately afterwards, which some of the foreign delegates may attend.

Had Still in Roller Top Desk.

Sydney, Aug. 17.—Peter Frader, collector of Inland Revenue for Pictou division, which includes Cape Breton, seized an illicit still on Saturday on the premises of Alexander Ingram, merchant tailor, at North Sydney. The still was in the part of the building occupied by Mr. Ingram as a dwelling, the worm being enclosed in a roller top desk, while the copper pot was in an adjoining room. It was not in operation when found. The still had a capacity of about 25 gallons per day. Ingram was placed under arrest.

Sir Wilfrid's Secret.

Ottawa, Aug. 17.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier has not yet left for the Lower St. Lawrence, but will go sometime this week. To-day he visits the International Portland Cement Works in Hull. Another session or an election is still the greatest question for speculation in political circles, but the Premier only can answer the question. A night gang have been put on at the printing bureau to work on the voters' lists, which is taken as an indication of a campaign.

The Herreros Defeated.

Berlin, Aug. 17.—Four columns of German troops attacked the Herreros near Hamakari, German Southwest Africa, on the night of Aug. 11. The fighting continued all day Aug. 12. The natives were defeated with heavy losses. Five German officers, including Count Von Arnim, and nineteen men were killed. Six officers, among them Baron Von Watter, and fifty-two men were wounded. Two are missing. Thousands of cattle were captured.

Met Death on Track.

Berlin, Aug. 17.—Simon Yost, aged about 60, while walking on the Galt branch of the G.T.R. with a small wagon, in which he delivered groceries, was struck by a train and sustained injuries to the head which resulted in his death two hours after being removed to the hospital. He is survived by a widow.

Fell Off Wagon.

Woodstock, Aug. 17.—The two-year-old son of Andrew Taggart of the Sweaburg road when driving with his father yesterday fell off the wagon. A wheel went over the top of his head, making a cut in his scalp about four inches long. The boy is now doing very nicely.

Murdered in Drunken Row.

Ottawa, Aug. 17.—Adelard Auger, who in a fight inflicted injuries causing the death of a man named Primault at L'Orignal on Wednesday last arrived at the Hull jail yesterday.

Negotiations Off.

Chicago, Aug. 17.—Without waiting for the time set, the packers sent a committee to Mayor Harrison and informed him that they could not accept anybody's intervention.

WHEN BOYS WERE MEN

By JOHN HABBERTON,

Author of "Helen's Babies," "George Washington," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1904, BY JOHN HABBERTON

Then the prisoner lay down and fell asleep again, though by that time the rain was falling furiously. As for Hamilton and me, we agreed that a so called nation that didn't provide its soldiers with rubber blankets would soon be on its last legs and that the said legs would be rheumatic.

The camp was soon in commotion, most of it verbal and shockingly profane. The men in the newer companies had not yet learned how to keep dry in a shelter. The rubber blanket is so narrow that for it to be under a man and over him, too, the owner must lie as straight as a ramrod. There were individual outbreaks throughout the entire night as men woke to find their knees soaked. To make matters worse for the guard, the rain put out the fires, so there was no light. Hamilton and I took turns in pacing to and fro in front of the prisoners, counting the barely visible figures each time we passed them. The guards were as unhappy as a lot of picnickers caught in a thunderstorm, and sleepy besides. The horses huddled together as best they could, the road became ankle deep in mud, and the entire situation was as gloomy, uncomfortable and detestable as our worst enemies could have wished. The only living beings who did not seem in the least disturbed were the prisoners.

He handed me a dirty wad of newspaper.

As for myself, I think I lost my senses several times during that dreadful night. Only 48 hours before, the job of loading the revolvers had robbed me of an entire night of rest. Now I was doomed to another. I had to tramp the muddy road to keep myself awake, but my head dropped asleep once in awhile on its own account, and with wide open eyes I beheld many strange visions in the darkness and imagined many things ridiculous and impossible. It seemed that the night never would end, and my gratitude was unspeakable when at early dawn we were ordered to feed, mount and resume our march. I tried to feel happy when the prisoners were placed in charge of a new guard and my sense of responsibility ended, but soon I found that sleepiness on horseback was more dreadful than on foot. No sooner would I drop into a doze than I would rouse with a start from an awful sensation of falling from my horse. Everybody was cross, particularly the smokers, for all the fires were out, and few men carried matches.

Then it was that our captain leaped suddenly and securely into the affections of his men. Passing the word for smokers to fill their pipes, he tore a long, narrow strip from his handkerchief, moistened it the least bit, lit one end with a match, lighted his own pipe and then gave the smoldering rag to the first sergeant, from whom it passed down the entire troop. After the pipes were fairly started there was no more grumbling, except from nonsmokers.

How I wished myself a smoker! Often when in earlier days I had asked schoolmates why they took to smoking I was told, among other excuses, that a few whiffs of smoke would stop the craving of hunger when a fellow chanced to be playing truant for a day or off hunting or fishing and having too good luck to get home at mealtime. Well, had I learned smoking, the third day of our scout would have been a good time to test its remedial virtues, for my hunger was so intense that it drove everything else from my mind, and the memory of the bacon and hoecake of the night before almost made me scream with rage. It seemed to me the government was mean, despicable and standing in its own light to give me as three days' ration some food which I had eaten during the first 24 hours. If only I had brought that lump of fat pork which had seemed so loathsome when it was dealt me! I actually longed for that bit of adipose tissue, longed until I saw it on the ground just where I had tossed it, saw it as distinctly as if it were really before my eyes.

Really, when we halted about noon my hunger had made me mean spirited enough to go deliberately in search of my friendly enemy who owned the bacon and frying pan. Fortunately for the poor fellow, he was eating his last bit of food apparently, for his haversack was inside out and lying by the fire to dry. He recognized me, and as the guard allowed me to speak to him he said:

"It seems too bad to waste the little fat that's left in the skillet, don't it? Wonder of thar ain't an ear of corn in that field that we could roast?"

"It's all too hard," said I, shaking my head sadly as I remembered my search of the day before.

"The harder the better," said he.

I never was more willing to be convinced. In a single minute I was back from the field with several ears. The Johnny selected the hardest, shelled it in his pan, shook it a little while before he put it over the fire, then parched it until it was a deep brown and poured it upon the top of his hat to cool. Not a bit of the bacon fat remained in the pan, but each grain of corn was as glossy as if varnished.

"Thar!" said he, after a moment or two, as he poured a full half of the corn into a big husk and passed it to me. "Just h'ist yerself outside that an' see of you wasn't wrong thinkin' the corn too hard."

Bless that rebel! I do believe that parched corn saved my life. I resolved never to go on a scout again without a little frying pan in one of my saddlebags and a lot of shelled corn in the other. But what was half an ear of corn to a raging hunger like mine? It was too late to parch more, for the call to mount had sounded. As I hurried down the road to rejoin my company I met a veteran of the older troop on which I had been billeted when first I reached the regimental camp, and he hailed me kindly with:

"Well, young feller, how does scouting agree with you?"

"Well enough," I replied, "if I wasn't almost starving."

"It always strikes greenhorns that way," he replied. "Now, I ain't a bit sharp set. Say, mebbe a piece of pork would help you out. Here."

He handed me what looked like a dirty wad of wet newspaper, in which I found about half a pound of pork. It was solid fat, dingy looking, and on one side, where the paper had lain closely against it, several advertisements had transferred themselves in reverse, with the general head "Help Wanted" at the top of them. The words were eminently appropriate, as I didn't scrape them off, but ate pork, advertisements and all.

About the middle of the afternoon a general buzz of satisfaction ran along the column. We were passing one of our picket stations, which meant that we were within an hour or two of our camp. When finally the march was ended, my horse was so glad to get into his stall and be relieved of bridle, saddle and blanket that he gleefully kicked the empty air for several minutes. Several minutes later his owner, lying on the bare floor of his tent, his head pillowed on the rain soaked blanket, was slumbering as sweetly as if his couch were of down, and the ugly ejaculations of the weary men who struggled in one by one were so many loving lullabies.

Sensational Evidence.

Owen Sound, Aug. 17.—H. R. Gamey, M.P.P., opened a series of meetings in North Grey Monday night, speaking to a packed house at Bognor. The hall was crowded almost to suffocation and hundreds could not gain admission. Gamey entered North Grey with a challenge to Mackay to meet him on the platform, but the latter refused to meet him on the ground that 45 minutes was not long enough to do justice to the Government's case. Arrangements for the protest trial were proceeding quietly, but effective, and that when the case is heard it will be replete with evidence of the most sensational character.

From Over Study at School

This Girl Became Pale, Languid and Nervous -- Dr. Chase's Nerve Food Made Her Well.

MRS. R. WAREHAM, 267 Sherbrooke street, Peterborough, Ont., states:—

"One of my children suffered a great deal with nervous headaches, dizziness and sleeplessness, and in fact was all run down, pale and languid. These troubles we attributed to over study and confinement at school. She began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and I can say that we have found this treatment exceedingly helpful. It has relieved her of headache, steadied her nerves, and built up her system wonderfully. We can see a great change in her, as the color is returning to her face and she is gaining in flesh and weight."

EDITOR OF TAGEBLATT

German Visitor to Canada to Prove His Belief in It.

After a Tour Through Our Northwest, He Finds This Country a Fine Field For German Emigration—Tried to Influence Dominion Government But Got Some Encouragement—Britain the Grandest Country in the World.

Toronto, Aug. 17.—Herr A. Wagner, editor of the well known and influential Berlin newspaper, The Tageblatt, is at present in Toronto. He is now on his return journey after spending some considerable time investigating for himself the natural conditions of the Canadian west and its advantages as a field for German emigration. It is his intention also to examine the central and eastern counties, and with that object he will spend eight or ten days in Ontario visiting the chief towns, the peninsula and the northern region. In all, his tour of inspection will cover a period of four or five months.

Liked Canada in Advance.

Herr Wagner has been interested in German emigration for a good many years, and deplored the choice of Brazil, which has been made by so many of the people. They are, he said, sent to the plantations and many succumb in two, three or four years. "My attention was drawn to Canada, and I satisfied myself that it offered a far better field for German emigrants. These views I expressed in a series of articles in my paper, but I was met with the objection that as I had never been to Canada, I could know nothing of the country or its resources. You must know," said Herr Wagner, with a laugh, "that Canada to most Germans is another Siberia, a waste of desert and snow for eight months of the year. So I determined to make this journey in order that I may be able to speak from personal knowledge.

Delighted With Canada.

"The opinions I formed have been fully confirmed. I am delighted with Canada and am satisfied it is far better suited to German emigrants than any of the South American States. Of all the districts I have yet seen, I am most of all impressed by British Columbia. It is a wonderful country and possesses a greater variety of callings than the farming states. I consider it an ideal field for the settler with a little capital. It is a pity the European emigrant so frequently is without any more than the sum requisite to take him to his destination. I think the Government might well do more in the way of assisting deserving men to take up the land.

Will Educate at Home.

"I am securing everywhere illustrative photographs of typical Canadian scenes, and these I will use in connection with the lectures I intend to deliver throughout Germany and the Austrian provinces. Then I will contribute a series of articles to my own paper and to other leading journals. I am now able to support my contentions by my own personal testimony, and I hope to divert very largely the stream of emigration towards Canada.

"When in Ottawa I tried to influence the Dominion Government in the way of establishing a bureau of information for Germany, where questions could be answered and full information given to applicants without fee. The Government, however, did not give me much encouragement, but I am satisfied it would very much assist in arousing interest in Canada, and would show important results within two or three years."

Britain Grandest Country.

"Do you know anything of the old country, as Canadians call Britain?"

"Yes, I have been in England several times, and I always feel that after all it is the grandest country in the world. Of its great cities, I prefer Liverpool, where I have always felt myself to be in the society of gentlemen and men of character."

"And what is the feeling in Germany towards Britain?"

"Every intelligent German is the greatest and truest friend of England. There is no general ill-will in Germany towards Great Britain. Every educated German realizes that the British people is the first in the civilized world and desires the two countries to be on terms of neighborliness and friendship."

EDITORS MUST BE CAREFUL.

Publication in Finland Will Have Its Difficulties.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 17.—A new law governing newspapers and periodical publications in Finland is promulgated.

If an editor has published an article objectionable to the authorities he must publish their "warning" to him at the top of his front page on the following day. The authorities may direct that the editor be changed, and if this is not done the paper will be suppressed. The subject matter of periodicals appearing once a month must be submitted for censure at least three weeks before publication. Persons wishing to sell any kind of printed matter must first obtain the permission of the Governor.

Publications abroad which show themselves to be systematically hostile to the policy of the authorities are forbidden entry.

A Money-Making Site.

Ottawa, Aug. 17.—The site for the Canadian branch of the royal mint has been chosen. It is to be at the corner of Cathcart and Mussel streets, Ottawa. Tenders will soon be asked for this building, as well as the national museum and the archive building.

Sailor's Fatal Fall.

Wiarton, Aug. 17.—Robert Green, a sailor from Chesley, fell through the hatch of the barge John Mott and received injuries about his head which will likely prove fatal.

Third Arbitrator Named.

Toronto, Aug. 17.—His Lordship Mr. Justice Teetzel has been chosen third arbitrator in the dispute between the Grand Trunk Railway and its telegraphers. The other arbitrators are Harvey Hall, representing the telegraphers, and G. F. Shepley, K.C., representing the Grand Trunk. The board will hold its first meeting in Toronto on Monday.

LIGHTNING FREAKS.

Tumbled the Furniture in a Farmhouse Near Streetsville About, But Did Not Set the Place on Fire.

Streetsville, Aug. 17.—Lightning played some strange freaks at the farm of Albert Quenell, near this village, yesterday. His wife and child, with Mrs. Bookbank, were coming down stairs when a bolt struck the house and all three were knocked down stairs and stunned. The furniture in the house was demoralized, and some of the woodwork damaged. The parlor furniture was cracked into kindling wood and piled up in one corner of the room. The house did not take fire.

Phone Poles Riddled.

Greenwood, Aug. 17.—A severe electrical storm passed over this locality yesterday afternoon. Several barns and driving sheds were struck and destroyed by lightning. Telephones were burnt out and wires destroyed. In Brougham the telephone poles for one mile were riddled to atoms and wires destroyed.

Hail Smashes Windows.

Berlin, Aug. 17.—In a fierce hailstorm which passed over the village of Bridgeport yesterday afternoon hailstones an inch and a half in circumference came down and about 1,000 windows were broken at the sugar beet factory alone. The fruit trees were badly hurt.

Barn Struck as York Mills.

Toronto, Aug. 17.—During the thunderstorm yesterday afternoon, lightning struck the barn of Mr. Wicks, near York Mills, and spread to the adjoining stables, all of which were entirely consumed.

Meteor Fell During Storm.

Shelburne, Aug. 17.—During the electric storm on Saturday last, following a noise resembling continuous thunder, a meteor fell on the farm of John Shields, about three miles from here. It buried itself a considerable distance into the ground. It is a metallic substance and weighs 13 pounds. It is evident that this is only a small portion of it.

Barn Burned.

Seaforth, Aug. 17.—John Sproat's barn, about three miles from here, in Tuckersmith, was struck by lightning Monday night and totally destroyed, together with a quantity of hay.

Barn and Crops Gone.

Merrickville, Aug. 17.—A fire broke out early yesterday morning in a barn owned by Wm. Nicholson, containing hay and grain. The stables and other out-buildings were also destroyed. Loss about $1,500. Insurance, $1,200.

Two Inches of Hail.

Aurora, Aug. 17.—Aurora and vicinity got the full benefit of a big hail storm yesterday afternoon. The hail was 2 inches deep on the sidewalk in places.

NEGROES BURNED ALIVE

Georgia Mob Overpowered Military Guard and Took the Men.

Chained to a Large Stump, Pine Wood Placed Around Them, They Were Saturated With Kerosene and the Torch Applied—One Confessed and Both Died in Fearful Agony—Their Terrible Crimes.

Statesboro, Ga., Aug. 17.—With clothing saturated with kerosene, writhing and twisting in their agony, screaming to Heaven for the mercy that the mob would not show, Paul Reed and Will Cato, negroes, two of the principals in the murder and burning of Henry Hodges and wife and three of their children, six miles from Statesboro, three weeks ago, were burned at the stake yesterday. At 1.21 yesterday afternoon a determined mob, charged on the court house, secured Cato and Reed, who had been found guilty, after a legal trial and sentenced to be hanged, took them two miles from Statesboro and there burned them alive.

The climax came quickly and unexpectedly. The forenoon had passed quietly, the trial of Paul Reed, the ringleader in the murder, being concluded and a verdict of guilty rendered. Both he and Will Cato, found guilty the day before, were sentenced to hang Sept. 9.

Photographer's Gruesome Work.

A member of the mob recounted the horrors of the crime. The men were then chained to a large stump and a wagon load of pine wood was piled around them and ten gallons of kerosene was thrown over all. A photographer got several views of the scene. Frenzied cheers rent the air.

When the match was applied to the pyre, Reed was asked to tell the truth before he died: "Yes. I killed Mr. and Mrs. Hodges, he replied.

"Who killed the children?" he was asked.

"Handy Bell," came the response as the flames leaped upwards.

The men died in fearful torture.

Their Terrible Crime.

Henry Hodges was one of Statesboro's most prominent men. His summer home is several miles out of town. On the night of July 26 the country home was burned. It had been completely destroyed when the local firemen reached it. A search of the ruins revealed the bodies of Hodges and the members of the family, and it was evident that they had been murdered before the house was fired.

MAY BE MURDER.

Mrs. Malcolm Lennie Clubbed Nearly to Death By Her Husband.

Toronto, Aug. 17.—Mrs. Catherine Lennie, wife of Malcolm Lennie, a laborer, residing at 493½ King street east, was beaten almost into insensibility about 9.30 o'clock yesterday morning, and her husband is under arrest on a charge of felonious wounding, which may be charged to something more serious. He was taken before Magistrate Denison and remanded for a week. The weapon used was a rolling pin.

Mrs. Lennie had laid a charge of non-support, but later also asked for an order of protection, and he was wroth about it.

The first notification of trouble was a loud scream. Mrs. McCarthy and Miss Leanie rushed up to the room. Mrs. Lennie was lying across the bed, with her hands in front of her face, as if for protection, and the husband standing over her with the rolling pin uplifted, preparing to strike another blow. There was a big gash in the woman's head, where the first blow had been struck. The daughter rushed in front of her father, but he pushed her aside. Mrs. McCarthy did the same; she was shoved to one side, and again the heavy wooden weapon descended on the woman's skull. The two women ran out screaming for help. In their absence Lennie dragged the woman off the bed on to the floor and beat her on the face with his fists. She was unconscious when assistance arrived.

Lennie is 50 years of age and his wife is about 40.

Death of Lady de Lotbiniere.

Victoria, B. C., Aug. 17.—Lady de Lotbiniere, wife of Sir Henri G. Joly de Lotbiniere, Lieutenant-Governor of British Columbia, died Monday night, after a lingering illness, aged 67 years. She was the daughter of Hammond Gowen of Quebec city, and married Sir Henri Joly in 1856, and is survived by six of her eleven children. The remains will be taken to Quebec for interment.

How It Spreads.

The first package of Hem-Roid (the infallible Pile cure) that was put out west to a small town in the State of Nebraska.

It made the cure of a case of Piles that was considered hopeless.

The news spread and although this was only two years ago the demand prompted Dr. J. S. Leonhardt of Lincoln, Neb., the discoverer, to prepare it for general use. Now it is being sent to all parts of the world.

It will cure any case of Piles. There is a month's treatment in each box. Sold for $1.00 with absolute guarantee.

It is for sale by druggists.

Sold in Peterborough by James Lynch, 166 Hunter-st.

"Bull" Reports Untrue.

Winnipeg, Aug. 17.—The weather is cooler, but the rain holds off and conditions are favorable for the ripening of grain. The C.N.R. weekly reports issued yesterday are generally favorable. All the districts covered report the crops much benefited by the warm spell. The feature of the Chicago bull market has been the reports of rust damage to Canadian wheat, especially in the Boundary District and on Portage Plains. There is possibly some slight truth in the former, but the Portage Plains story, affecting as it does the richest district in Manitoba, is a fabrication from beginning to end. There is no suspicion of rust in that district.

Criminals Sentenced.

Hamilton, Aug. 17.—Judge Snider dealt with criminal cases yesterday. Jake Burgess, arrested in Toronto for stealing a watch from an Indian named Peter Schuler, was sent to Kingston Penitentiary for two years. William Davey, who stole a pair of boots from Thomas Appleton, will do three months. Jefferson Lee, a bell boy at the Waldroff, was allowed out on deferred sentence. He had spent much time in jail awaiting trial on the charge of criminally assaulting Isabella Grant.

The Liver to Blame

So long as the liver is active in filtering the bile from the blood there is no biliousness and no constipation, because the bile is passed from the liver into the intestines where it acts as a cathartic in keeping the bowels active. Because of their direct action on the liver as well as the bowels, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills thoroughly cure constipation, the real cause of nine-tenths of the common ills of life.

Summer Prices FOR Winter Garments

The last month of Summer—August—is a good time to buy Furs. It is known to be a good time. Prices as a rule are lower, because the dealer is anticipating the season.

It is a good time—in fact the best—to order Furs. Because it affords time in which to make them up with care and without the haste that comes with the winter season.

Our show rooms are open. You can view the winter's styles. They are all here. Orders are taken based on the styles we show. It's worth a look at any rate, even if you do not buy, and you are never pressed to do so. All we know about Furs is at your service.

SPORTING NEWS.

FOOTBALL.

The line up for the Quakers in their game with Young's Point to-morrow will be—Goal, Bellingham; backs, Simpson and Doris; half backs, P. Fitzgerald, Morgan, M. Guerin; forwards; Brooks, J. Guerin, Crowley, Snider and C. Fitzgerald. The team will leave at 12.15 G.T.R. and connect with the boat at Lakefield. The Quakers will play against a picked team from Norwood, Caughnawaga and Indian River. The game will undoubtedly be a good one.

BOWLING.

There was a good game last night between:—

A. Duncan	Mr. Tetterby
J. Fitzgerald	T. Pratt
G. Lush	J. McClung
D. H. Moore	S. Frost
G. E. Whitton, M.	Mr. Smith, S.

The schedule to-night—first come first served.

In the association competition among the bowlers at Toronto yesterday R. M. Whaddell defeated A. J. Taylor of the Victorias by 19 to 10, which G. H. Giroux won from W. J. Sterling of Waterloo by 15 to 11.

THE TRIGGER.

To-morrow being Civic Holiday the regular shoot of the Peterborough Gun Club will be postponed until Thursday, Aug. 25th at 4 p.m., when the special shoot of the season will be held. There will be sweepstake shooting and prizes up to the shot for. All members should be on hand.

None better than the Niagara Falls trip on Civic Holiday. Return fare only $2.20.

A EUCHRE PARTY

Pleasant Gathering at the Home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Dorocher.

At the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. Dorocher, Murray street, a euchre party was given last night in honor of their niece, Miss M. E. Martell, prior to her departure for Naganee, Mich. Several selections of excellent music were rendered by Misses M. E. Martell, Jose Delaire, M. Meher and and Mr. A. Hollhan. Playing cards, dancing and other amusements was doubly well spent. After a pleasant recreation a large number of friends sat down to enjoy the delicious and dainty refreshments. A debt of gratitude is due to Mr. and Mrs. Dorocher for their generosity and kindness. Needless to say all who have had an enjoyable and delightful time throughout.

THE BARRIE TRIP

Capt. Eastwood Returned from there this Morning.

Arrangements are now fully completed for the 57th Regiment's trip to Barrie on September 2nd. Captain Eastwood, the Quartermaster, returned from Barrie to-day, and reports that everything is in readiness for the regiment. The park in the central part of the town will make an ideal place for a camping ground, and the hotels will provide for the meals. On Saturday afternoon the citizens of Barrie will take the regiment for a trip down the bay, and on Sunday morning there will be a church parade. On Monday afternoon at the exhibition grounds a programme of sports will be run off, and the regiment is allowed to get up any sports they wish.

At the drill last night the men did not turn out as well as they might have done, but a good practice was gone through with. On Monday, also, at Barrie, the regiment will perform the troop.

Following were the orders issued last night:—

Orders by Lieut.-Col. J. W. Miller, C.O. 57th Regt., Peterborough Rangers:

No. 1—Detail of duty for week, Capt. Cluxton. Next for duty, Capt. Hounsell.

No. 2.—The regiment will parade with both bands on Tuesday, August 30rd, at 8 p.m., in the drill hall.

No. 3—Arrangements have been completed for the trip to Barrie for three days, leaving Peterborough on Sept. 2nd. Detail of duties and further orders regarding the trip will be issued at next drill.

No. 4.—The C.O. is pleased to make the following promotions:—F Co., to be corporals, provisionally, Ptes. Crewe and Routley.

G. W. BENNETT, Capt.,
Acting Adjutant.

HIGH CHIEF RANGER'S REPORT.

Chambers of the High Court of Eastern Ontario, Independent Order of Foresters, Peterborough, Aug. 17th, 1904."

To the Officers and Members of the High Court:

Companions and Brethren—

1. For the second time it is my pleasant duty to open the sessions of the High Court of Eastern Ontario. I am pleased to again meet those who formerly took part with us in our deliberations. Knowing their ability and their desire to advance the interests of our Order, I feel confident that the business of this High Court will be conducted in such a manner as to reflect credit upon the members, and to redound to the prosperity and stability of Independent Forestry. To those who are with us for the first time I extend the right hand of good fellowship, and in the name of my colleagues on the High Standing Committee I bid them welcome. They have already served the Order faithfully and well in their several Companion or Subordinate Courts, and have thus won the esteem and approval of their fellow members, who have shown their confidence in them by electing them representatives to this High Court. Such being their record, I have no doubt they will materially assist in conducting the business that may come before us with honor to themselves and with satisfaction to those who elected them.

2. You know my colleagues on the High Standing Committee. You know their ability and their zeal for the Order. It may seem, therefore, superfluous for me to tell you that they have each done their duty in their respective offices. At the same time I cannot refrain from publicly acknowledging my indebtedness to them for their assistance and their uniform kindness and courtesy towards me and their readiness at all times to answer the calls which I made upon them. Whatever success has been achieved in Eastern Ontario is due in no small degree to their advice in council and their ability on the platform.

3. During the past year I have had many opportunities of visiting Companion and Subordinate Courts. On all occasions I was received with such kindness and courtesy that my visits were always pleasant. I am well aware that much of the courtesy extended to me was shown to the office I hold, and at the same time I would fain believe that some at least was intended for me personally. Wherever I went I found the members loyal to their officers and loyal to our Order. Executive officers and organizers can do much to advance the Order if they have the sympathy and co-operation of the members. Without that sympathy and co-operation officers and organizers can do but little. I am pleased to bear testimony to the fact that officers, organizers and members throughout the jurisdiction have during the past year worked together most harmoniously, all being imbued with the single purpose of advancing Forestry financially and numerically. The reports for the year will show that their united efforts have been unprecedentedly successful. Permit me to thank all who helped on the good work. Where so many are deserving of credit, it would be invidious, if not impossible, to select any for special mention and thanks.

WORK.

4. In our efforts to increase our membership we have been much assisted by Bro. Rev. Alex. MacGillivray, P.H.C.R., Toronto; Bro. J. C. Morgan, H.V.C.R., Barrie, and Bro. Barlow Cumberland, D.S.C.R., Toronto. Each of these brothers addressed several public meetings during the past year, and materially assisted in creating faith and enthusiasm in our members, and in persuading outsiders that if they wish safe, reliable insurance, they could get it in Independent Forestry. Owing to their efforts I am persuaded our Order has been increased and strengthened, and to them I thus publicly extend the thanks of the High Court of Eastern Ontario.

5. From June 30th, 1903, to June 30th, 1904, we instituted 11 Companion and 4 Subordinate Courts. During the same period two courts surrendered their charters and two others amalgamated with neighboring Courts. Our increase in Courts was therefore 11. During the past year the Supreme Court organized the High Court of New Ontario, and placed 8 of our Courts in the new jurisdiction. We had, therefore, on June 30th last only three Courts more than we had on June 30th, 1903.

6. Since the closing of our Forestrie year, a Subordinate Court was instituted by Bro. L. G. Morgan in Ottawa East, and a Companion Court by Bro. J. Richards at Stella. We thus have, notwithstanding our loss of 8 Courts, transferred to New Ontario 5 more Courts than we had at the close of our Forestrie year.

7. Our membership on June 30th, 1903, was 12,470. Of these 287 were transferred to New Ontario, thus leaving our membership of 12,293. On June 30th last we had 13,242, thus showing a net gain of 1,039 members for this year. This is the largest net gain in any year save one, when the gain was 1,065. If you bear in mind that this latter gain was made in the year in which the Select Knights were admitted to our Order you will see that our net gain this year compares more than favorably with that of any previous year.

JOINT INITIATIONS.

8. At our last High Court meeting it was announced that a Joint Initiation would be held in Ottawa during the coming fall. I then intimated that I would endeavor to have this initiation include the whole of Eastern Ontario. It was so arranged. 812 candidates were initiated, and thus Eastern Ontario broke the record for joint initiations. Shortly afterwards this distinction was wrested from us by Buffalo and Toronto. Again we buckled on our armor and got to work to regain our lost honors. In May at Belleville we again headed the list by initiating 1,041 candidates. Once more we have been outdone, this time by Quebec. Shall we rest satisfied with our past successes, or shall we strive to regain our position as the leaders in the matter of joint initiations? It is for you to say. What we determine to do we have always done. What we have done in the past we can do in the future. United and energetic work can accomplish the seemingly impossible. It is for you to decide.

LAPSES.

9. Last year we had 820 withdrawals and lapses. This number is too large. I am persuaded that the members of the local Courts would greatly diminish the number of lapses by carefully and in a fraternal spirit looking after those members who by neglect get into arrears. This is an important matter, and vitally affects the whole Order, and, therefore, every individual member of the Order.

FINANCES.

10. By the estimates passed at our last session the receipts for the year were placed at $8,346.66, but the actual receipts were only $8,126.66.

11. During the year your Committee conducted your business at an outlay of $7,603.90, thus leaving a balance to the credit of the High Court of $1,161.19. From this balance should be deducted $379.50 owing to the Supreme Court, $125.00 owing for salaries, and $151.50 owing for outstanding accounts. These amounts have been paid since the books were closed for the year. This leaves us with an actual balance of $405.19.

A TRUE STORY.

How a Young Wife Regained Her Health and Beauty.

W. E. Birch, Afton, Va., an extensive fruit grower of that place, writes the following letter to the Peruna Medicine Co., of Columbus, Ohio. We print the letter in full:

Afton, Va., June 4, 1903.

The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O.:

Gentlemen—"The country is so flooded with patent medicines of every kind that are worthless and a humbug, that I for one, am glad to be able to say I have found one that is everything and more than is claimed for it.

"My wife was very much run down and out of sorts in every way. She had a pelvis disorder which left her very weak, nervous and no appetite at all.

"One day I happened to be at my father's store, S. A. Birch, Coreeville, Alb county, Va., and noticed your medicine he had there for sale.

"I thought it might help my wife, so I brought a bottle of it home and within a week she commenced to eat and now she is hungry all the time and not half the medicine has been taken. We both agree that it beats any medicine to bring on an appetite and to put the nerves in good shape that we have ever had anything to do with. We had our family doctor to give her medicine and he did all he could, but she did not improve the least. She has consumption in her family and she was in such bad shape; so run down, nervous, weak, and could not eat, that I had begun to get very uneasy, but your medicine made an entirely new woman of her. I believe she eats and feels better a than she has for years.

"I have not the slightest doubt that your medicine has saved her in a long spell of sickness, if not more. All my family had begun get uneasy, but, of course, she did know it and I have only just told of it since she has improved so me I had no idea it would do half wh. has and don't think there is any medicine made that will begin to compare with it."—W. E. Birch, Ex. Grower, Afton, Alb county, Va.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

SACRIFICE OF 20,000 JAPANESE

But in Three Days the Mikado's Men Gained in Position.

THE TERMS OF SURRENDER

Received by Gen. Stoessel With a Burst of Profanity and He Says, No Surrender -- Japanese Unable to Accede Grace.

Che Foo, Aug. 19.—A battle of huge proportions raged around Port Arthur Aug. 14 and 15 and was resumed Aug. 17. The Japanese, it is reported, sacrificed 20,000 more men, but gained important advantages in the matter of position. The news was brought here on junks, one of which, having on board three Russians concealed in the baggage of Chinese, to escape from the Japanese left Port Arthur Wednesday night and was blown rapidly to Che Foo by a gale.

The main force of attack was directed against the left wing and resulted in the capture of Pigeon Bay positions and some of the forts at Liaotieshan. At Paluntchang the Japanese hastily mounted guns, which did excellent service in aiding the storming of the right wing, where the Japanese are said to have captured two forts of minor value, mounting eight 4-inch guns, two siege guns and six quick-firing guns.

Terms of Surrender.

The position that the Japanese occupy is on Liaotieshan Peninsula, and numerous Chinese sources aver that the Japanese have been seen in force in that section. Apparently a cruising attack, originating in Louisa Bay, swept through the Pigeon Bay positions into the peninsula, in the doing of which a majority of lives of the expedition were sacrificed. On the night of the 15th the battle lulled somewhat, and the Japanese sent the terms of surrender to Lieut.-Gen. Stoessel.

The terms provided that the garrison should march out with the honors of war and join Gen. Kuropatkin, that all civilians be brought to a place designated by the Japanese admiral; that the Russian warships in the harbor, numbering seven, namely, the battleships Retvizan, Sevastopol, Pobieda, Peresviet, Poltava, the armored cruiser Bayan and the protected cruiser Palada, and twelve or more torpedo boat destroyers and four gunboats be surrendered to the Japanese.

Stoessel Profane.

Lieut.-Gen. Stoessel is alleged to have received the terms with a burst of wonderful profanity, his habitual taciturnity deserting him.

He strode the floor until he became calmer, and then remarked that if the Japanese proposition was a joke it was in bad taste.

Unable to Accede Grace.

London, Aug. 19.—A despatch to The Central News from Tokio says it has been announced there that the Japanese commander in front of Port Arthur has been unable to accede to a Russian request for grace in order to permit the removal of non-combatants from that place.

No Surrender, Says Stoessel.

London, Aug. 19.—A despatch to the Japanese Legation from Tokio announces that a reply was received from the commander of the Russian forces at Port Artuur Wednesday refusing either to surrender to the besieging force of Japanese or to send out the non-combatants.

What St. Petersburg Expected.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 19.—The report that Gen. Stoessel, the Russian commander at Port Arthur, declined to capitulate in response to the Japanese summons creates no surprise. The War Office would have been amazed if he had yielded.

Japs to Hoist Ashold, Et al.

Shanghai, Aug. 19.—M. Odagira, the Japanese Consul-General, has notified the Taotai of Shanghai that a Japanese fleet is coming to seize the Russian cruiser Askold and the Russian torpedo boat destroyer Grozevoi.

The repairs being made by the Russians on the Grozovoi will be completed in about ten days. It is uncertain when the repairs to the Askold will be finished.

There is no uneasiness here, although the situation is thought to be acute.

The foreign Consuls are determined to preserve the neutrality of the port.

The Taotai will allow the Russian cruiser Askold and the Russian torpedo boat destroyer Grozovoi to remain in port until Aug. 23, when one day's notice to leave or disarm will be given them. The arrival of Chinese men-of-war is expected.

Won't Give It Up.

London, Aug. 19.—Japan has officially notified Great Britain that she does not propose to give up the Russian torpedo boat destroyer Ryeshitelni, captured in the harbor of Che Foo, Aug. 12.

Will Recognize.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 19.—It is understood that Russia will recognize the validity of the British and American view differentiating between conditional and absolute contraband of war, and the Russian reply will be couched in this sense. Specific claims on the part of Great Britain for seizures of vessels and cargoes will probably be reserved for later consideration.

Looks Bad For Pallada.

Tokio, Aug. 19.—A report from Admiral Togo says the gunboats Maya and Amagi, near Shampoingtao, on Aug. 11, discovered the Russian gunboat Giliak and another gunboat near Shenahen shelling the Japanese land forces and attacked them. A shell from the Amagi hit the Giliak, which retreated to Port Arthur.

It probably was the fifth torpedo boat destroyer flotilla that sank the Russian cruiser Pallada on the night of Aug. 10. Capt. Mathuoka reports that he approached a cruiser of the Pallada type and fired a torpedo which he saw hit the cruiser and explode.

CABINET CHANGES.

What Calling of Mr. Aylesworth Means If True.

Ottawa, Aug. 19.—(Globe Special.)—The report that Mr. Aylesworth will shortly enter the Dominion Cabinet is taken to mean that Hon. Charles Fitzpatrick is about to retire, as the former would no doubt be given the portfolio of Minister of Justice. Rumor connects Mr. Fitzpatrick's name with the Chief Justiceship of the Supreme Court. It is said that Sir Henri Taschereau may retire, in which event he would be succeeded by Mr. Fitzpatrick. However, there is nothing official in regard to these reports as yet.

Sutherland to Retire.

Woodstock, Aug. 19.—It seems to be the settled belief here that Hon. James Sutherland will not only resign his seat in the Cabinet, but will not be a candidate for re-election. His health is very bad. The latest report from Danesville, N.Y., where he is stopping at a sanitarium, states that there is no material improvement in his condition, and he will leave for home shortly.

Sir Wilfrid Going to Carleton.

Ottawa, Aug. 19.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier leaves to-day for Carleton, Bonaventure. While there he will be given a demonstration by the citizens of Bonaventure County, headed by Mr. Chas. Marcil, M.P.

—The government stove has been looking again. Rumours of incongruous appointments to reward ordinary party services have been circulated so far even as Toronto and Ottawa. Perhaps the rumour is intended to bring on the reality.

TO LEAVE CANADA.

S. A. Commissioner Evangeline Booth Will Say Farewell About the Middle of November.

Toronto, Aug. 18.—The late great International Congress of the Salvation Army concludes with the disclosure of important decisions made by the General, the most interesting of which effect changes in the largest and most influential territories.

Among these is the retirement of Commissioner Evangeline Booth from Canada. During the past eight years Miss Booth has ably directed the administration at Toronto of the Salvation Army, in a territory which includes Newfoundland, Alaska, portions of the western States and Bermuda, in addition to the Dominion. The general term of office for a territorial commissioner is considered to be five years, so that the additional stay eloquently testifies to the excellent work accomplished, and appreciated by the General, as well as to the general esteem in which Miss Booth is held in all parts of her extensive command.

COMMISSIONER BOOTH.

Her departure will take place about the middle of November, before which Miss Booth will visit as many large cities in her command as her time will permit, to give the public an opportunity to hear her again before relinquishing her present reins of office. The final gathering will take place in Toronto some time in November, when representative officers from all parts of her command and all officers in Ontario will be present. The welcome of the new Commissioner will take place in connection with these meetings. Announcements regarding Miss Both's successor and her future appointment cannot be made for a few weeks yet.

STUFFED BY SLANDERS

It may be considered doubtful policy for the Western British Americans to be strongly partisan on either side in regard to Canadian politics when it is supposed to represent the British community in the Western States, but that is its own affair. It becomes however, a public injury to this Dominion when the editor allows himself to be stuffed with the vilest slanders and calumnies invented by the Ministerial press, for by so doing it grossly misrepresents Canada where a correction may be difficult and may not reach those who have been deluded. For instance in a recent issue it repeats one of the "thumping lies" to use the phrase prescribed by the Toronto Globe—uttered by Sir Frederick Borden and his organs, while he is dishonestly hiding away the refutation of the slander in a pigeon hole. Lord Dundonald is a man whose reputation stands deservedly high among all well informed British people and it is a scandal that those in the western States should be thus misled into condemning him.

Again in another editorial in the same issue the Western British American argues that Mr. Whitney is unfit to hold office because he is a friend of Mr. Gamey. The character of Mr. Whitney stands too high to be successfully assailed where he is known, but he is not well known in the Western States and British people there should not be taught to form an unfair estimate of him by the picture drawn of him by an editor who has not taken the trouble of making himself acquainted with the facts. As to Mr. Gamey, he is the elected representative of a constituency which has done its ill credit by its choice. The villainous slanders of him which the British American adopts were invented by corrupt politicians whose iniquities he had been the means of exposing. He proved from their own evidence that the Provincial Secretary of Ontario with the Premier directing the affair from the background, had attempted to corrupt him. Incidentally it was shown that the Provincial Secretary himself committed perjury and had incited a witness to commit both forgery and perjury. Mr. Gamey is a far more reputable companion on a platform or anywhere else than Mr. Stratton.

The Western British Canadian should be more careful to learn the fact before it belittles public men who have made enemies by doing their duty, and should be all the more cautious because some of its readers may not have an opportunity of acquiring more trustworthy information.

MILITIA DEFENCE

What a dishonest quibble it is for Ministers and their organs to plead that their proposal as to the Canadian Militia was precisely the same as the law in the United Kingdom concerning the militia, namely that it was for purposes of defence. The British militia is their home guard their second line in support of the regular army, while in Canada we have no force but the militia, which therefore may be called to the duty of carrying out what is often the most effective defence an attack upon opponents. If the law is similar there is a vast difference in the manner in which it is interpreted and put into practice. Not to go further back it is well known that there was no difficulty placed in the way of British militia regiments going as such to South Africa, of course having volunteered. In Canada on the same occasion Ministers and their organs said that Canadians going to fight the Boers had no connection with the militia, but were merely volunteers who were permitted to go to the seat of war if they liked. When Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his colleagues were driven by public outcry to concede this much, very much against their will, their interest seemed to be confined to two particular points. One was the provisions of the best positions for political friends, while Conservative officers had to go in the ranks, if at all, and the favoritism was naturally still more conspicuous in the selection for the jubilee and the coronation. Their other concern was the diabolical scheme of the murderous emergency rations.

The object of this clause in the Militia Bill was to show that our Militia is for the defence of the Dominion alone, not of the Empire also, a position assumed to please the Bourassas.

FORESTERS PUBLIC MEETING

Large Gathering in Brock-st. Rink Listened to Addresses by Mr. A. W. Fraser, K.C., P.H.C.R., Dr. Millman, Supreme Physician, Dr. Crain, H.V.C.R., Mr. Barlow Cumberland, D.S.C.R. and Dr. Herald, H.C.R.--An Entertaining Programme.

Brock-st. rink served the purpose of a public meeting hall Wednesday evening, and did not lack in attractive properties. About five hundred people had assembled to listen to addresses by Supreme High Court officers of the Independent Order of Foresters, and to a programme of music and recitation. The interior of the hall was artistically decorated with flags, a picture of King Edward VII occupying a central place in the design of loyal coloring. A platform had been raised, and above it was a bedflagged canopy which served to improve the acoustic properties of the place. Many of the members of the High Court were in attendance, and quite a large number of the citizens of the town. The delegates had marched to the rink in a body, headed by the 57th band, with Mr. Dallertel, of Perth, as marshall, and quite gaily did he fill that position. The procession first did up the principal streets of the town, and it was evident that the Forestric host of Peterborough made their occupation of Peterborough very popular to the citizens.

The meeting at the rink opened with a selection by the band, and a number of comic recitations by Mr. Shea, of Kingston, who, for the occasion, adopted an amusing garb and gave some Irish songs to be appropriate. He was repeatedly encored.

Mr. A. W. Fraser, Past High Chief Ranger, was chairman, and filled that position very capably. He referred to the reception of the High Court at Peterborough as having been very enjoyable. The beautiful streets and parks, the river and the lift lock had conduced in great degree to that result, and he felt sure that every delegate would return home feeling that he had had a splendid time.

THE SUPREME PHYSICIAN.

Dr. Millman, of Toronto, the Supreme Physician, was the first speaker introduced. In a very able manner he reviewed the history of this Order during the past quarter of a century. He first paid a compliment to Peterborough by pointing to its recognition as one of the smaller but very enterprising cities. In his eulogy of the Supreme Chief Ranger he said that the Society would never have been in existence but for Dr. Oronhyatekha, into whose mind discouragement never entered, and he foresaw the ultimate success of his undertaking. The Independent Foresters were founded in 1874. In 1881 it was reorganized on its present plan with 389 members, and not a dollar in the treasury. Dr. Millman said he had been a member of the Order since 1878, and stated that his dues now were the same as then, in setting forth that it was not the policy of the Order to be continually increasing its assessment. There had been between seventeen and eighteen million dollars paid out in that 26 years, and there were $7,800,000 to the good. The membership to-day was nearly 224,000, in good standing, and lapses were less than in any other society. It was some times claimed by old line companies that the Order was not on a safe basis, that the rate was not sufficient. We levy just as much as any insurance company to carry the risk, said Dr. Millman. He did not say it in disparagement of insurance companies that they had to levy a larger amount to meet current expenses than had the society, but said they were doing a good work, and he wished them God-speed.

Dr. Millman explained that the Order gave insurance of from $500 to $5,000, and upon reaching his 70th year a member ceased paying and receives one-tenth of his insurance, and a similar amount until it is exhausted at his 80th year, or if he should die in that period the remainder would go to his beneficiary. Upon a member being totally disabled he ceases paying and receives one-half of his insurance, and upon his death the balance goes to his beneficiary. During sickness he received $3 for the first two weeks, and for the remainder of the illness an amount at the discretion of the executive.

It was pointed out that the monthly receipts of the Supreme Court were $275,000, and each month there was paid out $103,000 in insurance, sick benefits, old age and permanent disability benefits. The treasurer's department was necessarily kept very busy. The surplus was about eight millions. Dr. Millman pointed out that in becoming a member of the Foresters money was well invested, and not a dollar was lost.

Mr. Carruth, of Renfrew, contributed several songs, which were very well received.

Dr. Crain, the High Vice Chief Ranger, also paid considerable attention in his speech to the progress of the Order. Its membership was over 224,000, and this was being added to every month by between 2,500 and 3,000—one instance of progressiveness. At the beginning there was $4.87 in the treasury; to-day there was about $8,000,000 of a surplus, and this was being added to at the rate of $3,000 a day. There had been over fourteen millions paid to beneficiaries. During the past thirty days the amount of total disability benefit paid was $9 000. The membership of the Order was made up of the brawn and sinew of the land, and there were many of the most prominent citizens of the country connected with it. He cited many evidences of its stability. Dr. Crain, referring to the Foresters of Peterborough, said they were energetic, loyal, and deserving of everything good.

Mr. Jas. Dawson gave a vocal solo that was very acceptable, being heartily applauded.

MR. BARLOW CUMBERLAND,

of Toronto, the Deputy Supreme Chief Ranger, was introduced as one who had done good work in Eastern Ontario during the illness of the High Chief Ranger, and, in fact, had always been an energetic Forester. Mr. Cumberland referred to the work of the I.O.F. in Britain—the home land—and said, "I give you the hearty greetings of your English brethren, we are heart and heart with you in carrying on this great work. He considered several reasons for faith in the Order. Ald. Morrison had told them of the advantages of the city, and the beauties of its surroundings, and he reminded them of the time when the Independent Foresters had held their High Court here before ten years ago. There had certainly been an improvement in the town, said the speaker. We see it, Canada knows it, and—I would ask the citizens to rejoice also with us, because ten years ago the surplus was $838,000, while to-day it is $7,833,000. We are nine times as large as we were when we met in this place. This was one reason for faith. Again, in 1900, after paying all dues and expenses our improvement in assets for the year was $699.000; in 1901 it was $747,000; in 190.. it was $994,000; in 1903 it was $1,234,000. These facts tell me that this Order, carried on in a business-like way, is based on a sound foundation. Mr. Cumberland, referring to the death rate, took the average of a congress of the largest and choicest festival Societies of America for 1902, which was 8.37, while for the same year the Foresters' was $6.60, o where 8 1-2 men died with the former, only 6 1-2 died with the latter, and this last year it was still heavier. His belief was that men who join the Foresters would live longer, because they came in contact with men who would never lead him astray, men who would keep him in time of necessity. We owe it, said he, to Dr. Millman, the Supreme Physician for his carefulness in seeing that no one is admitted who is not up to the standard which the Independent Forester requires and demands. Mr. Cumberland referred to the arrangements that were being made for the Orphans' Home, and in conclusion eulogized the man who provides against the day of need for those depending upon him.

Dr. Herald, the High Chief Ranger, was the last speaker. He humorously observed that the High Court of Eastern Ontario was in a weak, moribund condition, for, said he, who ever heard of a patient who had three doctors and ever recovered! During the past two years there had been added to this jurisdiction 32 or 33 new courts, and had 1,660 more members on the 30th of June last than at the same time the year previous. Two years ago there had been a debt of $500; this had been paid off subsequently, and there was new money in the bank. These were surely not evidences that Forestry in Eastern Ontario was decaying and dying. The I.O.F. was a good investment proposition, and the only way that money could be made out of it was by paying in the monthly assessment, and having the satisfaction at the same time of knowing that untold blessing was thus being scattered far and wide. Dr. Herald said, I have been 20 years a Forester, yet if Forestry were to cease at this moment I would be glad I had been a Forester for that time, and I am one of 224,000 helping to scatter one million six hundred thousand dollars to the widow and orphan, the sick and the aged. Dr. Herald claimed for himself no credit for the progress that had marked the past two years, but said that the men and women of the Subordinate and Companion Courts had been the workers.

I am quite sure said he, that I am voicing your feelings when I say that during the last 13 hours you have heard enough of Dr. Herald, but I feel that I would not be correctly representing the feelings of the visitors if I did not say to the citizens of Peterborough how pleased we are that one year ago we selected Peterborough as out next place of meeting, and how far our most ardent expectations of our reception here have been realized. We have been received by Foresters as we knew we would be, but we have been received by the citizens of Peterborough as fellow-citizens, and as members of a noble Order, in a right royal, friendly manner, and I can assure you that every member of the High Court will be willing and unpaid advertisers of your city.

Prolonged applause marked the close of this expression of appreciation. In fact, all of the speakers had been given an attentive hearing, and their remarks were well received.

The National Anthem closed the meeting.

The accompanists of the evening were Mrs. Metheral and Mr. John Crane.

The Liver to Blame

So long as the liver is active in filtering the bile from the blood there is no biliousness and no constipation, because the bile is passed from the liver into the intestines where it acts as a cathartic in keeping the bowels active. Because of their direct action on the liver as well as the bowels, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills thoroughly cure constipation, the real cause of nine-tenths of the common ills of life.

FRIDAY, AUG. 19, 1904.

THE REPORT OF DR. HERALD H. C. R.

PRESENTED AT THE OPENING OF THE I. O. F. MEETING.

What the Foresters of Eastern Ontario have done during past Year.

Following is the continuation of the High Chief Ranger's report at the I.O.F. meeting on Wednesday:

12. Your High Standing Committee feels that they have reason to be pleased with this financial showing, especially when we consider the work done and the results obtained.

13. I take particular pleasure in calling your attention to the small amount of High Court dues owing on the 30th of June last, viz., $206.25; last year the amount was $678 45.

14.—On the other hand I regret to note that the amount owing the High Court for supplies has increased from $78.08 to $154.34. This amount is too large and Companion and Subordinate Courts should see that their accounts with the High Court are settled before the close of our Forestry year, June 30th.

15.—Your High Standing Committee have felt that a fuller and more detailed account of the expenditures for the year should be furnished the members and you will find this year a detailed statement of the mileage and per diem allowances paid the delegates for attendance at High Court as well as a fuller statement of amounts paid on account of Mileage and Expense account. I trust this will meet with the approval of the members.

ORGANIZATION.

16.—During the past year the High Court employed one Organizer, Bro. G. N. Brown, and the Supreme Court had working in Eastern Ontario the following organizers:—Bros. Glendenning, Leggat, McCaul, Richards G. M. Elliott, Simmons, and Morgan, and Companion Miss Duncan. That they have been doing efficient work the results obtained show. But I would remind you that the number of new members obtained does not fully show the work done by the organizers. Through their influence many suspended members have been re-instated, many little difficulties in Subordinate and Companion Courts have been overcome, dissatisfied members have been satisfied and lukewarm ones made enthusiastic. These latter results, while not shown in our tables, are just as important, if not more important than securing new members. I have nothing but praise and thanks to give to our organizers.

17.—This year the supreme Court and the High Court have been acting in the utmost harmony in the field work and the over-lapping to which I threw your attention in my last report has been entirely done away with. At the beginning of the year I had a conference with Hon. Dr. Montague who has charge of the Supreme Court Organization work and as a result we agreed on a plan which, as I have said, worked most harmoniously. Each Organizer was appointed to a district and confined to that district. Here permit me to say that my relations with the Supreme Court Officers have been throughout the year most satisfactory. I found them at all times not only willing but anxious to co-operate and assist me in any plan proposed for the advancement of the work. In giving assistance they have been more than generous. This applies especially to our honoured Chief, Dr. Oronhyatekha.

18.—Allow me to refer to one instance in which the Supreme executive showed their generosity and readiness to assist me in my work. When I was confined to my room last winter, by a somewhat protracted and rather severe illness at my request the Supreme Executive placed at my disposal the services of Bro. Barlow Cumberland. He at once reported for duty and as many of you know attended several meetings. That his services were of value I have abundant proof in the results following the meetings and that they were acceptable I have time and again been assured by those who had the pleasure of hearing him. The services of Bro. Cumberland, let me remind you, entailed no additional expense upon this High Court. That was borne by the Supreme Court. They felt that the work which had been undertaken in Eastern Ontario should not be allowed to suffer on account of my illness and thus generously came to our assistance.

DEPUTIES.

19.—Our District Deputies have been faithful and energetic. Many of them have visited all the Courts in their districts. In compliance with the recommendation made by the High Court last year each District Deputy who sent in an account has had paid not only the amount charged but allowed a small honorarium as well.

20.—In speaking of District Deputies I would like to make a suggestion. At present the appointment of Deputies is in the hands of the High Standing Committee. With all due respect to the members of the committee I do not think they are the best qualified to select the best men for Deputies. I believe that the delegates from the various districts know better than the committee who are the best qualified to fill these offices. I would therefore suggest that the delegates to the High Court from each district meet and recommend for appointment as District Deputy for their district a member who need not necessarily be a delegate. I am persuaded that by this way we would get the best men available and at the same time men who would be satisfactory to the districts.

APPEALS.

21.—In the matter of appeals I am pleased that we have kept up our record. There are no appeals.

SUPREME COURT MEETING.

22.—The next meeting of the Supreme Court will be held in Boston sometime during 1905. As the exact date for the meeting is not yet decided I have been advised by the Supreme Executive that it would be well for us to elect our representatives at this meeting. If this is not done and the Supreme Court should be held before our next regular meeting one of two courses would have to be adopted. A special meeting of the High Court would have to be called or the appointment of Representatives would have to be left to the High Standing Committee. The first alternative would be objectionable and unsatisfactory. It is for you to decide what action this High Court shall take.

COMPANIONS.

23.—At present, as you are aware, ladies may become members of our order by forming a companion court. They cannot become members of a subordinate court. This is all right and quite satisfactory where a sufficient number of companions can be secured to institute a companion court. My experience has been that in many places a few companions can be secured but not enough to form a court. It is true they might become members at large. This plan is open to three objections. There is no cohesion and thus united effort is lacking. Being members at large means that each has to remit her assessments and dues to the Head Office. This is troublesome and expensive. As a consequence we either do not secure as many companions as we might or having secured them we soon lose them. Again members at large do not count in our membership and thus we do not receive credit for our work. I wish to suggest a remedy for this unsatisfactory state of affairs. I would allow companions in those places at which there is no Companion Court and where a sufficient number cannot at first be secured to form one to be attached to the Subordinate Court until a sufficient number are secured to institute a Companion Court. In this way more members would be secured, Eastern Ontario would obtain credit for the work done and a nucleus would be formed, the members of which by their united efforts would soon secure others in order that they might have a court of their own. If you approve of my suggestion you by resolution might make it an instruction to your Representatives to Supreme Court to endeavour to have the Constitution so amended that the suggestion might become effective.

ANNOUNCEMENTS BY THE SUPREME CHIEF RANGER.

24.—In my report of last year I drew your attention to the proposal of the Supreme Chief Ranger to establish one or more schools for the education of the orphans of deceased Foresters. You saw fit to endorse that proposal. The building for the first of these schools, situated on Foresters' Island, will be dedicated on August 27th ext. All Foresters are invited to be present. Excursions will be run to the island on that date. The school will not be a charge upon the order. No assessments for its maintainance will be levied. It is to be supported by voluntary contributions, donations and bequests and it is an open secret that it will probably be endowed by our Supreme Chief Ranger. High Courts will be asked to nominate orphans who ought to be admitted on equal terms. A library for the use of the inmates will be provided.

25.—Already many of the High Courts have contributed towards this laudable object by making a special grant. It is for you to consider whether Eastern Ontario should do so or not. The matter is entirely in your own hands. I do not wish to dictate but I strongly recommend that such a grant be made.

DEATHS.

26.—The Grim Reaper has not been idle during the past year in our ranks. No less than 102 of our members have answered His call. To the loved ones left behind we extend our heartfelt sympathy, and unite in the prayer that the God of the fatherless and the widow will look in mercy upon them and grant them that consolation which the world cannot give.

27.—It is when death visits a home that the benefits of Forestry are perhaps most apparent. When the prop and support of the family is removed our Order comes to the bereaved ones with sympathy and substantial assistance. To the dependents of our 102 deceased members there was paid this last year $114,700.76 and to 6 of our members totally and permanently disabled, there was paid $6,000. Who can estimate the good done by these large sums of money? It cannot give back the dead nor restore the health of the living, but it can and does somewhat lessen the trials and difficulties of the afflicted. When we see and realize the vast good that our Order is doing we rejoice that we have even a small share in this noble, this beneficent work.

CONCLUSION.

28.—I am now about to close my second year in Office. I am sure you will pardon me if I make a short resume of what has been accomplished since I became your High Chief Ranger.

29.—By referring to the Officers' Reports of 1902 you will find that we had cash in bank $401.50.

As against this we owed the Supreme Court...	$314 93
And we owed for salaries... ...	275 00
And for outstanding accounts	172 37
	$762 30

This left us in debt when I took Office to the extent of $460.72.

On the 30th of June last, we had cash in bank...	$1141 10
We owed the Supreme Court	379 20
We owed for salaries...	135 00
We owed for outstanding accounts...	151 80

This leaves us with $464.10 to the good. Thus we were, on June 30th last, $924.82 better off than we were when I became your High Chief Ranger.

30.—Last year we had a net increase in membership of 62; and this year 102, or a total for the two years of 1663. The greatest increase in membership in any two consecutive years previously was 1196. Thus we have had during the past two years a net increase of 472 more than in any other two consecutive years. These facts as to the growth and prosperity of this High Court I have mentioned, not in a boastful spirit, but in order that the members may see that we are in a most prosperous condition and be in a position to refute the statements so often made by our opponents that we are not progressing now as formerly. These satisfactory results have been obtained by the hearty and united efforts of the Officers, Organizers and members. All have contributed to the grand result and all are entitled to the credit.

In closing my second term of office I would most sincerely thank my colleagues for their loyal support and co-operation and express my appreciation of the kindness and courtesy at all times extended to me by the members.

Yours in L. B. and C.

JOHN HERALD,
High Chief Ranger.

An old and well-tried remedy.—Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used for sixty years by millions of mothers for their children while teething, with perfect success. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for diarrhoea. Sold by all druggists in every part of the world. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Its value is incalculable. Be sure and ask for Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup and take no other kind.

RECENT FICTION

A Strange Romance which is probably of Peterborough Origin.

The following fairy tale appears in the Toronto News of Wednesday:

Ottawa, Aug. 17—It is announced that at yesterday's council meeting the appointment of J. H. McClellan to the position of superintendent of the Trent Canal, made it possible for the friends of Mr. John Lang, M.P., for Trent Canal, made it possible for the East Peterborough, to press in council his claims for appointment to the railway construction commission. Mr Lang has lost the nomination for his constituency and his claims to employment are opposed to those of Mr. Duffield, of London, as representative of Ontario in the commission. The announcement of these appointments was expected as far back as Thursday last, and must be imminent now. In the meantime the utmost secrecy as to the negotiations has been preserved.

For Convenience of Exhibitors.

The new administration building on the grounds of the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto will prove a great convenience to exhibitors. In one large room have been grouped the representatives of all the buildings and all the departments. Whether one is showing a traction engine, a thoroughbred horse, or a dainty piece of embroidery, entries can be made and display arranged for by application at this central office.

Exhibitors in several different sections, who, through lack of accommodation, have been compelled to go from one point to another to arrange for their reservations, will particularly appreciate this movement of the management to minimize their difficulties.

REFUNDS $9,000.

Treasurer Refunds Amount of Shortage Due to Bad Bookkeeping.

Windsor, Aug. 19.—The audit of F. H. MacPherson of this city of Tilbury West, discloses the fact that the township treasurer, Thomas Beattie, was $9,000 shy in his accounts.

Mr. Beattie at once deposited the full amount in the bank. There was no intention of defrauding the municipality. The shortage was due to bad bookkeeping.

It was also found that J. Anderson, township clerk, had in his possession a considerable sum of money, collected by the clerk at various times. He promised to make the amount good within a short time.

Several adjacent townships were reported to be indebted to Tilbury West, and these municipalities will be requested to settle.

Making Promises.

Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 18.—Hon. Raymond Prefontaine yesterday promised the City Council that he would use his influence with the Government to make a deep sea harbor for Vancouver and to build a big dredge for the city.

Book Home.

Toronto, Aug. 18.—The members of the Ontario Railway Commission have returned after a seven weeks' tour of American States in quest of information, of which they have accumulated a vast quantity.

For Ontario Commissioner.

Ottawa, Aug. 18.—(Globe Special.) The choice of a commissioner from Ontario on the Transcontinental Commission, it is said, now lies between George Reid, London, and Benjamin Folger of Folger Bros., Kingston. The latter is a member of the Temiskaming Railway Commission and has a very strong backing.

A Niece of Sir Oliver.

Toronto, Aug. 17.—Miss Helen Fraser, a niece of the late Sir Oliver Mowat, has been appointed registrar of the Surrogate Court at Kingston.

CLEAR AND EMPHATIC

Britain's Note to Russia on Question of Foodstuffs.

The Whole Matter Formally Raised—Contraverts Russia's Right to Sink Neutral Merchantmen, and Demands Compensation in the Case of the Knight Commander—Russia Will Try and Meet Contraband Restrictions.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 18.—Great Britain has formally raised the whole question of foodstuffs as contraband of war and the legality of sinking neutral ships, in a communication to the Russian Government presented through Ambassador Hardinge. The views are practically those embodied in the King's speech at the proroguing of Parliament. The communication makes exception to the Russian doctrine that foodstuffs are contraband, takes a position against the right of Russia to sink neutral merchantmen, and demands compensation in the case of the Knight Commander.

The British Contentions.

With regard to foodstuffs consigned to an enemy's ports the communication maintains that proof that they are intended for a belligerent's military or naval force is necessary in order that they be considered contraband. It illustrates in this contention the case of the flour on board the Arabia, which was consigned to a British firm at Yokohama and which was declared contraband by the Vladivostock prize court. Great Britain contends that the Russian doctrine is equivalent to a declaration that all foodstuffs consigned to an enemy's port are unconditionally contraband. The British note argues the question at length against the right to sink neutral ships, as being contrary to international law and usage.

Although the note is couched in friendly terms it presents the British position clearly and emphatically.

The American Case.

The American case was presented through Ambassador McCormick, and follows the lines of the American declaration at the time of the Spanish war. It is in the form of a protest against the confiscation of flour on board the Arabia. The general contentions regarding coal, naphtha, etc., as set forth in Secretary Hay's note of June 10, are also placed before the Russian Government.

Received Without Resentment.

The British and American representations relative to foodstuffs have been received without resentment by the Russian authorities, and they are being considered with the probability that some modifications will be made in the direction of meeting the views of the two Governments.

Coal Steamer Stopped.

Ajaccio, Corsica, Aug. 18.—The British steamer Scotian, coal laden from the Tyne, arrived here yesterday and reported that she was stopped Aug. 12 by two blank shots, followed by a shell from the Russian cruiser Ural, formerly the German steamer Katserin Maria. After an examination of the Scotian's papers she was allowed to proceed. A Russian officer said that the Ural was seeking for over two hundred steamers carrying contraband for transhipment in Spanish and Italian ports.

PARAGUAY REVOLUTION.

The Rebels Will Likely Take Capital Without a Fight.

Buenos Ayres, Aug. 18.—Refugees from Ascuncion, the capital of Paraguay, declare that the conditions there are insupportable. All business has been suspended, the streets are deserted, and only the patrols are visible.

The refugees say that the revolution is spreading, and it is believed that the Government will not offer serious resistance to any attack on the capital.

Gen. Ferreira, the leader of the revolution, will probably be declared president.

Cannonading was heard last night near Ascuncion, but there is no definite news that the capital is being bombarded.

Loss Selectors' Life Prize.

Toronto, Aug. 18.—Yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock in St. Paul's Anglican Church, before a large assemblage, guests and friends, Louis F. Scholes, holder of the Royal Henley Diamond Sculls, entered into the bonds of wedlock, which united him with Miss Jennie Toser, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Toser of 215 Bleecher street. After the ceremony the wedding party repaired to the home of the bride's parents, which was decked with flowers, where breakfast was served and the health of the champion and his bride toasted. On leaving for their honeymoon trip to the Kawartha Lakes, the young couple were strewn with rice and cheered. The presents were numerous and costly.

Mr. Aylesworth For Cabinet.

Ottawa, Aug. 18.—(Globe Special.)—The report is current here that the entrance of A. B. Aylesworth, K.C., into the Cabinet may be looked for at an early date. Although ministerial confirmation of the rumor is lacking, it nevertheless meets with hearty acceptance in political circles.

PEAT FUEL.

A Successful Test made in a Nova Scotian Furnace.

A successful test of peat fuel was made on the night of August 4th in the furnace of the Electric Car Company's station at Yarmouth, N.S. This coke has been perfected largely through the agency of Malcolm Booth, and in the test made demonstrated its intense heat giving powers. Ten minutes after the first supply was put in the furnace the drafts have to be closed, and for several hours the pressure was maintained at 160 lbs. The heat was intense, the peat burning with a clear flame and giving out almost no smoke, while the coke practically burnt away at fine ashes. — Canadian Electrical News.

DR. GRAIN OF CRYSLER HIGH CHIEF RANGER

OF THE I. O. F. HIGH COURT OF EASTERN ONTARIO.

Dr. Shaw of Keene High Physician The Court Concluded its Sittings Last Evening—The Business Transacted.

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON.

Prior to the afternoon session on Wednesday, of the High Court of Eastern Ontario Independent Order of Foresters, the Peterborough Courts invited the visiting delegates to a trip on the steamer City of Peterborough and over the lift lock.

For the purpose the Court adjourned from twelve noon till after the trip, of which the visiting sisters and brethren availed themselves, and a most enjoyable occasion it proved.

The High Court resumed business at 2 o'clock. The minutes of the morning session were approved. Various notices of motion were given and Bro. Barlow Cumberland, D.S.C.R., was received, bringing personal greetings of Supreme Court Ranger Oronyhka.

Bro. Alderman Morrison visited High Court as a representative from the Town Council, and addressed the High Court.

A deputation from Companion Court Queen and Court Chemong were introduced and through Bro. Dr. Greer addressed the High Court in felicitous terms.

Dr. Greer addressed the High Court as follows on behalf of Companion Court Queen and Subordinate Court Chemong:—

"The officers and members of Companion Court Queen and Subordinate Court Chemong of the Independent Order of Foresters have great pleasure in extending to you a cordial and fraternal welcome to Peterborough. The local Foresters, who have been looking forward with interest to this High Court meeting, anticipate much benefit to our Courts as a result.

We have noted with satisfaction the markedly increased growth of the Order in Eastern Ontario, sir, during your term of office, particularly during the last year. While recognizing the valuable work of your efficient organizers and colleagues, without wishing to be invidious in particularizing, we cannot refrain from asserting our belief that not a little of this prosperity must be attributed directly or indirectly to your own personal efforts. We know that you have spared neither time nor talents whenever your services have been called into requisition. Therefore, without desiring to encourage any serious departure from established custom, or to cast any reflection on any possible aspirant for your office, our high estimate of your ability, zeal and fitness for the position and our implicit faith in your integrity and in your fidelity to the Order, prompt us to express the hope that this High Court will make an effort to retain your valuable services for a third term, believing that such a course would be in the best interests of the Order in this jurisdiction.

We trust that the arrangements made for your accommodation will meet with your approval, that the meeting of the High Court will be attended with an unusual degree of pleasure and profit and that you all may carry away the happiest recollections of your visit to our city."

Bro. Dr. Herald replied to the address from the Town Council, and Bro Dr. Wade, High Physician, replied to Courts Queen and Chemong.

The nominations for delegates to Supreme Court were then proceeded with. There were sixty-eight names received.

THURSDAY MORNING SESSION.

High Court opened at 9 a.m., Dr. Herald, H.C.R., in the chair.

The Committee on New Business reported, recommending that orphans to Foresters' Orphans' Home be only admitted after first being recommended by Supreme Court and High Standing Committee.

That the Supreme Court be asked to allow Companions to join Subordinate Courts when enough are not available to form a Companion Court.

P.H.C.R. Matheson and P.H. Physician Dr. Baskin introduced Supreme Physician, Dr. Millman, who gave a short address.

A resolution was passed extending congratulations to Supreme Chief Ranger on his return home in improved health.

The Finance Committee presented its first report. It was recommended that $50 and outstanding arrears of Courts taken from this High Court to form New Ontario High Court, be granted to said new High Court. The sum of $150 was voted to Foresters' Orphans' Home.

The Committee on Constitution and Laws reported in favor of the printing in High Court report of details of expenditure of High Standing Committee.

Delegates to Supreme Court were instructed to favor the admission of members of Companion Courts to the benefits of Sick and Funeral Benefit Departments.

Court adjourned until 2 p.m.

THURSDAY AFTERNOON

The High Court resumed business at 2 p.m. The minutes were read and approved.

Before proceeding with business, the H.C.R. presented Bro. Geo. L. Dickinson, High Secretary, with a gold watch, as a slight token of the esteem in which he is held by the members in the discharge of his duties, as Secretary.

A reply to the congratulatory message to Dr. Oronhyatekha, S.C.R., was received.

The Committee on State of Order reported the condition of the Foresters Courts in Eastern Ontario to be very satisfactory; also that all Subordinate Courts hold at least one public meeting to be addressed by the District Deputy.

The High Court decided to memorialize the Supreme Court to abolish the office of High Physician and High Councellor and substitute therefore two committee men.

The Finance Committee's report was adopted. The estimated receipts were $4,747.65, expenditure $3,594.14; balance $1,153.51.

Belleville was selected as the next place of meeting.

The High Court passed a resolution, asking the Supreme Court to confer on Bro. Dr Herald the Grand Cross of Merit.

Election of officers resulted as follows:

High Chief Ranger—Dr. Crain, Crysler.

High Vice Chief Ranger—W. H. Lowrie, Russell.

Past High Chief Ranger—John Herald, Kingston.

High Secretary—G. L. Dickinson, Manotick.

High Treasurer—J. R. McCann, Kingston.

High Physician—J. M. Shaw, Keene.

High Councellor—S. S. Lasser, Belleville.

Auditors—S. Lowe, Kingston, Walter Rawson, Kingston.

Leagates to Supreme Court—Dr. Crain, Crysler; Dr. Herald, Kingston G. L. Dickinson, Manotick; A. W. Fraser, Ottawa; H. E. O. Pratt, Ottawa; Geo. Spence, Cobourg; D. H. McDiarmid, Avonmore; J. S. R. McCann, Kingston; Rev. H. O. Wood, Metcalfe; Dr. Buskin, Ottawa; J. A. Garrett, Havelock; W. J. Shore, Ottawa; Dr. Greer, Peterborough; R. Caruth, Renfrew; W. Rowan, Ottawa; T. A. Scott, Winchester; T. A. Kidd, Burritt's Rapids. The three latter gentlemen were tied for fifteenth place.

THE NEW CHIEF RANGER.

Bro W. E. Crain, M.D., the new Chief Ranger of the I.O.F. for Eastern Ontario is a gentleman who has been well and favorably known in Forestric work. He was born in Grenville County, in 1871, and after attending school in Ottawa and Brockville he matriculated for Toronto University in 1888, and began the study of medicine the same year. Here he began to show his brilliant abilities by capturing in the primary examination the first scholarship aid, and in the final the medal and the George Brown scholarship for the highest standing in four years course. He settled down to the practice of medicine at Crysler in 1894, where he now has a very extensive practice. He has taken a zealous interest in municipal affairs, and is at present reeve of the township of Finch. Yet the dawn of his success in the political sphere has scarcely yet broken upon him. At the first meeting of the High Court of Eastern Ontario he was elected High Physician, to which office he was re-elected four times, showing his widespread popularity through Eastern Ontario. At Picton in 1902 he was raised to the position of High Vice and was again re-elected in 1903. Bro. Dr. Crain's ability is generally recognized, and he will no doubt be the next High Chief Ranger of the Eastern High Court. Personally he is

THE HIGH SECRETARY.

As High Secretary of the High Court of Eastern Ontario of the Independent Order of Foresters, Bro. G. L. Dickinson, yesterday presented with a gold watch, his recognized most valuable and efficient services. He was first appointed by the S. C. R., High Secretary of the High Court of Eastern Ontario at the division of the Province into three High Courts, and has been re-elected by acclamation at the seven subsequent meetings of the High Court, to the position he now fills so admirably, the representatives to the High Court meetings recognizing his real worth in that capacity. He is also a past Supreme Court officer and has attended several meetings of the Supreme Court, where his conception of business methods were of great value in the important work. Bro. Dickinson has also rendered very valuable services to the Order at the time he represented the County of Carleton in the House of Commons. The first Bill of Incorporation was in his name, and with the assistance of Bro. Judge Jamieson, who was then also a member of the House of Commons, the Act of Incorporation was passed. Bro. Dickinson entered Court Manotick, 1444, as a charter member in 1895.

GOOD SHOTS IN 57TH. REGT.

Scores to hand to-day from Ottawa Col. Sgt. Moore's good Showing

The militia orders containing the scores made in the Canadian Military Rifle League competition have just come to hand, and the 57th Regiment heads the list with 3745 points. The 6th Regt. D.C.O.R., of Vancouver, is a close second with 3737 points to their credit. The 13th Regt. of Hamilton has 3705 points.

For the championship of the series and of the league, for a silver cup, Pte. Geo. Milligen, of the 91st Highlanders, Hamilton, winner, and Col.-Sergt. W. H. Moore, of the 57th Regt. followed close with 393 points.

There are, without a doubt, many Bisley men in the 57th Regiment, and a glance at the weekly scores would thoroughly convince everyone that a Peterborough representative will follow in the footsteps of Pte. Perry. Yesterday at the ranges Pte. Curtis made a most remarkable shoot, making thirty bulls.

MR. T. B. BADEN DEAD

A Former Resident of Peterborough Passes Away in Calgary.

A despatch from Calgary, N.W.T., tells of the death of Mr. T. B. Braden, who for some years was a resident of Peterborough, following the vocation of school teacher. His friends will regret to learn of his death. Following is the despatch:

Calgary, N. W. T., Aug. 18.—Mr. T. B. Braden died here this morning, after a brief illness, aged 54. He was one of the best known citizens and most popular in this district. He He came from Peterborough in 1883, and started the Calgary Herald, the first paper to be printed here. In 1885 he left The Herald, and started the Tribune, which later on merged into The Albertan. He left The Tribune in 1894 to become business manager of the Herald, which position he held until a couple of years ago, when he went into real estate and insurance. Deceased was one of the oldest and best known Liberals in Alberta.

PLEASANT HOLIDAY PICNIC

Party of Young People had a Sail at Young's Point.

A party of young people were yesterday the guests of Messrs. Edwards Sisson and Moore, students at the C.G.E. Works, on a trip on the steamer Water Lily to Young's Point. There they picnicked in a grove, which seemed to have been set there for the purpose, and otherwise spent a very pleasant afternoon. The party arrived home about nine o'clock.

AFTER FORTY-TWO YEARS

Edward M. Taylor of St. Louis will Meet his Brother.

Edward M. Taylor, of St. Louis, an old Peterborough boy, arrived in town last night from Toronto. He will await the arrival here or in Toronto of his oldest brother, S. E. Taylor of Wellington, New Zealand. They have not seen each other for about forty-two years. The brothers are sons of Rev. R. J. C. Taylor, for many years and long ago rector of St. John's church.

Mr. Taylor has for forty-four years been a resident of St. Louis, and like many other Canadians who went west in the sixties, he has experienced prosperity. He has frequently visited Peterborough, the town of his birth, and remarks with pleasure upon its growth, fine prospects and many advantages. He is looking eagerly forward to meeting his brother, and to the re-union which must mark his home-coming from New Zealand.

Brevities.

—At the police court this morning a drunk who has been doing a week's remand on the hill was discharged.

—In the meantime while the connection of Hunter-st. direct with the lift lock remains unopened, some enterprising boys are holding up the people who would use the right of way.

—A large excursion, under the auspices of the Masonic fraternity, of Lindsay, was in town Wednesday evening. They were taken around the lakes by the str. Kenosha and proceeded by Grand Trunk from Lakefield to Lindsay.

—A number of young men had some good luck in fishing the other evening down the river. Several large bass were caught, but to Mr. Reynolds, of the Bank of Commerce, came the pleasure of landing a five-pounder, measuring 18 1-2 inches. It is the largest bass seen here for some time.

—In connection with Sturgeon Point Regatta the Lindsay Post has the following to say: The sails of R. M. Dennistoun's winning yacht were made by Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons of Peterborough, who are perhaps the oldest and most experienced sail makers in Canada. The job done for Mr. Dennistoun is undoubtedly a credit to this energetic firm.

—An information was laid against a couple of boys this morning at the Police Court, and they will answer to the charge of stealing apples on Rubidge st., on Tuesday morning next at 10 o'clock. Last Wednesday three boys were found in an orchard on London st., and when one was caught he gave a fictitious name and refused to divulge the names of his companions. That boy apparently forgot that he was committing a criminal offence in giving a wrong name, and could be sent to Kingston for some years. However, the boys will do well to profit by this warning and let the gardens and orchards alone.

ANOTHER CHAMPIONSHIP

T. A. S. DEFEAT HAVELOCK BY THE SCORE OF 7-1.

Ball Fenced by Mr. R. R. Hall Hon. Pres. of Trent Valley League and Donator of Trophy—Good Game Witnessed—Havelock Outclassed

Last evening the undefeated T.A.S. team added another win to their string by defeating Havelock to the tune of 7-1 in a final game in the Trent Valley League series. The Havelock bunch were no mean opponents and came here with the expectation of giving the locals a good hard game, and they did it, although the score would not indicate it. They do not play any kind of a system and their defence were continually drawn out and it was a very simple matter to shoot at close range. A few attempts at combination work were tried by the visitors, but for the most part blind passing was a feature, and once in a while a long throw to anywhere was tried. They are a good husky bunch and checked closely, but they could not stand the heavy pace the T.A.S. set them. The home team were much faster and better stick-handlers, while the defiance was impregnable, Boyle at point and O'Brien in goal, taking everything into camp that came their way. The defence did not have much to do, however, as the play was mostly in the visitors' territory. The homes were well fed, but a lot of good opportunities to score were lost by wild shots.

The Havelock team were accompanied by quite a few supporters, who cheered them throughout the game. Owing to the awkwardness of the time, the grand stand was not as full as it otherwise would have been, and the people who failed to see the game missed witnessing one of the best games played here this season. Owing to the late hour only three quarters were played, and towards the last of the third period the evening was drawing to a close and fast work was impossible. This win practically gives the championship of the league to the T.A.S., and they heartily deserve it, as they have worked together hard all season, never losing a game. The return game will likely be played in Havelock next week, but the boys do not fear their lead of six goals being overcome.

Mr. R. R. Hall, the honorary president of the Trent Valley League, and donor of the trophy faced the ball out at the beginning, and received a great ovation from the spectators. He watched the game throughout, with great interest, and was delighted to see such good ball being played in such a new league as this one. This is the first year for the Trent Valley League, and it has been a most successful one, and the prospects are that it will develop into a much larger one next year, as the Trent Valley Hockey League has developed. The T.A.S. has great cause to be proud of their boys in bringing so many trophies to Peterborough.

The ball was faced at 6.20 and was pulled out of the sticks and wandered into Havelock territory. After two minutes Parnell received a pass from Judd and took a long chance, scoring first blood for the locals. The play still lingered around the nets and Deroucher made a nice run through the defence but shot wild. Moxate secured and ran the length of the field, but lost it, and Havelock returned, but their attempt was unsuccessful. O'Sullivan made a pretty shot, but O'Brien was in the way and passed nicely to Crowley, who passed to Judd, but he fell and lost the ball. This period ended with the score 1-0.

In the second period the T. A. S. again secured the ball and within half a minute Judd secured and tallied another for the locals. Deroucher repeated the trick in two minutes from a pass from McGrath. Havelock now got a chance and Gibbs made one of his lightning dashes and scored, making the score 3-1.

In the last period McGrath scored after two minutes' play, and Deroucher, on a pass from Judd, repeated the trick in two minutes more. Judd tallied another in four minutes and passed nicely to Deroucher for another score just shortly before time was called, the score ending 7-1.

Mr. R. M. Glover of town made a most impartial referee and his decisions were looked upon by everyone as very just. He was called upon a few times to penalize the players, but the game, as a whole, was free from any semblance of ungentlemanly conduct. Following were the teams:

AN ALL NIGHT BATTLE

Began on Monday on the East Side of Port Arthur.

Japanese Said to Have Made Advance From Poteous Mountain—Capture All Eastern Approaches After 60 Hours of Fighting—Gen. Stoessel Believed to Have Lost 50 Per Cent. of His Force.

Shanikwan, Aug. 18.—The Japanese began a night attack on Monday after dark from the east and west of Port Arthur. From their position north of the fortress they set fire to thousands of feet of lumber which had been carried down from Wolf's Hill, and the favoring wind sent mountains of rolling smoke southward against the trenches and the inner forts of the fortress. Under cover of this Lieut.-Gen. Nogi's army brought up howitzers to the slopes of the Lize Hills, digging trenches and otherwise making that important tableland tenable.

On the east side there was a tremendous all-night battle, no details of which can be obtained, but it is probable that the Japanese advanced from Poteous Mountain, which it is now known they captured on Saturday after having been repulsed on Thursday and Friday with great loss on both sides. Yesterday morning there was a violent storm of rain, but in the westerly headlands the Japanese siege guns, numbering more than forty, were in action. Companies of infantry could be seen winding up the Yahuchin road to take the place of those killed or wounded in the assault that must have taken place at dawn.

An Incessant Fire.

From the sea directly southwest of White Wolf Mountain three of the largest Japanese cruisers were delivering an incessant high angle fire against forts Nos. 4 and 5 of the inner line. The land assault seen from Liaotung Gulf probably was on these forts, the capture of which would force Gen. Stoessel to retire to the east end of the fortress. More than 700 Japanese wounded were carried down to Louise Bay on Tuesday night and yesterday morning.

The lugger Shanshan, in here from Pidgeon Bay for lumber, says that on Sunday all the eastern approaches had been captured by the Japanese after sixty hours of fighting. On the west they had been repulsed twice at the range of hills south of Table Mountain, but were again attempting to take them.

It is believed that Gen. Stoessel has lost 50 per cent. of his force in killed and wounded. The Japanese on Sunday gave safe escort to more than 100 men and women who are now in Dalny.

No Surrender.

Tokio, Aug. 18.—It is reported that the Port Arthur garrison has refused to surrender, and is disinclined to send out non-combatants.

In Dire Straits.

London, Aug. 18.—According to the correspondent of The Daily Telegraph at Che Foo, refugees arriving there bring news of the serious condition of affairs at Port Arthur.

They say that Japanese shells have ignited lighters in the docks, which contained supplies of coal, resulting in a terrific conflagration.

Many of the buildings have been demolished and the hospitals are crowded.

Position at Liaoyang.

Liaoyang, Aug. 18.—A general Japanese flanking movement is developing to the east and parallel with the railway, involving all the troops from Daita Pass to Diodiantan, on the Taitse River, thirty-five miles southeast of Mukden. It is evident that these troops have combined to force the Russians out of Liaoyang without a fight, and thus secure advantageous winter quarters. It is reported that a large force has left Haicheng and is retiring to Yatchehiao.

Admiral Togo's Losses.

Tokio, Aug. 18.—A supplementary report of Admiral Togo's casualties on August 10 increases the total of killed and wounded to two hundred and twenty-five.

Gruisers Safe.

London, Aug. 18.—A despatch to The Central News from Vladivostock, dated August 17, says the cruisers Rossia and Gromoboi of the Vladivostock squadron have returned there.

Refugees at Mukden.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 18.—A semi-official despatch from Mukden, dated yesterday, says: "Ninety-two civilians, with their families, have arrived here from Port Arthur. The spirit of the garrison is wonderful. Civilians are joining in the ranks with the soldiers."

A New Army.

Paris, Aug. 18.—A despatch to The Echo de Paris from St. Petersburg announces that Viceroy Alexieff is engaged in organizing a second Russian army, to be commanded by either Gen. Karebars or Gen. Gouhomlinoff.

Awaiting Decisive Battle.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 18.—A despatch from General Kuropatkin, dated from Anshanshan and conveying the congratulations of the army to the Emperor on the birth of an heir to the throne, says: "We await a decisive battle with the Japanese army advancing upon us, gladly anticipating meeting the foe, and proving our ability to our Emperor and country."

AN ULTIMATUM TO CHINA.

Japan's Demand Puts China in a Bad Plight and More "Cutting Out" May Follow.

London, Aug. 18.—The Associated Press learned yesterday afternoon that Japan has made a demand of China, practically in the nature of an ultimatum, that she immediately enforce her neutrality in reference to the protected cruiser Askold and the torpedo boat destroyer Grozovoi, now at Shanghai. Japan pointed out that the time limit, 24 hours, permitted by international law had expired, and that Japan therefore was at liberty to take such action as may seem to her expedient.

At the Japanese Legation here it was expressly stated that the Tokio Government had no intention of remaining quiescent if Russia attempts to compel China to give asylum to her men-of-war and authorize repairs at her ports, which would enable them to resume belligerent operations.

After Askold and Grozovoi.

Should China fail to comply immediately with Japan's demand the division of Japanese warships now in the vicinity of Shanghai will, the Legation declares, be instructed to enter the port and capture the Askold and Grozovoi, as was done in the case of the Ryeshitelni. Japan has made no secret of her intention, but has not consulted the powers, believing that the matter is one which concerns herself alone. Japan is prepared, the Legation further asserts, to recognize Chinese neutrality only so long as it is respected by Russia.

With regard to the Ryeshitelni, Japan, it is asserted, is determined not to comply with the Chinese demand, submitted in compliance with the Russian note, that the vessel be returned to Chee Foo. Japan insists that to all intents and purposes Chee Foo has been a Russian base during the war. Chinese junks having been fitted out there and sent through the Japanese blockading vessels to Port Arthur.

No answer has yet been given by Japan to the Russian protest in the case of the Ryeshitelni, but when it is made it will be communicated to all the powers.

Disarmament of the Askold.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 18.—Russia has agreed to the disarmament of the Russian cruiser Askold, now at Shanghai.

Won't Give Up the Ship.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 18.—Information received in St. Petersburg foreshadows that Japan will decline to restore the Ryeshitelni, or make any reparation, and that on the contrary she will contend that Russia in sending the destroyer to Che Foo on an important military mission herself became responsible for the violation of Chinese neutrality, which Japan at the opening of the war promised to respect to the extent which Russia did.

Will She Apologize?

Nevertheless it is understood that Great Britain as the ally of Japan has advised her to apologize. It is believed that Japan realizes that this course will please the western powers, but that she will not follow it because it would mean a loss of prestige in China, where concession has always been translated to mean weakness.

Marking Alaska Boundary.

Ottawa, Aug. 19.—Prof. W. F. King is now sailing on the steamer Danube, north, to inspect monuments already placed along the Alaska boundary line. He is accompanied by O. N. Tittman of the United States survey, and they will go to Portland Channel. The Canadian posts will come from St. John N.B., and a shipment will shortly be delivered. The entire survey will extend into next season. The posts are bronze, three feet long, and each Government will supply an equal number.

Test Suit on Wide Tire Law.

Hamburg, Aug. 19.—Farmers of this section and particularly those of North Collins, are greatly aroused over that section of the good roads law which directs the use of wide tires. Nearly all declare they will not go to the expense of putting new wheels and tires on their wagons. They say they will fight the statute first. Whether this is true or not, farmers of North Collins have raised a defensive fund and will test the law should one of their number be arrested.

Finland's New Governor.

Helsingfor, Finland, Aug. 19.—Prince Obolensky yesterday assumed his functions as Governor-General of Finland, succeeding Gen. Bobrikoff, who was assassinated June 16. Upon his arrival here he was driven to the Uspensky Cathedral, where he attended service. Subsequently he held a grand reception at the Imperial palace.

In Women's Favor

Four treatments stand to fight in women's favor as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. This is not only because of the extraordinary control which this preparation has over diseases and weakness peculiar to women, but also because of its power as a tissue builder. By weighing yourself while using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food you can prove that new flesh and weight is being added to the body.

CHAPTER X.

WINTER QUARTERS.

OUR first scout did not differ much in duration, accidents and results from scores which followed it. Go out whatever road we might, we were always sure to find the Johnnies doing business at the same old stand and unwilling to be interfered with. We always could reach them in a day's march, consume another day in passing along their entire front and still another in returning to camp. They seldom returned our attentions in force, probably because they had not a large enough force to feel safe when far from home. Besides, they could learn all they liked about our post and its camps, for every farmer and planter in the county was a source of information to them. We never got into a big engagement. It wasn't our business, except when we were accompanied by a large force of infantry and artillery, to worry the Confederacy by making believe that the "on to Richmond" movement of the Potomac army was to be made from our direction. When we went alone, the enemy did not worry much, for they had a broad, deep stream along their entire front. They could quickly take up the planking of the only bridge within ten miles, so they exchanged shot and shells with us across the river with the calm confidence of the card player who holds all the trumps.

Our colonel had been quite right in saying that the first scout was worth more to us than a month of drill. The men learned to sit in their saddles and not to be afraid of their horses, so we were able to begin mounted drill in good shape and progress rapidly. Man ranks lower than his horse in all good cavalry regiments, so it was not until we had completed the stables that our own winter quarters were begun. By this time, however, we learned, to our delight, that we were too valuable to consume our time in common labor. A number of the "contrabands" (fugitive slaves) who had made our post a place of refuge were sent into the woods to cut trees and split shingles, and just before Christmas each company had a great log house, about 15 feet by 50, for its winter home. A small contribution from each man enabled us to put up a stove, which tempered the winter air, and one new member, who had always lived in the tenement house district in New York, said he never before had known so comfortable a home.

Killing time in the winter season was almost as hard as killing the enemy, for there was such an appalling lot of time ahead of us. Some men played cards all day, except while eating and sleeping; others read incessantly; still others did nothing but smoke. Some seemed to spend much of their time writing. I liked to observe these, for they had more heart in their faces for the time being, and as I knew some of the people to whom the letters were going I amused myself by imagining the scenes when the letters were received.

But it troubled me much that Hamilton and Brainard were writing so persistently to my cousin May. I did not see the letters, but I heard of them through my home correspondence. I knew that Brainard, who visibly worshiped May's portrait sometimes when he supposed I was not looking, and probably hundreds of other times, was not the sort of man to change his regard for any one, much less for a sweet girl. Some one had seen in Hamilton's hands a portrait of May. I did not know that he brought one from Summerton. I was also troubled by his manner toward Brainard. It was not ugly, but it contained a suggestion of condescension not unmixed with contempt, and I fancied Brainard noticed it.

Still, what could I do in such a matter? May was no fonder of counsel than very young women in general, nor was she less averse to admiration in large quantities. I could not imagine her in love with any one, for she and I had been rough and tumble playmates, and I knew only the tomboy and fun loving side of her nature. After much thought over the rivals and their respective chances, I could only hope, for the sake of peace, that she would not give the slightest encouragement to either, but would be won by some other worthy Summerton youth. I believed that both Brainard and Hamilton were manly enough to recover from any sorrow occasioned by the loss of something, no matter how precious, that was not their own and had not ever been promised to them.

Our special comforts were not confined to shelter and rest. Two or three of the married men knew something about cooking, and so did one man who had been a logger in Maine; so the company cook was coaxed, bullied and flattered until he learned to do something besides merely boil the several raw materials dealt him. A ration of cornmeal would sometimes be served as fried hasty pudding and again as "crackling bread"—corn bread containing tiny dice of fat pork which had been fried thoroughly and drained of grease. Remains of a dinner of salt beef and potatoes would reappear next morning as corned beef hash. Boiled rice, modified only by cheap molasses, was about as unpopular as castor oil, but with a little coffee, which would not be missed, we could trade with a native for enough milk and eggs to make that once detested rice so popular that there always was some man offering his supper portion of bread for half of some other man's rice.

Finally Hamilton, who felt that as commissary sergeant it was his duty to study up on cookery, electrified us one day by announcing that on the following Sunday there would be a dessert of plum pudding. Up to that time about half of the men had called Hamilton "stuck up." Worse still, many had called attention to the fact that never once in our many skirmishes and fights had Hamilton been under fire. Brainard had combated this story for the honor of Summerton, but one day he, too, learned that Hamilton had a picture of my cousin May. That silenced him. But the mention of plum pudding caused the grumblers to recant. Mick McTwyny going so far as to borrow a pipe of tobacco from Phil. Our gustatory anticipations were marred only by Hamilton's statement that the pudding would be made entirely from army rations.

"Where will he get the raisins?" asked one family man.

"And the suet?" said another.

"And the flavoring?" suggested a third.

"Does the quartermaster issue pudding bags?" another wanted to know.

Nevertheless the pudding was an absolute success. The flour came from the commissary stock; finely chopped fat pork, well soaked, answered for suet; dried apples, partly boiled and then candied in boiling sirup made from sugar, took the place of raisins. The sauce looked as if it were only sirup of sugar, some of which had been carameled to give it special flavor and color. There rose from the sauce, however, an odor which caused Mick McTwyny to utter an ecstatic "Whoop-roo!" and Cloyne to ask:

"Is brandy an army ration, Phil?"

"Yes," said Hamilton—"that is, 'tis a hospital ration, and I got half a pint from the hospital steward by promising a small pudding in exchange—for the sick, you know."

A Sensational Arrest.

Hamilton, Aug. 18.—As he stood near the corner of James and King streets, with a traveling bag in his hand, Fred Myers, 270 North Wellington street, who has been a trusted clerk in Oak Hall for many years, was placed under arrest by Detective Bleakley. The warrant charged him simply with stealing $2, but the firm says that it has been shy about $2,000 during the last year. It is alleged that the system used was to make out a bill of $8 for a $9 suit and pocket the difference.

New Cruiser Coming.

London, Aug. 18.—The fishery protection cruiser Canada, launched last June, left the Vickers-Maxim yard yesterday for Canada, having completed her trials to the entire satisfaction of the authorities here. Under fair conditions she is always able to maintain her contract speed of 16 knots. The Canada looks very smart her ram bow and rakish masts and funnel giving the suggestion of strength with speed.

Report Against Canada.

London, Aug. 18.—(C. A. P.)—M. Combes, according to La Patrie, has just issued a circular to the mairs of the communes of Brittany, calling attention to the emigration to Canada which has now set in for several years from Brittany, stating that letters from French people settled in the west represent the situation as unfavorable, and asking the mairs what action they suggest.

Is Mr. W. E. Talbot Who Was Cured of Piles by Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Mr. W. E. Talbot, of Talbot Bros., Tobacco Merchants, 361 George st., Peterboro, Ont., states:—"It is from a desire to help other sufferers that I offer a statement of my experience with Dr. Chase's Ointment as a cure for itching Piles. I was for a long time troubled with this unpleasant and torturing disease and though I tried very many treatments remained uncured until I came across Dr. Chase's Ointment. It was highly recommended to me, and I find that every word of praise is true. I can truthfully say that I am completely cured and knowing the misery that the ailment produces, I am anxious for others to know of the surprising virtues of Dr. Chase's Ointment."

THIBETANS OBJECT.

Draft of Treaty Proposed By the British Expedition Presented.

Lhassa, Thibet, Aug. 18.—The Thibetans have the draft of the treaty proposed by the British and a formal reply concerning it is expected shortly. It is reported that the main objection to the proposed convention is the amount of indemnity to be paid by the Thibetans.

Col. Younghusband, the Civil Commissioner accompanying the expedition, has rented a large house and garden. The Dalai Lama is reported to be watching events in a monastery eight marches away. He is preparing to flee further in case the British advance. There are 1,000 Kham men east of Lhassa. It is believed that their object is to cover the retreat of the Dalai Lama if necessary.

Railway Commissioners Abandon Their Visit to Edmonton.

Calgary, Aug. 18.—The Railway Commissioners arrived here yesterday morning, intending to go to Edmonton. Mr. Blair is ill, and the proposed visit is abandoned. The party will go to Banff instead.

Black Rust in the Wheat.

Winnipeg, Aug. 19.—Despite official denials and reports, railway companies reports of rust in a portion of Manitoba are taking concrete form. Although it would be unwise to assume that these are not exaggerated it is fairly clear now that the damage to wheat will, after all, be considerable. A significant feature is the failure of the Manitoba Government to issue the usual crop bulletin, which was promised last week. Still there is no necessity to be pessimistic, for it is evident that the damage is not universal, being confined to the late seeding.

HE TOUCHED LIVE WIRE

It Carried 2,200 Volts and Killed Herman Fowler Instantly.

Victim Belonged to Smith's Falls and the Accident Took Place at the Hamilton Bridge Works—Body Was Thrown Across Three Wires 40 Feet From the Ground—Was 22 Years of Age.

Hamilton, Aug. 19.—Jas. Herman Fowler of Smith's Falls was electrocuted yesterday afternoon at the Hamilton Bridge Works at 4.30. He was at work on the inside near the top of the building when he touched a live wire carrying 2,200 volts. He was killed instantly and his body thrown to the roof. It fell across three wires stretched along the building forty feet from the floor and was suspended there until the current was turned off. The dead man was a painter and boarded at 222 North Hughson street. He had been standing on a transformer platform, but climbed up higher to do some painting. Some part of his body came in contact with a live wire that was not insulated and which ran along an iron girder. Fowler was 22 years of age and unmarried. He helped to support his mother, a widow, who lives at Smith's Falls. This was his last week at the Bridge Works, as he had made all arrangements to go to Winnipeg Saturday. He belonged to the 91st Highlanders and to the Painters' Union.

LIGHTNING DEVASTATES LYLETON.

Man Struck and Instantly Killed at Moosomin, Man.

Winnipeg, Aug. 19.—A heavy storm is reported as having passed over a portion of Manitoba yesterday. A devastating storm also swept over Lyleton, in Brandon district. Lightning struck and totally destroyed the following buildings: McKay, general store; Cheney Bros., hardware; M. Boyd, hardware; Harley Bros., general store; Jas. Murray, implements.

It is impossible to ascertain the extent of the injury to the standing crop, but it must be very heavy.

At Moosomin, Archie Latimer, a farmer eight miles north of Moosomin, was struck by lightning and instantly killed, as was also his team. He leaves a wife and two children.

At Melita the house of A. T. Broderick, manager of the Union Bank, situated eight miles north, was struck by lightning and is an almost total wreck. Mrs. Saunby and two children who were inside are uninjured.

Killed at the Humber.

Toronto, Aug. 19.—W. C. Hofman, aged 71, who lived with his son on the Lake Shore road, is dead. He was driving a team of horses which ran away at the Humber bridge, and in crossing the car tracks he was thrown off the wagon and fatally injured. He died an hour and a half after the accident.

Brakeman Killed.

Thorold, Aug. 19.—The dump car train ran off the track at Larkin and Slaughter's contract on the Cataract Power Company's works near here yesterday afternoon, killing Lawrence Lotherby, a brakeman belonging to this town.

Killed on Railway Track.

Rat Portage, Aug. 19.—Yesterday morning a man named Ole Johnson, a native of Skien, Norway, while walking on the C.P.R. tracks, just east of the town, was overtaken by No. 1 express, the engine of which struck him on the hips, killing him instantly.

Auto Plunged Into River.

Chicago, Aug. 19.—A racing automobile of the huge touring car pattern plunged into the Chicago River at Rush street bridge at 10.50 o'clock last night. Four persons—three men and one woman—were in the vehicle at the time. All sank, but were rescued by a brave sailor and the crew of a tug boat.

$50,000 Fire.

Fort Erie, Ont., Aug. 19.—At 10.45 p.m. yesterday fire broke out in "B" barn at the Fort Erie race track and burned fiercely. The village firemen saved one of the short barns built last spring. This, with the barns in the Irish row, are all that remain, all the short barns, A, B and C barns and the kitchens, being burned. The loss is estimated at $25,000.

This is the second fire that has occurred at the track this summer, and has a bad appearance, as no horses were stabled in the barn that first took fire.

Barn Burned.

Guelph, Aug. 19.—Fire yesterday morning destroyed the barn, hay and grain and implements of John Douglas, Edinboro road. The cause is unknown.

Lady Jely's Remains.

Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 19.—The remains of Lady Jely de Lotbiniere were brought from Victoria and conveyed east on Wednesday evening's Imperial Limited, for interment at Quebec. They were accompanied by Lieut.-Gov. Jely, his oldest son, and R. B. Powell, private secretary. The Lieutenant-Governor expects to be away about three weeks.

Torpedo Boat Sunk.

Copenhagen, Aug. 19.—While the Danish training squadron was engaged in manoeuvring in the great belt yesterday the torpedo boat Haversten was sunk in collision with the torpedo boat Storen. The crew of the Haversten were rescued. The Storen was only slightly injured.

Bombarded Asuncion.

Buenos Ayres, Aug. 19.—After a bombardment of Asuncion, capital of Paraguay, Wednesday, by the insurgents, the diplomatic corps intervened and obtained an armistice of 24 hours to permit non-combatants to leave the city.

Friends' Convention Ended.

Toronto, Aug. 19.—The closing session of the Friends' General Conference was held yesterday morning, and the delegates, numbering nearly 1,000, in the afternoon began returning to their homes. In the speeches that concluded the convention the meeting in Toronto was characterized as the "best ever held." "Purity" was the subject for the last day. The discussion was opened by an address by Isaac Wilson of Bloomfield, Ont., on "The Pure in Heart," after which a series of interesting papers was read on the factors that make for purity—the home, the school, the press and the Church. "Individuality in spiritual and social life," was the subject of a fine address by Prof. Adam Shortt of Queen's University, Kingston.

BRAINED WITH PICKAXE

Wealthy Farmer's Crime in the Town of Eganville.

Boosted With Liquor, Gustave Middlestadt Boosted Blacksmith Eggert's Good-Natured Injunction to Go Home With His Wife and Killed Latter With a Blow in the Temple—Murderer Is Father of Large Family.

Ottawa, Aug. 19.—Dead, at his home in the town of Eganville, lies the body of Ernest Eggert, a blacksmith, well known in that district, while in custody on a charge of murder is Gustave Middlestadt, a prosperous farmer of Gratton township, who resides about four miles from the town. The whole community up there is in a state of great excitement over the occurrence. Eggert died about 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon as the result of injuries inflicted upon him the day before by Middlestadt. The crime is one more that can be traced to the influence of liquor.

Was Asked to Leave.

On Wednesday afternoon Middlestadt went to Eganville, accompanied by his wife. He visited a number of the hotels and was drinking, and though generally of a good disposition was not considered accountable for his actions when under the influence of liquor. Along with his wife, he did some shopping, and afterwards he had occasion to visit Eggert's blacksmith shop.

When Eggert saw that Middlestadt had no inclination of leaving, he suggested to him in a good-natured way that he had better go as his wife was waiting. The man left the shop, but in a few minutes he was back again. Eggert once more reasoned with him, and, tapping him on the shoulder, told him to go.

Brained With Pickaxe.

At this point, it is stated, Middlestadt stepped towards the door as if to leave, while Eggert went back to his anvil. The German did not go far, but laying hold of a pick-axe, which lay on the floor, he went savagely at Eggert, striking him with the point of the axe in the region of the temple. Afterwards, as if nothing had occurred, he went to his rig and drove home. Eggert, despite medical aid, gradually sank. The dead man was 50 years old and leaves a widow. Middlestadt is about 42 years old and the father of a large family.

Excise Officer Cuts Throat.

Berlin, Aug. 19.—Edward Kilroy, excise officer at the Seagram distilleries in Waterloo, attempted suicide at his home in Allan street, Waterloo, about 4 o'clock yesterday morning. He slashed his throat with a razor, but the doctor says he has good chances for recovery. It is said that the man's mind had become unhinged by excessive drinking.

Escaped From Police.

Kingston, Aug. 19.—The police are on the lookout for John Johntis, who escaped from constables who were taking him from Clinton to Napanee jail, he having been committed to trial for thefts. Heavily shackled, he was being driven to the county seat. About 1 o'clock at night he said he was sleepy and asked leave to lie down in the rig. This was granted, and he worked off the shackles and escaped. He was gone some time before his pursuers knew it. He stole a horse, drove to Croydon, abandoned the outfit, and started afoot for the frontier. He is of Italian-French blood, and a decidedly clever youth of 21 years.

Died By His Own Hand.

Berlin, Aug. 19.—Edward Kilroy, who cut his throat with a razor at his home in Waterloo Wednesday morning, died at 4.40 o'clock yesterday morning at the Berlin and Waterloo Hospital.

Horse Thief Gets Five Years.

Belleville, Aug. 19.—Chas. Storms, who was found guilty of horse stealing from a Woodbridge farmer, was yesterday sentenced to five years in the Penitentiary by Judge Lorier. Storms was also sentenced to a concurrent three years in Kingston on the charge of stealing a buggy.

True Bill.

New York, Aug. 19.—The Grand Jury yesterday handed down an indictment for extortion against Philip Weinsaimer, the leader of the strike of the Building Trades' Alliance, who is charged with extorting $2,700 from George Essig, a plumber.

School of Instruction at Kingston.

Ottawa, Aug. 19.—The establishment of a provincial school of instruction for officers and non-commissioned officers at Kingston is authorized. The school will be opened on Oct. 1 next, and will be maintained for a period of six weeks. The school will be under the supervision of the district officer commanding.

Death of Louis Mollour.

St. Johns, Que., Aug. 19.—Louis Mollour, ex-M.P.P., died Wednesday night at his residence in St. Johns. Mr. Mollour was born in L'Acadie in 1836, and moved to St. Johns in 1867. He was 76 years of age.

They Know It.

Thousands of people throughout the country know that the ordinary remedies for piles—ointments, suppositories and appliances—will not cure.

STRATHCONA DONATES $1,500.

Towards Memorial Stone of the Parish Church at Ferres.

London, Aug. 19.—(C.A.P.)—Lord Strathcona, laying the memorial stone of the new parish church at Ferres, made up the anticipated deficiency of £1,500, expressing also the view that the Free Church was the small body that remained. But though there was disappointment on one side and almost exultation on the other he hoped all would go together to provide a solution of a most serious question.

Speaking at the Ferres Academy Club dinner, Lord Strathcona referred with much satisfaction to the visits of the royal family to Canada. He thanked the Ferres people for their kindness to the Canadian bowlers, a reception which would be returned when the Ferres bowlers visited Canada.

Would Like It Extended.

London, Aug. 19.—(C. A. P.)—Sir C. H. E. Viscont, M. P., wants to see Lord Kitchener's universal volunteer project extended to Canada and Australia.

Say Manitoba Wheat Is a Failure.

London, Aug. 19.—(C. A. P.)—American correspondents of London newspapers allege that despite the recent optimistic statements the Manitoba wheat crop will fall far below expectations.

Trophies For Canada.

London, Aug. 19.—(C.A.P.)—Lord Strathcona is arranging that the South African trophies for Canada, given by the War Office, shall be shipped immediately, also 700 Mauser rifles.

Blake Homeward Bound.

London, Aug. 19.—(C. A. P.)—A number of friends of Edward Blake assembled at Euston Station yesterday to wish him bon voyage to Canada by the steamship Canada.

AUSTRALIA'S PIGMY CAPITAL.

Dalgety, With Population of 900, Chosen From 100 Others.

Melbourne, Aug. 19.—The Commonwealth House of Representatives has selected for the Federal capital, Dalgety, in the Bombala district of New South Wales, which has already been chosen by the Senate.

The selection of Dalgety will thus probably be final.

Dalgety is a township 296 miles south of Sydney, on the Snowy River.

It has at present a court house, police barracks, two hotels, two stores, a public school and Anglican and Roman Catholic churches. The population, including that of the vicinity, is about 300.

Originally there were 100 places submitted as having claims to become the Federal capital, but these were finally reduced to eight, of which Tumut, a little town of 1,400 inhabitants, almost half way between Sydney and Melbourne, was placed first.

FAREWELLING OF THE MINTOS.

His Excellency Banqueted Thursday Night—The State Ball.

Quebec, Aug. 19.—Last evening Lord Minto attended a farewell dinner given in his honor by the leading citizens of Quebec at the Garrison Club. The dinner was presided over by Lieut.-Col. Pellatier, D. O. C., and there were about seventy-five guests.

Lord and Lady Minto will dine at Spencerwood on Saturday evening, the guests of the Lieutenant-Governor and Lady Jette.

This evening the State ball given by Their Excellencies will take place at the vice-regal quarters on the Citadel. The admiral and officers of the fleet will be present, and over 600 invitations have been issued to people in the various centres of Canada.

LIEUT.-GOVERNOR TO OPEN FAIR.

Accepts Invitation and Ceremonies Take Place August 30.

Toronto, Aug. 19.—His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor has been invited by the board of directors to open the Canadian National Exhibition. A reply was received from His Honor yesterday, stating that he appreciated the honor and would be pleased to accept the invitation and open the exhibition.

The opening ceremonies will take place in the dairy amphitheatre on the exhibition grounds at 2.30 on the afternoon of Tuesday, Aug. 30.

A cablegram was received from Major Ross, officer in charge of the "Black Watch Band," reading: "Sailed to-day."

Ontario Railway Commission.

Toronto, Aug. 19.—H. J. Pettypiece, M.P.P., was at the Rossin House last night. Speaking of his recent tour of inquiry into railway taxation across the line, he said that in the eleven states visited the matter had been investigated from two sources, the Railway Commission and the railways themselves. In addition, Harvard and Johns Hopkins Universities had been visited, and the theoretical side thereby looked into. He declined to state whether the result of the inquiry had borne out the stand he had previously taken.

Wages Reduced at Locomotive Plant.

New York, Aug. 19.—Iron workers employed in the Rogers locomotive works at Paterson, on entering the shop yesterday, were confronted with notices posted in conspicuous places, telling them that after Sept. 1 next a general reduction of ten per cent. in wages would be made. The notice further said that the entire plant would close down for three weeks, but failed to specify the date of the closing.

IN THE REALM OF SPORT

LACROSSE.

The T.A.S. second team went to Tweed yesterday and defeated the team there by the score of 4-2.

The Ill. T.A.S. team were defeated by a much heavier team yesterday at Oshawa by the score of 4-1.

BASEBALL.

The Peter Hamilton Company's baseball team take this means of hurling a challenge at the Examiner ball team for a game to be played on Saturday, August 27th, on any local diamond.

TENNIS.

Owing to the absence of so many members from the Peterborough Tennis Club the usual Saturday afternoon tea will not be held to-morrow, but the courts will be marked for play as usual.

The Peterborough baseball team defeated Midland's fast team, champions of the Northern League, yesterday in the latter town, in a hard earned victory, by the score of 7—6. The game was full of scientific plays, and the locals deserved to win for their fielding and stick work was of the highest order. A feature of the game was left fielder O'Dell's work on the Midland side, he having five put outs to his credit. For Peterborough McCorry, Long and Whitcraft filled their positions well and hit the ball hard. The runs scored were as follows—

Peterborough—2 1 0 0 1 0 1 2 0	7	12	2
Midland— 0 2 1 1 2 0 0 0 0	6	9	1

Batteries—McCorry and Bellingham; Molson and O'Brien.
Umpire—Deagon.

Peterborough plays in Port Hope tomorrow in a Midland League game. There will be a cheap rate to Port Hope of $1.20 for the round trip good till Monday, going at 11.45 tomorrow. The game will be called at 2.15 sharp, in order to allow the Peterborough team to return on the 5.30 train. The team will line up as follows—Quinlan, McCorry p, Pilling ib, Sheridan 2b, Lamont s, Graham c, Long lf Pilling cf, McDonald rf, Whitcroft 3b.

WRESTLING.

Artie Edmunds, the wrestler who is well known here, is throwing ponies these days. The Toronto Globe of Tuesday says:—"Thirty five spectators, ten of whom were women, last night sat around a recently matted ring in St. George's Hall and watched a wrestling match between a pony and Art Edmunds, a local wrestler, which was stopped by the police. It was a most brutal exhibition, and the spectators wore a look of discouragement when Sergeant Watson and Policeman Robert Graham of the Agnes street police station stepped into the ring and ordered the removal of the pony from the building. For almost two hours prior to the time the police had been notified over the telephone of the brutal exhibition. Edmunds had been endeavoring to floor the animal, that is, put the pony down on his back. The pony which stood with a bewildered look at the handful of spectators, was too strong for his antagonist, who, grunting, tired and worn out, endeavored to get a firm hold by shutting off the animal's wind. This seemed to greatly amuse the spectators, the women being especially anxious as to the outcome of the bout. When the police appeared, however, the exhibition assumed a mild aspect, but the appearance of the pony and the wrestler, who was still clinging to its flank, convinced the officers that the animal had undergone some very rough treatment. "It's only an exhibition," cried a woman as the policeman led the pony out of the hall, but the sergeant threatened to make the proceedings much more interesting for the spectators if they were not prepared to go about their business.

CIVIC HOLIDAY WELL SPENT

Thousands of People Spent the Day Out of Town--There Were Ten Excursions Out of Town and Every One of Them Was Well Patronized--An Elegant Day and Everything Passed Off Very Pleasantly.

Yesterday was Peterborough's day off. It was the fashion to get out of town, and thousands of people were in style in this particular if not in any other. It was Civic Holiday, and the annual exodus from town eventuated in real earnest. The day was fine, the weather man apparently being in agreeable mood, and the thermometer did not get busy either, but registered a temperature that few could find fault with. The skeptic was abroad on Wednesday. He foresaw dirty weather, and as an alternative switched off on the opinion that some of the excursions would be a flat failure—there were so many of them. He was disappointed. The scene at the Grand Trunk station was a solid mass of humanity, full of bright, happy faces, good natured remark, and everything suggestive of a holiday. The C.P.R. station also had its crowds, for about 400 people took in Mount Hebron Encampment's trip to Burketon and over the new line to Bobcaygeon. There must have been about three thousand people at the G.T.R. station during the morning for the excursions of the day. Every train left promptly on time, and this was largely due to the efforts of Mr. J. Irvine, of Lindsay, trainmaster of this district, who saw that punctuality was observed in connection with the despatching of the nine trains that pulled away from the station during the day. There was first the Canadian Foresters' trip to Niagara Falls. This left at 6.30 with some 300 on board. The Maccabees' left for Midland at 6.15 with some 400 in the party. The Oddfellows' annual excursion to Rochester took 300 or more out of town at 10.45. The Sons and Daughters of England went to Lindsay, Sturgeon Point and Bobcaygeon, and over 200 took in this trip. The train got away at 8.25. St. Peter's C.O.F. excursion to Orillia was one of the largest of the day. It left at 9 a.m. and took 300 or more people out of town. Peterborough Lodge of Oddfellows went on a trip around the locks, taking over 300 people with them, while about 300 people went to Father Phelan's picnic at Young's Point. Other excursions during the day were those of Court Stanley A.O.F. to Rice Lake, and the Salvation Army's trip over the lift lock and on to dam No. 6. There were other excursions, but they were nearly all of a private character.

It can well be understood that it would be a difficult matter at the G.T.R. station to get the crowds away on their proper trains, but on the whole everything managed that there was not a case of dissatisfaction. The holiday was a remarkable one, and went to show how thoroughly the people of Peterborough enjoy a season off, be that ever so short. Every excursion was successful and the day will go down to history as a record breaker. The streets were practically deserted, and but for the presence of the I.O.F. High Court it would have been a dead day in town. The day had certainly features enough to suit the whims of anyone who wished to travel, while for those who wanted a quiet life all they had to do was to remain in town, or if they preferred something real dead there was the cemetery.

TO THE FLOWER CITY

Otonabee Lodge of Oddfellows had a Big Crowd for Rochester.

The old reliable trip, that of the Otonabee Lodge of Oddfellows to Rochester, was of course one of the events of Civic Holiday, and a party of over 300 people left the G. T. R. station yesterday for the Flower City. This trip is good for three days, and by paying a little extra it may be extended until Monday. The journey across Lake Ontario was made on the steamer North King, and yesterday the weather was such that the passage must have been exceedingly pleasant. The committee in charge of this excursion were busy men yesterday morning selling tickets, for of course the popular tendency is to wait until the morning of such a trip in order to see that everything is propitious. It was an elegant day and the excursion was therefore an elegant success.

OVER THE NEW LINE

Excursion by Mount Hebron Encampment to Bobcaygeon.

"That new road is as clean and slick as you please," remarked one of the 430 people who yesterday went upon the excursion of Mount Hebron Encampment via C.P.R. to Bobcaygeon. There were seven coaches in the train and at the stations between here and Burketon and from there to Bobcaygeon, the crowd was swelled considerably by additions. The new line is said to be well and truly laid, and the trip was a delightful one in every way. The party arrived at Bobcaygeon at 10.30 and enjoyed the day in that new railway centre viewing the sights and otherwise making the day one of which they could say, "It was well spent." A baseball match between Charlotte st. nine and the Kawartha team of Bobcaygeon resulted in a tie, 7-7 in 9 innings to spare for Charlotte st. The excursionists speak in the highest terms of the accommodation placed at their service by the C.P.R. The coaches were of the most comfortable and handsome type, the train was drawn by a large mogul engine, and the schedule and every arrangement according to that satisfactory manner so characteristic of the C.P.R.

THE TRIP TO MIDLAND

Maccabees had about 400— Everything went well.

As was to be expected, the excursion run by the Maccabees to Midland was one of the big successes of the day. There were about 400 in the party, and the run to the head of the Trent canal was made in good time and with everybody happy. Features of the day were the football match between Bridgenorth and Midland, which resulted in a victory for the Mud Lake men by 2-0. Peterborough ball team also proved victorious by winning from the Midland champions by 7 to 6. This was a close game. Occasion was taken by many of the excursionists to visit some of the manufacturing concerns that make Midland famous, among others the large smelting works which are at present in full blast and employing a large number of men. The excursionists arrived home in good time, all having had a pleasant day's outing and one most interesting.

FORESTERS AT NIAGARA FALLS

A Trip that was full of Pleasure and Charm.

A party of 400 people went to Niagara Falls yesterday on the excursion run under the auspices of Court Littlejohn Canadian Order of Foresters. This trip has been run for many years and never loses in popularity. Its still retains its charm like the Falls themselves, and so it was yesterday largely patronized. The party went by special G. T. R. train to Toronto and thence embarked upon one of the magnificent steamers of the Niagara Navigation Co., for Niagara-on-the-lake and Queenston, those pieces of historic interest. The trip by electric cars up the Heights, past Brock's monument and skirting the cliff so that a good view could be obtained of the whirlpool, was full of exhilaration and charm. At Niagara Falls the party had opportunity to view the operations of the various power companies whose works have left the Park but little semblance of its former self. The American side and even Buffalo will be visited by some before returning. Quite a few arrived home at an early hour this morning.

PETERBOROUGH ODDFELLOWS

Enjoyed the Day in a Trip Around Kawartha Lakes.

Peterborough Lodge Independent Order of Oddfellows also had a day off. They chose as their trip a circuit of the Kawartha Lakes. There were about 300 people on the special train that left here for Lakefield, and from there the Str. Kenosha conveyed the party on a delightful voyage to Lindsay, touching at Young's Point, Fairy Lake, Burleigh, Buckhorn, Bobcaygeon and all of the places of interest. A more charming sail than through the lakes at this time of year could not be taken and the Oddfellows and their friends appreciated greatly what nature had done by way of scenery. They arrived home from Lindsay by special train.

SALVATION ARMY'S OUTING

Members of Local Corps went over the Lift Lock on the City.

The members of the Salvation Army corps and Sabbath School took a trip over the lift lock yesterday by Steamer City of Peterborough. The excursion was made in the record time of two minutes and ten seconds. On up through the canal the steamer went with its happy crowd of 200 people. The Army band was on board and made the day more enjoyable. After a trip of several miles the steamer returned to Dam No. 5 where dinner was served, and a programme of sports for the children was afterwards run off. Upon re-embarking the Salvationists again passed through the lock and enjoyed a trip down the river, returning well pleased about eight o'clock.

THE A. O. F'S OUTING

The Otonabee and Rice Lake were not Lonesome Civic Holiday.

Members of Court Stanley A.O.F. and their friends yesterday saw that the lower reaches of the Otonabee and Rice Lake were not lonesome. They chartered the Str. Sovereign and went to Idyl Wyld, where they spent a couple of hours' recreation, preceded of course by dinner. There were about 150 in the party, and the day was enjoyably spent. Returning the excursionists disembarked at Jubilee and had tea there. The general opinion of those on this trip was that the day could not have been better spent, and they have all kinds of good things to say of the Sovereign and her captain.

THE SONS OF ENGLAND

Spent the Day on a Trip through the Kawartha Lakes.

The Kawartha Lakes had attractions for the Sons and Daughters of England yesterday. An excursion of about 200 left here upon the regular train yesterday morning for Lindsay, and there took the str. Esturion for Sturgeon Point and Bobcaygeon. The trip was in every way a success, and the excursionists speak in the highest terms of the accommodation and courtesies shown them both by rail and water. It was an outing such as long remains green in memory, and of course both Sons and Daughters of England and their friends will have nothing but pleasant recollections. Both coming and going the party had two hours to spend in the thriving and virtuous town of Lindsay.

ORILLIA VISITED BY C. O. F.

T. A. S. Won a Ball Game and Orillia Beat Bradford in Lacrosse.

The town of Orillia, that clean, industrious and always busy town of the north, was the objective point yesterday of over 300 excursionists. It was the annual trip of St. Peter's Court Catholic Order of Foresters, and every arrangement suggested the foresight of a capable committee. The party arrived in Orillia just about dinner time, which is an important part of the day when one is out on a trip. The events of the afternoon were a baseball game of five innings between the Orillia team and the T.A.S. and a championship lacrosse match between Bradford and Orillia. The ball game was a fine exhibition, the T.A.S. willing by 12 to 2, while the lacrosse match was also well worth seeing, Orillia winning by 8 to 1. The excursion arrived home about eleven o'clock, the day having been well spent.

CHAMPION SCHOLES AT THE PICNIC.

GAVE AN EXHIBITION OF STROKE THAT WON HIM FAME.

Picnic a great Success — Speeches by Several Prominent Men — The Football Match did not come off.

Notwithstanding the many counter attractions out of town yesterday, a large number went to Young's Point to attend Father Phelan's annual picnic, which was, as usual, a good success. This picnic is looked forward to from year to year by Father Phelan's parishioners, and their friends from town and outlying districts. Yesterday was no exception, and the people were out to enjoy themselves. Father Phelan was very solicitous for the enjoyment of his guests, and deserves great praise for the success of the picnic. South Beach, a most ideal place for a picnic, is situated on Clear Lake, a short distance from Young's Point, and the boats unloaded the passengers at the Beach.

After partaking of a most sumptous dinner, provided by the ladies of the church, the following sports were run off, Mr. R. R. Hall, of town, acting as judge:—

Single Canoe—Wm. Pnott, Young's Point; A. Welsh, Young's Point; Simpson, Lakefield.

Double Canoe—Bell and Simpson, Lakefield; L. and R. Godfrey, Young's Point.

Upset Race—1, N. Bell; 2, Simpson, both of Lakefield.

The principal event of the day, and one which had been anxiously awaited by the people present, was now put on, and when Lou Scholes, the winner of the diamond sculls at Henley, and the champion sculler of the world, took his place in his shell to give an exhibition of the stroke that won him such fame and honor, he was greeted with loud applause and cheers. The shell was a very poor one, it being only a local one, and the champion was unable to give as good an exhibition as he otherwise would have done. The sliding seat would not work and the shell was otherwise generally out of repair. However, he covered the half mile course in short order, and his stroke is certainly a pretty and wonderful one. On leaving the shell he was again greeted with loud applause. He was accompanied to the picnic by his bride, Miss Toser, her sister, Mr. R. H. Groves, and Mr. A. Graham, all of Toronto. The Scholes party was met at Lakefield by the trim little yacht, the Empire, which was at their disposal during the day, and which conveyed them to the picnic.

After the sports were over the people assembled near the pavillion, and had the pleasure of listening to several addresses by prominent men. Rev. Father Cohey, of Hamilton, made a most interesting chairman, and very wittingly introduced the different speakers.

Hon. J. R. Stratton was the first to be called upon, and he said he was glad to again have the opportunity of attending Father Phelan's picnic, and of meeting old friends. He wished to congratulate Father Phelan on the success of the picnic. He was glad to see such a good representation of the clergy present, and also some prominent speakers. He paid a high tribute to Mr. Lou Scholes for his courage and earnestness in attending a picnic on his bridal tour, and wished him and his bride many happy years of married life. He himself had been married on the 17th of August, and he trusted that Mr. Scholes would never regret being married on that day. He was glad as a Canadian to gather at such gatherings, and was delighted to see a good representation of every denomination present, not excepting several good Orangemen. He said we should congratulate ourselves on the good feeling that exists to-day, American visitors who were present, and he was glad, also, to welcome the who seamed to be in accord and sympathy with their Canadian cousins. He concluded by hoping that the very prosperous condition of things existing in Canada at the present day would continue for many years to come.

Mr. Kendry, M.P., was given a great ovation when he arose to speak. He said it gave him a great deal of pleasure to meet again with his old friends at Young's Point, and congratulated Father Phelan on his successful picnic. He understood that no less than eleven excursions took place out of Peterborough, and he was glad to note that this picnic had received its share of patronage. He spoke at some length on the prosperity of Canada, and the prospects of the west. He said that the Province of Ontario must do the manufacturing and let the west do the farming. He concluded by again congratulating Father Phelan.

Senator McHugh, of Lindsay, was also glad to be present at this picnic and meet his old friend, Father Phelan. He said the people of Canada were cultivating a proper feeling and the right spirit prevailed amongst all classes of people. He said gatherings of this kind went to show the sectional character of the people. He also spoke of the great progress that exists in Canada at the present time, and said that past achievements were only infants to the future. In speaking of the West, he did not altogether agree with the previous speaker, as he thought this province could farm as well as furnish the manufacturing products of the West.

Mr. R. R. Hall made a very brief speech. He congratulated Father Phelan and the committee on the success of the picnic, and said that the old motto, "Canada leads the way," was a very correct one. It had not only been demonstrated in sports lately, by champion Scholes and Pte. Perry, but also in business enterprises. He gave a short description of the progress that Canada has made during the last nineteen years, and was now at the head of all the enterprises.

Rev. Father Cohey, in introducing Mr. Lou Scholes, the champion, said that while the previous speakers had strong pulls, Mr. Scholes had a stronger pull, which had won him such fame and honor.

Mr. Scholes, on coming forword to speak, was greeted with loud and prolonged applause. He said he was very glad to be present, and he had enjoyed himself very much by the outing. He said he would be very pleased to come again to Father Phelan's picnic. On returning to his seat, he was given three cheers and a tiger.

Father Phelan was the last speaker, and he said he hoped that all had enjoyed themselves at the picnic. He was very thankful for their attendance, and especially the speakers, and Mr. Lou Scholes. He also thanked the Rev. Father Cohey, of Hamilton, for his kind assistance in acting as chairman. He concluded by inviting them all to attend his picnic next year.

During the afternoon and evening dancing was carried on in the pavillion, and the young people greatly enjoyed it.

The Quaker football team were at the picnic, expecting to play against the Indian River team, but the latter failed to show up.

TRENT CANAL SURVEY

Mr. E. J. Walsh C. E. will be Engineer in Charge.

The Minister of Railways, Hon. Hon. Mr. Emmerson, has appointed Mr. E. J. Walsh, C.E., to be engineer in charge of surveys in connection with the Trent Valley Canal. One of these will be along the Port Hope route to Lake Ontario, and the other will be for the purpose of determining the best channel between Lake Simcoe and Georgian Bay. Mr. Walsh, who will have two parties under him, will enter upon his duties at once. He is an engineer of considerable experience, having carried through works of considerable importance at Antigua for the Imperial Government.

Many women are denied the happiness of children through derangement of the generative organs. Mrs. Beyer advises women to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I suffered with stomach complaint for years. I got so bad that I could not carry my children but five months, then would have a miscarriage. The last time I became pregnant, my husband got me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. After taking the first bottle I was relieved of the sickness of stomach, and began to feel better in every way. I continued its use and was enabled to carry my baby to maturity. I now have a nice baby girl, and can work better than I ever could before. I am like a new woman."—MRS. FRANK BEYER, 22 S. Second St., Meriden, Conn.

Another case which proves that no other medicine in the world accomplishes the same results as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I was married for five years and gave birth to two premature children. After that I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it changed me from a weak, nervous woman to a strong, happy and healthy wife within seven months. Within two years a lovely little girl was born, who is the pride and joy of my household. If every woman who is cured feels as grateful and happy as I do, you must have a host of friends, for every day I bless you for the light, health and happiness Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has brought to my home. Sincerely yours, MRS. MAE P. WHARRY, Flat 31, The Norman, Milwaukee, Wis."

Actual sterility in woman is very rare. If any woman thinks she is sterile let her write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., whose advice is given free to all would-be and expectant mothers.

WHEN SUMMER COMES AGAIN

YOU'LL PAY DOUBLE AND TRIPLE FOR THESE THINGS.

Consider if it will not be well to take advantage of the bargain, even if only to pack away for next year. Now, while we are eager to dispose of so many things for cost or less, rather than pack them away ourselves, you'll find many things like the following, which will pay you to take note of:

HERE ARE GLOVES AND LACE MITTS which are so much better than their price, that they are worth coming a long ways to get. But shelves must be cleared, so prices drop. Regular 25c, 35c and 40c Gloves and Mitts, now..... 19c

ALL THAT'S LEFT OF OUR WASH GOODS still further reduced, because its high time that they followed the rest.

PEARL GREY ZEPHYRS and GINGHAMS, formerly 30c and 35c, now..... 19c

WHITE BROCADE VESTINGS, formerly 25c and 35c, now..... 19c

YOU CAN SHUT YOUR EYES and pick from these lovely Silk and Chiffon Laces, and not go wrong, for every one is desirable. The reduction is merely to even up stock.

CREAM SILK and CHIFFON LACES, 3 to 5½ inches wide, formerly 25c, 35c and 50c, now..... 15c

ABOUT THE NEW FASHIONS

Most of the new Coats will have collars with revers.
In the sleeves this season all the fullness will be between the elbow and the wrist. From elbow to armhole the sleeve will be perfectly tight.

ADVANCE FALL THINGS

What! Fall goods already, with the summer not two-thirds gone! Yes, why not? A fresh needs a week or two to plan, and then dressmakers are oftimes slow at opening up their rooms.

And then this is not the full line, but an ADVANCE GUARD merely, to hint of the things to come. COME IN and absorb some of the charm of the new things, even if the buying fever hasn't hit you yet. Some items:

PRIESTLEY'S celebrated Costume Cloths, Dress Goods and Suitings, embracing colored and black WOOL CRAMANTS, WOOL VICUNAS, WOOL ROXANA, CORD DE SOIE, Priestley's BROADCLOTHS, ETAMINES and VOILES.

SITUATION BECOMING VERY ACUTE

Escape or Self-destruction Ordered to Port Arthur Fleet.

'TIS LIBERTY OR DEATH

Should It Come to Worst Russian Ships Are to be Destroyed--Hopes That Strength of Position Will Enable Fortress to Withstand Japanese Assault for Some Time Yet.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 20.—Acute anxiety prevails regarding the situation at Port Arthur, though the War Office does not seem to believe that the danger of the fall of the fortress is imminent. According to advices, there is still an ample supply of ammunition and provisions there. While it is realized that the Japanese probably outnumber the defenders six or seven fold, the strength of the fortifications, it is believed, will make up for the disparity in numbers.

It is declared certain that if the fortress falls the fleet will not be taken by the Japanese. On this point the admiralty's instructions are of the most imperative character. Prince Oukhtomsky has been ordered, should the worst come, to sally forth for a death struggle. If for any reason a final sortie is impossible, the admiral is to destroy his ships and make certain that their wreckage shall be irreparable.

In the meantime Rear-Admiral Rojestvensky's Baltic squadron, including the new battleship Orel, is standing off Cronstadt with steam up.

Pallada at Port Arthur.

The admiralty has received official information that Vice-Admiral Prince Oukhtomsky's five battleships and the protected cruiser Pallada are at Port Arthur. A telegram received here from Che Foo does not mention whether the vessels are damaged and makes no reference to the report from Tokio that a gunboat of the type of Otvajni has been sunk.

Leave Port or Disarm.

Shanghai, Aug. 20.—Despite the Taotai's decision to allow the Russian torpedo boat destroyer Grozovoi and the cruiser Askold to remain in port for a reasonable period to make repairs, the Japanese consul-general made three demands yesterday that the vessels either leave port or disarm. The ships are guarded by customs officials. Lighters will coal the Askold.

Semi-official reports state that the Japanese fleet will make a demonstration outside the harbor on Tuesday. Neutral consuls believe the Japanese threat to seize the vessels is a bluff. A pacific end of the controversy is anticipated.

The damage to the Askold cannot be repaired under three weeks.

Went Squadron Sent.

Tokio, Aug. 20.—The Askold has docked and is refitting and evidently intends to endeavor to rejoin the Russian fleet and resume its place in the naval campaign.

This, it declares, to be an open violation of neutrality, which the Chinese Government evidently is powerless to prevent. Many Japanese openly urge the despatch of a squadron to Shanghai to seize and remove the Askold. The Government, desires to respect the neutrality of Shanghai, but is unwilling to suffer the Askold to escape.

It is possible that a Japanese squadron will require that the Askold be disarmed, leaving her thereafter in the possession of the Chinese.

Up to Britain, Perhaps.

London, Aug. 20.—The correspondent of The Times at Shanghai says that the dock there now occupied by the Russian cruiser Askold belongs to a British company and is not subject to Chinese jurisdiction.

The question, therefore, arises, the correspondent says, whether it is the duty of the British authorities to define and enforce neutrality.

After the Fugitives.

Che Foo, Aug. 20.—It is asserted that the Japanese torpedo boat destroyers which entered the harbor yesterday hoisted only one flag when they departed.

The Japanese naval attache here says that these vessels sought the Russian cruisers Diana and Novik, the only Russian warships unaccounted for since the sortie from Port Arthur of Aug. 10, or for some ship which may have escaped from Port Arthur.

Through the Dardanelles.

New York, Aug. 20.—The Odessa correspondent of The Times cables: In spite of the feeling aroused in England and elsewhere by the action of Russia in sending the Petersburg and the Smolensk through the Dardanelles, I learn on good authority that she intends to challenge once more the clauses of the Black Sea agreement by sending the Sarafoff, a sister ship of the Peteraburg, out of the Black Sea on a similar errand.

The Sarafoff is the last of six fast volunteer fleet transports, and has just been fitted with various naval appliances, including ammunition hoists.

Russians Retake Position.

Che Foo, Aug. 20.—Chinese who have arrived here from Port Arthur declare that the Japanese position at Palung-Chong, from which they poured a heavy fire into Port Arthur and the inner forts, have been re-taken, the Japanese retreating to Shushlyen.

The German authorities at Tsingtau have sent a guard of 100 men to a point fifteen miles east of that place for the purpose of frustrating an expected attempt on the part of the Japanese to erect a wireless telegraph station.

Japs Capture Steamer.

Washington, Aug. 20.—The State Department has received a cablegram from Che Foo, dated yesterday, the substance of which is as follows: This morning seven Japanese destroyers entered the harbor and met an unknown steamer which they captured. Two Japanese cruisers are outside the harbor.

The despatch is so worded as to leave in doubt the exact spot at which it took place, and whether within or without the three-mile limit. The impression here is that the seizure took place within the Chinese territorial waters.

Russian Gunboat Sunk.

Tokio, Aug. 20.—A Russian gunboat of the Otvajni type struck a mine and sank off Laoti Promontory, the extreme southerly point of the Kwangtung Peninsula, on which Port Arthur is situated, at 9 o'clock on Thursday night.

A RUSSIAN REGRET.

Might Have Known Persian Base While Britain Was Busy.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 20.—Referring to the British expedition into Thibet, The Novoe Vremya yesterday says:

"Russia is now being paid for the forbearance shown Great Britain during the South African war. Had we taken advantage of Great Britain's preoccupation then to cross Persia, the Baltic fleet might now have a base on the Persian Gulf from which to operate."

Money For the War.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 20.—Prince Orloff Dybedeff has contributed $100,000, and the Artist Rapin, who has just sold a picture to the Government for $50,000, has donated $25,000 to the war fund.

THE PARAGUAY REVOLUTION.

Insurgents Send An Ultimatum Demanding Surrender or Bombardment Follows.

Buenos Ayres, Aug. 20.—The insurgents have seized another steamer, which had on board the minister of war and a small escort. The minister and his companions were made prisoners.

It has been reported that the insurgent commander, with 2,000 land forces, is approaching Asuncion.

The insurgent leaders will permit President Escurra to continue in office, but demand the resignation of the ministers and other high officials of the Government.

Their terms were conveyed to the Government officials and promptly declined.

The insurgents then sent an ultimatum demanding the surrender of the capital within 24 hours, or the bombardment would be resumed.

Walkerton Man's Suicide.

Winnipeg, Aug. 20.—"God bless you all, I have gone; I have sinned against man." These words written on a slip of paper by Harry Havelock Schofield, 263 Pritchard street, immediately before he placed a rifle to his temple and blew his brains out yesterday afternoon, conveyed a last pathetic message to his loving wife and two children. At the time of the tragedy Mrs. Schofield was alone in the house with her husband, who had been suffering from mental derangement. Schofield came here 12 years ago from Walkerton, Ont., where he was born 46 years ago.

Mr. Fred Hickey is visiting his uncle, Mr. J. Craig, Port Hope.

PREFERENCE OR NOT?

As the return to Canada of Solicitor-General Lemieux will prevent the Laurier Administration from sheltering itself any longer under the pretence that it cannot act on a mere newspaper report, there should be early as possible be an authoritative declaration whether this member of the government condemned the policy of preferential trade at a public meeting in England, and if so, whether this is the new policy of the present ministry. That Sir Wilfrid Laurier has in the past turned on a pivot like a weather cock on this question hardly calls for notice since it is the usual custom. First there was preference for anybody who would accept it, then preference for the United Kingdom or the Empire. At its initiation it was to be a free gift without any idea of return, then there was a very decided demand for reciprocity. This policy, however, remains crystalized in our statutes, and a promise to extending the preference if made reciprocal is to be found in the blue book of 1903, on the Colonial Conference. Now there is a movement in Britain in favour of reciprocal preferential trade, and it would be quite in place to welcome this proposal to accept our offer. It may be said that our offer is there to speak for itself. Is it, or is it being withdrawn? Last session the preference on British woollens was withdrawn, and now we find a member of the Administration denouncing the preferential policy altogether. Does he speak for his colleagues?

Apart from this utterance of Mr. Lemieux the official statement of the policy of the Ministry is to be found as follows in the proceedings of the Colonial Conference of 1902:—

Resolution:

'1. That this Conference recognizes that the principle of preferential trade between the United Kingdom and His Majesty's Dominions beyond the seas would stimulate and facilitate mutual commercial intercourse, and would, by promoting the development of the resources and industries of the several parts, strengthen the Empire.

'2. That this Conference recognizes that, in the present circumstances of the Colonies, it is not practicable to adopt a general system of Free Trade as between the Mother Country and the British Dominions beyond the seas.

'3. That with a view, however, to promoting the increase of trade within the Empire, it is desirable that those Colonies which have not already adopted such a policy should, as far as their circumstances permit, give substantial preferential treatment to the products and manufacturers of the United Kingdom.

'4. That the Prime Ministers of the Colonies respectfully urge on His Majesty's Government the expediency of granting to the United Kingdom preferential treatment to the products and manufacturers of the Colonies either by exemption from or reduction of duties now or hereafter imposed.

'5. That the Prime Ministers present at the Conference undertake to submit to their respective Governments at the earliest opportunity the principle of the resolution and to request them to take such measures as may be necessary to give effect to it.'

The representatives of the Colonies are prepared to recommend to their respective Parliaments preferential treatment of British goods on the following lines:

Canada—

The existing preference of 33 1-3 per cent, and an additional preference on lists of selected articles—

(a) by further reducing the duties in favour of the United Kingdom;

(b) by raising the duties against foreign imports;

(c) by imposing duties on certain foreign imports now on the free list.

LAURIER'S IMPERIALISM

A desperate attempt is made by the Ottawa Free Press to raise a racial cry in favour of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and as it is a typical specimen of this mischievous campaign we will consider its assertions—we cannot call them arguments. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, we are told, has been the daring and persistent champion of race unity. He is politically the very creature of the racial cry. His majority comes entirely of the almost solid phalanx from his own Province, with additions from constituencies in the other Provinces where the French vote forms a large percentage. If these members were equally divided he would be in a minority.

(Racial) and religious battles, says the Free Press, came well nigh to wrecking the Canada of Sir John Macdonald and Hon. George Brown. This was because, on account of Sir John having a majority in Quebec, Mr. Brown in the Globe, assailed the French Canadians so viciously and and often so filthily that his language cannot be quoted in any newspaper going into decent families. And this cry of French domination was kept up by the Liberals long after Confederation, indeed till they had selected Sir Wilfrid as their leader, when there was to be no racial cry except in Quebec.

As to the Jesuit Estate Bill, we are told that Laurier agreed with Macdonald and Bowell in thinking it was right. Sir John and his colleagues did not say it was right, but that it was the right of Quebec to determine the question which did not effect the other Provinces. There was nothing very brave in Sir Wilfrid explaining this in Ontario, which supported Sir John in his constitutional view. It was Sir John who risked alienating a section of his followers by doing his duty.

Then, we are told, came the Manitoba School question, when Sir Wilfrid was of opinion that Manitoba ought not to be coerced. He took care not to say so in Quebec, where his agents went around saying that their countrymen in Manitoba would be much safer in the hands of Laurier, a Frenchman and a Roman Catholic, than in those of an Orangeman like Mackenzie Bowell. The fact is that Sir Wilfrid and Mr. Greenway conspired to take away their schools from the French Catholics of Manitoba in order to cause trouble to the Conservative Ministry at Ottawa. They knew that there was a solemn bargain to maintain these schools, just as there is to maintain separate schools in Ontario, and that the Dominion authorities had been made the guardians of this right. Though dishonest tricksters themselves, they shrewdly surmised that the Conservative leaders were not of their kidney and would endeavour to do their duty however unpopular. This was the immediate cause of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's accession to power, for the Ministry was weakened in Ontario, while he gained the support of the Quebec electors by the promise to secure justice to their friends in Manitoba, a promise which he never intended or attempted to perform.

Even more significant than these false pretences on the part of the Free Press is an omission. Not a word is said of Riel, or the agitation concerning him. At that time Sir Wilfrid, still acting as a lieutenant of Mercier, who had raised the National cry to secure power, went even further than his leader. He declared in Montreal on the Champ de Mars that he would like to join the rebels and fire on our citizen soldiery. A murderer and a rebel to both church and state must not be punished by foreigners because he was partly of their race. Of course he did this as "a daring and persistent champion of race unity in Canada."

As to the claim of his adopting the British preference and sending Canadians to fight in a distant British war, there is no need for many words. He adopted preference from the Conservatives because he thought it was a popular part of their policy and he reluctantly allowed volunteers to go to fight the Boers because after vainly resisting he was driven to it by the outcry of the people.

That he has popularised British connection in Quebec has no modicum of truth in it. He has taught them his own idea of British connection, which is that the Dominion should be virtuallily independent, should be governed by Quebec, and should be defended by the forces of the Empire from any outside aggression, while we play the ignoble part of contributing nothing, but sponging on the Mother Country. He is well aware that with connection to the United States, a sure result of any early severance from the Empire, their privileges as to religion, language, laws and schools would soon go, while they would have to pay their share of naval and military expenditure. His only use for the Empire is to prevent this.

YEAR'S RAILROAD ACCIDENTS

Over 200 Killed and 800 Injured in United States so far.

Chicago Tribune.

Over 110 lives were lost on the Denver & Rio Grande Railroad when the giving-way of a bridge threw the crowded passenger cars into a raging mountain torrent. No accident more destructive of life is to be found in the annals of American railroad wrecks, dreadful as many of them have been. There were more lives lost in that one catastrophe than have been sacrificed in all the more serious wrecks of the year.

The record of the twelve months begins with an accident on the Western Maryland, on the 3rd of January, in which three were killed and thirty-two injured. A broken rail was responsible.

On the 6th of the same month a Rock Island and California express train collided with a cattle train at Willard, Kan., and seventeen persons were killed and thirty-six injured. The accident was due to a "mistake" of the engineer of the freight. He thought the express he had been ordered to look out for had gone by him.

On the 25th a local train ran into the rear of a Denver express train at St. Louis and killed three and injured eighteen persons. "Somebody blundered."

On March 8th there was a collision on the Alabama & Great Southern Road, in which nine were killed and two injured. There was a misunderstanding of orders.

On April 7 there was that collision on the Northwestern road near Melrose Park, in which three Indians were killed and thirty injured. A fast mail train ran into a delayed express train in the fog. It was an accident which should not have been permitted to happen.

On the 30th of the same month a St. Louis and Iron Mountain train ran off the track and eight men were killed and fifteen injured.

On the third of last month was the accident at Litchfield, on the Wabash road, in which twenty were killed and forty injured. A misplaced switch did the mischief. All the evidence avilable went to show that it would not have been misplaced if railroad employees had been more careful.

Seven days later there was a collision at Midvale, on the Erie road, in which wee sixteen killed and fifty-eight injured. The engineer of a regular train, failing to stop in obedience to orderers, drove his engine into the rear car of a train loaded with excursionists.

On the 13th there was that dreadful wreck on the Chicago & Eastern Illinois at Glenwood, in which nineteen were killed and eighty-eight injured. A coroner's jury made a thorough inquiry, and reported that certain railroad employees and the management of the road were responsible for what happened.

Wednesday's papers recorded the wreck of a Baltimore & Ohio train within the city limits through the carelessness of the crew of a freight train or of a signal man. Four were killed and fourteen injured.

Here are eleven railroad accidents during the year, in which about 212 have been killed and 333 injured.

The United States cannot get rid of its sad pre-eminence in railroad disasters until there is more of that caution, that determination to take no chances, and that rigid discipline which characterize the managers of foreign roads.

The Liver to Blame

So long as the liver is active in filtering the bile from the blood there is no biliousness and no constipation, because the bile is passed from the liver into the intestines where it acts as a cathartic to keeping the bowels active. Because of their direct action on the liver as well as the bowels, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills thoroughly cure constipation, the real cause of nine-tenths of the common ills of life.

Sir Thomas Ready to Challenge.

Our yachting correspondent on the Clyde states, on authority, that the negotiations between Sir Thomas Lipton and the New York Yacht club are likely to be brought to a successful issue, in which case a challenge for the America's cup will be given for next year. The question of designer is not altogether free from difficulties; but, the main point once settled, these difficulties will doubtless disappear. Not only will the new measurements rule if the New York Yacht club produces a better type of boat, but it will also add considerably to the chances of the challenger.—London Standard.

G.T.P. STATEMENT SOON

After President Hays and Party Returns to the East.

Investigating Party Reaches Port Arthur, to Remain in That Neck of the Woods a Couple of Days—Mr. Hays Says Directors Will Make Known Their Decisions re. Terminals, Etc., Soon After Return.

Port Arthur, Aug. 20.—The party of Grand Trunk officials arrived here yesterday by train. The following compose the party: President Hays, Vice-President Wainwright, Senator Cox, of Toronto, Premier S. N. Parent, Quebec; Hugh Allan, of the Allan Steamship Co.; Mr. Hobson, chief engineer; F. M. Morse, Mr. Biggar, solicitor; Mr. Stephens, chief engineer; L. A. Cannon, solicitor, Quebec; Mr. Hays, of St. Louis; Mr. Woods and Mr. Russell, engineers; Mr. Phillips, secretary to the president, and Mr. McNicoll, secretary to Mr. Morse.

Asked regarding the parties itinerary, Mr. Hays said:

"Oh we will be in this neck of woods for a couple of days, we have heard so much about Port Arthur and Fort William that we wish to see your surroundings and get some adequate idea of your facilities. We will then go on to Winnipeg for a couple of days, and from there through by C. P. R. to Vancouver, where we will meet Hon. Mr. Prefontaine, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, who will accompany us to points on the coast spoken of as suitable for western terminals of our new line. The places mentioned there are Port Simpson, Kitimat and Third Harbor."

Mr. Hays could not say exactly how long they would be upon their tour to the west.

Replying to a query as to when a definite official announcement as to the terminals on Thunder Bay, and upon the Pacific might be looked for, he said:

"There will be no delay about making the decision of the directors known. We expect to return to Montreal in from three weeks to a month, and I think that I am safe in promising that a statement will be given out in a very few days afterwards. Nothing will be made public in the matter of locations before we get back east again."

Mr. Hays explained that the reason why such a strong representation of the G.T.R. are making the present trip west is their desire to decide finally upon the main locations of the line, in order that the engineering staffs may get to work at once on the surveys.

The party went to Current River, where they spent two hours looking over the shore line, which would be compassed within the terminal grounds.

FEARS NO PUNISHMENT.

Business Man Admits He Was Leader of Lynching Mob.

Statesboro, Ga., Aug. 20.—Without any hesitation, a prominent business man yesterday admitted that he was the leader of the mob that burned Paul Reed and William Cato at the stake on Wednesday, and further made the remarkable assertion that he nor any member of the lynching party had any fear of prosecution.

He averred that no judge or jury would convict any man that took part in the double lynching, and as practical proof of his safety he told of the plans having been perfected twenty-four hours beforehand and boasted that the lynchings had been carried out without a hitch.

Indigestion

It isn't always the stomach's fault that food is not digested. Torpid liver brings Constipation. Bile gets in the stomach. The kidneys become affected. The whole process of digestion is weakened. No wonder you feel so uncomfortable after eating.

Fruit-a-tives

make digestion complete by making the liver strong and active. They cause more bile to be excreted, thus effectively curing Constipation. They tone up the stomach, regulate the kidneys, build up the whole system. Made from pure fruit juices, their medicinal action is intensified by a secret process of combining them.

PATRONIZING PERJURY

Sir Richard Cartwright and his Colleagues Rewarding Jackson

In the matter of the subornation of perjury at South Oxford by Jackson, K.C., on behalf of Premier Ross, and him being rewarded by Sir Richard Cartwright, has been much discussed of late we give from Hansard the speech of Mr. R. L. Borden, the Conservative leader:

Mr. R. L. Borden.—Mr. Speaker, the right hon. Minister of Trade and Commerce (Sir Richard Cartwright) has accepted the full responsibility for the appointment of this gentleman to the lucrative position which he now holds. It may be advisable for us to review that appointment very briefly in the light of what was disclosed at the trial which has already been referred to. Mr. Jackson, who is a solicitor, had charge of the petition, and his chief assistants in the local preparation of the case were a constable named Elijah Fick of Tillsonburg, another man named Charles Hewlett, a prominent Liberal worker, in the riding, and a professional machine man, as he is called in the riding, named George Sutherland. The trial opened at Woodstock on the 15th October and continued for several days. The evidence and declarations which I have in my hand disclose the following facts in regard to Mr. Jackson:

He personally paid money to George Fournier, a criminal character, one of his witnesses in the protest. A man by the name of Parker, another named Elijah Harp, and others, swore that Fournier had offered them money to swear to falsehoods. I have the evidence for that under my hand, and I have the pages to refer to if any hon. gentleman sees fit to deny or discredit that statement. Jackson paid Chas. Parker $10, or, according to his own admission, $5 for similar purposes. I have the evidence to give in answer to any person who will undertake to contradict that statement. He paid Elijah Fick, by his own admission, $2.0, and according to the evidence of Charles Parker and William Abraham Young and others, Fick endeavored to bribe them to swear to falsehoods. The right hon. gentleman has referred to witness not being put in the box. Let me remind him that when this evidence was given in this case the petitioner did not put Fick in the box to contradict this statement, but, on the contrary, Fick was found conveniently absent as soon as this evidence had been given. Mr. Jackson had Charles Hewlett and George Sutherland assisting him in preparing the protest, and he himself interviewed witnesses, and he himself interviewed witnesses, F. R. Avey and Lincoln Pollard, who admitted on oath that Hewlett had paid them to make declarations. A large number of witnesses, among them Parker, Young, Avey, Pollard and Mustard, admitted on oath that Hewlett and Sutherland had bribed and attempted to bribe them to give evidence, and their statements were not attempted to be denied. In fact, the evidence shows that Hewlett and Sutherland shunted or concealed themselves, so that the respondent could not subpoena them for the adjourned trial. It should also be remembered that Sutherland did a great deal of his work in the office of Mr. Jackson himself.

Mr. Jackson himself paid Edward Chambers $375 cash, and promised $375 more on condition that Chambers should get evidence which would prove eight charges. This agreement with Chambers was to be private; in fact, there was a written declaration drawn up that nothing was to be said about it. Mr. Jackson admits that the last $375 was to be paid only on condition that Chambers would prove eight certain charges. Jackson told Chambers that it did not matter whether the evidence was true or false so long as it answered the purpose. Mr. Chambers is corroborated on oath as to this by two other reputable gentlemen of Woodstock, Mr. Vaughn Francis and Mr. Samuel Smith, who declare that they overheard Jackson distinctly tell Chambers that it did not matter whether the evidence were false or true, so long as it unseated Sutherland. The right hon. Minister of Trade and Commerce is now willing to accept responsibility for that. I should say, in justice to Mr. Jackson, that he denied this statement, but he was met with the distinct statement to the contrary of no less than three witnesses. He disbursed an enormous amount of money in connection with the campaign, and he states that he kept an record of his disbursements. He interviewed Frederick R. Avey, a bribed witness, at Avey's house, and, as Avey swears, told Avey he was not to say that he had been given anything for giving his evidence. He interviewed Lincoln Pollard, another bribed witness, and, according to Pollard, told Pollard if any one asked him about it to say nothing about making the declaration. I would be inclined to think that the right hon. gentleman is accepting a pretty fair share of responsibility when he undertakes to shoulder all that.

Let me call his attention to some of the sworn evidence, to which I will just briefly refer in order that this evidence may impress itself a little more upon him. Edward William Chambers made a sworn declaration on the 11th October, 1902, from which I shall read. On Friday evening, before the trial opened on the 15th October, he had an interview with Mr. Jackson. He told Mr. Vaughn Francis of the proposed interview, and he arranged to have Mr Francis and Mr. Samuel Smith come to his house on Friday evening, in order that they might hear what Mr. Jackson had to offer. He goes on to say that they were in a position to know what took place, and he details in his affidavit the conversation as follows:

After a general conversation Jackson wanted me to sign an agreement not to divulge the conversation which I refused to do, and then Jackson wanted to know how much I wanted to get him evidence to unseat Sutherland. I told him $5,000. He said that was out of the question. He then said that he thought $500 down, and $1500 additional if the evidence was sufficient to unseat Sutherland.

That is paragraph 4 of the declaration and paragraph 5 is as follows:

I then asked him what class of evidence he wanted, whether false or true, and he said it mattered not to him whether it was false or true so long as he could unseat Sutherland. He said he would lose his gown if this conversation was divulged.

Let me point out to the Minister of Trade and Commerce that by the sworn declaration of Mr. Vaughn L. Francis under date of 11th October, 1902, that statement is expressly and absolutely confirmed, and by the sworn statement of Mr. Samuel Wm. Smith under date of 11th October, 1902, that statement is also confirmed. I shall refer to one or two passages in the evidence taken in the trial. I quote from the evidence of Chas. Parker:

Q. What proposal did he make to you?

A. Well he asked me if I received anything for my vote and I told him I did not.

Q. What next did he say to you?

A. Well, he asked me if I would say that I had.

This was not a proposal made by Mr. Jackson himself but it was a proposal made by one of the men whom he had hired and paid for the purpose of obtaining evidence in this case. In the evidence of Mr. Jackson himself he was asked with reference to this conversation with Mr. Chambers.

Q. Didn't he ask for $5,000 or $10,000 or a larger amount?

A. $5,000 may have been mentioned, but I am sure that $1,500 and $2,000 was mentioned.

Q. How much did you promise to give him?

A. I gave him $375 and I promised him $375 more if he could produce evidence to substantiate the eight charges he gave me.

Further on:—

Q. You paid him $375 down and you were to pay him the balance on what condition?

A. On condition that the eight charges should be proved.

Let me point out to the Minister of Trade and Commerce that he himself has stated that applications of this kind are made to persons of a certain character; persons who are not to be too much trusted, and here is this gentleman for whose appointment the minister takes full responsibility, going to one of these men so characterized by the Minister of Trade and Commerce—although I believe him to be a reputable citizen—Jackson goes to this citizen who is supposed to be influenced, and he pays $375 down and promises him the same amount in addition if he will produce evidence that will unseat Mr. Sutherland. The Minister of Trade and Commerce has no adjectives to apply to conduct of that kind except 'indiscreet.' That is all that the English language will furnish the right hon. gentleman for conduct of that kind and for an occasion of that kind—his vocabulary is not so bare on other occasions. In the evidence of Mr. Frederick R. Avey is to be found the following:

Q. Do you know Mr. Jackson the lawyer of Ingersoll?

A. Yes.

Q. He stated to you (as I am instructed that you were not to say that you had been given anything for swearing for them?

A. He did.

Q. When was that?

A. Well it was a week ago last Tuesday night, or two weeks.

Q. Where did he give you these instructions?

A. At my house.

Further on—

Q. Did he speak to you about the declaration you had given to Mr. Hewlett?

Mr. Hewlett was one of the paid agents of Mr. Jackson.

A. Yes.

Q. What did he say about it? He knew all about it then?

A. Yes.

Q. What did he say about it?

A. He said: If they ask did you make a declaration you need not tell them; something like that.

Further on—

Well, he says, if they ask you whether you got anything for it or not, tell them that you did not.

Further on another witness whose name I do not recollect was examined by Mr. Watson, counsel for petitioner.

Q. There is just one question; in the meantime do I understand you to say that Mr. Jackson told you not to say anything about the declaration if you were asked?

A. If anybody asked me he told me to say nothing about it.

And so on, and all through this evidence one could quote ad libitum statements of precisely a similar character. It seems to me that the position which the Minister of Trade and Commerce has taken with regard to this matter is of an extraordinary nature. In fact he has invented a new decalogue; so far as the commandments forbid, he would abolish them all, and insert instead, "Thou shalt be discreet so that thou shalt not be found out." The Minister of Trade and Commerce has the word of criticism for Mr. Jackson for asking these men to procure evidence, whether true or false, so long as it should unseat Mr. Sutherland. He has no word of criticism with regard to that but he has a reproach against Jackson because he did not look up the chimney, because he did not look in the cellar to see if anyone was listening; in short, because he was indiscreet. In other words if we are to take the right hon. gentleman at his own valuation he is perfectly content that Mr. Jackson should purchase evidence that he should invite these men to procure evidence whether true or false; and the only requirement necessary for promotion in the civil service of Canada is that it shall be done so that it cannot be proven. Well, the right hon. gentleman is eloquent sometimes; he is severe sometimes; I think he told us since last session that on this side of the House we were a lot of nobodies, heard of nowhere outside of our own parishes. I say to the right hon gentleman the Minister of Trade and Commerce that it had been better for him as a public man in this country if he had retired to the isolation of his own parish and been heard of no more, before he made the declaration which he has to-day made in this House. I believe, Sir, that there never was in the public life of this country or of any other country a more damnable doctrine more unblushingly avowed. I do not understand how a gentleman who has had his experience in public life, who has in the past preached lofty doctrines with regard to purity of public life and in the administration of public affairs, could ever have found it in his heart to stand up in this House of Commons, and to make the avowal which the Minister of Trade and Commerce has made to-day. It was bold; it was more than bold, it was unblushing, and if I were not transgressing parliamentary decorum I would say that it was utterly shameless. That this man, so stigmatized by Mr. Justice Street, should be promoted to the public service of Canada, and that the Minister of Trade and Commerce speaking for the government should not be ashamed to stand up and justify him, is an unheard of degradation in our public life We are indebted to the hon. gentleman (Mr. Bennett) for bringing the matter to the attention of the House and in my opinion it deserves grave consideration from the House and the country. To testify my appreciation of the importance of the question I beg to move;

That all the words in the resolution after the word 'that' be omitted and the following substituted therefor:—

That in making appointments to public offices, and particularly to those of a representative nature, party services should not alone be considered, but selections should be made with regard to capacity and to personal character.

House divided on amendment of Mr. R. L. Borden.

John J. Burns Cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

He Had Chronic Inflammation of the Kidneys—Says His Brother Foresters can Tell all about it.

Darnley, P.E.I., Aug. 19—(Special)—John F. Burns, a prominent member of the I.O.F. here, whose cure of Chronic Inflammation of the Loins and Kidneys caused a sensation some time ago, reports that he is still in splendid health. "Yes," says Mr. Burns, "my cure is entirely satisfactory. I have had no trouble since I used Dodd's Kidney Pills. They drove away the disease from which I suffered for eight years.

"No I'll never forget Dodd's Kidney Pills. The doctor could not help me. I got so bad I could scarcely walk, sit or sleep. I was about to give up entirely when an advertisement led me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. Now I am in good health. Dodd's Kidney Pills saved my life."

If any one doubts Mr. Burns' story, he simply refers them to his brother Foresters. They all know how he suffered, and that Dodd's Kidney Pills cured him.

Ogilvie Gets One Load of Wheat.

Winnipeg, Aug. 20.—The first car of new wheat shipped of this crop has been purchased by the Ogilvie Company, which has just received a sample of the wheat, and the car is now en route to Winnipeg from Napinka. The sample is graded No. 1 northern, and is an exceptionally good one, being clean, plump and bright. David Horn, the grain inspector, states that the quality of the wheat is excellent. Weather continues cool with showers.

WHAT THIS TOWN LACKS

A COMPARISON BETWEEN PETERBOROUGH AND ST. THOMAS.

Many Public Spirited Citizens here Who Have Invested in Manufacturing Concerns—Some Things are Lacking However.

The following appeared in the St. Thomas Journal, of which Mr. W. A. Buchanan, formerly of this town, is manager:

St. Thomas is an up-to-date city. Visits to places of similar size in the province impress you with that fact.

Conditions here, however, are vastly different than in Peterborough, a city of our population. St. Thomas lacks waterpower and cannot expect to entice manufactures to its doors, as easily as a city with power facilities unsurpassed in the Dominion, as is Peterborough. As St. Thomas is ahead of Peterborough in some respects, principally permanent improvements, Peterborough is ahead of us in other ways. A comparison may be helpful to citizens who are interested in our development. First it must be remembered that Peterborough is an industrial city. Its progress depends upon its manufactures. St. Thomas is a railroad city and no one will deny that our growth depends, to a very great extent, upon the development of our railroads.

Peterborough, too, is in the centre of a new country, compared with this section of Ontario, and it is not affected by the competition of large cities and towns in the neighborhood, as is the case here.

Peterborough lacks a paved main street like Talbot street. Its city hall and fire hall do not compare with the fine structures in St. Thomas. Its court house occupies a magnificent position on the brow of a hill but the building is old and many classes behind the imposing building which Elgin county possesses.

Peterborough had a street railway some seven years ago and is going to have one again. The line will cover the city's principal streets and it will in all likelihood be extended to summer resorts within easy reach. From what we could learn the eastern city's waterworks and sewerage systems are no as improved and advanced as those of our city.

But Peterborough is ahead of us in a number of cases and it is of these we want to speak in order that St. Thomas may benefit.

Peterborough possesses many public spirited citizens, who have invested their money in local industries, and local capital, just as much as water power, has had to do with the manufacturing boom there. There are very few concerns in that place that are not supported by the money of local men. The Cordage Co., The American Cereal Co., The Canadian General Electric Co., The Colonial Ink Co., are in this class. They employ a large number of hands, but the city prides itself in the possession of industries that are owned, if not absolutely, almost so, by local men. They are not small concerns, as the fact that most of them employ from 50 to 200 hands is an indication. These include the Wm Hamilton Machine Works, the Peter Hamilton Agricultural Implement Co., The B. F. Ackerman Harness & Saddlery Co., The Auburn Woollen Mills, The Stanley Piano Co., The Geo. Matthews Pork Packing Co., The Dickson Lumber Co., The Macdonald Lumber Co., The J. J. Turner Tent & Awning Co., three large canoe factories, The Peterborough Lock Co. and several others. St. Thomas certainly has not Peterboroughs' natural advantages, but if if our citizens were to encourage manufacturers in the way Peterborough has done we would soon have more industries in our midst.

It is a far cry from the busy hives of industry to the cemetery, but if there is one thing more than another that Peterborough owns that can put us very far in the background it is its "City of the Dead." The cemetery is situated on the shores of Little Lake; a more beautiful spot could not be selected. If you drive through the cemetery you will find that the roadways are macadamized, and if you walk your feet tread gravel in the walks. There is not a plot in the cemetery that is not green and covered with flowers. Some of the plots are even marked off by foliage, and wherever you go neatness and fine taste mark the attention given this pretty spot. In the centre of the cemetery and directly in front of the main entrance, is a chapel of fine architecture. The cemetery company maintains a caretaker and staff to keep the cemetery in condition. Every plot is looked after and the company is not in debt.

A BAMSPORT WEDDING

Miss Emeline W. Porter to Mr. Geo A. Bucklin.

On Wednesday last the home of Mr. Wm. Monerief, of Bemsfort, brother-in-law of the bride, was the scene of a quiet, but pretty wedding, when Miss Emeline W. Porter, formerly of Keene, Ont., became the wife of Mr. George A. Bucklin, M.A., of Norman, Oklahoma. The bride was becomingly attired in white silk colienne over white taffeta, and carried a shower bouquet of bride roses and lillies of the valley. The bridesmaid, Miss Kate Drummond, of Peterborough, wore a dainty gown of white voile.

The groom was supported by Mr. George E. Porter, B.A., B.D., brother of the bride. Rev. Dr. Workman, of Toronto, performed the ceremony, assisted by the Rev. Jas. McIntosh, M. A., of Centreville. Miss Susie Campbell, of Peterborough, played the wedding march. The rooms were beautifully decorated, the luncheon being served in the dining room.

Mr. and Mrs. Bucklin left that evening for St. Louis and Kansas, en route to their home in the South, where Mr. Bucklin will resume his duties in the State University.

CURRENT ITEMS OF PASSING INTEREST

THE DEMAND FOR FROGS.

"I could use about 500 lbs. a week easily," said a well known local restaurateur the other day when speaking of the scarcity of frogs' legs on the market. Probably it is not known that frogs' legs are very much in demand in Peterborough, and are regarded as a very appetible relish. Mr. W. J McCallum states that he has seen the day when he has disposed of very large quantities to outside buyers, some going as far as Chicago. But now, owing to the indiscriminate butchery of the frogs the Otonabee without regard to sex, repropogation has been very slow, and what promised to be an excellent source of supply has been rendered very deficient. The frogs have now to be imported mostly from Montreal, and at present the demand exceeds somewhat the supply. It appears that a restricted period for frogs on the Otonabee would be a good thing, considering the circumstances.

HERE'S A SUGGESTION.

On Thursday many people took advantage of the bright and perfect weather of the holiday to go canoeing and boating. The stretch of the Trent Canal from the lift lock north being undiscovered country—so to speak—tempted a number to make the trip. The portage at the lift lock was a serious obstacle, the boats having to be carried from considerable distance below to some distance above the lock, the lock people insisting, and quite right in so doing, that the turf of the sides of the embankment be not torn up and damaged. Several canoes and skiffs arriving while steamers were being locked through, slipped into the chamber and were elevated with elegance and precision. Those who arrived late, had to portage their crafts. It would seem a good thing, and one that would commend itself to the share of the public going down to the sea in ships, that if some dort of a light two-wheeled cart were available at the lock that it would be appreciated. Those desiring to use it would willingly pay a moderate fee for the convenience, as the concern would have to be greased and kept in repair. Possibly, if the Superintendent of the canal were asked by a deputation, he would consent to some one around the lock, providing the cart and taking such emoluments as offered by way of recompense. And canoeists, as in duty bound, would ever pray, etc.

THE CITIZENS' RIGHTS.

Has the citizen no rights in the frontage of his property which the pole fiends have a need to respect. It is getting to be so that when a load of poles appear on the street that the direction in which the vehicle is going is carefully noted, and freeholders living about where the poles are to be deposited rush to stand guard and stave off the invader. Those of us who have as many poles on the frontage as places can be found for, and those who have no poles at all, are disposed to stand by and see the other fellow get some, but many a frontage is being spoiled because the pole fiend is supposed to have the municipal consent at his back.

SAVE THE PAVEMENTS.

As our municipal improvements increase and broaden, so do our responsibilities. Take the matter of pavements which have replaced the wooden sidewalks. If a plank were boken with the old walk it called for a trifling repair. Now a broken pavement is a serious matter, not only expensive to make good, but disfiguring things as well. Hence new vigilance is called for. Take the case of the pavement on Aylmer-st., where the new Y.W.C.A. building is being constructed. The contractor for that work has to tramble, lug, pry and roll the stones for the foundation across and along the pavement. When the building is finished the pavement will be disfigured for life. It would seem that some one with the care of this pavement in mind should direct that where building operations are going on, or about to begin, that the pavement should be first covered with plank. It is not sufficient to over it with earth, for that would make mud. Good thick plank, that will last through the operation, should be laid, protecting the pavement from injury and rough contact with materials. In the case referred to, the building will be a credit to the town, and the pavement alongside an eye sore for years to come.

MUTUAL CONGRATULATIONS.

When, on behalf of the council and town, he extended a welcome to the High Court of the Independent Order of Foresters, Ald. Morrison referred to many reasons for mutual congratulation. He regretted one thing that the Mayor was not present to give the address of welcome to such an important body of men as the I. O.F., It had been his privilege eleven years ago to give the fraternal address of welcome from Court Chemong to the High Court of Ontario. Since that time, he was pleased to know the Order had experienced great progress; from one Court in Ontario there had been developed four High Courts and from being a Canadian institution the Independent Foresters had become world wide and its growth marvellous. The surplus held by the executive of the Supreme Court was then less than a million, now, it was in the neighborhood of eight millions. While it had been a growing time for the I.O.F. so also had it been for the town of Peterborough. Eleven years ago the town had a population off from nine to ten thousand, while to-day it approached 15000. We are essentially a manufacturing town, having natural as well as acquired advantages which mark us as such, said Ald. Morrison. At the present time there are in the neighborhood of twenty manufacturing concerns, employing about 2000 hands, most of whom are skilled mechanics. We have a good market, beautiful parks, fine streets and sidewalks and splendid water supply and Peterborough is a very healthy town to live in. I extend on behalf of the Mayor and Council of Peterborough a hearty and cordial welcome. I trust that the deliberations of the High Court will be harmonious and profitable to the Order, and I know they will, and that when you have concluded your sessions and the delegates have returned to their homes they will have pleasing recollections of us and kind things to say about us."

ANNUAL MASQUERADE BALL

Quite a Large Number of Participants and all Kinds of Fun.

The annual masquerade ball of the cottagers and campers at Stony Lake was held on Thursday evening last, and every condition existed that tended to success and thorough enjoyment. It being civic holiday, there were not a few present as participants and spectators who otherwise could not have put in an appearance. The affair was held in the pavilion on Juniper Island, and the gaiety of the scene can well be understood when divers nationalities and characters—forming a congress of fantastic impersonations—assembled and made the event one long to be remembered by Stony lakers. It is a rather far cry from a "Ghost" to "Biscuits," but this just shows the variety, while of all nationalities the Jap had the floor. There was not a decent looking Russian visible in the neighborhood. Even a Chinaman seamed to be a popular chaster, and for the time being Irishmen, cowboys, Indians and hoboes seem to have been jolted by something of the nature of a yellow peril. The affair was a great success and any amount of fun attended it. There were about fifty in costume.

LIEUT. GOVERNOR TO BE HERE

Hon. Mortimer Clark Will Open the Peterborough Exhibition.

Hon. William Mortimer Clark, K.C., Lieut.-Governor of the Province of Ontario, will be present at the official opening of the Peterborough Fair on Tuesday, September 27th. A message to this effect was received by Mr. K. Hardley-Wilmot, secretary, today. The presence of so distinguished a gentleman will no doubt add greatly to the interest of the Fair, and tend to make the opening a most notable event.

The arrangements that are now being perfected for the Fair presage a most successful record. The entries are coming in fast and every effort is being put forth to this year give the Exhibition its proper standing among those of the largest cities of the Dominion.

Our new Suits, Topcoats, Overcoats and Trousers are the finest the manufacturers can produce. Our Boy's Clothing and our cute garments for little men will win the heart of every mother that will see our display. Note this: All our advertisements will be thoroughly reliable and mean exactly what they say, and are to be taken at their face value and not at a heavy discount.

We will persist in following this course, always bearing in mind that the goods are at the back of our advertisements. The most valuable stock in trade that we may possess is the confidence of our customers.

Read our advertisements as you would the news columns and for the same reason, they will contain valuable information. Our principal feature will be STRICTEST BUSINESS HONESTY, not only in the matter of dealing with customers, but in our methods of competition, and one feature of our stock in trade that is most valuable to us and that will never appear on our inventory, is the CONFIDENCE OF OUR CUSTOMERS. We realize that there is but one thing that will bring this confidence, and that is MEANING everything we say, living not only up to the letter of our statements and our advertisements, but up to the spirit of them as well.

We don't expect to build a business on transient customers only, our MAIN DEPENDENCE will be on that CLASS of customers who (to use an effective phrase,) SWEAR BY US, and the measure of our success will depend upon the size of this CLASS. To obtain a clientele of this sort OUR MOTTO will be One Price, Honest Goods, Square Dealing and absolute, definite, and recognized Reliability. Remember the date, and remember that a special invitation is extended to YOU.

STILL ANOTHER REGATTA

COTTAGERS OF CHEMONG RAN A SECOND AQUATIC CONTEST.

Dinghy, Canoe, Skiff and Punt Races Aquatic Club to be Formed — Regattas to be Held Weekly.

The cottagers of Chemong held their second regatta last evening, and as a success was no exception to the first one. The events were well filled and keenly contested, and the cottagers took great interest therein. There was not the gale blowing that made things so unpropitious in the first regatta. A proposition that seems to meet with great approval among the cottagers and campers is the formation of an Aequatic Club. Where water sports predominate in such large measure as at Chemong, and where canoeists, yachtsmen, and "water dogs" of almost every type abound, such an organization would undoubtedly meet with great support and be very successful in its objects.

Following are the results of last evening's events —:

Dinghy race—1, H. Hopwood; 2 Mr. Hall; 3, A. A. Hollingshead.

Boys' single canoe, under 14.—1. Gordon Cummings. He had no competitor, and simply paddled over the course.

In the ladies' canoe singles Miss Helen Hay had a decided lead towards the first, but the Calumet blocked the course, and Miss Rutherford passed the flags first. A protest was entered, and decided by toss-up, Miss Rutherford winning.

Ladies' skiff race—1, Miss Isabel Hay; 2, Miss Helen Hay; 3, Miss A. Burnham.

Men's single skiff—1, J. Hopwood; 2, Fred Roy; 3, A. Weeks.

Men's single canoe—1, Fred Roy; 2, A. Weeks.

Men's punt race—1, Mr. Hood; 2, Mr. Hopwood.

The sailing canoe race will be pulled off next week. It has been decided by the cottagers to hold weekly regattas.

The judge of last evening's events was Commodore McComb, and the starters Mr. Hopwood and Mr. Hartshorne.

After the regatta an enjoyable dance was given by Mrs. Hopwood, in honor o fher guests, Mrs. Moneton of California; Mr. and Mrs. Jewett and the Misses Jewett.

RETURNED FROM THE WEST

Has Mr. E. M. Best after a Delightful Month's Rest.

Mr. E. M. Best, manager of the Best Stove Company, whose emporium is situated on Hunter-st., has returned from a month's visit to his home in Winnipeg. He brings the latest intelligence with regard to the condition of the wheat crop in the West, concerning which at present there appears to be so much anxiety. Asked as to the form of blight which threatens great damage to the crop, Mr. Best replied, "I might say that I drove through almost the entire farming district surrounding Winnipeg, and the alarming reports with regard to rust of wheat in that section are entirely unfounded."

"What about the frost, Mr. Best?" asked the agricultural editor.

"With regard to the frost," he replied, "it is altogether likely that in the proper season there will be a repetition of the climatic conditions that cause congealment, but as to a premature visitation the probabilities are that there will be nothing doing—at least not until the grain has been harvested and the farmer has developed a smile that will glow gorgeously through the land of golden grain."

When asked if he was accompanied from Winnipeg on the return trip to Peterborough, Mr. Best suspiciously replied, "Not yet." The enquiry of course, related to the several young men who went west with Mr. Best. He states that he figured in several good games of lacrosse on his native heath.

OUR VERY SHORT SUMMER

A Remarkable Misconception by an American Gentleman.

Rev. J. G. Potter, pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, has returned from several weeks' holidays. While he was away, Rev. Mr. Potter spent three weeks at Northfield, Mass., during the General Conference of Christian Workers, and he visited friends in New York and South Orange, N.J. It was at Northfield that a somewhat amusing enquiry was made of him by an American gentleman. "You are, I understand, a Canadian from Ontario," observed the latter. "Yes," replied Mr. Potter. "And they tell me you have such a short summer up there; only two months or so," continued the other. Such a strange misconception of the warmest part of Canada by an American, almost nonplussed Mr. Potter, and he seriously adjusted himself to an explanation of the fact that while there was such a place as the north pole, supposed to be situated many thousands of miles to the northward, and that it was the centre of a region in which the words freeze in a man's mouth, there was situated a considerable distance to the southward a belt in which the sun shone forth most gloriously for the best part of the year—the Canadian summer—and where the climate was of an almost perpetual salubrity unequalled by any country in the world.

Rev. Mr. Potter stated that as far as he could make out, the Americans have a most kindly feeling for Canadians and Canada.

Brevities.

—The rainfall last night, and up to nine o'clock this morning, measured 1.36 inches. That's leaking some.

—George street choir will practice this evening at 7.45 sharp. It is requested that every member be present.

—Mrs. Callandar, of Norwood, who is the guest of friends in town, will sing at the evening service in George street church tomorrow, as will also Mr Ira Snelgrove, of Toronto.

—Referring to the fact that three excursions from town landed in Bobcaygeon on civic holiday, the Independent says:—„ Altogether Bobcaygeon, the hub of the Kawartha lakes, and the home of the true, the good and the beautiful, was visited by a large number of Peterborough citizens."

—The results of the leaving and matriculation examinations will be mailed from the Education Department to the high school principals and public school inspectors by registered post in envelopes marked, "Examination results," on Aug. 23rd. Candidates who wrote at high school centres will obtain their certificates or statements of standing from the principal of the high school or the Collegiate Institute, at which they wrote.

—A most exciting time was experienced yesterday afternoon by the residents of London-st. A couple of dogs became engaged in a friendly combat, and several women undertook to separate them with the aid of brooms, mops, pokers, etc., and the passers-by were much amused at their efforts. After chasing the combatants around two or three lots, they managed to at last hit the dogs, and that was all that was necessary. Some boys came along and dug graves for them.

—Poor old Port Hope! The Y.M.C.A. of that town wanted to advertise services by the McMaster University Band, so hung a banner across the street. The police ordered the banner to be taken down or the secretary would be arrested. Presumably, it was considered that the hanging of such a manner across the street—with a Christianizing object in view—might hinder the course of the proverbial cannon ball, which, it is said, can be shot from one end of the thoroughfare to the other without injuring people—because they're never there.

—Our attention has been called, during the last few days, to the hold-up (which some boys are practicing on people who go over to view the new lift lock. The Foresters' delegates were made use of, and several American visitors, and when some refused to pay, they were, it is said, attacked with clubs and stones and nasty remarks. This state of things, of course, should not be in the town of Peterborough, which is noted for its hospitality. If the owner of the property really wished to charge for the right of way for pedestrians over to the lock, why does he not have a responsible man on the gate and place proper notices up on the fences? It would appear to be the right thing for the Town Council to allow the owner a small grant, and let visitors to town view the lift lock free of charge.

ART IN THE HOME.

Beauty Is of More Moment Than More Cost in Ornamentation.

The wise man has said, "There is a time for everything." Surely we ought to take time to make home cheerful and happy, and of the many things which tend toward doing this nothing is more essential than a tidy, cosy, pleasant living room. Here is where the family meets in the social circle; here the busy housewife sits after the labors of the day are over; here is where friends are received who make an informal call. It should be made to reflect the hospitality, the taste, the love and the ease of the household, says the Ladies' World.

Not a few sitting rooms are unlovely from a lack of artistic ornamentation. I do not mean that every housewife can or should, even were her means sufficient, adorn her walls with paintings of the old masters, set up statues in every niche and corner and place Henri Deux ware on her mantelpieces. "Art," says a great critic, "is never more supreme than when it fashions from the commonest materials objects of the greatest beauty." It seems to me an obvious truism that the beautiful is equally beautiful however much or however little it may cost and that the lilies of the field, though every village child may pluck them, are yet arrayed in purer loveliness than an eastern emperor in all his glory. A vase of flowers in a room goes a long way in making it attractive. Mere pictures are nothing if not beautiful.

SUMMER STYLES.

Warm Weather Suits of Linen and Silk—Foulard Not Dressy.

Linen suits heavily appliqued with lace are the smart thing for warm weather wear. These costumes are made jacket and skirt fashion, and the little coats are very short and full, with equally short and full bell sleeves. Both skirt and jacket are embroidered and ornamented in a variety of ways, so that little of the original linen shows. None of the handsome linen and cotton gowns of this season are made with a view to the washtub. They are invariably sent to the cleaners to be dry cleansed.

Taffeta is a much softer weave than used formerly makes delightful little taffeta made. These have coats made blouse fashion, the sleeves having wide cuffs filled in with lace. Often to add a quaint touch little embroidered waistcoats of linen or pique are added to these blue or red taffeta costumes.

Every season sees some novelty in lace. This year it is the tiny knotted effects like the pin dots in veiling, and lace of this sort is in great vogue for sleeve frills and bands of insertion.

Foulard is not used so much this season as formerly. It is made up largely into shirt waist suits and general utility dresses. For dressy wear there are the plain surfaced materials, such as veiling and peau de, which last comes now in all the attractive colorings.

The illustration shows a costume of gray veiling trimmed with bands of a darker shade. With this is worn a white hat trimmed with crimson wings.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

A Tragic Fete.

Not less than 1,500 people were trampled to death in the crowds which gathered at the fete given in celebration of the marriage of Louis XVI. of France, June 21, 1770.

SEEN HERE AND THERE.

Petticoats of Alpaca Are Summer. Taffeta Gowns Here to Stay.

For hot weather collar bands and small yokes will be left transparent, but lined, of course, with chiffon or net to veil the transparency. Little touches of oriental embroidery are used on neutral tinted gowns, especially those of burnt orange tints on gowns of soft beige or tan.

Practical petticoats of alpaca are very smart for summer wear with many frills and embroideries of heavy twist in buttonhole design. Skirts of mercerized batiste are also charming for wearing under linen and muslin gowns.

Mull and soft mousseline are both used a great deal for summer evening frocks. They are trimmed with white Irish lace or silk laces of yellowish tints.

BLUE MULL DRESS.

The smart toques and hats are trimmed with fruits and flowers at the same time. So far very few flowing veils have been seen, but lace drapings of every description are used on hats.

Taffeta gowns are here to stay for the season. They are inlet with lace, and the wide sleeves are filled in with dainty lace ruffles, which take away much of the stiffness of the silk.

Bias bands are seen even on very thin materials. They are particularly dainty when carried out in dotted effects.

The picture shows a blue mull gown trimmed with lace insertion. It has a cape effect made of folds and insertions, and the bottom of the skirt is made full by the addition of wide ruffings.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

Newton's Magnet.

A magnet which the great Sir Isaac Newton wore as a set in his finger ring is said to have been capable of raising 746 grains, or about 250 times its own weight of 3 grains, and to have been much admired in consequence of its phenomenal power.

Turpentine.

Turpentine has been found to be an antidote for carbolic acid.

The Orange.

There is a ripe side to the orange as well as to the peach. The stem half of the orange is usually not so sweet and juicy as the other half, not because it receives less sunshine, but possibly because the juice gravitates to the lower half, as the orange commonly hangs below its stem.

Laborers in Liberia.

Farm laborers in Liberia receive from $2.50 to $4.50 a month and rations of rice and fish. Men do all the work done elsewhere by horses because horses would cost more.

The Rain Tree.

The mystery of the rain tree of the Canaries is a cloud that hovers about it constantly. This is condensed to water which saturates the leaves and falling from them in constant drops keeps the cisterns which are in excavation beneath them always full of water.

HEART PAINS AND INDIGESTION

Which Were Thoroughly Cured by the Use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

Mr. J. Law, 247 Hunter street, Peterborough, and who is employed with the Peter Hamilton Co., states: "For a long time I was troubled with severe splitting headaches and suffered a great deal with pains in the region of my heart, caused no doubt by indigestion. I procured a box of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and began this treatment. Since using this preparation for some time I can say that I feel quite different, and my health is very much improved. My digestion is good, and the headaches and pains about the heart have not troubled me at all of late. I can sincerely recommend Dr. Chase's Nerve Food as a thorough cure for nervous dyspepsia and its accompanying symptoms."

WHEN BOYS WERE MEN

By JOHN HABBERTON,

Author of "Helen's Babies," "George Washington," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1904, BY JOHN HABBERTON

"There's just one thing I want to ask," mumbled an ex-truck driver through a mouthful of hot pudding. "Does the government issue pudding bags?"

"The quartermaster issues cotton drawers," Phil replied, "and you'll learn, if you choose to ask, that he charged two new pairs to my personal clothing account this morning. The puddings were boiled in the legs of them."

"Be hivin," said Mick McTwyny, with an approving shoulder slap that nearly knocked our enterprising commissary sergeant into the cook's fire, "the likes of yes niver was born, and the fust money the paymaster gives me yes shall git that dhrunk wid me that yes won't know yer mout' from a hole in the ground!"

"Thanks, sergeant," said Hamilton, rubbing his shoulder. "I assure you that you're the first man who ever was boughtful enough to make me so handsome an offer."

But a grander feast was enjoyed one cool evening after Phil had announced late in the afternoon that there would be pancakes for supper and asked that each man would take knife and fork as well as plate when he went for rations. Hamilton had found some soda and cream of tartar in the village. He made the batter in a half barrel, and his griddles were an odd collection of frying pans, plowshares, flattened sides of camp kettles the bottoms of which had rusted or burned through, a stove lid and some tin plates. As we hurried to the cookhouse when the bugle blew supper call we saw all these irons on a glowing mass of coals and the cook lifting large cakes from them with a wooden turner made from a barrel stave, while Phil himself, with a huge bit of fat pork on a stick in one hand and a great cup in the other, was greasing the pan and pouring more batter. As the cook placed a huge cake and a spoonful of sugar on each plate Hamilton said that if we would be patient and stand around as we ate each could get a fresh cake every two or three minutes.

"Ah!" "Um!" "My!" "Oh!" "Golly!" "Gosh!" were some of the expressions that went up around that fire while the men began their supper, some using spoons instead of knives and forks. Oftenest heard, however, was, "This reminds me of home," or "Doesn't it remind you of home?" Had I ever before been asked to name our national dish I would have hesitated between pie and pork and beans, but since that great evening I have believed that in a competitive contest the pancake would receive more votes than beans and pie combined, besides being preeminent among eatables as "the tie that binds," "a touch of nature" and more of that sort of thing. As we ate thrift talked everybody began to talk of home. Even big Pat Callahan became so absorbed in home reminiscences that he forgot to curse the government for not giving us butter to eat on our cakes.

But nobody, no matter how full of home memories, stopped eating that he might talk. The first issue disappeared from the plates in a minute, and two or three men who apparently hadn't any homes to think of returned so frequently for more that we agreed to form a circle, each man to receive a cake and some sugar as he passed the cook's table. It was an odd spectacle, apparently, to men of other companies—that company of about 80 men marching slowly in a circle and eating as they walked. But we were not at all concerned about our appearance just then. We were having a private cake walk in which each and every man "took the cake." Our officers knew of it from their servants, and the captain came down to look on.

"Won't you try one, captain?" asked Hamilton, offering a clean plate and fork. The captain accepted, tasted, exclaimed "Gracious!" and said no more until he had finished the cake. Then he remarked as he stepped into a gap in the line:

"Just let me see how it feels to tramp around in a circle a little while."

He didn't lay aside his plate and fork either, but twice took his turn—and cake—like the commonest of his men, believing, evidently, that the pancake, like love, levels all ranks. When he departed, it was to bring the colonel over to see the fun and also to see a company which was well fed. My place in the circling line brought me near enough to the two officers to hear the captain tell the colonel how admirably Phil managed the company commissariat. A minute or two later the couple passed through the line, and the captain astonished us by saying:

"Sergeant Hamilton, can you spare a sample cake for the colonel?"

Any other man in the company would have felt awkward at coming face to face with his colonel while holding a pan greaser in one hand and a cake turner in the other, but Hamilton succeeded in threwing his implements into one hand and in saluting; then, with another salute, he passed a plate to the colonel, and all the while he looked as manly and self possessed as if he were just entering one of Summerton's best parlors. I did wish my cousin May might see him just then. A moment later I was glad for Brainard's sake that she couldn't. The colonel went through the motions of tasting the cake. It would have been undignified for him to eat all of it, though every man knew he was dying to. Then in his clearest dress parade voice he said:

"Sergeant Hamilton, I will make you lieutenant as soon as a vacancy occurs. A man who knows how to feed soldiers well has in him the stuff of which good officers are made."

Hamilton again saluted, but with the air of a man to whom lieutenancies were offered daily. The remainder of the company were so profoundly impressed that no one but the cook, who hoped to be Hamilton's successor as commissary sergeant, had the sense to propose three cheers for the colonel.

"Won't you try one, captain?"

But the prospective lieutenant did not leave his pans. It took an hour of time to fry and deal out that half barrel of batter. Besides, Phil was teaching the cook. Finally the supply was exhausted. Hamilton threw his greaser into the fire, turned the tub upside down and sat upon it to rest.

Suddenly one man exclaimed:

"Well, by thunder! The cakes were so good that we've forgotten all about our coffee!"

"Thanks! That's a bigger compliment than the colonel's," said Hamilton, raising his hat. He was right too.

The coffee cups were filled and emptied, and we went slowly back to the quarters in little groups instead of sentry and in haste, as was usual in cool weather. There were not as much scuffling, swearing and horseplay as we generally had between supper and taps. The quarters were quiet—so quiet that we were almost startled when Mick McTwyny's grating voice and thick brogue were heard in an attempt to sing. The words were merely "Tura-lah-lah," but the music, in spite of some eccentric sharps and flats, was finally recognized as that of "Home, Sweet Home." Some one hummed the bass, another fellow helped Mick along with the air, others dropped in, singly or two or three together, on various notes and bars, and when the last note was touched it seemed as though every voice was in it. Then Brainard started us all off again, with all the words and notes distinctly enunciated.

The effect was not what I would have expected. Everybody looked serious. Some men fixed their eyes on the ground; others looked at the shingles overhead as if trying to pierce them and see the stars; more than one fellow drew his hat over his eyes, and a married man sitting on a bottom bunk suddenly turned and buried his face in the pillow. As for me, though my gaze was fixed on the little black stove in the center of the room, I saw our house at Summerton, my father and mother, little Ned and Cousin May, the dog Rover, the horses, cows, pigs and chickens, my room and everything on its walls. I felt my face twitching, so, to keep from betraying my feelings, I hastily began looking about the room again, but I was a second too late—I couldn't see anything distinctly.

And all this merely because of a supper of pancakes!

WHEAT BELOW AVERAGE

Ontario Department Estimates Yield at 16.2 Bushels.

Total Yield of Fall Wheat For the Province Is Nine Million Bushels, As Compared With Seventeen Millions in 1903—A Decrease Also in Spring Wheat—Barley and Oats Have Considerably Increased Acreage—Other Crops.

Toronto, Aug. 20.—The following are the estimates on Aug. 1 by the Ontario Department of Agriculture of the Ontario crops for the current year. These estimates will be revised in the November bulletin, when the yields will be more accurately determined by threshing returns:

Fall Wheat.

This year shows a further reduction of 60,000 acres. The estimated yield this year is 16.2 bushels per acre, as against 25.9 in 1903, and is 4.8 bushels below the average of the past twenty-two years. The total yield is 9,827,760 bushels, as against 17,242,763 in 1903. The area of fall wheat plowed up totalled 189,274 acres, or nearly 24 per cent. of the area sown.

Spring Wheat.

There is a decrease this year of 23,000 acres. The estimated yield is 18.5 bushels per acre, as against 18.7 in 1903, and is 2.7 above the average. The total yield is 4,165,725 bushels, as against 4,650,707 in 1903.

Barley.

This crop shows an increase of 63,000 acres, the estimated yield being 32.5 bushels per acre, as against 34.3 in 1903, and is 5.6 bushels above the average. The total yield is 25,136,635 bushels, and 24,378,817 bushels in 1903.

Oats.

An increase of 16,000 acres is shown for oats. The estimated yield this year is 39.8 bushels per acre, as against 41.6 in 1903, and is 3.7 bushels above the average. The total yield is 104,459,461 bushels, as against 109,874,058 bushels in 1903.

Rye.

Rye shows a reduction of 49,000 acres. The estimated yield this year is 16.1 bushels per acre, as against 16.6 in 1903, and is slightly below the average. The total yield in 1904 is 2,099,946 bushels, as against 2,270,760 bushels in 1903.

Peas.

This crop shows a reduction of 67,000 acres. The estimated yield is 21.2 bushels per acre, as against 21.9 bushels in 1903, and is 1.8 bushels above the average. The total yield is 7,177,786 bushels, as against 8,924,656 bushels in 1903.

Beans.

Beans are reduced by 2,000 acres. The estimated yield in 1904 is 19.1 bushels per acre, as against 18.4 bushels in 1903, and is 2.0 bushels above the average. The total yield is 986,666 bushels, as against 978,246 bushels in 1903.

Hay and Clover.

This crop shows an increase of 142,000 acres. The estimated yield is 1.80 tons per acre, as against 1.56 in 1903, and is .37 tons above the average. The total yield is 5,259,189 tons, compared with 4,336,562 tons in 1903.

Other Crops.

The areas in other crops are as follows: Corn (for husking), 392,882 acres; corn (for silo), 198,115 acres; buckwheat, 100,608 acres; potatoes, 133,119 acres; mangolds, 71,344 acres; carrots, 6,629 acres; turnips, 133,207 acres; rape, 49,219 acres; hops, 2,252 acres; flax, 6,313 acres; tobacco, 3,033 acres; orchards and gardens, 369,495 acres; vineyards, 14,857 acres, and pasture, 3,183,973 acres.

Apples.

The estimated crop of apples from 7,949,889 trees of bearing age is 43,563,674 bushels, or 6.12 bushels per tree, being a slight decrease from 1903.

Live Stock.

Live stock figures show 655,555 horses, as compared with 639,581 in 1903; cattle number 2,776,104, as against 2,674,361 in 1903; sheep dropped to 1,455,482, from 1,642,726 enumerated in 1903; there are 1,927,984 swine, a small decrease from 1903. Poultry show a total of 9,412,701.

In the year ending June 30, farmers of Ontario have sold or slaughtered 62,810 horses, 730,212 cattle, 687,144 sheep, 2,240,085 swine, and 3,537,358 poultry.

The wool clip is 4,972,042 pounds, and farmers possess 201,064 colonies of bees.

A Hamilton Sensation.

Hamilton, Aug. 20.—Yesterday's sensation was a writ issued for alimony against A. B. Mackay by his wife. Mr. Mackay is a member of the firm of R. O. and A. B. Mackay, prominent coal merchants and vessel men. Mrs. Mackay alleges that her husband has not treated her as a faithful wife should be treated, and that her position became unbearable. She left her husband about two months ago and went to London. Efforts were made to effect a peaceful settlement, but they could not agree on the amount of alimony. Yesterday Farmer and Gould issued a writ on behalf of Mrs. Mackay, who asks for $1,000 a month interim alimony.

Aylesworth Will Enter Cabinet.

Toronto, Aug. 20.—It is learned from a reliable source that it is definitely settled that A. B. Aylesworth, K.C., will enter the Dominion Cabinet. Before he went to Europe the Premier was assured that he would accept. Mr. Aylesworth is not to be assigned to a portfolio until the elections are fought.

Yankee Soldiers Fought.

O'Brien Re-Elected.

Cork, Ireland, Aug. 20.—William O'Brien yesterday was re-elected member of Parliament for Cork City unopposed. It is not known whether he will accept, but the local executive of the United Irish League will use every effort to induce him.

Mr. O'Brien, Nov. 5, 1903, resigned his seat in Parliament for Cork City, and as a member of the governing body of the United Irish League, owing to difference of opinion with members of the Nationalist party.

For Bishop of Nova Scotia.

Halifax, Aug. 20.—The committee appointed by the Anglican Synod to select names to submit to the Synod next month for the position of Bishop of Nova Scotia have decided on Rev. L. TALK IT OVER

You talk over the question of the best food to give your baby with every one who can help you. Especially talk it over with your doctor. You may have been fortunate during the past summer, but you know of very many mothers who have had serious trouble with their children because the right food could not be found for them. You remember the experiments they made, the constant change from milk to one food or another, and the struggle and danger which it all meant.

We will send you, free of charge, a trial package of Allen's Food sufficient for eight meals.

Send us a postal card.

Baby Was Murdered.

Toronto, Aug. 20.—Given an overdose of some narcotic in order to keep it quiet while the party deserting it made good an escape from the locality, the 10-days' baby found in the waiting-room of the Niagara Navigation Co. two weeks ago is dead. An inquest was conducted last evening by Coroner Pickering, and the jury returned a verdict of wilful murder against party or parties unknown.

Would Deport a Canadian Now.

Montreal, Aug. 20.—The activity of those in Canada who are desirous that all American engineers now employed in this country should be deported, is spreading. The suggestion has now been made by the Canadian Amalgamated Association of Engineers that William F. Tye, the chief engineer of the C.P.R., should be included in the list of those who should be deported. It is true that Mr. Tye practically came to the C. P.R. from an American road, but is equally true that he is a Canadian born, educated at Ottawa College.

1,000 to Go West.

Toronto, Aug. 20.—The Union Station will have a busy hour today when the first of the harvesters' excursion trains for the West will pull out about 2 p.m. About 3,000 husky applicants for a chance to take a hand in the game have already shown up. To-day's excursion will probably carry away over a thousand.

Yukon Commissioner Sees Premier.

Ottawa, Aug. 20.—Commissioner G. T. Wood of the Northwest Mounted Police, is on his way back to the Yukon from Halifax, whither he had been calling owing to the death of his father. He called upon the Premier yesterday morning, and will proceed to the Yukon at once.

5,000 Acres in Canada.

London, Aug. 20.—(C.A.P.)—General Booth, speaking in the town hall of Newcastle-under-Lyne, said he had given consent to the purchase of 5,000 acres of land in Canada in order to develop the emigration policy of the army.

Accused Himself of Theft.

London, Aug. 20.—A man giving the name of Franz Schneider surrendered himself to the Birmingham police yesterday, accusing himself of stealing papers "from a person at Southampton, believed to be F. Kent Loomis."

A Moorish Tragedy.

Algiers, Aug. 20.—Eighty-three horsemen sent by the Moorish pretender, Bu Hamara, to Chief Amada of the Beni Buzzagoro tribe, to ask his daughter in marriage, were treacherously murdered by the chief.

WHEN ALL HOPE WAS ABANDONED

Elzear Cote Found in Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets a Speedy and Permanent Cure for His Stomach Troubles.

"I suffered for four years from stomach trouble. I consulted three doctors and they told me that I had Dyspepsia and no remedy would help me." So says Elzear Cote, of St. Hedwidge de Chiftom, Que. But Mr. Cote found a remedy that those doctors did not know. It was Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets and it cured him. He says:—

"Them I quit the doctors and started to take Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. After the first box I had no more trouble. It is now two years since I took them and I am still well. I do all my own work. I am never tired. That's why I recommend all who have stomach troubles to use Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets."

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets digest the food themselves. This gives the overworked stomach a chance to rest and it naturally comes back to its normal, healthy condition.

ONE DEAD—FIFTY INJURED.

Tornado Rips North St. Louis—Twisting Arm Seemed to Shoot Suddenly From Clouds to Earth.

St. Louis, Aug. 20.—A tornado of small proportions down in the residence portion of North St. Louis yesterday, resulted in the death of one person, injury to probably fifty others and damage to property estimated at $100,000. Herman Sauerwine, aged 10, it is believed, was fatally injured.

The atmosphere had become murky and hot when persons in North St. Louis noticed a dark cloud approaching from the southwest. Suddenly and without the slightest premonition an arm seemed to shoot to the ground like a gigantic cable, twisting and turning. The end touched the ground at Angelrodt and Nineteenth streets, and with an incredible swiftness and force swept east along Angelrodt street for ten blocks, then turned north and swept three blocks along Broadway, when it jumped eight blocks northeast to the foot of Breman street and the river, where considerable property along the river front was destroyed.

Jumped to Middle of River.

The tornado then jumped to the middle of the river and encountered a ferry boat, which was buffeted about but was not sunk. The tornado again jumped and struck the Illinois shore, near Madison, where it demolished several buildings. It blew down a portion of the Madison Cooper Works, killing John Tillington. Severe damage was done also to buildings in Venice and Granite City and several persons were injured.

A trolley car, containing eleven passengers was buried under six telegraph poles which wrecked the car. The passengers had a remarkable escape. The roof and part of the top storey of Sommers Bros'. factory were blown away. The loss at the Niedringhau's Rolling Mill, which covers two square acres, is estimated at $25,000. Six employes were injured. No damage was done at the World's Fair grounds.

Woman Killed.

Venice, Ill., Aug. 20.—The tornado that swept across the river from North St. Louis yesterday killed Mrs. Margaret Beal, injured ten others and caused considerable damage to property. Trees were blown down and a number of houses were unroofed.

Destructive Cloudburst.

El Paso, Texas, Aug. 20.—A cloudburst at Globe, Arizona, has resulted in several deaths and the destruction of much property. Wires to the section affected are down, but a passenger who arrived at Bowie, Arizona, says that a man named Mitchell and his wife and four children have been drowned. One report says nine were drowned. The Southern Pacific shops were demolished.

DEADLY LEVEL CROSSING.

Two Women Victims Tossed 100 Feet By a T. H. & B. Train.

Hamilton, Aug. 20.—Mrs. Thomas Knox, Lynden, Ont., and Mrs. Leonard Dodge, Saginaw, Mich., two elderly ladies, were run down and instantly killed yesterday afternoon, near Jerseyville, on the T., H. & B. Railway, by the express due here at 4.45. They were in a covered buggy and tried to cross the track in front of the train, which was going at a high rate of speed.

The engine threw the horse, buggy and occupants high up in the air. The dead and mangled bodies of the two unfortunate women were tossed over 100 feet, the horse was killed and the rig smashed to splinters.

Brother Saw Him Killed.

Winnipeg, Aug. 20.—Robert C. Smith, a employe of Porter Lyalls Depot here, was killed yesterday morning while working on a pile driver, being thrown about thirty feet to the ground, breaking his neck. He was a native of Mitchell, Ontario, and about 30 years of age. His brother James, was with him at the time.

Neck Broken By Fallen Plank.

Cornwall, Aug. 20.—A sad fatality is reported from Toyes Mill, Dundas. It resulted in the death of Delbert, the six-year-old son of Jas. McCuatt. The little fellow, it is supposed, went to the river for a swim and threw his clothes on a pile of lumber on the bank. On coming out of the water and reaching for his clothes six oak planks tumbled down on him, one plank striking him on the head and doubling it on his breast, breaking his neck.

Injury May Prove Fatal.

Hamilton, Aug. 20.—Yesterday morning James McCowell, 39 Dundurn street, a lad 16 years of age, was caught in the turn-table at the G.T.R. round-house and very seriously injured. The flesh on his thigh was horribly torn, and one leg received a compound fracture. The doctors say that the leg will have to be amputated, but he is so weak that they cannot perform the operation.

Broke His Leg.

St. Thomas, Aug. 20.—John Nolan, G.T.R. conductor, fearing an accident with a derrick, near Komoka, jumped and broke his right leg.

Arrested in Policeman's Uniform.

Ottawa, Aug. 20.—Police Constable McManus received very rough treatment at the hands of a rowdy crowd on William street early yesterday morning. Charles O'Connor, Eli Gagnier and Henry Dumoulin are under arrest for the assault. The victim was so badly used up as to necessitate his being taken to the hospital. The toughs stripped him of his uniform as a final indignity, and one of the member, Gagnier, arrayed himself in the garb of the law, and, falling fast asleep from the influence of liquor, was gathered in by the police.

—There was no Police Court this morning.

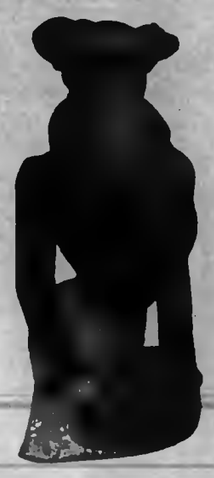
Summer Prices FOR Winter Garments



The last month of Summer—August—is a good time to buy Furs. It is known to be a good time. Prices as a rule are lower, because the dealer is anticipating the season.

It is a good time—in fact the best—to order Furs. Because it affords time in which to make them up with care and without the haste that comes with the winter season.

Our show rooms are open. You can view the winter's styles. They are all here. Orders are taken based on the styles we show. It's worth a look at any rate, even if you do not buy, and you are never pressed to do so. All we know about Furs is at your service.

LACROSSE.

St. Kitts play the Tecumsehs at the Island today.

The Tecumsehs play in Brantford today.

The different papers are commenting on the way the different games in the senior C.L.A. are being won and lost. A team one day defeats another badly, and in the next game they are beaten just as severely by a team that has been defeated by the former team. Some attribute it to jealousy among the players, and the wise ones claim that the players are playing according to their different pay. Anyway, the winner is not picked yet, although the Chippewas look very likely.

The protested game of July 16th, between the Tecumsehs and St. Kitts was last night awarded to the former, [illegible]

HOME AFTER EIGHT YEARS

Dr. Milburn of Dakota, Visits his Father Mr. Joseph Milburn, Smith.

Dr. J. A. Milburn, of Wessington, Dakota, is the guest of his father, Mr. Joseph Milburn, Smith. It is eight years since Dr. Milburn went west, and it is a pleasure to state that he has experienced prosperity in a marked degree, having a very extensive practice. He will be remembered here as having been prominent in local athletics, and the holder of quite a record in running and jumping, and he is glad to remark the high place that Peterborough occupies in the world of manly sport. Discussing conditions out west, Dr. Milburns stated that Dakota is a very fine farming country, and that settlers there have amassed great wealth. When asked if there did not appear to be a movement in the form of an exodus from border states to Canada, Dr. Milburn stated that such was not the case, as the condition of the farmer in the part of the country which he came from appeared to be satisfactory in every particular. He is pleased to observe the growth of the town during the past eight years. Much of it looked the same, but there was about the place an air of industry which suggested prosperity. He had noticed the increased extent of the town, and had heard with pride of the increase in population from 9,000 to almost 15,000. Dr. Milburn will spend some days in town, and old friends will be pleased to see him.

VERY BAD ACCIDENT

Floyd Sager Loses his Sight While Playing With Dynamite.

A very distressing accident happened this morning, and the result of which is not definitely known yet. Floyd Sager, the ten-year-old son of Mr. S. Sager, McDonnell street, was at the rear of the house playing on the pavement with dynamite concussion caps. He ignited the fuse and stood over it, watching it burn, when it suddenly exploded and struck the child in the face and knocked him down. He was carried into the house and Drs. Halliday, Brown and McCullough were called, who decided that an operation was necessary and performed it at noon. One eye is completely destroyed, but the doctors are hoping to save the sight of the other one. The cap was so strong that a large hole was made in the pavement.

A short time ago the same boy was discharging toy torpedoes with [illegible] atoms, when one extra large one caused such a concussion that Floyd was thrown on his back. He is a very daring little fellow, [illegible]

NEW FIRM OPENED HANDSOME STORE

MESSRS. LANG & MABER, HIGH CLASS CLOTHIERS AND GENTLEMEN'S FURNISHERS.

A Firm of wide Experience and with Every Prospect of Success—The Policy one to Inspire Confidence Something about their Methods of doing Business.

Somewhat of an agreeable surprise greeted the citizens who were "down town" today, and the many other people who from the country surrounding did business here. It was the very handsome front of the new gents' clothing store opened today for the first time, and situated at 409-411 George street, one door south of Loch Bros. fur store, the quarters formerly occupied by the Y.W.C.A., but now transformed on a most magnificent scale. The new business men—new only in that they make their initial bow as being now at the head of a most promising enterprise—are Messrs. J. T. C. Lang, formerly with Gough Bros., and Mr. M. J. Maher for some years head salesman with Grafton & Co. Their undertaking may hardly be called a venture, for their long experience with the trade and knowledge of its requirements, their ability to measure up to them, their wide acquaintance in town and district, and the confidence which they have always inspired during their business relations with the public, make their success here assured, and a large clientele a positive prospect.

A HANDSOME STORE

The new store in which the new firm has located is one that does Peterborough proud, and with Loch Bros. a turned immediately north there are two of the most attractive and up-to-date business stands that may be seen in a long day's journey. There have been many changes made in the appearance of the stores on George street, and these are a significant of the town's progress and the enterprise of its merchants. Said a gentleman who on Civic Holiday had been a visitor to one of Ontario's largest towns: "The stores there do not seem to have the busy, up-to-date appearance of those in Peterborough." It may be truthfully said that there is everything to back up the assertion, for the merchants of Peterborough have established a record for up-to-datedness in their places of business. Messrs. Lang & Maher have reason to be proud of their store—it is one of the finest. The front has a width of 20 feet, with large plate glass windows in oak setting, ornately finished and surmounted by an area of artistically designed luxfer prisms; the appearance is certainly rich and exceedingly attractive. The entrance recedes a distance of seven feet six inches, which is also the depth of the display windows, the side lights of the latter slanting to a plate glass door. The opportunity for display could hardly be surpassed, and the dresser has certainly made splendid use of it, as is seen by the arrangement of goods today. The entrance is to be tiled in mosaic, the name of the firm to be worked out in the centre of the area, thus forming a floor that is exceptionally fine. The windows are perfectly air tight, no dust can enter there, and they are so separated from the store that every precaution may be observed toward conditions that prevent frosting of windows in winter.

The imposing appearance of the store's exterior is not turned into a disappointment by the interior; indeed, quite the opposite. The entire length is one hundred feet, and thirty-five feet of this are devoted to the gents' furnishing department—occupying both sides. Here are two splendid salesmen, each ten feet long with finest English bevel plate, there is the richly polished counter and neatly arranged upon the shelving are the goods, new and natty, and everything high class. Nothing there has the questionable reputation of having been bought at job prices, but on the other hand everything has the unmistakable stamp of gentlemanliness. It is an extensive stock, embracing everything worn by man or boy, by the workingman or by the most fashionable dresser. Styles are ever changing, and the policy of the new firm is to always have the newest goods; this will certainly be appreciated.

WELL LIGHTED.

A very noticeable feature is the excellent light of the store, rendered perfect by a large expanse of glass facing Chambers street, from which there is an entrance. This, indeed, is the only store of its kind in town so situated, and customers with horses will recognize the full benefit of such a feature, as it will be possible for them to drive up to this entrance and there allow their horses to stand without danger of fright by street cars or other causes which, on a main thoroughfare, terrorize the animals. The store is flooded with light, even on cloudy days, and this is an important advantage. The store has been floored throughout in solid maple, the walls covered with a fine ingrain paper of a cream tint, a pretty design of border and ceiling completing a most harmonious color scheme.

Sixty five feet of the store is taken up by the clothing department, the fixtures of which give every facility that could be desired. The stock a large one, and complete, and is such as to command consideration of all who appreciate worth. There are 300 feet of shelving, nicely matched, and adding greatly to the excellent facilities of the store. The very high standard of quality which the firm has set up in their clothing cannot be too strongly emphasized. There are many different manufacturers of clothing and excellence and individuality in garments are of course aimed at. The members of the new firm have been acquainted with the trade for the greater part of their lives, and they are in a position to ably judge wherein one manufacturer excels over another, and act accordingly, thus being backed up in their position by knowledge of the trade. The Sovereign Brand of clothing, which they carry, is especially high class, and well merits the commendation which they place upon it.

BUSINESS METHODS.

Reliability will be spelt in big bold letters in the record of the firm. Their suits, topcoats, overcoats and trousers are the finest the manufacturers can produce. Every announcement made may be relied upon; there will be no discounting of their statements—they may be taken at their face value, and that means a great deal these days. The strictest business honesty will be observed and the confidence of their customers will be the firms perpetual inventory. "We do not expect to build a business on transient customers only," remarked Mr. Maher yesterday, "but our main dependence will be on the class of customers who (to use an effective phrase) swear by us, and the measure of our success will depend upon the size of this class. To obtain such a clientele our motto will be, one price, honest goods, square dealing and absolute, definite and recognized reliability."

MEMBERS OF THE FIRM.

A word or two as to the experience of the members of the new firm will be of interest. Mr. Maher has practically been in the trade all his life. For four years he was with R. Smythe & Son, of the Golden Lion, Lindsay; eight years he spent in the service of the Army and Navy Clothing Co., Limited, Toronto and, lastly for seven years he was head salesman with Grafton & Co. here. For all of these years he has been in harness and is one of those who is devoted to his vocation, and hence has benefitted greatly by his experience and knows the value of those qualities which win the people's confidence, and which have to such a marked degree characterized his record.

Mr. J. T. C. Lang, eighteen years ago joined the staff of Turnbull & Co., and remained there for seven years, when he started in business for himself at Centreville, and after another seven years, entered the clothing department of Gough Bros.' big store, where he remained for four years. It will therefore be seen that the members of this firm lack nothing in experience and have the best possible knowledge of the trade. Mr. Lang's business record is of the kind that is always rated as a strong asset and he and Mr. Maher form indeed a weighty and competent team.

The staff of the new store is an excellent one. Mr. Will Martin, who for four years was in the clothing department of Grafton & Co., has accepted a position in the new store. He has a good grasp of the trade, is a very popular young man, a good salesman and stock-keeper. These essential qualities are also possessed to a marked degree by Mr. Herb. Robeson, son of Rev. Mr. Robeson, of the Fraserville, Bensfort and Baillieboro circuit in this Methodist Conference. Mr. Robeson was for a year with Grafton & Co., and is a young man of great promise.

STRICT ATTENTION.

The fact is emphasized that all necessary alterations to garments are made by thoroughly practical and capable hands. A workroom twice the size of the store and neatly fitted up is situated immediately above and certainly will be a most important department. The strictest attention will be paid to all garments before leaving the store.

The opening of the store was held today, when many admiring visitors were welcomed by the firm. The interior was prettily decorated with palms, and the brilliant illuminations of the evening added to the attractiveness of the very handsome place of business. Messrs. Lang & Maher have undoubtedly the best wishes of the people of town and district for a large share of prosperity.

It might be of interest to note that the electrical fixtures of the windows were installed by Alexander & Miller, and are of the most modern type of lamp, an extended oblong shape, especially adapted to window decoration, being used. This firm also installed the elevators, by means of which the store is lighted. Mr. D. Bellegham installed the shelving and other fixtures in a manner highly creditable, while Mr. Wilson, foreman of the Toronto Savings & Loan Company, superintended the carpentering. The painting, varnishing and papering was splendidly done by Mr. Ralph Corten. The tile floor at the entrance will be laid under the direction of Mr. E. W. Argue, architect. Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons will add an awning of the latest and most satisfactory type, the ponderous pull being overcome by a device which rolls the entire canvas up neatly in a much smaller space above the window than is ordinarily the case when not in use. On a flap in front will be printed the firm's name in large block letters.

NEWS OF THE CHURCHES.

Services to be Held in the Different Churches on Sunday.

RUSSIA FLATLY REFUSES

To Allow Her Ships To Leave Shanghai or Disarm.

MANY INTERESTS CONCERNED

U. S. Torpedo Boat Destroyer Slipped In Between a Japanese Torpedo Boat Cleared For Action and Her Prey, The Russian Ship Askold.

Shanghai, Aug. 22.—Shanghai was thrown into a fever of excitement yesterday afternoon by the arrival of a Japanese torpedo boat, which was sighted coming in from the south at half-past four o'clock. She passed Woosung at full speed and started up the river for Shanghai. The United States torpedo boat destroyer Chauncey slipped her cable and followed the Japanese vessel. The Japanese boat was cleared for action. She anchored off the Cosmopolitan dock, where the Russian cruiser Askold is undergoing repairs. The Chauncey came to anchor practically between the dock and the Japanese destroyer. A foreign pilot ship reports having seen a Japanese battleship and two cruisers cruising sixty miles outside of Woosung.

There are at present no Chinese men-of-war in this port, but the Taotai has asked that a Chinese cruiser be sent immediately.

Russia Refuses.

The Russian Consul-General here flatly refuses to disarm the Askold or the destroyer Grozovoi or to order them to leave the harbor.

The Taotai has notified American Consul Goodnow, who is dean of the Consular body, that China cannot protect the foreign settlements. He contends that Russia ignores the orders issued by China and that China has not the means of making her obey them.

Consuls to Consider.

Consul Goodnow has called a meeting of the Consular body to take joint action for the protection of foreign inhabitants. The Askold has docked adjacent to the warehouses there of the Standard Oil Co., which are valued at over $1,000,000. The Standard Oil Co. has demanded protection for its property from Consul Goodnow.

The dock where the Askold lies is owned by British interests. On one side of the dock is German and Dutch property, and on the other side American property.

There are eight American, one German, two British and four French warships here.

Will Be No Complications.

London, Aug. 22.—The intervention of the American squadron at Shanghai in the Japanese operations against the Russia cruiser Askold created considerable surprise in official and diplomatic circles here. An official of the Japanese Legation, said: "If the report is not untrue the American commander must have had good reason for his action, such as the protection of the American interests, which would have been endangered by flying shells.

"Japan has been very reluctant to send ships into the harbor, for she recognized the international character of Shanghai and that the laws of neutrality demanded that China should order the Askold and the Grosovei to dismantle or leave the port, and that she having given the order and the Russian ships having refused, it was then incumbent for Japan to act, thereby protecting Chinese neutrality and at the same time exerting her rights as a belligerent.

"Whatever reason actuated the American commander, if it really did as is reported, it is certain that no complications will follow."

3-DAY ASSAULT.

The Taking of Port Arthur Will Be at a Cost Unexpected.

Che Foo, Aug. 22.—The Japanese have swept the Russians from Pigeon Bay and captured the northernmost fort of the western line of inner defenses at Port Arthur. The Russian artillery prevents the Japanese from occupying the fort on Pigeon Bay.

3-Days' Assault Planned.

It is understood that the Japanese plans at Port Arthur contemplate a three-days' assault. They expect to be triumphant on the third day. It is stated that they have a sufficient force to maintain an appealing force of 60,000 men throughout.

Four thousand Japanese are reported to have landed at Dalny yesterday.

Steessel Reports.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 22.—Emperor Nicholas has received the following message from Lieut.-Gen. Stoessel, commander of the military forces at Port Arthur, dated Aug. 16:

"The Japanese made a two-days' attack on our position in the Uglovia Mountains, near Louisa Bay. All their attacks were repulsed.

"The Uglovia, Visokia and Divitsona Mountains remain in our hands.

"The enemy's losses were very great."

Japs Occupy Anshanshan.

Tokio, Aug. 22.—The Japanese troops occupied Anshanshan Friday and the Russians have returned toward Mukden.

Nevik Sent to the Bottom.

Washington, Aug. 22.—The American State Department yesterday received the following cablegram from U. S. Minister Griscom at Tokio: "Japanese fleet sunk Nevik off Sakhalin to-day."

The following details of the attack on the Nevik have been received at the Japanese legation:

"The captain of the protected cruiser Chitose reports that the Chitose and protected cruiser Tsushima attacked the Russian cruiser Novik at Korsakovk, Sakhalin Island, on the morning of the 20th.

"On the morning of the 21st the Novik, which had been heavily damaged was stranded, and partly sunk.

The Tsushima was hit once in the coal bunker, but the damage has also been repaired.

"There was no other damage nor was there a single casualty on either of the Japanese vessels."

Crew Escaped.

Tokio, Aug. 23.—Additional details of the naval engagement between the Novik and the Japanese cruisers Chitose and the Tsushima, have been received here. The fate of the crew of the Novik is not known, but it is thought they abandoned their vessel and landed at Korsakovsk.

Diana at Saigon.

Paris, Aug. 22.—The Foreign Office confirms the report of the arrival of the Russian cruiser Diana at Saigon, French Indo-China.

Russia Still Confident.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 22.—The foreign telegrams announcing that the final assault upon Port Arthur was projected for yesterday have further stimulated in all circles the interest which has been unflagging for weeks past concerning the fate of the fortress. The authorities continue to express confidence in the ability of the garrison to withstand the assault, but they aver that should the fortress be carried it will be at a cost unequalled in the history of the siege.

Without Precedent.

The determined nature of the Japanese attacks upon what is considered an impregnable position is without precedent in military annals. No European power ever ventured to show such disregard of its soldiers. True, the allies at Sebastopol lost 12,000 men in the final assault, but the Japanese have made repeated attacks upon Port Arthur with equal losses.

Before Port Arthur.

Che Foo, Aug. 22.—It is reported that the Japanese before Port Arthur have captured fort No. 28, one mile north of Golden Hill. The Japanese are not attempting to storm Liaoti promontory. Their right wing terminates at Pigeon Bay. The Russian garrison of Port Arthur is estimated at 23,000 men, covering an area of twelve miles.

A junk arriving at Tengchau from the Miaotao Islands, reports seeing Saturday five Japanese men-of-war pursuing two Russian warships, type unknown.

Death to Electric Wire.

Toronto, Aug. 22.—On Saturday evening another was added to the list of electric current deaths. James Totley of 422 Ossington avenue, being struck down in the basement of his home. By a peculiar irony of fate the unfortunate man was an electrician, employed by the Toronto Electric Light Company, and in this capacity his daily routine work was the handling of wires. Twenty-six years of age, he had been in the company's service half his life. Parting of wires near his house and the ends crossing the trolley feed wire, was the cause of the fatal accident.

ANCIENT HISTORY

Ward Four wanted a hill on a street allowance cut down. Ward One wanted a hollow filled up. The other wards thought both projects unnecessary and too costly. Both were blocked. Yet one evening a Ward Four Councillor moved for the cut. The Councillors from Wards Two and Three were surprised, but confident. Though one of their number was absent they had a majority of 8 to 3. But a councillor from Ward One moved an amendment to add that the excavated material be placed in the hollows. Ward Four jumped at the opportunity. There was a combined majority of 6 to 5. The log was oiled. It was smart if dishonest.

Similar was the inception of the Brown-Dorion Administration, an illegitimate bantling conceived in iniquity and short-lived. It was necessary to choose a permanent capital for Canada. There were many claimants, each being opposed by the others in combination, so there was a dead lock. The choice was solemnly referred to the arbitrament of the Sovereign. Her selection was admirable; Ottawa, on the border line of the two great provinces, and with the strategic advantage of being further removed from the frontier than the various old-time capitals. The dead lock was broken. But here was a chance for log-rolling. An amendment was moved that Ottawa should not be the seat of government. The friends of Toronto and Kingston, of Quebec and Montreal, voted with the Opposition, and the defeated government resigned. Mr. George Brown, with Mr. Dorion, formed an administration, including Oliver Mowat, Sanfield Macdonald and others. But the tricksters were not versed in the rules of the game. They had omitted to prorogue the Legislature, and in the absence the majority of the House voted want of confidence in them. They asked for a dissolution, but the Governor-General very properly refused to aid men who had not a policy of their own, but were a mere combine to upset the government and their wrangle over the divergent views to which their dishonest trick owed it stemporary success. They resigned and the old Administration was recalled.

Then followed an episode, which made much noise in its time, and has been recently recalled to memory in the failure of more recent occurrences to criticise the Conservatives. This was the famous "double shuffle." The law then read that a Minister occupying an office within one month of his resignation of another need not go to his constituents for re-election. The Ministers took new portfolios, which they subsequently resigned to return to their old offices. It was not an expedient to admire or even to justify. But it was legal, though taking advantage of a technicality, a compliance with the letter, not the spirit of the law. But it is what is done in the courts continually. It was on a par with pleading the Statute of Limitations to the demand for payment of a just debt to a man who, through friendship, had not pressed for it earlier; to pleading infancy to avoid paying a promissory note, signed intentionally the day before coming of age. No one can regard with approval such straining of the law.

Then the Liberals adopted their usual policy, their constant practice. They squealed like a trespassing pig caught in a garden gate, disappointed greed adding to their sufferings. And their squeals have gone resounding down the alleys of history. With characteristic dishonesty they treated this as the chief feature of the political crisis. They said nothing of their own disreputable conduct. Yet they violated the good faith of Parliament by repudiating the award which they had invited. They held Canada up to the eyes of the world as having no sense of honor as a community. They threw back in the face of their Sovereign, and that sovereign a woman, the decision for which they had appealed to her. They befouled their own plighted word and the reputation of their country. And all this they did, not because they had a superior policy to recommend, but as dishonest men combining to upset a decision to which their honor was pledged, each hoping for a chance of carrying his diverging and inconsistent views. From this discreditable trick they aimed at diverting public attention by howling "Double Shuffle!" And their howls deluded the people at the time, and drown the voice of history to this day for those who do not inform themselves by searching the records.

MR. GAMEY IN NORTH GREY

Mr. M'Kay also Afraid to Meet the Member from Manitoulin.

Mr Gamey in Grey

R. R. Gamey, M.P.P., is attracting large crowds of interested listeners in North Grey, where he has accepted invitations to address a series of meetings. The valiant A. G. McKay, M.P.P., who is known as one of the best speakers on the Grit side of the house, was invited to take the platform at one of these meetings to debate with Mr. Gamey, Ontario political affairs, but declined, alleging that the time allotted to him, 45 minutes, was too short. He was wise in avoiding that platform even if his excuse was absurdly diaphanous. We have heard that many of the Conservative residents of Peterborough have expressed a desire to hear Mr. Gamey in that town and when he gets through with his appointments at North Grey it is to be hoped that he may find time to visit the home of the Ontario Cabinet Minister who took credit for the Management of the Grit campaign at the last general election, and afterwards on his oath declared that he did not know the names of the officers of the Grit campaign association. — Brockville Times.

HOW FIRES ARE CAUSED

A Dozen Instances by a Factory Inspector.

Knowledge of the causes of fire would often be a boon to honest people. Many a man has come under a suspicion of incendiarism, because neither he nor the man who discovered the fire are able to account for it in any other way than by the supposition that such and such a place has been set on fire. Everybody knows that there are incendiaries, and there is no one who would not have such scoundrels punished. But not everyone knows that fires sometime break out because certain materials have been thrown together, or certain substances exposed to the air which result in combustion. Here are a dozen instances, supplied by Mr. James T. Burke, one of the Ontario factroy inspectors, showing how easy it is to start a fire by accident, which is afterwards properly attributed to spontaneous combustion —

A wad of cotton used for rubbing a painting, etc., has been known to take fire when thrown through the air. The waste from vulcanized rubber, when thrown in a damp condition in a pile, takes fire spontaneously. Sawdust should never be used in oil shops, or warehouses to collect drippings or leakages from casks. Dry vegetable or animal oil inevitably takes fire when saturating cotton waste at 120 degrees Fahrenheit. Spontaneous combustion occurs most quickly when the cotton is soaked with its own weight of oil. The addition of 40 per cent. of mineral oil (density .89) of great viscosity, and emitting no inflammable vapors, even in contact with an ignited body at any point below 200 degrees of Fahrenheit, to boiler casings of brick, has been known to take fire without a spark being applied. Cotton seed oil will take fire when mixed with 25 per cent. of petroleum oil; but 10 per cent. of mineral oil mixed with animal or vegetable oil will go far towards preventing combustion. Olive oil is combustible, and mixed with rags, hay, or sawdust, will produce spontaneous combustion. Coal dust, flour dust, starch, especially rye flour, are all explosives when with certain proportions of air. Now starch is highly explosive in its pulverized state; also sawdust in a very fine state, when confined in a chute and water is sufficient to prevent spontaneous combustion, and the addition of 30 per cent. of the cutmineral oil doubles the times necessary to produce spontaneous combustion. Greasy rags from butter, and greasy ham bags, timber dried by steam pipes, or hot water on hot air heating apparatus, owing to fine iron dust being thrown off in close wood casings, or boxings around the pipes, from the more expansion and contraction of the pipes. Patent dryers from leakage into sawdust, etc., oily waste of any varnish, or turpentine, are liable to spontaneous combustion.

The Liver to Blame

So long as the liver is active in filtering the bile from the blood there is no biliousness and no constipation, because the bile is passed from the liver into the intestines where it acts as a stimulative in keeping the bowels active. Diseases of this direct action on the liver as well as the bowels, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills thoroughly cure constipation, the real cause of nine-tenths of the common ills of life.

FIRST BATCH OF CHINESE

RESULT OF THEIR INTRODUCTION INTO SOUTH AFRICA.

Kaffirs Regarded the New-Comers as Cannibals — The Chinamen Will Work in the Mines.

The Johannesburg correspondent of The Capte Times has described the result of the introduction of the first batch of Chinese to Rand mining conditions as having proved "eminently satisfactory."

On Friday morning, he writes, fifty of the Chinese were invited to go down the New Comet mine in order to see what mining in the Transvaal was like. Upon fifty of the men being told off, another hundred immediately left their quarters and followed their companions, being incited thereto by extreme curiosity as to the conditions under which they will labor for the next few years. On arriving at the shaft-head a skip containing several white miners was on the point of going down. As it disappeared from the surface one of the Chinese immediately rushed forward and commenced scrambling down the ladderway. One or two others followed his example, and then Mr. Hellman, the General Manager, who has throughout shown the greatest tact in dealing with the newcomers, sent down a white miner with them. Two or three Chinese were in front, then the white miner, and after him came a large number of the coolies. Two or three, however, when they looked down the mouth of the shaft, hesitated, as if they were afraid to descend, whereupon Mr. Hellmann himself stepped forward and went down the ladder in order to show them how easy it was, and how safe. The whole batch then followed without difficulty.

IN THE STOPE.

On arriving in the stope, the first things the Chinese asked for were tools, being evidently impatient to get to work. The necessary tools were given them, whereupon they immediately commenced chiselling away at the reef. Some difficulty was found in explaining to them that they were not expected to chisel away the rock, but to make holes in it. Some Kaffirs were then brought to show them how the holes should be made. The meeting of the Kaffirs and the Chinese was decidedly interesting. The Chinamen evidently looked upon the Kaffirs as objects of great curiosity, and the black men seemed rather scared of their new mining companions. The Kaffirs proceeded to make the holes as requested, and the Chinese immediately followed their example, and set to work making the necessary holes. Several holes a few inches in depth were made, and the party then returned to the surface.

The next day 400 of the Chinese went down and commenced working, and on the Monday 800 were busy in the mines. The white miners have evinced the greatest interest in the experiment, and are doing everything in their power to make it successful. They appear to get on admirably with the Chinamen, and the underground miners declare that they are absolutely astonished at the adaptability of the new workmen, which is infinitely superior to that of the Kaffir, and they have the greatest confidence that Chinese labor will produce extremely good results.

THE QUARTERS.

With regard to their treatment, the Chinamen, through their interpreter, expressed themselves delighted with the arrangements which have been made for their comforts. The newcomers have fitted up their quarters with great neatness and tidiness, some of them going even to the length of fixing up mosquito netting on their beds. On the whole the quarters present an appearance strikingly different from those of the Kaffirs. The only point upon which there has been any complaint has been with regard to the cooking. The Chinamen do not like the system of cooking by steam, as they use a great deal of oil, and they like to have the oil frizzling, which cannot be done under the steam method. Arrangements have therefore been made to substitute cooking by fire for steam.

A MEETING OF KAFFIRS.

A meeting of the Kaffirs was held on the mine, when the subject of the introduction and employment of Chinese was discussed at considerable length. Many questions were asked of the management. The Kaffirs first asked why it was there were so many policemen about. They were told it was to prevent the Chinamen straying on the land of which they (the Kaffirs) were natives and on which they could go freely. They then asked whether it was true that the Chinamen were cannibals, as they had been informed that the Chinamen were in the habit of eating human beings. They were assured that this was entirely false. They then asked why Chinamen were brought to the mines, and in reply they were told that it was because their brothers would not come to work, and they were pointed to Kleinfontein mills, which were standing idle because the Kaffirs would not come. They then inquired if it were true that when sufficient Chinamen came they (the Kaffirs) would be discharged. They were told in reply that so far from that being the case, any Kaffir who on completion of his contract desired to re-engage would be promptly taken on again, and that any of those present who desired to sign on as from the completion of their present term could do so immediately. Several of the Kaffirs took advantage of this offer, and signed on for additional periods of six to twelve months. At the conclusion of the meeting the natives said they were perfectly satisfied with the explanation that had been made.

Respecting the health of the Chinese the medical authorities declare that they are absolutely astonished at their general healthy condition.

SEEK RECOGNITION.

Paraguayan Insurgents Have Set Up a Government of Their Own.

Buenos Ayres, Aug. 22.—An artillery engagement has been fought between the San Jocomino Battery of the Paraguayan army and a body of revolutionists, in which the latter succeeded in dislodging the guns of the Government force. The losses on either side are not stated.

The insurgents have established a provisional Government, with the capital at Villa Del Pilar (112 miles from Asuncion), and have nominated Gen. Ferreira, the leader, for president, and Gonsalez, Novare for vice-president.

Four secretaries have also been named. One of these, Depot Soler, has started for Rio Janiero and other capitals to endeavor to secure the recognition of the revolutionists as belligerents by the various Governments.

$150,000 Fire in Toronto.

Toronto, Aug. 22.—Brown Bros. & Co. are again sufferers from fire, which occurred last night, this time to the extent of about $70,000. The Queen City Rink Company's loss is $25,000, and St. Paul's Church $2,500. When Brown Bros. & Co. were burned out in the big fire of April 19 they secured as a temporary warehouse the Queen City Rink, at Church and Hayden streets, and it was these premises that were burned last night. A "live" wire is charged with the loss. On the north side, St. Paul's Church school house was badly burned. The south side of the roof is completely gone, and the woodwork, decorations and carpets ruined by water. The roof of the church is also damaged.

All the Swimmers Gave Up.

Dover, England, Aug. 22.—The three swimmers who set out to cross the Strait of Dover all gave up. It was Montagu Holbein's fifth attempt, and he lasted 10 hours and 20 minutes in the water. Jack Haggarty was first to quit, in an hour and a half. He was in a state of collapse. S. W. Greasley, who started yesterday morning, quit in the same time. The water was too cold.

Kaiser and King Godfathers.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 22.—The selection of Emperor William and King Edward to be godfathers of the heir to the Russian throne has created an excellent impression, and is considered to be an especially happy omen of the future relations between Russia and Great Britain.

Mr. Aylesworth Denies.

Toronto, Aug. 22.—Mr. A. B. Aylesworth, K.C., arrived home yesterday, and to a reporter said Sir Wilfrid Laurier, with whom lay the disposition of Cabinet officers, had never communicated with him in any way on the subject.

Peace in Central America.

Corinto, Nicaragua, Aug 22.—The conference between the presidents of Salvador, Honduras and Nicaragua came to a close Saturday night, and three presidents signed an agreement to maintain peace in the republics of Central America.

Two Coal Steamers Sink.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 22.—Two more steamers of the Gilchrist fleet were sunk yesterday, making a total of four in two days. The Jupiter and the Vulcan were the last to go down.

One Killed in Chicago Riot.

Chicago, Aug. 22.—During a riot in the Stock Yards Saturday night, one man was shot and killed and three other men were injured by bullets.

Modest Abbe Dollie.

It is said that the French Abbe Dollie once had in his household a very quick tempered relative, with whom he sometimes had animated disputes and who sometimes went so far as to throw books at the abbe. The abbe must have been a person of great amiability and self control. Once, when a particularly large and heavy volume was thrown at him, he caught it gracefully and said:

"My dear friend, I must beg of you to remember that I prefer smaller gifts."

WHOLE SCHOOL SYSTEM RECAST

SOME RADICAL CHANGES MADE THAT ARE BROAD AND FAR-REACHING.

Policy Will be One of Decentralization—Important Regulation With Regard to Entrance Examinations.

The revised regulations which have been prepared by the Minister of Education and his assistants for the Public and High Schools of the Province, and which were endorsed by the Provincial Cabinet last Tuesday, are broad and far-reaching. The whole school system is practically recast. The policy seems to be one of decentralization, having the effect of putting more power into the hands of the inspectors and teachers. Examinations are not to be the be-all and end-all of existence, but when examinations are taken the candidate will be obliged to make 40 per cent. of the total marks on each subject, and 50 per cent. of the grand total. This raises the standard of scholarship very materially, for in the past the percentages required have been 34 and 50 respectively. An important change in the regulations relating to the Normal College is that the students may be tested by the college staff at any time as to their familiarity with the subjects to be taught in the High Schools. In other words it will be impossible in the future for a man who has allowed his matriculation, his science, or his languages to become "rusty" to secure his professional certificate from the Normal College.

LATIN OPTIONAL.

In the new curriculum Latin is not an obligatory subject for the junior non-professional examination, but the pupils who take it will have the marks made on the paper added to their total. In other words, Latin will be a bonus optional subject." For the senior non-professional examination Latin will be obligatory.

The work of the Public Schools is entirely recast and brought up-to-date. Nature study, manual training, household science, together with the ordinary branches of study, will find a place on the programme from the time the child leaves the kindergarten until he leaves the High School. Indeed the Frobelian System of gradual evolution has been adopted and the pupil by natural and easy gradations will pass from the observation and study of plants in the first year of his school work to a stiff course in botany in the High Schools.

An important provision concerning the entrance of pupils to the High School is as follows:

"The Entrance Boards of Examiners for each city may, however, with the approval of the High School Board concerned, prepare examination papers in lieu of those prepared by the Education Department, but such papers shall be on the same subjects, and the same scheme and the same standard for passing shall be required; or, with the concurrence of the Boards in charge of the High, Public and Separate Schools concerned, such Board of Examiners, instead of holding an examination itself, may admit pupils on the recommendation of the Public or Separate School principal; but in all such cases the Board of Examiners shall satisfy itself that all the course has been satisfactorily completed before admission is granted."

IMPORTANT REGULATION.

This change of radical character may be described as the first official attempt to match the examination marks. It is well-known that many of the schoolmasters as in Toronto, for instance, favour entrance by certificate. There is a rider, however, that may cause some objection. On the part a fee of not more than one dollar has been imposed on all candidates for the entrance examination. If the Board of Trustees authorizes the promotion of a pupil to the High School without examination, no fee can be charged.

The following regulations regarding the entrance to the High School are of much importance:

"The subjects for admission to the High Schools shall be those prescribed for the fourth form of the Public School, as follows:

"Part I.—Literature, history, art, physiology and hygiene, nature study.

"Part II.—Reading (written and oral), writing, spelling, geography, grammar, composition, composition arithmetic.

"The literature of Part I shall embrace the careful reading during the previous year of at least four suitable works selected by the principal for each pupil, from a list in supplementary reading in English literature prepared by the Public School Inspector.

"The written examination in reading will be based on eight passages and will be designed as a test of the candidate's understanding of what he reads. The candidate's knowledge of the selections for memorization will also be tested on this paper.

"No candidate from a Public or Separate school shall be admitted to the examination in the subjects of Part II. who has not been reported by the Principal to the Public School Inspector, on or before June 15, as having completed satisfactorily the courses in the subjects of Part I. At the same time a confidential report from the teacher or staff as to the standing of their candidates, may be submitted to the Public School Inspector for the consideration of the Entrance Board.

"When a candidate has not been prepared in a Public or Separate School, the Public School Inspector shall admit him to the examination for Part II. and shall report the circumstances to the Entrance Board, which will deal with such case as it may deem expedient.

"At his official visits to each school the Public School Inspector shall satisfy himself as to the efficiency of the teacher's provisions, and, without his approval of the school, the certificates for Part I shall not be accepted by the Entrance Board."

An example of the decentralizing policy of the department is shown in the arrangements for the Public School leaving examination. At present the papers for this examination are set by the Department. It is the intention in future to have them set and examined by the principal of the school subject to the advice of the inspector. If the results of the examination are satisfactory to the inspector he may grant certificates which may be accepted as certificates for admission to a High School.

It has been found in the past that sometimes there was rivalry between two schools, and that brilliant pupils had been induced to change their allegiance so that one school might make a better showing in the examinations than the other. This sort of thing will be stopped in the future by a provision that no pupil shall be admitted to a High School after he has completed a part of the course of study, unless he presents a letter of dismission from the principal of the school he formerly attended.

THE CURRICULUM.

Briefly, the general instructions to teachers and the subjects for study or examination in the various schools will be as follows:

Public Schools—In all the forms the teachers are instructed not to neglect any opportunity to give instruction in moral principles and practices, and in good manners. The other subjects in the various forms will be as follows:

First, Second and Third Books — Spelling, literature, composition, history, geography, arithmetic, writing, art, constructive work, clay modeling, physiology and hygiene, and nature study. Needle work is added for second and third classes.

Fourth Book—Reading, spelling, literature, composition, history, English grammar, geography, arithmetic, writing, bookkeeping, manual training, household science, physiology and hygiene, nature study.

Fifth Form — Reading, grammar, composition, literature, history, arithmetic, and mensuration, algebra, geometry, geography, elementary science, bookkeeping and business papers stenography, writing, typewriting, agriculture, manual training and household science.

THE HIGH SCHOOLS.

High School studies—Lower School—Reading, English grammar, English composition, English literature, English and Canadian history, arithmetic and mensuration, algebra, geometry, Latin and Greek, or French and German, geography, elementary science, art, bookkeeping, and business papers, stenography, writing, typewriting.

Middle School—English composition, English literature, British history, algebra, Latin and Greek, or French and German chemistry.

Upper School—English composition and rhetoric, English literature, medieval and modern history, algebra, geometry, trigonometry, Latin and Greek, or French and German, physics chemistry and mineralogy, zoology, botany.

The course in geometry will be all new. It begins with practical geometry, then follows a course selected from euclid, but with modifications.

CULTIVATION OF SEEDS

Methods Adopted in Denmark — The Value of Careful Selection.

In "La Nature," a French periodical, Prof. Albert Maumene has an interesting article on this subject, the chief points of which are brought out in the following synopsis.

The production of selected seed is a subject of the minutest care on the part of farmers who make a specialty of seed growing. Certain seed growing centres—in France, St. Remy-de-Provence, Anjou and the northern departments; in Germany, Erfurt and Quedlinburg—are justly renowned, while centres, giants breed true to type when the seed is brought from a region where more favorable climatic conditions prevail, there are others which produce the true type only when raised from seed grown in a higher latitude. Horticulturists and agriculturists are not far wrong when they say that seeds brought from a colder climate produce earlier and better crops than home-grown seed. This is the case with the majority of vegetables, and it is partly what has given the German seed-growing industry its reputation. The cauliflower seed from Erfurt owes the great reputation it has acquired largely to its Danish origin. Copenhagen is indeed becoming a famous centre for the production of cauliflower seed; the value of the annual export reaches $100,000, which gives an idea of the world's consumption of this vegetable.

The creation of this special industry dates back forty years. A farmer of Erfurt conceived the idea that the moist climate of Denmark should be very favourable to the development of the seed lower. He requested a Danish farmer to make the first trial, which was a complete success, and since that date the cauliflower seeds of Copenhagen have supplied the wholesale market of Erfurt. At first Danish horticulture derived very little profit from this fact, on account of the agreements made with the German merchants. But, by degrees, some farmers undertook this industry on their own account, a strong company was formed, and at the present time American gets 80 per cent of its cauliflower seed from Copenhagen.

This success and rapid progress are due to an intelligent and systematic selection of the types of the plants producing seeds, and of the seeds themselves, but especially to the physical conditions, which favor the extraordinary development of these plants and an abundant yield of seed. The seed thus obtained, sown in another country, is found superior to the home-grown seed, even under less favourable climatic and vital conditions, and furnishes products of a splendid and precocious development. But degeneration or loss of strength invariably follows after the first generation, necessitating a renewed supply of the original seed. It is now proven that the peculiar soil in the vicinity of Copenhagen has a favorable influence, because trials made in other parts of Denmark have not been crowned with the same success. The atmospheric moisture of the seashore suits the cauliflowers, the more so because the long periods of drought which check the progress of vegetation do not exist there.

The question of the value and heredity of these acquired characteristics still divides the scientific world. The biennial and in-door culture applied to cauliflowers evidently modifies considerably, the climatic influence, since the strains thus obtained lose in a warmer and dryer southern climate their ancestral superiority in the second to the fourth generation. It is this fact which obliges farmers to annually renew their seed and to send for it to the northern countries.

The "Dwarf Erfurt" is the strain of cauliflower grown, and this is identical with what the Americans call the "Snowball" or "Copenhagen Early." These types can be distinguished, differing in earliness and in their more or less dwarfed appearance, but each having a special value, either for growing under glass or for outdoor cultivation. It is not a rare thing to see in the neighborhood of Copenhagen fields of twenty-five acres, planted entirely to cauliflowers. The seeds, which retain their germinating power for two years, are sown in September. The young plants, transplanted and watered under glass or in special hotbeams are put out in spring. The harvesting takes place just a year after the sowing, and it is done just as soon as the different parts of the plant attain maturity. This is an essential part for the value of the seed. The drying of the seed pods, the threshing and the cleaning of the seed are all delicate operations which are performed several weeks after harvest when the flowers are perfectly dry.

In view of the success obtained in the production of cauliflower seed, it would seem that the cultivation of selected strains of other plants might profitably be undertaken in Denmark but up to the present specialists have wisely concentrated their efforts upon a single plant.—Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

THE SNIPE'S DRUMMING.

A Naturalist's Theory as to How the Sound is Produced.

It is disputed whether the snipe's drumming—a curious noise, suggestive of a miniature threshing machine—is made by the bird with its wings or by its tail or by both wings and tail. Some recent observations incline me strongly to believe that the tail plays, at any rate, the more important part. During the performance the bird flies at a great height round and round in a wide, sweeping circle. At intervals he makes a sudden and rapid descent, holding his wings partly flexed and his tail spread to its full extent. The outermost tail feather on either side points outward at a greater angle than those adjoining it, so that when the bird is watched through a good field glass daylight shows between it and the next, and, if I am right in my view, the drumming sound is due to the rush of air against this isolated feather. The snipe's tail feathers seem so puny that it is at first difficult to believe that they can produce so great a result. But if an outer one be taken—it is slightly scimiter shaped, with the outer web much reduced—and swung rapidly through the air the drumming noise may be distinctly heard, though it seems but a very faint echo of the loud, throbbing hum that startles one when if suddenly descends from an ethereal height, and the small bird is descried, hardly more than a speck to the naked eye, circling round in wild career and now and then sweeping headlong downward and thrilling the air with his weird music.—London Nature.

Queer Phenomena of Falling Bodies.

I am unable to say who first noticed the peculiar caprices of a stone or other heavy body dropped from the top of a high tower, but it is nevertheless a curious fact that such objects invariably fall slightly to the east of the perpendicular line. Persons of inquiring turn of mind who ask why this is as it is may find an answer in the following: All falling bodies partake of the earth's eastward motion to a greater or lesser extent. Therefore during the time occupied by a stone in falling from the top of a high tower or other eminence the earth's rotary motion has carried it an appreciable distance to the east. The initial impetus of the stone has carried it to the eastward also, therefore it strikes the earth to the east of the perpendicular, varying in degree according to the height from which it has fallen.—Exchange.

The Glowworm's Light.

The luminous organ of the glowworm is a rounded area on the abdomen, under which is a fatty substance that gives out a phosphorescent light as the result of slow chemical change. We may regard this as a "love light," which attracts the active winged males during the hours of darkness, for glowworms are of nocturnal habits. The eyes of the male are unusually large and well developed, no doubt in order to help him in the search for his shining but more sluggish mate. In some other species, such as the fireflies of south Europe, it is the males which give out light, and the reason for this is not clear. Possibly it promotes rivalry in courtship, and it has also been suggested that it may serve as a means of amusement.

Reading the Bible.

It was the meeting of the Christian Endeavor society. Near the close the leader suggested that each one should tell what part of the Bible he read the most and give the reason.

The last one to speak was a lad who said, with a little hesitation, that he read the first chapters of Genesis more than any others.

A look of surprise and curiosity was manifest in all the listeners as he went on to give his reason.

"You see I always resolve every new year that I will begin and read the Bible through, but I never get very far, and of course I always have to make a new beginning."

Stony Cities.

In Jaffa and Jerusalem, as in Malta, everything is of stone. Even the very cisterns or tanks on the housetops are of stone. But in these stony cities the stone does not stop with the street level. The dwellers descend and burrow into the earth beneath. In many of the Jerusalem and Bethlehem buildings there are basements, subbasements, crypts, subcrypts and dungeons. One may descend several stories into the bowels of the earth amid the dampness and slime, where ooze trickles on the stone steps.—Argonaut.

Had Her Own Impressions.

"Your husband says he established his hotel by honest toil," remarked the woman who hears all that is said in the village.

"Yes," answered the tired looking woman, "but he didn't say whose toil, did he?"

No Fear.

Borroughs—I'm afraid I've got heart trouble, Landers—Oh, you needn't be afraid that you'll ever die suddenly. Borroughs—Think not? Landers—No, you'll pay the debt of nature slowly, just as you pay all your other debts.

Do Birds Enjoy Their Own Singing?

It may well be doubted if birds are musical connoisseurs or have anything like human appreciation of their own or of each other's songs. My reason for thinking so is this: I have heard a bobolink with a defective instrument so that its song was broken and inarticulate in parts, and yet it sang with as much apparent joy and abandon as any of its fellows. I have also heard a hermit thrush with a similar defect or impediment, and yet it, too, appeared to sing entirely to its own satisfaction. It would be very interesting to know if these poor singers found mates as readily as their more gifted brothers. If they did the Darwinian theory of "sexual selection" in such matters, according to which the finer songster would carry off the female, would fail to the ground. Yet it is certain that it is during the mating and breeding season that these "song contests" occur, and the favor of the female would seem to be the matter in dispute. Whether or not it be expressive of actual jealousy or rivalry, we have no other words to apply to it.—John Burroughs in Harper's Magazine.

SUNDAY MUSIC AT THE CHURCHES

Many Solos Well Sung -- Large Congregations at Nearly all Churches

The music at George street church yesterday was especially attractive, and the large congregations present at the morning and evening services evidently enjoyed the different solos. At the morning service Mr. Ira Stengrove took the solo in the anthem, and Mr. Bert Turner sang "The Children's Home" in a very acceptable manner. Mr. Turner leaves Saturday next for Winnipeg, where he will reside in the future. His departure is much regretted by the choir, of which he has always been such an active and faithful member, and his many friends wish him much success in the West.

In the evening Mrs. Callander's solo, "The King of Love my Shepherd is," by Gounod, was much enjoyed and during the offertory Mr. Snelgrove of Toronto sang "O Happy Day" and was listened to with much pleasure.

Mr. G. W. Mulligan sang at the morning service at St. Paul's church yesterday and Miss Carrie Knox's solo in the evening was much enjoyed.

Mr. James Dawson sang solos both at the morning and evening services at St. Andrew's church yesterday and was listened to with much pleasure by the fairly large congregations who were present.

At the evening service at All Saints' yesterday Mrs. Reid, late of England, took the solo very prettily in the anthem, "Rejoice in the Lord."

Mrs. Callander, of Norwood, sang very prettily, "O Eyes that are Weary," at the Charlotte street church yesterday morning.

Miss Margaret English presided very acceptably at the organ at St. John's church yesterday, in the absence of Miss Stephens.

SOME LARGE CATCHES

Are Being Made by the Cottagers at Stony Lake.

Fishing continues to be good at Stony Lake, and many large fish are landed. Mrs. McCutcheon landed a 22lb. maskinonge Wednesday. Mr. G. G. Sosco of Toronto, and W. B. of Brantford, succeded in landing their full complement Tuesday.

The second very successful progressive euchre was held in the parlors of Viamede Tuesday evening. There were eight tables. Miss Gilmer, of Toronto, won first prize, with Miss Watt, of Brantford, second. About two hours were enjoyed in cards, after which an informal musicale was rendered. The following guests contributed to the evening's entertainment: Piano solo, Mr. Sutherland; reading, Mrs. Chesterfield; solo, Miss Ingersoll; mandolin solo, Mr. Lanslow; solo, Mr. Barber. On the conclusion of the program dainty refreshments were served.

Wednesday afternoon the guests of Viamede enjoyed an excursion to Young's Point.

The guests of Viamede hired a hay rack Monday afternoon and took a ride in the country. The drive lay through a very excellent part of the country, but the roads were in a frightful condition, causing a great deal of jolting to those sitting on soap boxes and other seats of the same kind. Altogether the scheme was a huge success, and was much enjoyed by those fortunate enough to be present.

An informal concert was given at Mr. Julian Hotel Monday evening, which was enjoyed by a large number of the guests and cottagers of the lakes.

One of the guests at Viamede is responsable for the following: When asked if he had read the "Cherry", by Booth Tarkington, he replied, "No, but I have read the 'Pit.'"

Shore dinners are very popular here. Monday a large party left "Kilkenny" and were towed to Ell's Creek, where a very pleasant day was spent.

One of the largest catches of the season was brought in yesterday at McCracken's Landing, when Messrs. Hamlin, Bennett, Davidson, and Taylor of Cleveland, brought in 22 bass and 6 "lange," making an aggregate of 90 lbs. of fish.

E. Douglas Armour, K.C., and wife are at Viamede.

Dr. Crick, wife, and son of Toronto, are at McCracken's.

Mr. A. W. Rogers, of Gananoque, is at the Victoria House.

Mr. J. M. Marks, of Toronto, is spending his holidays at Stony.

Mr. and Mrs. Montizambert, of Lindsay, are at Viamede.

Mr Reg. Henderson, of Parkdale, is spending his holidays at Glendonnan.

Miss Montizambert is the guest of Viamede.

Mr. Alex. Watt and Geo. H. Carey, of Hamilton, are at the Victoria House.

Miss Olive Sheppard of Pembroke street, Toronto, has been visiting at her sister's, Mrs. McWilliams, at Tecumseh Lodge.

THEIR ANNUAL MEETING

HELD BY THE COTTAGERS OF STONY LAKE.

Some Resolutions Were Passed and Officers Elected.

The annual meeting of the Stony Cottagers' Association was held at the pavilion, Juniper Island, on Thursday evening last, with the president, Mr. George Cochrane in the chair, and the following gentlemen present: J. D. Collins, Wm. Irwin, H. Sutherland, Toronto, J. Acton, Toronto; J. Smith, London; John Nugent, Dr. Brereton, Bethany, and J. S. Knapman secretary.

The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed.

The following resolutions were passed:

That the Government be asked to abolish the fisheries regulations by making the length of maskinonge to be caught 24 inches instead of 30 inches.

It appears that the length set by the regulations is too great for the average size that haunt the Kawartha lakes.

That the Secretary be instructed to write the Department of Railways and Canals with reference to the delay in bringing down logs through Stony Lake, and asking that they be brought down in booms of 5000 according to law instead of 50,000 logs as at present.

Cottagers have been known to be blocked in their cottages for weeks at a time while large drives of logs were passing.

That the secretary write the steamboat companies with reference to unnecessary delay at Lakefield in waiting for people to obtain luncheon or other refreshment at the hotel before embarking.

The following officers were elected:

President—Mr. R. H. Rogers.

Vice-pres.—Mr. Jas. Acton, of Toronto.

Secretary—Mr. J. S. Knapman.

Treasurer—Mr. W. G. Morrow.

Property committee — Messrs. H. Sutherland, Geo. Cochrane, Wm. Irwin, John Nugent.

Sunday Service Committee — Messrs. Sheriff Hall, Geo. Cochrane, T. N. Robinson and R. B. Rogers.

Concert committee — Messrs. John Crane, A. L. Davis and Norman Jolliffe.

The meeting adjourned until Thursday evening next at 8 o'clock.

DEATH OF JOHN ARMSTRONG

Had Been a Resident of this District for Seventy Years.

The death of a gentleman who had long been a resident of this district and had ever been highly esteemed, occurred last evening. In the passing of the late John Armstrong there has been removed a man of sterling quality. He was 86 years of age, and his death was due to that breaking-up of health which generally attends old age. Since he was sixteen years old he had been a resident of this part of the country, coming out from the North of Ireland and working on a farm in the Township of Emily for some years, later settling for himself in the Township of Otonabee. There he cleared up a farm, and by industry and integrity won success. He was married to Miss Frances Lang, of Otonabee, and he suffered bereavement by the death of his wife some years ago. There are no children. Upon retiring from active life, Mr. Armstrong lived for about fifteen years at Dewper's Corners and then moved to Ashburnham, where he resided some fifteen years. The late Mr. Armstrong took a great interest in municipal affairs and he was at times tax collector and treasurer of the township. He was a Conservative in politics, in religion a Methodist—a member of Mark street church—and was also a life-long Orangeman.

The funeral will take place on Wednesday afternoon from the family residence, Brown street, to Little Lake Cemetery.

Mr. John Lang, of Peterborough, and Mr. Wm. R. Lang, of Emily, are nephews, and Mrs. Joshua Smitheon is a neice.

YOUNG MEN LEAVING

Will See What Destiny Has for them in the West.

A large number of young men from town will, during the next few days, indicate their great faith in the future of this glorious country by going west. It is said that during the next few weeks no less than 50 will tear themselves away from all that is here held dear to "carve out" their future in that Hesperian land whence come such fine reports of prosperity and of promise. From the C.G.E. works alone quite a few quota will go. Some of them are: E. Seabright, Geo. Allan, H. B. Staples, A. Hopkins, B. J. Turner, J. H. Blair, L. Sargeant, P. Doughty and T. Mullin. It is impossible for such a large party of young men to leave with a large portion of the community feeling a profound measure of regret at their departure, but in the words of the philosopher it perhaps can truthfully be said, "Our loss is their gain."

Miss Campbell returns to Truro in September for another season.

DIED.

ARMSTRONG—On Monday, August 22nd, 1904, John Armstrong, aged 86 years.

The funeral will take place from his late residence, Brown street, Ashburnham, on Wednesday afternoon, August 24th, at two o'clock, and proceed to the Little Lake cemetery.

BERT TURNER GOES WEST

HE WAS HONORED BY HIS FRIENDS OF THE C. G. E COMPANY.

Presented With a Handsome Gold Locket and Chain--A Personal Gift of a Purse of $10.

On Saturday evening last a large number of the office staff and foremen of the C. G. E. Co. assembled in the Y.M.C.A. hall to express their feelings in regard to the approaching departure of Mr. B. J. Turner, a young man who for the past four years has occupied a position in the Company's office here. Most evident was it that he is highly thought of by his co-employees and that his going caused regret. This fact was emphasized in the presentation to him of a handsome gold locket, suitably engraved, and a gold ring, while Mr. R. E. Layfield, head of the office staff, presented to him as a personal gift a purse containing $10. Accompanying the presentation was an address expressing the sense of loss felt by the employees and wishing him every success in the West. It is Mr. Turner's intention to leave for Winnipeg on Thursday next. At the meeting on Thursday evening short and appropriate speeches, all of a most complimentary character and giving voice to personal and general regret, were delivered by Messrs. Shannon, Layfield, Shepherd and Brunnarette. The following address was read by Mr. Shepherd and the gift presented by Mr. Layfield:

Mr. B. J. Turner—

We have learned with sincere regret of your contemplated departure from our midst, and we have gathered together here to-night to express to you our sorrow at your leave taking, and to wish you every success and happiness in your new home.

On looking backward over the past few years which you have spent with us, we view with pleasure your earnest and successful efforts to perform faithfully and well the different duties which were allotted to you, your many little acts of kindness and thoughtfulness towards your fellow laborers, and your decided success in both your business and social relations with us.

We feel quite confident that your many excellent qualities will be fully appreciated in your new sphere, as they have been in the one you are leaving, and we most earnestly hope that success and prosperity will attend all your undertakings, and that you will eventually attain the heights at which your ambition has aimed.

We are asking you to accept these gifts as a slight talisman of the days you have spent with us, and of our great esteem for you, hoping that in the future they will recall only happy associations with your old home. In bidding you adieu we most heartily utter the prayer which that word expresses, trusting that the future will bring us many happy reunions and that in the interval which elapses you will not quite forget those you are leaving behind, while your short sojourn with them, will long remain a bright spot in their memories.

Peterborough, August 20, 1904.

In his reply, Mr. Turner thanked his friends for the gifts and kindly expressions, and assured them that though with regret he was leaving them, he would ever cherish pleasant recollections of his four years' association with them.

Mr. Turner's going will cause regret to more people than his associates of the Canadian General. He has shown himself a young man of very fine qualities and these were greatly appreciated by a large circle of friends, in the Y.M.C.A. he has always taken an active interest, and his talents were ever freely exercised when required on its behalf. The young people of the town will greatly miss him, but he will be accompanied to Winnipeg by the very best wishes for his future success.

BACK FROM ROCHESTER

Saturday's Trip Postponed on Account of Rough Weather.

Most of those people who went to Rochester on Civic Holiday on the excursion by Otonabee Lodge of Oddfellows have returned home. They report having had a delightful visit, and having been well treated by their Yankee cousins. A large party embarked on the North King Saturday, but the lake was so stormy that when the steamer had made a considerable distance she was forced to return. The trip across was made safely yesterday, however, and a special train at Port Hope conveyed the excursionists to Peterborough.

About Your Complexion

A yellow, muddy complexion tells of derangements of the liver, and indicates the presence of bile poison in the blood. Dr. Chase's Kidney Liver Pills set the liver and kidneys in action, purify the blood, cleanse the system, and secure a healthy glow to the complexion. As a family medicine Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are of inestimable value.

STONEY LAKE HAPPENINGS

A Couple of Mishaps — Church Attendance Large.

Rev. W. J. Jolliffe conducted the service at the pavillion, Stony Lake, Sunday morning. In the evening a song service was conducted by Mr. Jas. Acton, of Toronto; assisted by Mr. R. N. Jolliffe.

Mr. R. B. Rogers had an adventure the other day. While bowling along in his dinghy he struck a squall that was coming broadside on, and capsized. That was all.

Two young ladies from town upset from a canoe about 25 feet out from Juniper Island a few days ago. Fortunately one could swim and assisted the other to mount the canoe. A young man was handy and helped the girls to shore.

Automobiles and bicycles are no use at the lakes, but on Sunday morning there were no less than 125 canoes, 5 launches and several sailing yachts and dinghys at the Island. This would indicate that church is remarkably well attended.

Miss Eva Whiten spent Sunday, the guest of Miss Breeze.

Messrs. A. L. Davis, Frank Bradburn and H. P. Lundy were among those who came down this morning.

The usual dance held at the pavillion Saturday night was a big success.

Brevities.

—The Committee of the Whole will meet to-night.

—Said a visitor to-day: While those politicians are making themselves solid in the north country by having wharves and things built, why do they not see about a landing where the electric railway line will end. It would in time be a great convenience to those coming and going by boat.

—Mr. Chas. McGinty, the star sprinter of the police force, was out this morning delivering papers for to-morrow's court. Charley has lately become devoted to a bicycle and he used it this morning. But a heavy shower of rain came on during the trip. This did not deter him from riding, but when he got through the mud had scattered itself copiously over the officer's clothes. He had disdained to ride on the sidewalk, fearing doubtless that he would have to arrest himself for breaking the law—and it would take a pretty good man to arrest P. C. McGinty.

A VERY FINE PARK SYSTEM

ST. THOMAS JOURNAL CONTINUES ITS "IMPRESSIONS"

Where That City Could Wisely and Well Copy Us—Other Observations by Mr. Buchanan.

Mr. W. A. Buchanan, Managing Director of the St. Thomas Journal, continues as follows his very interesting "Impressions of Peterborough":

Peterborough possesses the finest park system in Ontario, not on account of municipal enterprises in that direction, but mostly through the generosity of the late Mrs. Nicholls, the relict of a wealthy merchant of the city. In her will she gave to the town three magnificent parks and provided for their maintenance. One is an athletic park situated close to the Otonabee. Here those inclined to sport, can play baseball, lacrosse, cricket, lawn tennis, and football, there being plenty of accommodation to permit all those games to be played on the park at the same time. There is also a speeding track as well as a winding driveway through the grounds. Almost across from this park is a recreation park, also on the river and also donated by Mrs. Nicholls. It is well supplied with benches, and as the spot is a natural grove, there are plenty of trees to afford shade. In this park is an old residence donated by the Nicholls' estate trustees to the Peterborough Historical Society for a museum. In another end of the city is the third park, the Jackson park. This is a beautiful piece of rustic property, woven with driveways, winding their way up and down hill, across bridges, through woodland and out in the open. It is virtually a bit of country planted in the city and is the rendezvous of a great numbers of people during the summer months. St. Thomas could very wisely copy the arrangement of this park in the development of Pinafore park. What we need is an extension of the driveways about the park. The Nichols' parks in Peterborough have been arranged with an eye to beauty and along a perfect system. All that Pinafore park needs is careful development and it can soon be made into as fine a property as can be found in the province. Aside from the Nichols' parks, there are two other park properties in Peterborough. Both are owned by the city. One is in the centre of the city and is known as Victoria park. It is a horticultural park, filled with beds of flowers and is splendidly kept. Here the band concerts are held weekly. There are walks here and there throughout the park, but there is not a driveway as one is not necessary. Four streets border the park, and on band nights people in carriages can hear the music by driving on these streets. This park is not large. It would probably not occupy any more space than the Roman Catholic church property in this city. It is just such a park as this that St. Thomas needs. We want a recreation spot in the heart of the city, where people can enjoy the stimulating aroma of sweet flowers and the fresh breezes that float over spaces of property. Central park is well situated, but is not a pretty park, as its environments are poor, a rickety old frame drill shed and a tumble-down fence. But this property can easily be improved.

In addition to the parks, Mrs. Nichols gave the city a hospital. It is located on an elevation and is surrounded by enough land to give it an imposing appearance. This is what the Alma Wood Hospital lacks. It is a fine enough building, but it is too crowded to catch the eye. It is a pity that the most hospital has not more lawn, so that the convalescent patients can have a place to move about without being close to the gaze of the public. Our public library is being erected just as carelessly. It is to be crowded in behind the city hall, without a bit of lawn in front of it. Public buildings look far better when surrounded by a decent amount of land like our Wellington-st. school, Court House and Collegiate Institute. St. John's church, Peterborough, offers one of the strongest testimonies in this direction. It is probably the most beautiful church property in the country. It stands on an eminence and is covered with ivy, like the churches of old England. From the church steps is a terraced lawn, always closely cut. It is lotted with trees and flower beds. The lawn runs 500 or 600 feet down to the street and is one of the most admired places in the city.

Peterborough has a very fine and well equipped Y.M.C.A. building, also the gift of Mrs. Nicholls. A new Y.W.C.A building, to cost $30,000, is being erected.

It will be easily seen that Peterborough has benefitted greatly from private beneficence. It is to be hoped the day is not far distant when some wealthy St. Thomasite will follow the example set by Mrs. Nicholls in Peterborough.

St. Thomas is more advanced than Peterborough in everything, with the exception of parks and cemetery. Our streets are far better constructed, and as we said before, our city hall is a palace compared with the eastern city. Peterborough has one of the best regiments in the province, but the drill shed that houses them is not as good as an ordinary Elgin county barn. Our drill shed would drive the Peterborough soldiers into ecstacies of delight if they possessed it.

While Peterborough is a large business and industrial centre, it does not possess as many financial institutions as St. Thomas. Here we have five banks, Peterborough has four. We have two large loan companies, Peterborough only possesses one.

Our school buildings, in every particular, are far ahead of Peterborough; in fact, there are few cities that possess as fine school tructures as we do. Peterborough is about to build a new Collegiate Institute, and the Board of Education, if they want their building to be first class, in every particular, should pay a visit to St. Thomas, and inspect our new C.I.

Hon. Geo. A. Cox, though not now a citizen of Peterborough is one of the town's staunchest friends. Directly and indirectly he owns a great amount of property there, and it is to his interest that the town should prosper. Naturally he is always at the front in advocating Peterborough's claims and investing money in the Peterborough manufactures. Mr. Cox is still considered a Peterborough citizen, though he has been living in Toronto for some fifteen years. Hon. J. R. Stratton is also a public spirited citizen, and he diligently advocates Peterborough's claims with capitalists and others, and is not backward in investing his money in local concerns. Peterborough possesses a good many citizens with the same characteristics.

Peterborough possesses a greater number of large stores than St. Thomas, but they have not one that can equal those to be found on Talbot st.

It it noticeable that in Peterborough, as well as Branford, the progress of the town has stimulated building. Houses are rising all over the city, and there is a persistent demand for good homes. St. Thomas, we think, is very unwise, in not preparing for the new citizens that are certain to come here when the Pere-Marquette shops are finished. There is hardly a vacant house in St. Thomas at the present time, and very few new ones are being erected. How are we going to accommodate new citizens? A good suggestion has been made, and that is that the vacant property at the west end of the city be converted into apartments to accommodate several families with livnig quarters. Some of the property owners in that district ought to take this matter into serious consideration.

FOR YOUNG FOLKS

THREADING A NEEDLE.

A Feat For Boys That Is Not Quite So Easy as It Looks.

Get a thin stick about three feet long. Hold it before you with both hands and, jumping into the air, try to pass the stick beneath your feet without letting go of it with either hand. It is not so easy as it looks in the picture, and at your first attempt you will probably strike your ankles or toes against the stick and knock it out of your hands.

On your second or third try you may get your toes just over the stick, when, to your surprise, you find it torn from your hands and, lo, you are standing with both feet on it!

If you keep at it you will soon learn the knack of it, which is in moving your arms just far enough to pass the stick beneath your feet at just the proper moment. Then, when you are an expert at this, try it backward, holding the stick behind you and bringing it beneath your feet to its old position in front.

When you can do both these with ease, try the feat on some of your friends, and when, at their first attempts, they pronounce it impossible, surprise them by doing it both forward and backward.—New York Mail.

THE YOUNG WOODPECKERS.

They Found a Defender in a Brave Little Boy.

Philip was a brave little boy. All the other boys looked up to him and liked to have him in their parties when they went swimming or tramping. But they all agreed that he was queer about "birds and things."

The others liked to collect birds' eggs and did not hesitate to take all they could find, leaving many little bird homes perfectly empty. Philip never disturbed so much as one egg. All spring he watched a beautiful yellow plumed woodpecker drilling a hole in a hollow tree and building his nest there. The hole was quite high, but one of the boys determined to get the eggs. He knew, however, that he would have to do it when Philip was away. So one day when he thought Philip was off on a tramp he took a small saw and went to the tree. He had reached a convenient limb and was commencing to saw when Philip came running and shouting.

The boy was so startled that he slid down, dropping his saw, and ran as though he had seen a ghost.

Three weeks afterward, when Philip happened to meet him one day, he called out, good naturedly: "Hello, Bob! I have been wanting to tell you there is a saw up at our house belonging to you. Come over some time and get it. By the way, all those little woodpeckers can fly for themselves, and they are as cunning little birds as any one ever saw."

STOMACH TROUBLES AND HEADACHES

For Years, But Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills Made a Thorough Cure.

Most stomach troubles arise from a torpid, sluggish action, and kidneys, liver and bowels are thoroughly cured by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Mrs. Thomas Covert, Highland Grove, Peterboro Co., Ont., writes:—"I was a sufferer for years with stomach trouble and terrible headaches, and spent a good many dollars in medicine without receiving any benefit. Hearing Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills highly recommended, I determined to give them a trial, and did so with most satisfactory results, as I was very greatly benefited and do not hesitate to recommend this treatment as the best obtainable for such ailments."

CHAPTER XI.
CROSS PURPOSES.

TRUE to his custom, our colonel ordered a scout promptly at the beginning of one very cold spell. The roads, never traveled in wet weather, had frozen as hard as any pavement, and we and our horses had been imprisoned so long by the preceding rain that we heartily enjoyed the beginning of the trip. We had been well fed all winter, but no one neglected the precaution of carrying all the rations, particularly fat pork, that he could get. In camp we had good fresh bread daily, but once in awhile when other rations abounded I had begged a day's rations of hard bread instead and stowed it away against the next scout. I had never forgotten the privation of our first three days' outing.

On the morning referred to only four companies of us went out, but we felt entirely safe. What could happen to us? We were strong enough to whip any force of the enemy that had yet moved between our lines and their own unless our irregular spies—all colored people and natives of the country—had counted incorrectly the enemy's few detachments. Of course we would be fired upon as soon as the advance struck the enemy's pickets, and, as most southerners had handled guns from their youth up, two or three of our men would probably be killed or wounded, but we had come to regard that sort of thing as a matter of course. It was one of the fortunes of war—or misfortunes of being at the head of a cavalry advance. To prevent unfairness in this respect companies took turns of a day each at the head of a scouting party, but the advance proper was always taken from the right, or head of the company, so in forming line for a start there never was an unseemly rush for positions at the right.

The extreme advance consisted of four men, riding abreast or by twos, according to the width of the road, and carrying carbines or revolvers in their hands ready for instant use. About 50 yards behind rode a single trooper, called a messenger, to pass back any alarm or other information which the men ahead might shout to him. Fifty yards farther in the rear were two men, who also had a messenger within earshot, and within 50 yards of him rode the remainder of the platoon—8 or 12 men—about as far from the main body as from the man in front.

The specified distances were measured only with the eye, but whether they were too little or too great the main body was far enough in the rear to be out of point blank range of ordinary firearms, and most firearms of the enemy's cavalry were ordinary. This distance enabled the main body to draw sabers or get their carbines or revolvers ready for action, according to order. It also allowed us to get into a trot or gallop with some momentum to it by the time we had closed on the advance and begun the charge we chose. Meanwhile the messenger and reserve had closed on the first set of fours and began firing if they saw anything to fire at. Should the advance halt, they began firing at once; if they turned to run, they parted and galloped down either flank in single file, so the troop they unmasked could clear the road by firing or charging. (I never had the melancholy satisfaction of seeing the advance break to the rear.)

Whenever we found the enemy in line, even behind breastworks—for not all of them were cavalry—we would deploy as skirmishers in the woods or fields on either side of the road and advance at the gallop, firing rapidly as we rode. I don't believe carbine firing at the gallop at a mark 200 or 300 yards away ever did much damage, but the successive puffs of smoke made our horsemen different marks to hit. In such dashes the bugle generally sounded the recall before the skirmishers were upon the enemy's line. Even if it didn't, most of the horses turned suddenly and dashed back, but an occasional good rider with a horse under perfect control would get far enough within the line to estimate its strength and see if it had any artillery. Quite as often a poor rider with an obstinate horse would get within the line and find himself unable to return. The horse that knew him would know him no more forever, and the rider would take up his abode for an indefinite season at the Hotel Libby, Richmond, Va. A single man surrounded by enemies at short range was seldom killed or even hurt unless he refused to recognize the inevitable. The general mass of my men regarded a skirmish dash against infantry with very little apprehension. A trooper and his horse generally are one for practical purposes, the animal seeming to know what is in his rider's mind. Besides, the enemy had only muzzle loading weapons, which could not be reloaded and fired more than once during the forward rush of cavalry skirmishers, while the rapid fire of our breechloaders and revolvers had a disturbing effect upon a foot soldier's hand and eye.

Our advantages and precautions being so many, we felt entirely secure in the scout of which I have begun to tell. Yet things did not turn out at all as we had expected. We struck the enemy's outpost during the middle of the afternoon and drove it in without any casualty on our side. We dismounted, took cover behind some trees and exchanged shots with skirmishers across a small river, and we had our horses far enough to the right and left to avoid the round shot or two that were fired down the road by a cannon which guarded the bridge. Then we remounted, retired through the woods and fields until out of artillery range, after which we took the road for home, with the cheering hope that we would be out of camp only about half the customary time.

Just about sunset, as we were approaching a long bridge over one of the wide, high banked, but shallow creeks peculiar to the tide water region of Virginia, the word was passed back from the advance:

"Close up! Quick! Send the major up!"

The major commanding the battalion dashed toward the front, and the rest of us followed rapidly. As my company was the second in column we soon saw what was the matter, and it didn't please us much. A body of the enemy's cavalry was approaching the bridge from the other side.

This was something we had not counted upon. It was enraging. It was also ridiculous. We were between the Johnnies and their camp, the Johnnies were between us and our camp, and the bridge, which both parties agreed in wishing anywhere else at that particular moment, remained just where it was and looked as dark and threatening as if it meant to make no end of trouble. It would be foolish for other body to ford the stream, for these tide water creeks invariably have one bank which is too steep for horses to climb or descend, except through occasional tributary gullies.

The major began to think. So, evidently, did the commander of the Johnnies, while I indulged in a wild hope that they would both keep on thinking until one or other got tired and took his men away.

"We can reach the Blue Church road for camp by making a detour through the fields at our right," suggested a prudent captain. "Meanwhile, as soon as they cross the bridge and show fight we can fours about, come on the left into line and drop half of them from their saddles before they can fire more than once."

"No," said the major, "I don't want to show them our rear. They'd never stop blowing about it if they got away. We've twice as many men as they. We ought to be savvy enough to press them back. If we can cross first, we can drive them into our camp like cattle."

"They're as close to the bridge as we," said the captain.

"We'll try, anyhow," said the major. "No sabers, men—revolvers only!" Then the major put his hand on his revolver and shouted:

"Charge!"

We were within 100 yards of the bridge, so we easily heard the Confederate commander, a grayish brown man from top to toe, who rode to the front, dropped his bridle in his saddle, drew two old fashioned horse pistols from holsters and yelled:

"Git!"

Then that grayish brown man fired. It is astonishing how much damage can be done by the buckshot which can be put into an old horse pistol. I afterward learned that all the horses in the first set of fours, as well as two of the men, were hit, though none was seriously injured, by that grayish brown man's double shot.

In half a minute some of our men were on the bridge, but so were some of the enemy. Ten seconds later the bridge was jammed with horsemen.

"Fire fast! Fire fast!" screamed our major.

The major meant well, but how much firing could be done on a bridge only wide enough for about four men abreast after the men in front had emptied their revolvers? How were any but the surest shots and those nearest the front to fire without hitting their own comrades, who already were using their revolvers as hammers or hitting the Johnnies with bare fists? There was little firing on the other side, for nearly all the Confederates carried shotguns or muzzle loading muskets, which they could not reload in haste, so after firing once they used their guns as lances, punching our men in breast or face and being horribly cursed in return.

TORNADO'S BIG SWEEP

Cut Swath 1-2 Mile By 8 Miles Through City of St. Paul.

Twelve Persons Are Dead and Many Others Were Injured—The Money Loss Is Estimated at Over a Million Dollars—Tivoli Theatre Completely Demolished—Business Section Badly Wrecked—Many Places Were Totally Unroofed.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 22.—Death to 12 persons, injuries to many others, and destruction to property, both private and public, estimated in round numbers at $1,000,000, resulted from a furious gale which tore down the Valley of the Mississippi at about 9 o'clock Saturday night from a point somewhere near the confluence of the Minnesota and Mississippi Rivers, near Fort Snelling. At about that point the fury of the elements seemingly divided, and with a roar descended on the Twin Cities and their environs. The dead:

Lorain F. Hokanson and George Kwanton, killed at Tivoli Theatre.

Unknown child, killed by falling wall of dormitory at House of Good Shephard.

Four unknown dead at Waconia, 20 miles west of Minneapolis.

Louis Pillisbeck, operator at Minneapolis Junction, killed by lightning.

Unknown woman.

Albert Odbe, 6 years of age, son of Frank Hedges, and an unknown 10-year-old girl, killed at St. Louis Park.

The missing: Edwin Gilbert, who was in the Tivoli Theatre.

Fatally injured: William Langby, skull fractured.

Robert Younger, injured internally.

Sister at the House of the Good Shepherd, injured internally.

Unknown child, House of Good Shepherd, buried beneath debris.

There were many others less seriously hurt.

Its Awful Sweep.

From beginning at a point below Fort Snelling the storm came from the west and howling in its fury uprooted trees and demolished buildings in its pathway towards St. Paul. After causing havoc in St. Paul, the tornado swept onward to Minneapolis and its suburbs. Here, however, the destruction of property was not so great, although telephone and telegraph wires were torn down in great numbers. For four hours the Twin Cities were cut off from communication with the outside world.

The tornado cut a pathway about a half mile in width and eight miles in length through the business and residence district.

The storm cloud, which came from the southwest, first hit the ground on the west side bluff, near the high bridge. Two spans of this structure, which is all steel and which crossed the Mississippi River at a height of 200 feet, were cut out and thrown into the gulch below, crushing in the roofs of a number of small houses situated on the flats along the river bank. The storm kept on across the river in an oblique direction, leveling the numerous shade trees of Harriet Island.

Demolished Theatre.

It struck the city proper near the Wabash street bridge, completely demolishing the Tivoli Theatre. There was a vaudeville performance on at the theatre, which was fairly well filled. Two men were killed by the fall of the roof, and about a dozen persons, women performers and others, were buried in the ruins. Many of them were severely hurt before they were extricated by the fire department. Across Wabash stood the Empire Theatre, a two-story brick house of the same character as the Tivoli, was unroofed and otherwise badly damaged. Nearly all of the business blocks on Third street between Wabash and Sibley streets, a distance of five blocks, were damaged. Roofs were blown off, plate glass windows shattered and huge signs sent scurrying through the air like feathers. The Minnesota Club, at the corner of Fourth and Cedar streets, was damaged, while the ten-story Globe office building, just across the street, escaped with but little injury.

Big Damage Distributed.

The Pioneer Press Building, a 12-story brick and steel structure, was literally riddled by the wind and flying debris. There was a stampede among the printers at work in the composing room of the 12th floor, many of them being cut by flying pieces of glass. The wholesale houses on Fourth street for two blocks below Robert street suffered, extensive damage. The Davidson Building, at the corner of Fourth and Jackson streets, was unroofed, the entire roof being picked up and blown on top of an adjoining building.

Buildings Unroofed.

The storm then swooped across Smith's Park, levelling all of the shade trees and struck the five-storey brick building of Noyes Brothers & Cutler, wholesale druggists, blowing off the roof and carrying away part of the upper storey. On West Seventh street, between Wacouta and Kitson streets, a distance of seven blocks, much damage was done. The Habighorst Building at 7th and Wacouta, occupied by the Economy store, was unroofed. The five-storey brick building occupied by the Schurmeier Wagon Co., on Rosabel street, was badly damaged, the entire top storey being blown away. The Union Livery Stable was wrecked, about half of the building blown down. Along the north side of East Seventh street every building was damaged, some being nothing more than heaps of debris.

Washington school building at Locust and Eighth streets suffered considerable damage, almost the entire top portion being blown away. St. Mary's Catholic Church, on Ninth and John streets, was unroofed, but the school building across the street, escaped with only minor damages. St. Sigfrid's Episcopal Church, on Eighth street, a frame structure, was levelled to the ground.

SOCIALIZATION OF PRODUCTION.

And 8-Hour Day Urged By International Congress at Amsterdam.

Amsterdam, Holland, Aug. 22.—The International Socialists and Trade Union Congress, at its final sitting Saturday, adopted a resolution calling on all Socialists and Trades Unions to organize annual demonstrations in favor of an eight-hour day and to stop work on May Day.

A resolution in regard to the trusts, which was also passed, set forth that Socialists ought to direct their efforts towards the "socialization of production."

Fell Under a Train.

Belleville, Aug. 22.—A serious and possibly fatal accident took place at the G.T.R. yards here at noon Saturday. James Richardson, a middle-aged man, employed by the G.T.R., who had only recently arrived from Desoronto, fell from the top of a car and part of the train passed over him, smashing the right arm and leg so badly that amputation was necessary.

Electrocuted at St. Mary's.

St. Mary's, Aug. 22.—R. T. Swales, who was temporarily acting as night constable, was found dead yesterday morning in the basement of the town hall. He was in a sitting position with an electric wire string attached to a lamp he was attempting to reach between his fingers. Evidently the shock had killed him.

Negro Stoned to Death.

Cordova, Ala., Aug. 22.—Town Marshal J. McMahon was killed Saturday night and his slayer, a negro named Avery, a short time thereafter was taken from the calaboose by a mob and put to death with stones and pistol balls.

3,000 Went Away.

Toronto, Aug. 22.—There were five extra trains of ten coaches each left the Union Station at intervals on Saturday. They carried about 3,000 stalwart young men who will play a part in the harvesting of the western crops.

Ontario Man's Suicide.

Chicago, Aug. 22.—The body of R. G. Dunlop of Ontario, Canada, has been found in a house at 117 Rosy street. The man's throat had been cut.

Assassin Dead?

St. Petersburg, Aug. 22.—It was rumored here yesterday that the assassin of M. Von Plehve, Minister of the Interior, died a few days ago.

Important Entanglement.

London, Aug. 22.—(C.A.P.)—Edgar Wallace's search for a wife for Mr. Cochrane, a British Columbia rancher, has had a tragic sequel. The Rev. Duncan Salmon of Arm, British Columbia, gave Cochrane a certificate of character, and 600 girls applied. The successful girl left London Saturday night to embark on the Lake Manitoba, but Friday morning a cable was received in London that Cochrane had died suddenly at Duncan.

DAMAGE TO FRUIT CROP

Thousands of Dollars Loss By Gale in Nova Scotia.

Wind Blew About 45 Miles An Hour and the Annapolis Valley Was a Heavy Sufferer—Shipping Along the Coast Was Badly Handled—Big Pleasure Yachts Driven Ashore and Wrecked—Others Sunk.

Halifax, N.S., Aug. 22.—The heaviest summer gale in years swept over Nova Scotia Saturday night. All through the Annapolis Valley damage amounting to thousands of dollars was done to the fruit crop, and all other growing crops in other parts of the province suffered immensely.

In Halifax numerous shade trees were uprooted and some expensive plate glass windows were smashed by flying awnings. On the water front the new steamer Scalac, which arrived from St. John a few hours previously broke loose from her moorings and tore away her guards on the starboard side and otherwise did damage amounting to several hundreds of dollars.

The Olivette, which arrived from Boston last night was under water continually, and was boarded by a heavy sea, which smashed the windows, but fortunately did no other damage. A coal laden schooner was blown against an I.C.R. trestle and was so badly damaged that it is hard work to keep her afloat. Six pleasure yachts were driven ashore and totally wrecked and several others were sunk. The storm was hard on bird life, numerous dead sparrows being picked up under the trees.

The wind blew about 45 miles an hour and the rain came in torrents.

Thousands of Sparrows Dead.

New York, Aug. 22.—After the heavy storm of Saturday morning thousands of dead sparrows were found in Jersey City, Newark, Hoboken and other New Jersey towns. They were found in piles in the corners of buildings and under trees in the park. As there was no lightning it is thought that the weight of the downpour simply beat them to death. The mortality among the little birds was heaviest in Newark. Under a single tree in one of the city parks over a hundred of the birds were found.

Toronto, Aug. 22.—Early folks astir on Saturday morning were astonished at the tameness of the sparrows which had taken refuge in hundreds in store doorways from the awful rainstorm of the night. They were literally beaten into fearlessness, and many later succumbed to the buffeting they received.

Paris Gowns Ruined.

St. Louis, Aug. 22.—Paris gowns valued at $500,000 were ruined by heavy rains which passed over the World's Fair grounds. The gowns are in the palace of manufactures. The gowns were exhibited by French dressmakers in glass showcases, and the rain came through crevices in the roof of the building and poured down on the tops of the cases, eventually leaking through and soaking the garments. Many of the dresses had been sold, to be delivered to St. Louis and Chicago firms at the close of the Fair.

Three Lives Lost—180 Injured.

In addition to the loss of one life and the injury of more than 150 persons, the damage wrought by the storm is now estimated at $150,000. In the Illinois towns of Venice, Madison and Granite City the damage is also greater than at first supposed. Two lives were lost in that vicinity, and many property-owners suffered losses running from $2,000 down to $50. Traffic was resumed on the Broadway street car line yesterday, after having been suspended for more than eighteen hours.

Fell in a Fly Wheel.

Hamilton, Aug. 22.—C. W. Kirkpatrick of this city received a telegram yesterday afternoon, stating that his brother, Albert H., had been killed at Prince Albert, Saskatchewan. The deceased was superintendent of construction for the firm of H. Leonard & Sons, London, Ont., and fell into the fly wheel of an electric plant that he had just installed for the town. His home was in London, where he leaves a widow and one child. William Kirkpatrick of this city is his father.

Killed By a Pig.

London, Aug. 22.—To separate two prize pigs which had commenced to fight on a Montreal liner in Glasgow harbor Friday, a drover entered their pen. One of the animals promptly attacked him, and injured him so badly that he was dead before the pig could be beaten off.

Morley Coming to America.

London, Aug. 23.—John Morley, who is now visiting Mr. Carnegie at Skibo Castle, is going to America early in October. Sir Alfred Harmsworth, proprietor and editor of The Daily Mail, will be in New York early in September, arriving there from Canada.

Found Street Dear.

Montreal, Aug. 22.—There was a row Saturday morning on East Notre Dame street, during which a man named Theodore Duval, aged 47, was shot by an Italian and the doctors at Notre Dame Hospital say he will probably die.

SON SHOT FATHER.

Fired Rifle At John and Scaring Horse Caused Fatality.

Minnedosa, Man., Aug. 22.—John Robertson of Clan William, was accidentally shot by his son Henry Friday morning and instantly killed.

Father and son were walking through their fields, the latter carrying a rifle, when they saw a neighbor's horse in the grain. The father jumped on the horse to ride it off the place and the son, as it is said, fired off the rifle to scare the animal, which swerved as the weapon was raised, and unfortunately the man received the bullet in the back, dying almost instantly.

Deceased with his family came from the Ottawa district this spring.

JAMAICA TO BE FORTIFIED.

Britain Takes Steps to Offset Recent U.S. Activity.

Kingston, Jamaica, Aug. 22.—It is announced on good authority that the British Government has decided to increase the fortifications here, establish a first-class naval station, and make it the headquarters of a fleet division. This will be done owing to the importance the island has assumed, in view of the projected Panama Canal and American activity in these waters.

FOR

Winter Garments

The last month of Summer—August—is a good time to buy Furs. It is known to be a good time. Prices as a rule are lower, because the dealer is anticipating the season.

It is a good time—in fact the best—to order Furs. Because it affords time in which to make them up with care and without the haste that comes with the winter season.

Our show rooms are open. You can view the winter's styles. They are all here. Orders are taken based on the styles we show. It's worth a look at any rate, even if you do not buy, and you are never pressed to do so. All we know about Furs is at your service.

IN THE REALM OF SPORT

BOWLING.

Congratulations are to-day being poured out upon the Peterborough bowling rink which won the Consolation prize at teh recent tournament in Toronto. The rink consisted of C. J. Seymour, E. W. Cox, R. G. Stergeon and R. Kerr, skip.

LACROSSE.

The Chippewas administered defeat to the St. Catharines team on Saturday by 2-0.

The Tecumsehs were defeated in Brantford Saturday by 9-2.

Barney Quinn, of Owen Sound, has been reinstated by the C.L.A.

The Havelock Standard has the following to say about the game here on Wednesday:—"Havelock played the first home and home game for the Trent Valley League championship on Wednesday night at Peterborough, when the T.A.S. team won out easily by seven goals to one. Although Havelock had on four juniors, yet they should have made a far better showing, and reason for defeat by such a score is known to the players, but we forbear mentioning it publicly. The return game and the last game and the last game in the league, when Havelock hopes to reverse the tables on the T.A.S. will be played in Havelock in the near future."

—On Tuesday Mr. E. C. Andrews, of New York, a guest at Lakeview House Harwood, succeeded in landing a maskinonge weighing over 30 pounds. This is the largest catch of the season.

HOCKEY.

Hockey manoeuvring has already commenced in Eastern Ontario. One of Brockville's best players has gone to North Bay and two others are expected to play with Smith's Falls. It has not yet been definitely announced, however, that "Reddy" McMillan will play with the latter team. —Belleville Intelligencer.

Complimented the Choir.

At All Saints' church yesterday, the Rev. J. H. McCallum, of Toronto, preached two very able sermons. He complimented the choir very highly on their music. The evening anthem rendered with excellent effect was "Break Forth," Mrs. Reid taking the solo.

All Saints' choir will visit St. George's church, Hall's Glen, on Wednesday, 24th, to furnish an entertainment.

Rev. J. H. Teasy, of Omemee, will occupy the pulpit next Sunday.

A GREAT BEREAVEMENT

Has Befallen Mr. Robert Dougherty in the Death of his Daughter.

Great bereavement has visited the home of Mr. Robert Dougherty, Emily township, in the death of his daughter, Mary, which occurred at St. Joseph's Hospital last night. Miss Dougherty was taken ill with appendicitis on Friday morning at her home. She was but twenty years of age, and has been engaged as a school teacher on the Fourth Line of Ennismore. She was a talented and much esteemed young lady and her death will be greatly regretted by all who knew her. The funeral took place this afternoon to Ennismore cemetery.

A FLAW IN LITERATURE

REV. J. W. M'INTOSH PREACHED UP-O-REPENTANCE

In Many Writings of the Present Day there was not a Proper Appreciation of Sin.

Rev. J. W. McIntosh, of Centreville, delivered an able sermon before a large congregation in St. Paul's church last evening. He picked upon a flaw which, he contended, marked much of the literature of the day, in the exhaltation of a hero or heroine at that point in their lives where they were made to relinquish a life of sin and appear in the glory of Christianity, without the impressing upon the reader anything to show that a life of degredation required also a life of cleansing, or that the mere acceptance of God's grace made the past what it might have been. There appeared in many writings too little appreciation of the awfulness of sin.

Rev. Mr. McIntosh preached from Mark vi: 12, "And they went out and preached that men should repent." His object, he said, was to consider the constituent elements of repentance and then to discover why those elements should manifest themselves in repentance in the individual life. The shorter catechism gave a definition, but he gave another less technical, which he felt all would agree to: repentence was the setting of ourselves in the right attitude to God. A typical illustration of repentance was the story of the prodigal, in which two elements were manifest—confession and hope. Both of these were requisite—otherwise repentance could not be genuine. There were many Biblical experiences which proved this. But there was still another element necessary and that was a due appreciation of sin. This was not possessed by the Israelites, as referred to in the 6th chapter of Hosea, and an instance was also given in the New Testament where there was not the depth of seriousness, or a willingness to submit to God's discipline. This, claimed the speaker, was a weakness of the present age. There was too superficial a view taken of our right attitude toward God. It was in this relation also that much of the literature of today was not in accord with the teachings of God. Writers laid not enough emphasis upon sin, nor did they impress a proper appreciation of sin. Rev. Mr. McIntosh, in conclusion, made earnest application of the evening's message.

WAS CZAR'S CHILD A FEMALE?

Report that Peasant Woman's Baby Boy was Substituted.

New York, Aug 20—A Paris despatch to the World says:

Russian revolutionists here declare positively that the Empress of Russia really gave birth to a female child, for whom at her birth a male child was substituted—a peasant woman's baby.

The revolutionists vouch for the truth of this statement, and astounding as it is, insist that it comes from a perfectly reliable source, and that it will be verified later.

The Nihilists say that the internal condition of Russia is such—and it may be more precarious by the reverses in the Far East—that had the people been disappointed again in the hope of the birth of a Czarewitch, a revolt would have been imminent.

This danger, magnified by the probability of the fall of Port Arthur, at any moment, caused the Czar's advisers to take their precautions.

A peasant about to become a mother was smuggled into the Alexandria villa at Peterhof, where the Empress awaited the immensely important event. The Nihilists aver that the Czarina was blessed with a girl, the fifth, the day before a boy came to the peasant. The fact that the Czarina's accouchement was concealed until the baby boy was taken from his mother's arms, presented to the Czar's relatives and the court, and placed in the Imperial cradle. Improbable as this story may appear, it must be remembered that the revolutionists have extraordinary underground means of intercommunication over Europe.

HAVING HIS OWN TROUBLE

MR. J. ALEX. CULVERWELL AND THE LINDSAY COUNCIL.

The Burleigh Falls Mortgage Developing into quite a Bone of Contention.

Mr. J. Alex. Culverwell is having all kinds of trouble in Lindsay over the Burleigh Falls mortgage. The Post of Saturday says:—

There was a hot time in the old town Thursday night in municipal circles. A call had been sent out during the day for a special meeting to further consider the Burleigh Falls power mortgage. At a meeting held on August 8th a resolution was passed, at the request of Mr. J. A. Culverwell, whereby the mortgage for $1,500 against the Burleigh Falls water power and adjoining lands, given by him some years ago to the town as a guarantee that he would bring the power to Lindsay, was to be made subject to a first mortgage for $6,000 on the same property. As a concession to Council for meeting his wishes, Mr. Culverwell, at the suggestion of Ald. Cinnamon, agreed to hand over over $1,500 worth of paid up stock in the Central Ontario Power Co., Limited. When Mr. Culverwell came back to town some days later, he experienced unexpected difficulty in having the wish of the Council carried out, and his story was that he discovered unmistakable traces of an atagonistic feeling on the part of Mayor Scotheran and Town Solicitor Hopkins. Mr. Culverwell refused to sign the form of agreement submitted to him, claiming that it had been altered so as to compel him to acknowledge in it the validity of the original mortgage, and this he refused to do, holding that such had not been the intention of the council at the session on August 8th. To right matters he urged day after day that another meeting be called, but one cause or another prevented. Thursday morning Mr. Culverwell was about desperate—he had important engagements elsewhere, yet he wished to close the mortgage matter before leaving. His evident distress aroused commisseration, and a meeting was called for 8 p.m.

When the hour arrived a few of the members were present, and others sent word that they would be on hand shortly after. After waiting a few minutes Mr. Culverwell became anxious and ran about in quest of the delinquents, in the meantime keeping the telephone wires hot with inquiries as to their whereabouts. As time wore on th efirst comers began to grow impatient and talk of dispersing, but Mr. Culverwell implored them to wait a little while, whereupon he again set out in search of the laggards. This time he was successful in getting enough members to form a respectable quorum. Then it transpired that the clerk was absent and that the minute book was locked up in the vault, where it could not be got at, and despair again enveloped Mr. Culverwell, but it happened that he had in his possession a certified copy, under seal, of the objectionable agreement, and it was finally decided that the meeting might proceed. Ald Storer manifested a desire to go home, but was headed off, andd the aldermen took their seat at 9.10 o'clock.

The agreement, purporting to be that passed on Aug. 8th, was read, as follows:—

Moved by Ald. Maunder, seconded by Ald. Cinnamon,—That the Town Solicitor be instructed to prepare a document postponing and making fifteenhundred dollar ($1,500.00) mortgage against Burleigh Falls and certain lands adjoining same, subject to a first mortgage debenture of six thousand dollars ($6,000.00) and that the Mayor and clerk be authorized to execute same on behalf of the town upon there being issued to the town fifteen hundred dollars ($1,500.00) of fully paid up and non-assessible stock in the Central Ontario Power Company, Limited, said stock and mortgage to be released when power is transmitted from Burleigh to Lindsay, provided power is transmitted from Burleigh to Lindsay within five years from date.

Mayor Scotheran explained that the final clause relating to the time limit had been added by himself. It was necessary that some term should be mentioned for the fulfilment of the contract.

Mr. Culverwell, it appears, objected to the time limit, and a warm debate ensued.

At this stage of the proceedings Mr. R. M. Beal, who had been interjecting remarks and conferring with various members in opposition to Mr. Culverwell, remarked that the latter never intended to bring the power to Lindsay, that it would go to Peterborough or Port Hope, and that he had no company at his back.

Mr. Culverwell replied that his company was fully incorporated.

Mayor Scotheran having previously quoted from the Council rule book to show that the change desired by Mr. Culverwell in the agreement could not be made at that session, Ald. O'Reilly's motion was put as follows:

"That the Town Solicitor prepare a document between J. A. Culverwell and the Town of Lindsay, allowing him to increase the first mortgage debenture against Burleigh Falls power from $3,000 to $6,000, the said mortgage for $6,000 to be ahead of the Town's mortgage for $1,500 and the Mayor is hereby authorized to sign said agreement whenever Mr. Culverwell has deposited $1,500 of stock in the Central Ontario Power Company, Limited, with the town Treasurer, to be returned to him providing the Burleigh Falls power not being brought to Lindsay within the said term, then the stock to become the absolute property of the Town."

Mayor Scotheran—"You've heard Ald. O'Reilly's motion. When would it be convenient for us to meet again?

There was no reply, and the members started for the hat rack. Mr. Culverwell approached the clerk and asked for the return of his documents, but the Mayor ordered that they be impounded. Mr. Culverwell denounced the act as a breach of faith and a dishonorable thing to do, the papers being his private property, and finally his Worship ordered Caretaker Wilson Ye escort him to the door and see that he did not come back. The order was not enforced, and the meeting broke up in confusion at 10.20.

Pills And Piles.

A prolific cause of Piles is the use of cathartics and pills of a drastic, violent nature.

Most Valuable Paintings

Three original masterpieces in oil, aggregating in value $200,000, will be a feature of the Art Building at the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto, August 29th to Sept. 10th. Through the kindness of Sir George A. Drummond these paintings have been loaned to the management, who have reserved a separate room for their proper hanging.

Another extremely interesting exhibit is a picture by Bertram Hynes, the celebrated armless painter, whose work has created such a sensation in the English Academy this year. The number of specimens of Canadian paintings in oil and water of statuary china painting, drawing and photography, will far exceed that of any previous art display held in Canada.

The Golden Lion
A Busy Store
Even in August

Its part of our creed to "keep everlastingly at it," and keep the business constantly in evidence regardless of extreme heat or extreme cold.

Constantly increasing business talks—and talks loud for a store. No argument is necessary to prove that our store is giving satisfaction, in measure full heaped and running over, to the people of the town and county of Peterborough, and surrounding townships, other than to point to the continually larger number of ladies who are making it their shopping place.

A store's success has to be merited, as our's has been. It must give a little better goods, a little better value, have a little newer styles, or give a little fairer treatment than the others.

If we had not had these "little betters" our trade would not have increased to the extent it has over this time last year.

Figures cannot deceive. Test this store's ability to serve you.

THE LAST OF SUMMER FABRICS AND GARMENTS

have been stood up in a row, and made to take their medicine, in the shape of rigid reductions from the old prices.

The store is in the midst of fall now, and Summer Goods are unwelcome, so they have all been given "move out" prices.

FLEET WAS NOT ENGAGED

Rumor That Wireless Telegraph Station at Chefoo Will be Destroyed --The Prince's Report.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 23.—A despatch from Che Foo, dated Aug. 22, says that, according to Chinese reports, the Japanese yesterday bombarded Port Arthur from 6 o'clock in the morning until 1 o'clock in the afternoon, pounding in a heavy fire, but that the Russians succeeded in silencing the Japanese batteries. The Japanese fleet was not engaged, having put farther out to sea.

Alarm at Che Foo.

Washington, Aug. 23.—United States Consul-General Fowler cabled the State Department yesterday from Che Foo that the Chinese local authorities there, as well as the Chinese population, are greatly alarmed over the prospect that the Japanese fleet will land at Che Foo and seek to destroy the wireless telegraph system which has been operating with Port Arthur.

The Prince's Report.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 23.—An official despatch from Rear-Admiral Prince Ouktomsky at Port Arthur, by way of Che Foo, says that only two officers were killed on board the ships which returned to the harbor after the fight of Aug. 10. News that the Port Arthur squadron has again sailed out is expected at any hour, as Rear-Admiral Prince Ouktomsky's orders are imperative to go out or destroy his ships beyond the possibility of repair before the fortress falls.

Experiencing Difficulties.

London, Aug. 23.—The Shanghai correspondent of The Daily Mail says news has reached Tokio that the delay in capturing the fortress is due to the difficulty in establishing a satisfactory artillery base.

JAPS' DESPERATE CHARGES.

Won Positions But Are Finally Driven Back By Russ Artillery.

Che Foo, Aug. 23.—The first detailed news of the general assault on Port Arthur indicates that a tremendous conflict is raging and that victory is hanging in the balance.

Chinese who left Port Arthur Sunday and arrived here yesterday state that the Japanese, by making desperate charges, which were reinforced by artillery fire from Shushiyan and Louisa Bay, swept from the north into Pigeon Bay territory and drove the Russians back from the main forts. The ground being comparatively flat in this vicinity, the Japanese were unable to hold it in the face of the Russian artillery fire, and they retired north an eighth of a mile beyond the zone of fire.

Capture One Important Fort.

The Chinese declare that the Japanese captured one important fort located on the Itzshan Hills, midway between the western coast and the railway on a line drawn approximately from a point midway between Pigeon and Louisa Bays.

The fighting resulting in the capture of this fort was very severe. The position was first subjected to a bombardment for over forty-eight hours. Then the Japanese infantry assaulted it and compelled the Russians to retire. The Russian artillery then directed a heavy fire on the spot, compelling the Japanese in turn to retire.

Impregnable.

The Chinese just arrived, who bring the latest information from Port Arthur, were employed by the Russian authorities carrying the dead off the field and also ammunition, which they say is plentiful. They confirm the statement that the Liatai Promontory was not assailed for the reason that it is impregnable from the seaside, and the Japanese are unable to move on it from the north.

The Japanese main attack has been the heaviest against the Russian centre and right particularly against the centre from which the Japanese have taken up a strong position at Shushiyan.

Pigeon Bay had been the scene of fighting several days before the final assault had begun, the Japanese never being able to hold for long any territory they might gain. Their attacks were made mostly at night, during foggy days and misty mornings.

Hope to Wear 'Em Out.

The Japanese believe that their superior physical condition will win the battle for them by wearing out the Russian garrison, which is constituted of less hardened material, down to the point of exhaustion by the persistency of their attack and their refusal to accept a repulse.

While the Russians apparently believe they will hold the Japanese in check their confidence in their successful resistance is not absolute. The Japanese have guns mounted on nearly all the hills which formerly formed Russian outposts.

The Japanese fire is accurate. The hospitals and Chinese houses at Port Arthur are full of Russian wounded. The narators say the dead, until ready for burial, are stored in warehouses and are then buried on the outskirts of the town, quicklime being used freely to prevent infection.

Three large ships and two gunboats are being repaired in the dockyard and basin, the other ships being behind the shelter of Tigers' Tail Peninsula.

The junks now depart from Liaoti lighthouse.

British Steamer Stopped.

Durban, Natal, Aug. 23.—The British steamer Comedian, from Liverpool, July 24, arrived here yesterday, and reported that she was stopped by a Russian converted cruiser yesterday off the mouth of Bashee River, in the southwestern part of Cape Colony. After the Comedian had been examined she was allowed to proceed.

REFERRED TO PEKIN.

Consuls' Meeting Decides on Policy re China's Neutrality.

Shanghai, Aug. 23.—John Goodnow, the American Consul-General, who is dean of the consular corps, presided at the meeting of the foreign consuls, held here yesterday. All foreign countries with consular agents were represented. M. Ogadiri, the Japanese consul, and M. Kleinmenoff, the Russian consul, were in attendance. M. Ogadiri left a sick bed to attend the meeting. He made a vigorous protest against the presence of the Russian cruiser Askold and the torpedo boat destroyer Gresovoi in Shanghai harbor, and declared that China had failed in her duties as a neutral power. He asserted that the Japanese had the right to take the independent step of entering the harbor and seizing the two vessels. The attitude of M. Ogadiri was warlike and uncompromising.

M. Kleinmenoff protested against the entering of the harbor Sunday by a Japanese torpedo boat destroyer, and insisted upon the right of the two Russian warships in question to remain and repair damages.

Referred to Pekin.

A suggestion made by the British consul to refer the entire matter to Pekin was adopted. In the meantime the work on the Askold is to cease for 48 hours, and no further steps are to be taken by the consuls, who will await instructions from their respective Governments.

The British fleet is expected to reach here to-morrow.

Yankees Cleared For Action.

The Japanese torpedo boat destroyer which entered the harbor yesterday has left the harbor with despatches for the fleet.

The Taoti has, by order of the Waiwoupou (minister of Foreign Affairs), again taken a hand in the affair and has issued another extension of time to the Russian vessels, which have been ordered now to leave at noon Tuesday.

The American men-of-war in the harbor, while retaining the outward appearances of inaction, have for several days been practically cleared for action, with gun sights in position and steam up. Rear-Admiral Sterling is determined that the Japanese shall not interfere with the Russian vessels. He has, it is reported, offered to escort the Askold and Gresovoi beyond the three-mile limit.

London Press View.

London, Aug. 23.—The afternoon papers here take it for granted that if any intervention is necessary at Shanghai the powers will act together in upholding the neutrality of China equally against both belligerents.

Paris Says "Injunction."

Paris, Aug. 23.—The officials here confirm the statement that the Taotai of Shanghai has informed the Chinese Government that he is unable to enforce the neutrality of the port. In spite of pro-Russian sympathies serious opinion here considers that Russia's conduct in the difficulty is not justifiable.

Feared Jap Attack.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 23.—The despatches saying that energetic action had been taken by the American warships at Shanghai to protect the neutrality of China has aroused the liveliest satisfaction in official and unofficial circles here. The protected cruiser Askold and the torpedo boat destroyer Gresovoi will be disarmed.

The refusal of the Russian consul-general at Shanghai to comply with the requests of the Taotai is, it is said at the Foreign Office, due to the fact that no agreement had previously been reached between the Chinese

THE MOTHER'S APRON STRING

A boy, as he grows big and strong, even if he is not yet a Goliath or a Hercules, feels ashamed to run crying to his mother's apron strings when attacked, or even to ask his uncle to stand by, in order to interfere, if he is getting the worst of a tussle. Yet this is the degrading policy which some unworthy Canadians ask Canada to adopt. We are not to give way to a spirit of "militarism," which being interpreted means that we are to be contented with one rifle among three militiamen and only enough ammunition for them to carry on their person for one morning's work. We are not to have officers selected on account of their qualifications by military experts, but the incompetent pets of shady politicians. No foresighted organization, and above all no expenditure of money is to be tolerated. We are to rely upon the Mother Country coming to our rescue in case of need, while we decline to contribute one dollar for imperial defence or to permit one man to participate in an imperial war, even neglecting to provide for self-defence. For that we are to run to our mother's apron strings.

As many Canadians are manifesting impatience at this unworthy position, an organ very close to the Government is suggesting another safeguard no more creditable. We are to invoke the Munro Doctrine and call upon the United States in its name to defend us from any attack from without this continent. (We are told that there is such a friendly feeling at Washington that an attack from that quarter is unthinkable, as if the threats in regard to the Venezuela matter were forgotten, or the unfriendly conduct in straining a treaty right, even if they had a technical claim, which we deny, to cut off our western territory from access to the ocean. It was like a man pushing to the extreme a legal right to cut off his neighbor from access to the travelled road or navigable stream. This action alone negatives any friendly feeling. But apart from this, the very fact of claiming protection from the United States on the score of the Munro Doctrine is to acknowledge the suzerainty of Washington. We would be descending to the level of a South American republic, from the proud position of an integral portion of the greatest and foremost Empire of the world. If we exercised this right of claiming protection from the United States, the next step would be that they would claim a corresponding right of intervention and control. It would follow as a necessary logical consequence.

Canada is attaining a growth that forbids us to rely wholely on the power of the Old Country and still more to claim protection from foreigners as having a right to control our destiny.

A COLOSSAL PROJECT

Capitalists of the Dominion Have Combined to Carry it out.

(Trade Review.)

Capitalists of the Dominion have combined it is said, to carry out the biggest project ever undertaken by Canadians outside of this country. In order to carry out the plan to buy out and operate all the lighting power and tramway companies of Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, the Rio de Janeiro Tramway, Light and Power Company is being formed with a capital of fifty millions.

The capitalists interested in the new project are in great part the same as those who carried through the Sao Paulo Tramway, Light and Power Company at Sao Paulo and the Mexican Light and Power Company at Mexico City. Amongst the promoters are Sir William Van Horne, Hon. Geo. A. Cox, Wm. Mackenzie, E. R. Wood, Frederick Nicholls, F. S. Pierson. A Dominion charter has been secured.

What the company intends doing is described as follows:

"Owing to the very high price paid for coal in Brazil, the company has secured the only water within a practicable radius of Rio de Janeiro for transmission. This power property is situated seventy-five miles in a straight line from that city.

It is proposed to establish an electric lighting and power plant and electrify all the present mule roads. Four different tramway systems, comprising 120 miles of track, are being secured. Equipped with electricity, it is estimated that the companies could earn $4,162,666 a year, which, after paying 6 per cent. on bonds, would leave a surplus of $2,850,000 for the stock of the company."

OPENING FOR OUR FLOUR

APPEARS TO BE A GOOD ONE IN THE JAPANESE MARKET.

Suggested that Warehouse Should be Established for Display and Supply of Canadian Flour.

A very interesting report comes from W. A. McLean, Canada's Commercial Agent in Yokohama. While admitting that much remains yet to be learned concerning the resources and trade requirements of Japan, he has no doubt that ultimately a valuable trade can be worked up. There would appear, from what he says, to be a good opening for Canadian flour In this particular he confirms what we were told long ago by the Japanese Consul General in Canada. Some Japanese baker selsim that they are able to obtain from Canadian flour as much as 15 per cent more bread than from the American, while others say the difference is very slight.

It is suggested by some that a warehouse should be established for the display and supply of Canadian goods generally, such as flour, butter, fruits, etc., so that the demand could be filled directly from stock, says the Monetary Times. Anything of this kind that will give permanence, or at least reasonable continuity to Canadian representation, will be a good thing. In an interview with Mr. Nosse, that gentleman urged that Canada should have a permanent resident agent in Japan, saying that to send a commissioner over for a few weeks at a time could produce only a slight effect. The quality fo flour mostly used in Japan is that known to the trade as "a-raight" fancy brands being so far very little used. At present the chief supplies come from the Pacific coast States. The flour mostly favored is that containing a large percentage of starch, and it is used largely in the manufacture of macaroni, vermicelli and steamed cakes. The consumption of such food is increasing largely, although the Japanese as yet are not large bread consumers. The prices fetched at present by flour from the United States range from about 86c to about $1.35 per quarter sack of 49 pounds, but there are large stocks on hand and sales are slow. On October 1st there will be an increase of duty of .247 sen (.124 cents) per 133 pounds. The present rate of duty is .456 sen (.228 cents) per 133 pounds, and when the new dutyy comes into force (the duty on flour will be .703 sen (.352 cents) per 133 lbs., an increase of 54 1-2 per cent. of duty, whereas the duty on wheat does not change.

Several dealers suggest shipping to the Yokohama market trial shipments of sacks of flour weighing about 24 1-2 pounds each. At present there is a difference of about 50c per barrel (or four bags), against Canadian flour, so that Japanese bakers are only able to use it for fancy baking. Mr. MacLean thinks that a business could be worked up for Manitoba No. 1 Hard notwithstanding its high price, if the right methods be adopted. He insists most strongly that no attempt be made to palm off inferior goods of any kind.

"Flour must be packed into white cotton bags containing 49 pounds each Those closely woven, starched bags allow practically no waste and no infiltration of dust in the course of transportation. Grain bags will not do. Some Canadian flour comes shipped in 98-pound bags—grain bags, apparently—and during shipment a great deal leaks out and much dust works its way into the flour, and the trade is complaining on that account Wheat is usually imported in sacks, heavy ,coarse bran sacks containing 133 pounds. Bags of closely woven material, made like burlap, tear easily, with a resulting shortage on delivery."

WAR'S FAR-REACHING EFFECT

The Result upon Financial Values Because of the Enormous Expense

The reason why an international war should have a far-reaching effect on financial values deserves explanation, because it is very imperfectly grasped by the community at large. To most people the matter seems simple enough. In ordinary commerce in such events there will be found a prevalent inference that the securities of a given state in time of war rise or fall according as that state is victorious or unsuccessful ,because success in the contest will make for national prosperity and defeat for national adversity. There is a grain of truth in the theory thus outlined, but it is not a complete explanation. It does not, for example, explain why public securities should decline on the outbreak of a war, even when, as in our Spanish War, the result of the conflict is not in doubt. It does not explain why the state victorious in the Transvaal war should have suffered more heavily in its markets than the defeated power in the war of 1899. It cannot account for the fact that during our Revolutionary War British Government securities used to decline all the more rapidly when news of a British victory was received in London.

This last incident points to the fundamental truth, which is that security values are affected simply and wholly because of the enormous expense of war, which leads to sale of new securities, whereby the general level of values necessarily is lowered. In the case of England during our Revolutionary War, the London market held the opinion that, if the Americans were successful in a few engagements, the war would be brought to a close, but that, if the English were to gain the advantage, the struggle would be protracted, without the probability of bringing it to a close. The underlying principle of war markets is that the enormous costliness of war, particularly in modern times, makes absolutely necessary very large borrowing operations by the contending governments. Estimates of recent wars, including the Japanese war with China in 1894 and England's war in the Transvaal between 1899 and 1902, indicate that even a smaller war of that character cannot be fought to a finish except by an average expenditure of fully $4,000,000 daily. French statisticians have lately reckoned that a conflict in Europe between two first-class continental powers would cost each of them in the neighborhood of $5,000,000 a day. These estimates may or may not be exaggerated, but they show what financial requirements may be involved in such a conflict.

Now no government possesses a fund of money sufficient to wage such a war for any long period; nor is it possible for any government to introduce new taxes such as would raise from its people the sum required. Hence it must have recourse to the accumulated capital of the world's money market. In the case of the Japanese war of 1894 with China, which only lasted seven months, all the money was raised at home through loans or through increased taxes. But in the Boer War England had to borrow $600,000,000, and the strain of these bonds, with that of the increased taxes which accompanied them, was such as fairly to exhaust the resources of English capital. At least two of the British war loans were placed, in large measure, on other markets, such as Paris and New York; and even where this expedient was not followed, the English money, taken from the open market and invested in the new bonds, had to be replaced on that open market by French and American capital. But since the resources of the world's capital have some limit, it follows that such sudden and enormous demands will necessitate withdrawal of invested capital from its previous location.—Forum.

CANADIAN HERO WORSHIP

An English Writer Says it Does no Good to Boat Ideals of English Rowing.

London, August 22.—A letter to the Referee signed "A Tideway Veteran," on hero worship at home and overseas, says that "the fact of Colonials making national heroes of boat rowers does not appeal to me as a reason for our going and doing likewise. All that sort of thing seems to me to show a sad want of sense of proportion and failure to grasp the essentials of what should constitute a national hero. The minds of Colonials and Americans are distinctly behind English opinion in regard to what is tactful and natural in the matter of social amenities. This, in part, no doubt arises from their provincial touchiness about their dignity and prestige of one sort or another, their overwhelming anxiety to assert superiority of their people and institutions over those of the Old Country. Take, for instance, Scholes, who asserted his Canadian independence during the practice of the Henley by strolling about in a seedy old blue sweater, with a ragged collar for all the world like myself out any winter Sunday morning at Hammersmith, which is not exactly Henley. When this gentleman returned to Toronto he was met by the military and paraded about the streets in a sort of Mafeking procession, and besplattered with bush by the mayor and corporation. Here the prizes for the Henley are given away in a great hurry just before going to dinner, services of the military and civic authorities being dispensed with, and the winners, as a rule, not showing up, but having their pots sent around to their lodgings with a bob to the porter. There is certainly no marked improvement in the crews at regattas over the sixties and seventies, when the eyes of Europe and the world were not invited upon foreign entries at the Henley. "Tideway Veteran does not think we do any any good to the best ideals of English rowing by importing Colonial notions of hero worship.

What Britain Would Prefer.

London, Aug. 23.—Interest is official and diplomatic circles in London yesterday centred at Shanghai, where British interests are strongly appealing for protection. Great Britain, however, would prefer that the United States take the initiative in maintaining the neutrality of China. Great Britain's position as the ally of Japan making her situation delicate unless her interests are directly menaced. It is true, the officials say, that Great Britain agreed in principle to the neutrality of China, but she did not undertake to enforce it. Throughout the discussion relative to the Askold and the Grozovoi she has held the view that it is none of her business, and the extent to which Great Britain has gone is to point out to China the importance of maintaining her neutrality, by which both belligerents are affected.

China Yields to Russia.

London, Aug. 23.—The Che Foo correspondent of The Times asserts that China has yielded to the Russian demands and will grant compensation for the Ryeshitelni affair as well as degrade the local Taotai, and the Chinese admiral. NORTH PERTH PROTEST.

Particulars of 125 Charges Are to Be Filed Against Mr. Brown.

Toronto, Aug. 23.—The particulars of charges against the election of John Brown in North Perth will be filed this morning at Osgoode Hall. There are 125 counts, involving the payment of money for votes, the intimidation of voters, the opening of hotels on election day, the distribution of liquor by the agents of a respondent, and many other charges of a corrupt nature. With John Brown are coupled the names of the Hon. J. R. Stratton and James Vance, Liberal organizer in Ontario. An attempt will be made to prove that Brown, Stratton, Vance and others received a large sum of money at their headquarters at the Grand Central Hotel, Listowel, and that the workers were called in, being told that the money had arrived for the election. The respondent in his examination for a discovery admits the payment for livery rig to take voters to the polls. This act is enough to disqualify the respondent unless he is given the benefit of the saving clause of the act, which declares that the candidate may be relieved from the penalty of disqualification if no corrupt act was intended.

The particulars in the Manitoba election appeal will also be filed today. There is a long list of charges of corrupt practices. The particulars in the other election cases will not be filed till next week. In North Norfolk there are 500 charges, in North York 900, in North Grey 200, in Sault Ste. INSURANCE OF FACTORIES

MANUFACTURERS TO HAVE MUTUAL COMPANY.

Such are the Plans of the Manufacturers Insurance Company—Hope is to Bring Back Sprinkled Risk

The manufacturers of Canada will soon, within a comparatively short time, have a full-fledged mutual insurance company at their command, says a Montreal report.

As already announced, this will come through the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, which has already completed a plan to be submitted at the annual meeting in September, and which will, according to the members, be without doubt decided upon. It is announced that a very strong committee of members, business men with large experience, have the matter now in hand.

It is proposed that this mutual company, which will be operated direct from the offices of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, will for a time at least confine themselves to insuring what are known as sprinkled risks among its membership. In other words risks of the highest class, with all the modern improvements of fire doors, automatic sprinklers, etc., will be carried by the company, and all other risks will be placed outside the board companies, making a saving it is said, of twenty per cent. for the latter over present rates, while the sprinkled risks can be carried at a very small fraction of what they now cost with the board companies.

BRING BUSINESS BACK.

The Manufacturers' Association hope by this means to bring back into Canada a very large percentage of the sprinkled risks which are now being carried abroad, particularly in the New England mutual companies, which make a specialty of this sort of insurance and into which Canadian manufacturers have been driven by the fact that they can obtain their insurance at a bare fraction of what it would cost them with the Canadian companies at present rates.

It is said that some of the Canadian manufacturers are obtaining their insurance in these New England mutuals at anywhere from a fifth to a tenth of the amount which they were accustomed to pay in different sections of the Dominion.

In the placing of other than sprinkled risks with foreign companies this insurance will naturally go to a very large extent to the United States, but with the influx of sprinkled risks to Canadian companies it is expected that the tide will be turned this way, in other words, they hope to retain in this country a larger percentage of insurance than now exists here.

THEY MEAN BUSINESS.

A prominent officer of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, of Montreal stated Saturday that some insurance men were inclined to take this proposal lightly.

"I can assure them, however," he continued, "that we mean business, and as the combined capital of the members of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association is not less than $200,000,000, we are a force to be reckoned with. The premiums are in the hands of experienced business men who will do nothing rash, but will, on the other hand, take every precaution to establish a thorough working plan of mutual insurance on a most conservative basis."

At the annual meeting of the Montreal branch of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, which takes place on August 29, the insurance question is expected to take a prominent place, Mr. C. C. Ballantyne, the chairman of the Montreal branch, referring to the matter in his annual address.

WILL EMPLOY NO AGENTS.

Part of the plan of organization of the Manufacturers' Mutual will be that no agents be employed, the officers of the association handling the business. This is expected to make a vast difference in the expense account. Another feature is that insurance will be confined to members of the association.

In the United States the mutual companies of this class have met with enormous success. These companies, known far and wide as New England Mutuals practically monopolize the business among the better class of manufacturing interests in the Eastern States. One of them was organized for the express purpose of taking care of the cotton manufacturing business, another the shoe manufacturing business and so it goes through the various branches of trade.

VICTIM OF MISTAKEN IDENTITY

Carelessness at Scotland Yard Sent a Man to Servitude for a Long Time.

New York, August 21.—In a special cable today from London to the New York Herald is the following: "That the much vaunted system of police identification at Scotland Yard can send an innocent man to penal servitude for a long term of years is a fact that has been rudely brought home to British people in the case of Adolf Beck. As compensation for gross miscarriage of justice in the conviction of the unfortunate Swede, first in 1896, and again in 1896, the Treasury has granted him the sum of $10,000 as a solatium. All England is discussing the disparity between the suffering inflicted by the law on a man guiltless of any wrong, and the compensation offered when the mistake was discovered. One or two newspapers have tried to work up a sensation by the amusing headlines, "An English Dreyfus case," but in the main the press has taken this extraordinary story soberly and seriously.

The Times points out that while no money can really compensate an innocent man for spending several years of his life in prison, as a convict, for the treasury to make any grant whatever is an extremely rare event. Not more than ten times in the last hundred years has the treasury done anything of the kind.

The term "English Dreyfus case" is in every way a misnomer. In the first place the Home Office interfered as soon as it saw any reason to doubt the justice of the sentence. Secondly, while Mr. G. R. Sims, a dramatist and writer, made himself the advocate of Beck in the columns of the Daily Mail, every paper in England, without exception, raised its voice for the victim as soon as it was evident that truth was on his side. In the work of justice neither petty jealousies of rival newspapers, nor politics played a part.

Both press and bar are advocating an investigation of the whole case by an independent authority.

Mr. Sims, who has known the victim personally for twenty years, has shown that the case has a far more serious aspect than was first believed. He proves, step by step, that the conviction was not merely a most extraordinary case of mistaken identity, but that Beck was a victim of what is "nothing short of a conspiracy to procure the conviction of the prisoner by suppressing facts which would have insured his triumphal acquittal."

The fact is clear that Beck was originally convicted of stealing rings from unfortunate women, largely because it was believed that he was a certain John Smith who had been convicted in 1877 of the same offence under exactly similar circumstances. Yet, while his identity with John Smith played a predominant part in the evidence against him it was ruled out of court, and the prisoner was not allowed to prove an unquestionable alibi.

Medical evidence was also forthcoming to show that while John Smith was a Hebrew, Beck was not, but all that the Government did in the light of this fact was to remove from Beck's prison garb the lettering that indicated previous conviction.

SINCERITY OF BISHOP POTTER

In Dedicating a Saloon of Improved Order in New York.

Christian Guardian—If Bishop Potter, of New York, has any craving for notoriety, there is every reason to believe that he is on the way to the completest gratification. His well-known views as to the necessity of the saloon have brought his name into prominence several times, but the climax was reached the other day when he went down from his holiday retreat to New York and helped to open with religious exercises a saloon of the improved order in a populous quarter of the city. The stir that was created by this action was not at all lessened when it was learned just how little this new institution, under churchly benediction, differed from many others of the regulation variety. Everything was clean and attractive, we are told, and men could get a huge five-cent sandwich to eat with their beer, but the bar was stocked with all kinds of liquors, and there were no restrictions against its sale and consumption other than apply to most saloons of the better sort. The women even had a special room provided for them, in which soft drinks and beer in abundance were to be had. Visitors at the place since its opening report it doing a rushing trade, the bar being crowded with patrons, and all kinds of liquors being sold freely. Up to the present we have had no reason to doubt Bishop Potter's sincerity, but looking at that ceremonial and at that crowded bar, it is really difficult to believe him both sincere and sane.

HOW THE JAPS MEET DEATH

ONE OF THE MOST STIRRING INCIDENTS OF THE WHOLE WAR.

Death Rather Than Submission was Their Fate—A Striking Example of the Heroism with which Men can be Inspired.

Death rather than submission was the fate which was voluntarily chosen by the Japanese soldiers and others who were on board the transport Kinshiu-maru at Genzan, when the Russian warships suddenly appeared on the scene. The Kobe Chronicle reprints from a native paper a most interesting account of this stirring incident of the war. It appears that the men had been ashore scouting, and had then re-embarked. The escorting torpedo-boat destroyer flotilla put out to sea, and the transports followed, but soon the vessels were separated in a fog, and when this lifted the Kinshiu-maru found herself close to some warships. Capt. Yagi, of the Kinshiu-maru, thinking the squadron to be Japanese, altered her course and steered toward the warships, when the signal "Stop" floating from the mainmast and the firing of a blank shot across the Kinshiu's bows brought the vessel to a standstill. This turn of events naturally caused surprise and astonishment on board the transport, but nothing could be done in the way of escaping. Lieut.-Commander Mizoguichi, who had charge of the work of the transport, proposed visiting the warships and taking such measures as required by circumstances. This was agreed to be the best course, and having said farewell to the military officers in command of the troops, and accompanied by Capt. Yagi, Paymaster Ida, and an interpreter, Mr. Kondo, the Lieutenant-Commander, rowed to the nearest warship, whence, as is known, the party never returned, and are now prisoners of war at Irkutsk.

On board the Kinshiu-maru the military officers assembled in the saloon and took counsel as to their course of action. The officers were Capt. Shrina, Capt. Sakirai, Lieut. Terada, Lieut. Yokata and Ensign Higaki. After the conference Capt. Shrina went into the 'tween decks, where the men had been ordered to assemble, and gave orders as to the course to be taken by them. Meanwhile both the transport and the warships had been lowering boats, and soon three officers boarded the Kinshiu and ordered the troops to lay down their arms and surrender, stating that if they did so they would be taken on board the warships. The soldiers were given an hour in which to arrive at a decision, and, having allowed the crew of the steamer and the passengers to take the boats, the naval officers returned to the squadron.

It was now past midnight, with a bright moon and clear sky. A great silence prevailed on the transport, which now had only troops on board, and a few bluejackets and coolies. Capt. Shrina once again inspected his men, who were found in perfect order, some motionless, but others fixing bayonets or loading their rifles, preparing for the end. Sergt. Major Washi was collecting the maps, sketches, etc., kept by the officers; Sergt. Okano gathered in the notebooks of the men, and maps and notebooks were thrown into the engine-room fire. A corporal ordered the men to take off the numbers on their shoulder-straps, so that everything should be destroyed which would prove of any value to the enemy afterward.

AGREED TO SINK WITH STEAMER

It was past 1 o'clock on the morning of April 28th, when the Russians discharged a torpedo against the forepart of the transport. On this Capt. Shiina again went into the 'tween decks and freed the men from military discipline. They were told to take what course they saw fit, as nothing could be done to avert disaster. The men, anxious to know the fate of their officers, swarmed up the companionways to the saloon, found the doors locked and no sound issuing therefrom. Inside were the officers, who had agreed to sink with the steamer, imprisoned in the saloon, so that they should not fall into the hands of the enemy. Particular and scrupulous to the last, the officers had persuaded Capt. Sakurai, who did not belong to their regiment, of the inadvisability of dying with them. Capt. Sakurai, an old experienced officer, regarded by the general staff as one of the smartest officers of the army in Northern Corea, left his comrades, and the manner of his death is unknown. According to report, however, it seems there was not perfect unanimity in the manner the officers should meet their death. Lieut. Terada dissented from the command of Capt. Shiina that the officers should die together, and left the ship, vowing that he would sell his life to the enemy, but die fighting. What became of Lieut. Terada is not known.

TRAGIC ENDS.

The end of the men was equally tragic. (Some minutes after Capt. Shiina had given his last commands, which left the soldiers to their own resources, Sergt. Kurino and Corp. Horishka committed suicide by shooting each other, and many followed this example. Sergt. Okano went on deck, drew his sword, and committed hari kari, an example, we are told, which was followed by some of his men. A rather more soldierlike way of spending the last moments of their lives was that of Corp. Hashimoto, and some sixty men, who from the deck fired repeatedly at the Russians by the corporal's command. The enemy replied with fatal effect, but the end of all was now near. Fifty minutes after the first torpedo was discharged a second torpedo struck the Kinshiu-maru, and nearly cut the vessel in two parts. It sank in thirteen minutes, but during this time a hot fire was kept up by the Japanese, who went down with the ship, cheering and singing the march song of their regiment.

The final stage of this chapter of the war is well known—how about sixty of the men succeeded in getting clear of the ship, either before or after she sank, and reaching the coast, but these were noncombatants whose fate is quite uncertain, bluejackets and coolies, whom it is thought possible the Russians may have picked up afterward. The end of many on board the Kinshui-maru is one more striking example of the heroism with which men can be inspired when the alternative to death is surrender and the sense of military disgrace.

R. C. CARTER DEAD.

Veteran Railway Manager Passes Away at Montreal.

Montreal, Aug. 23.—R. C. Carter, general manager of the Bay of Quinte Railway, the Oshawa Railway, the Thousand Islands Railway and the Deseronto Navigation Company, died yesterday at the Royal Victoria Hospital. He was about 60 years old.

Although Mr. Carter's home was at Kingston he was almost a citizen of Montreal, as he spent most of his time at the Windsor Hotel in this city with his family. Mrs. Carter survives, with four sons and two daughters. One of the sons is traveling freight agent of the Canada Atlantic Railway, another is teller in the Bank of Montreal Cornwall branch, while one daughter is married and living in Gananoque.

The remains were taken to the 8 o'clock train at the Bonaventure Station for Kingston, where the funeral will take place.

Coal Ship Ashore.

Montreal, Aug. 23.—The Black Diamond SS. Catalone, from Sydney, C.B., to Montreal, with a cargo of coal, grounded about noon at a point just below Ile Ronde, almost opposite Longueuil. Through some accident to the steering gear, the vessel took a sheer and shoved her nose upon a mud bank.

Smallest Crop on Record.

London, Aug. 23.—(C.A.P.)—John Kingsford, one of the most extensive flour importers on the Corn Exchange of Mark Lane, says that the wheat crops in England are expected to be the smallest on record, and that the price of bread will go up.

FROM MEMORIES CASKET

INTERESTING REMINISCENES BY AN OLD PETERBOROUGH BOY.

The Early Days in Peterboro Recalled—Thrilling Experiences in Kansas—A Ride that John Gilpin Couldn't Touch.

There is a gentleman visiting old friends in town at the present time who can tell many very interesting things about the early days of Peterborough. He is Mr. E. M. Taylor, of St. Louis, son of the late Rev. J. C. Taylor, many years ago rector of St. John's church. He is awaiting the arrival of his brother from New Zealand whom he has not seen for the rather extraordinary period of 40 years or more. Mr. Taylor is a pleasing conversationalist, and as his experiences have been varied and had their scenes cast in many diffferent places, his reminiscences have great charm.

"Do I remember anything about early days in Peterborough?" he replied when asked for a story yesterday as to his boyhood. "Well, you must remember that I was very young when I left this town and as I have been away from here during the succeeding years, except for an occasional visit, many recollections I have must necessarily receive the benefit of some reflection before I would be positive as to exact details. But quite a few are as green in my memory as the day they occurred. Yes, the town has grown wonderfully, but it is with some emotion I can assure you that I view scenes that are still familier. There is the hill running down from the court house toward Hunter st. It was quite a grade in those days and as far as that is concerned remains just the same. We boys had great fun sleighriding down that hill; with one full sweep we would plunge right through to the river. The obstructions set up in the onward march of civilization did not bother us much in those days, I remember that there used to by quite a large Indian burying ground near the river there; at least quite a large number of Indian bones and relics were found in that vicinity and it was no doubt a place where they laid their dead away.

Mr. Taylor states that a horrible disaster occurred on the river near where the Hunter street bridge now stands. The custom was to carry travellers across the river in large scows. As the result of an accident one day quite a number off people were thrown into the river and several drowned.

Those were the days when this part of the country was very sparsely settled, but the population steadily increased. There were no railroads then and some excitement was caused among the people when the first steamer, the Forester, began giving a service with Rice Lake, thus affording the incoming settlers great facility by way of getting in their goods. The custom was to cut across country to Rice Lake from Cobourg. He remembers the funeral of his father, whose death occurred in the house of G. J. Bowes of Toronto, a structure still standing and surrounded by cherished memories in Mr. Taylor's regard. He was greatly interested in viewing the house a few days ago. The body of his father was conveyed hither in a carriage, the trip requiring several days, and laid in the old cemetery, afterwards being removed to Little Lake cemetery. Mr. Taylor states that he was not a believer in petrification until one day the body of a man named John Duffield was also transferred to Little Lake cemetery, and it was found that the body had become quite as solid as stone. This he declares to be a positive fact. While on this subject he referred to what he considered to be a gruesome spectacle, which he had seen recently at Birdrall's Landing. This was the petrified foot of a woman. It had apparently been severed at the ankle and the toes were quite clearly defined. The theory was that it was the foot of an Indian squaw, but Mr. Taylor is inclined to make closer scrutiny on the probability that it might disclose some interesting indication as to a race that might have existed prior to those with whom history has given familiarity.

A portion of the town that arouses fond memories with Mr. Taylor is McDonell st., east of Water st. It was near the corner of Harvey street that the old log schoolhouse was situated where the boys of the village were educated. His father used to teach classics there to those who required an advanced training. There are several of the old school boys of former days living, and Mr. Taylor mentioned Mr. W. H. Wrighton, Mr. H. T. Strickland, Judge Benson of Port Hope and Charlie Stuart. St. John's church occupied its present position then, but it has since been greatly improved. The popular color for houses those days was yellow. The postoffice was then a log structure, and was in charge of a Mr. Carver, a gentleman whom he remembers as having possessed an exceptionally prominent nose. The town hall in those days was also a log structure.

EXPERIENCES IN KANSAS.

Mr. Taylor was not in Peterborough in 1866, but it is altogether likely that he saw as stirring events as those which punctuated history in Canada in that year. He is a living example of a man who went west, became acquainted with adversity, overcame it and finally realized the success that was his due. It was in the year 1858 he says that he found himself a stranger in Kansas. That country was very new then, full of Indians and undesirable characters. He had not been brought up on a farm, but he thought he knew enough about driving oxen to warrant him in agreeing to accompany a party overland from Kansas to California. But he never went, for the simple reason that he was advised not to by a gentleman who had become a well-entertained friend. There were, he said, a lot of Mexican greasers in the gang, and it was known of these gentry in those days that they had very little compunction about knifing a man upon the slightest excuse. He remained concealed until the party had started on their journey.

Mr. Taylor, then quite a boy, next got an opportunity to teach school at Caw River, some thirty-six miles from Leavenworth. This proved a most tedious journey and something like despair struck him, when on arriving at the settlement, situated near the Delaware Indian Reservation, he found a young lady in charge. There was nothing to do but return to Leavenworth, and it was on this trip that a most thrilling event occurred. It was necessary for him to traverse what was then known as the Big Prarie, some ten miles across. While pursuing his way he became very thirsty, and his suffering was intensified by the full sense of his condition and by the day's disappointment. Finally he came to a pool from which he eagerly drank without considering that it was full of microbes, some of which were exceptionally large. He, however, took a large draught, and he says it is a wonder that he did not catch typhoid fever. Proceeding on his journey, he had another adventure. This was still more foreboding, for he suddenly found himself in the centre of a drunken bunch of Delaware Indians.

"They would not have got much for their trouble had they done away with me," said Mr. Taylor. "They knew no English but in answer to what appeared to be a gesture of enquiry I made them understand that I was going to Leavenworth. It was far from my expectations that I would get any assistance from these Indians, but I saw one of them beckon to the back of his horse, and it was with some reluctance, I can tell you, that I approached. It was with a sense of helplessness that I managed to get up behind the Redskin, for I could not tell what infernal purpose they had in view. There was no saddle on the horse. Did you ever hear about John Gilpin's ride? Well, the one I had that day was a great sight more terrible and Gilpin's nag could not have looked at the pace set by those Indians. When they finally got through with me and rode off with a grunt in reply to my attempt at thanks, I had a keen sense of soreness all over but I found that they had lessened the distance to Leavenworth. I was still pretty thirsty and determined there and then that when I reached town I would take a tub, go out to the pump and fill it, and drink the whole quantity. And I did it; that is, I drank until they pulled me away. Soon afterwards I secured employment in an office in Leavenworth."

Mr. Taylor relates many other interesting events of actual occurrence in his life down south. He at present occupies the distinguished position of chaplain of a Club in St. Louis, the members of which are at present enjoying an outing in St. Louis, and yesterday he sent them a jocular letter emphasizing the necessity of their observance of all rules good and proper during his absence, or be subject to a heavy penalty. He is enjoying greatly his visit among friends here.

SOVEREIGN BOTTLED UP

The C.P.R. Bridge Refused to Work and the Steamer Cannot get out.

The steamer Sovereign is bottled up, not as the result of operations by a hostile fleet however, but because of a break in the running gear of the C.P.R. bridge over the canal, south of the lift lock. The Sovereign went up the canal yesterday, and on her return trip found that she could not get past the C.P.R. bridge. Something went wrong when the structure had swung a few feet, and with difficulty the mass got it back to its original position. The Sovereign's captain naturally is indignant, as a day means considerable to him this time of the year, and the sooner the bridge is repaired the better.

THE EXCURSIONISTS RETURN

EXPERIENCES OF THE PARTY THAT GOT LEFT IN ROCHESTER.

Train From Port Hope was Fully an Hour Late—The Conductor was Between the Horns of a Dilemma

The conductor on the Grand Trunk train from Port Hope last evening was up against a proposition that would make many a ticket-puncher shed a tear and add one or two more grey hairs to his head. The train was fully an hour late also as the result of a dilemma which developed when about 200 people from Peterborough got on board, the majority of whom had no tickets and absolutely refused to produce the collateral—for the simple reason that they did not have it. It was not a case of one man, but of a crowd returning home from a holiday, dead broke, tired, and all the rest of it.

The whole trouble was this: The great bulk of the passengers who left here on Civic Holiday and sailed o'er Ontario's heaving bosom for the Flower City, remained over there until Saturday, for there is nothing like remaining the limit. Particularly is this so in the case of those dear creatures with the bargain-counter and the get-the-worth-of-your-money instinct. So that it was early Saturday morning when the North King pushed off from the Land of Liberty with two hundred good Canadian souls and breakfasts on board. It was a stormy morning, and the Captain kept his weather eye lifting. In fact it kept lifting until the boat had proceeded about seventeen miles, and then the sea-dog's blinkers were wide open to the fact that he had better put about and run ashore. There was a big sea on, and undoubtedly the wiser course was pursued in returning to port. In fact, one excursionist states that the steamer might have got into trouble had she continued on her course. The fate of the breakfasts is not foretold in the despatches.

The North King hove to and swung round, and in due time was safely harbored. But it appears that definite announcement was not made as to when she would next venture to cross the lake. If a Sunday trip was intended, the majority of the Canadeans did not hear about it, or else their principles with reference to Sabbath observance fooled them or made them face all consequences with courage. There was not a Bishop Potter amongst them to explain just what was the proper thing to do under the circumstances. Anyhow, about two hundred of them remained in Rochester over Sunday. It was not a very large crowd that embarked on the North King for Peterborough that morning. The trip was evidently an eventful one, and when the party arrived in Port Hope there was a special train waiting, and they were on "easy street" for the run home.

But it was Monday morning when about 200 Canadians came down to the strand and embarked for the trip "over 'ome." Their tickets were all right for the boat of course, but there were very many who had not availed themselves of the ticket that would bring them from Port Hope to Peterborough because they did not have the price. Whether this conduced to sea-sickness or not cannot be definitely ascertained, but when the party arrived in Port Hope there were some pretty keen appetites walking around, even if the pallor of countenance did indicate that the voyage had been one unpleasant to remember.

The boat arrived in Port Hope an hour before the afternoon train left for Peterbroough, and of course every excursionist boarded the flyer; it could not get home too soon. Everything went well until the conductor came around to have his innings. His instructions were to accept no tickets that were not genuine. The Division Superintendent was on board too. The conductor managed to get through one car with considerable difficulty, but there were two others and whom he tapped the next one the first passenger absolutely refused to pay his fare. He was a young man and had no money. Some of the excursionists were putting up a kick that they should thus be made the victims of circumstances in which they had no hand, others considered themselves blameworthy, but were inclined to get full value out of the kick made by others, and some paid. There were many prominent citizens of Peterborough there, too. When it became apparent to the conductor that he was up against it, he threatened to break up the train, and sidetrack the crowd that refused to shed anything in the way of cash or tickets. Upon this announcement being made, there was a general rush of the legitimate passengers fro the throughs car. Something like a stampede developed and it became apparent that if the train went at all, the crowd would go with it.

"There are people here in a state of starvation," exclaimed one old lady, as though fully justified in charging up to the railway company the general loss incurred during the general sea-sickness.

"Have you a ticket?" asked the conductor of a young lady.

"No," she replied sweetly by way of recompense, and added, "I don't want any.

"And may I ask why?" queried the unrelenting conductor.

"I have no money," she sighed, and in a rather embarrassed tone asked, "How far is it to walk?"

"About twenty miles," said the obliging conductor. The train was now at Garden Hill. The conductor went on to the next passengers, and so quite a few others. All they had was the remainder of their limited ticket. The young lady did not start to walk. She retained her position like many others who refused to get out. The side-tracking operation was not put into operation, and what appeared to be the only way out of the difficulty was adopted—the train delivered the goods. It appears that similar difficulties have arisen in other years. It seems impossible to provide in the arrangements for unforseen circumstances such as developed in the case. No blame certainly attaches itself to the railway people.

BROKE WORLD'S RECORD

Rec. Bloomfield a Lakefield Boy is a Wonderful Canoeist.

"A Lakefield boy, Reg. Bloomfield, is a wonderful canoeist. He has taken several prizes in important events this season, and his latest feat is to break the world's record for the international double blade contest at the Toronto Canoe Club's summer regatta recently. The Star says:

"The work of Reg Bloomfield, who cleaned up for the "Red ring" at Orillia and the A.C.A. meet, was the feature. He won or was in the winning crew in four events and was second twice.

"Bloomfield, with his partner, Hal Brent, paddled in a new Dean racing canoe. The canoe, while not unusually light, has very speedy lines. She slipped through the water in grand style.

"Bloomfield broke the world's record in the international double blade. He was not pushed but even at that clipped six seconds off the record. The time was 3.1-5. The surprise of the afternoon was the defeat of the senior four, Findlay, Brent, Bloomfield, and Malcolm, by the junior four, Cadieux, McFarlane, Clarke and Blackburn. The two teams paddled a dead heat, and then the juniors won after a fierce battle."

THE PERSONAL COLUMN

Mr. Jack Comstock has gone upon a visit to New York and Chicago.

Mrs. Tom Cooley, Aylmer street, is the guest of friends in Norwood.

Mrs. Edward Wade and daughter, Eileen, are visiting friends at Niagara Falls.

Miss Roberts and Miss Fraser, who have been visiting in Rochester, returned home last evening.

Mrs. E. Elliott is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Thomas Barrie, at their cottage at Stony Lake.

Mr. Allen and Mr. Wright are in town for a few days representing the Baxter Advertising Co.

Miss Henderson, of Toronto, who has been visiting Mrs. Dawson Kennedy, has returned home.

Miss Ida Stinson, of Hastings, who has been the guest of Mrs. Barrie, George street, has returned home.

Mrs. J. Skinner, who has been visiting friends in town, returned to her home in Owen Sound teady.

Miss B. Thompson, George street, has returned after spending her vacation in Toronto, Niagara Falls, and Muskoka.

Mr. Broad, of Hamilton, has been added to the staff of the clothing department of the "store that never disappoints."

Miss Williams has returned from Stony Lake, where she has been the guest of Mrs. Brownscombe for the past ten days.

Rev. W. L. Armitage of Picton was in town yesterday on his way to Toronto and London, where he will spend his vacation.

Mr. Harry Roberts, of Toronto, who has been visiting his mother, Mrs. Roberts, Stewart street, returned to Toronto last evening.

Mr. Harry Bletcher, president of the Manitoba College of Pharmacy, who has been spending his vacation in town with his parents, returned to Winnipeg today.

Mr. Arthur Sheria and Mr. Gilbert Sheria, of New York, who have been the guests of Mrs. H. P. Kennedy for the past week, went up to Stony Lake today to spend a week at Viamede.

Mr. Howard Humphries leaves in a few days for Denver, Colorado, to take a position in his uncle's wholesale house. Mr. Humphries will leave many friends behind, who will wish him all kinds of success.

Miss Paisley, who has had charge of the millinery department of A. W. Crossman's store for the past season, and who has been engaged for next season, was in town today, on her way to visit the different wholesales in New York, Buffalo and Toronto.

Mr. Rollie Merrill, who has been spending the past month at his home in Dauphin, Manitoba, returned to town yesterday. During his visit he travelled through a considerable portion of the Province, and states that the farmers expect great crops. Some of them expect to begin harvesting Monday. Reports as to rust are largely overdrawn; there is no more rust than in previous years.

In Women's Favor

Few treatments stand so high in woman's favor as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. This is not only because of the extraordinary control which this preparation has over diseases and weakness peculiar to women, but also because of its power as a tissue builder. By watching yourself while using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food you can prove that new flesh and weight is being added to the body.

MAPLE CREEK LAWN PARTY

Given by Mayor and Mrs. John Dixon.

The Maple Creek Signal of August 11, contains the following reference to a lawn party given by Mayor John Dixon (brother of Mr. A. E. Dixon, of town) and Mrs. Dixon:—

"Mayor and Mrs. John Dixon, and Mr. and Mrs. I. C. Dixon, gave an enjoyable lawn party at their home, on Tuesday evening, at which fully a hundred of our townspeople and a number of visitors from a distance were present. The grounds were lighted by artistically arranged Japanese lanterns, and the play of the lights upon the handsome dresses of the ladies made a most beautiful scene as they moved about the grounds. A large tent contained a daintily prepared luncheon, which came in for its share of attention in due time.

"Later in the evening the company went in doors to be entertained by a musical programme, which was well received.

"A thoroughly enjoyable evening was spent and we congratulate our host and hostess as entertainer."

THE SPIRITUAL RETREAT

COUNTRY'S ANCIENT STATE

INTERESTING FACTS CONCERNING IROQUOIS BEECH IN ONTARIO.

Conditions that Indicate a Very High Level of Water—Gravel Bars Found at Great Heights.

Mr. A. P. Coleman, in the annual report of the Bureau of Mines, has a very interesting paper upon "The Iroquois Beach in Ontario," which calls attention to an ancient state of this country supposed by some to be covered by a huge lake, dammed to the east and south by ranges of mountains, slowly cut away until the present level in the great lakes was reached; while others prefer to think that the beaches were formed by the sea when the land stood lower than now.

NORTH OF TRENT RIVER.

Splendidly formed gravel beaches, evidently made by powerful waves rising in wide stretch of open water to the east and north-east, rise south of the river Trent a short distance from Campbellford; but the corresponding beaches to the north appear to be wanting. Careful search near Havelock has not disclosed any, though kame gravels somewhat suggestive of wave work are found just north and north-east of the village at levels of 454 to 500 feet; none of these, however, are horizontal enough for beaches. Search has also been made north of Blairton station on the C.P.R. with similarly doubtful results. In the former region flat sheets of limestone simulate water levels, but north of Blairton the hills are rounded knobs of Laurentian rock, on which waves could leave little impression, and the sparse drift materials are sand instead of boulder clay, providing poor materials for beach formation.

The same conditions prevail north of Madoc, near Eldorado and Malone, where the ground rises high enough to show the beach, flat limestones capping the higher hills in places, other hills being Laurentian or of the Hastings series. Here, however, there are some slopes of boulder clay, which should have retained the terraces and beaches if they had been formed; but no shore terraces or beach deposits were found, though they are so well marked on the island near West Huntingdon, twelve miles to the south. Unless better success follows later attempts to find the Iroquois beach to the north of Havelock, Blairton and Madoc, we must conclude that in all probability it never existed there at all.

South-west of Havelock, however, about a mile west of Trent Bridge, a distinct gravel bar is found at 475 feet above the river, or 436 above Ontario, while at 455 feet there is a possible beach. About three miles southwest along the north bank of the river there are beaches at 424 and 436 feet, and still nearer Hastings a beach was found at 447 feet (aneroid). Just west of Hastings a gravel deposit of imperfectly rounded stones suggesting river action is found 46 feet above the present river, and similar gravel beds occur farther down the river at about the same or a somewhat less height above it, but these probably have nothing to do with the Iroquois beach.

At the bay leading southwest from the beaches near Campbellford (at 434, 442 and 475 feet) narrow greatly, until at the outlet of the present Rice Lake it is only about a mile wide with steep morainic hills on each side, one can no longer expect to find beach terraces or gravel bars of a well-defined character. If the tilt of the Iroquois shore is taken as three or four feet to the mile in this region the long narrow bay must have reached nearly to the south-western end of Rice Lake basin, though no distinct old shores have been found along this narrow body of water. However, the elevation of the beach north of Port Hope, four miles from the southwest end of Rice Lake, is only 311 feet, leaving a difference of 59 feet between them. As the lake is here very shallow and only 30 feet deep at any point, it is probable that the old bay stopped some short distance short of Bewdley, the end of the present body of water.

From the map it will be seen that the south-west end of Rice Lake is only a few miles from Lake Ontario at Port Hope, so that there was a comparatively narrow isthmus in Iroquois days connecting the large morainic peninsula which projects towards Trenton with the mainland to the west. The range of great morainic hills here sinks almost to the level of Rice Lake, and the people of Port Hope claim that the most satisfactory outlet for a canal from the chain of lakes connected with the Trent river will be towards Lake Ontario at this point instead of by the lower Trent to the Bay of uQinte.

LAKE PETERBOROUGH.

It was thought at first that the old bay corresponding to Rice Lake went an arm up the valley of the Otonjabee river to Peterborough, but an examination of the ground shows that the valley is so narrow and in places so steep-walled between drumlins and moraine ridges that the waters above must be looked on as a separate lake, connected with the bay just described by a short bit of river having but little fall.

Above the short stretch of river lake Peterborough expands to a width of two or three miles west of the Otonabee, and must have covered a wide flat of clay reaching beyond the Midland Railway, with rather indefinite shores where the moraine rises to the west. The lake narrows toward Peterborough, and the deposits become sandy, and finally gravel terraces rise above the flat at the upper end where a great river, probably draining the upper lakes or lake of those days, entered it from the north. The plain of stratified sand is at the level of 388 feet, where the C.P.R. station stands, but ascends to 404 feet at the Grand Trunk station. The highest point in Peterborough, occupied by a park and Court House, is a drumlin which formed an island at the upper end of the lake; and a little above this present river banks show stratified coarse gravel representing the upper limit of delta deposits formed by the old river, one terrace rising to a height of 432 feet.

Below Peterborough the present Otonabee (which is really the Trent above Rice Lake), has done very little cutting, its valley being hardly at all depressed below the clay plain mentioned bove, but it has a rapid descent above the city. The new lift lock of the canal, which overcomes a rise of 65 feet, is placed in the high morainic hills to the east of the river, and the canal below is at the level of the old lake flat.

CANADIAN KILTIES BAND

Is About to Sail for British Isles on Concert Tour.

The Canadian public are very much interested in the fact that the Kilties Band of Belleville, Canada, is about to sail for the British Isles on a concert tour. The Belleville organization has been touring Canada, United States and Mexico for the past four years and has met with much success. It was the only Canadian band honored with an engagement at the World's Fair, St. Louis. The City Council and Board of Trade of the City of Belleville has granted a large sum of money with which to give the boys a grand send-off, as Belleville will be in its glory on September 9th, when they will have a demonstration, reception and banquet in honor of the Kilties. They sail from Montreal on the Dominion Line Sept. 10th. The Kilties have done much to advertise Canada during the past four years and as they are the first Canadian band to cross the water on a concert tour, all Canadians are very anxious that they be welcomed loyally.

DEMOCRACY IN CHINA.

Change In the Relations Between the People and the Dynasty.

A marked change has taken place in the relation between the dynasty and the people in China, according to a paper by Harold Boice in the Booklovers' Magazine. At one time officials exacted commodities from merchants at rates ruinously below their actual value. It was euphemistically called selling at "mandarin prices." Now all that officials and nobles wear or eat—everything they use in any of the arts of peace or in ceremonial rites—is paid for at the market price.

Formerly when princes traveled the people were burdened to pay the expenses of their journey. The tidings of their coming spread consternation. Today when a prince makes a pilgrimage through the empire the taxes along the route of his itinerary are in many cases remitted as a special act of official chivalry.

In other ways more intimate relations are developed constantly between the populace and the governing classes. Many of the penal laws of China have been modified. From a maximum hundred blows of the bamboo the agonizing limit has been reduced to forty and during the hot months to thirty-two.

Formerly when a criminal deserving capital punishment was caught in China no member of his family survived to grieve over his disgrace. Extermination was grewsomely dealt out to all his kindred. This wholesale extirpation has been checked, and if a criminal happens to be an only child he is kept alive and compelled to support the parents he has dishonored.

Japanese Pharmacy.

Japanese druggists are of two classes, the one certificated and qualified to compound medicines, the other dealing in drugs and sundries. The native doctors for the most part dispense their own medicines, though a few write prescriptions. The metric system is used for both weights and measures. There is a considerable popular demand for household remedies, and many of these correspond exactly with those which have here long since fallen into disuse. Thus snakes, lizards, frogs, crabs and other animals are kept in a dried condition in the native drug stores and enjoy more or less repute as medicinal agents.

Face paints and powders and various dentifrices are much in vogue, and plasters to relieve headache and neuralgia are largely employed. Massage is used in rheumatism and in nervous affections and is to a large extent in the hands of the blind. The manufacture of mineral waters is carefully supervised by the authorities, and fines are inflicted in any case where the official standard of purity is departed from.

War and Disease.

There is no doubt that if the war with Russia is long protracted there will be an immense amount of disease with which to deal. When the rainy season set in, considering the unsanitary state of the towns in Manchuria, typhoid fever will become rife, and it is not unlikely that plague and beriberi may attack the troops. Beriberi is a disease to which the Japanese are susceptible, and plague is a malady more prevalent in China than in any other country. The work before the medical organizations of both Russian and Japanese armies bids fair to tax their respective capabilities to the utmost. But, judging from the accounts of the Japanese military medical service, it should at least be relied upon to cope with any situation presenting itself with credit.—Medical Record.

Duck In a Deadly Form.

A short time ago the death was announced of Comte Leon de Laubespin from the effects of eating a dish of duck a la rouennaise. Duck a la rouennaise is considered very deadly during the hot season for the following reasons: In order to prepare the dish according to the recognized rules the duck must be killed by suffocation. It happens, therefore, that the blood coagulates in the body of the bird in such a manner that no amount of cooking suffices to sterilize it. In hot, stormy weather this coagulated blood would decompose and contain sufficient poison to kill any one eating of the dish. The moral of the story would appear to be, Don't have your ducks cooked a la rouennaise.—Paris Messenger.

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

Copyright, 1904, by Duncan M. Smith.

IT ALWAYS FOLLOWS.

To me it often really seems
That there is something weird in dreams.

They plague my soul and wring my heart
And make my gentle spirit smart.

I writhe in anguish and dismay
Then wake to lie and long for day.

Again I sleep to dream again
Of things unseen of waking men.

To live through horrors black and drear
Enough to sadden all the year,

To moan, while all my veins congeal,
At what my haunting dreams reveal,

To wake again and strive to keep
A languid watch till dawn shall peep.

When in the morning I arise,
My suffering I can't disguise.

Then says my wife, with touch of scorn
As she regards my face forlorn

(I hate to meet her searching eyes),
"You will eat lobster though you die."

The Merry Harvest Hand.

Did you ever notice that distance lends enchantment to the harvest field? To get out in the early, morning, while the dew is yet on the grass and shock about seventeen acres of oats along with the merry harvest hands is certainly alluring enough to look at it in the picture, and the wise man will let it stay there unless necessity or some gentleman with a gun drives him into the harvest field.

A coat of tan accumulated at the sea shore is quite as pretty to look upon as one acquired through wrestling with a pitchfork, and the process is not nearly so well calculated to break one's heart.

Of course the $2.50 a day and board that goes with the excursion to the harvest field is a nice thing to have, but there is always the chance at the seashore that one may be discovered and adopted by a millionaire's daughter and thus clear up more in one season than would be possible working steadily for forty years in the harvest field. Stick to the seashore. The harvest will be gathered in somehow.

Literary.

"What is your husband's favorite book?"

"Chips that pass in the night, I guess."

So Annoying.

The rubbernecks annoyed her so
As on the sidewalk in a row
They waited for the maiden shy
And eyed her as she passed by.

But truth to tell I'm quite afraid
It much more had annoyed the maid
If as she passed from day to day
No man at all had looked her way.

What Other Object?

"When I married you you did not have a cent to your name and hardly more than one dress, and now you must have a new gown every month."

"Goodness, don't I know it. Do you suppose I would have married you if I had had money of my own?"

The Aftercap.

To sit and spoon is very sweet
With some young girl demure and neat,
But when you have to buy her clothes
And pay for all she wants to eat,
It isn't, as you may suppose,
So great a treat.

Cautious.

"Do you think it is right to kiss a girl you are not engaged to."

"It may be right, but it isn't safe. She is liable to land you before you get away."

Stood the Test.

He loved her. Who could doubt it?
He proved it sure enough.
He listened to her poems
And said they were great stuff.

ECZEMA ON LEG
FOR TEN YEARS
Would Scratch Till the Blood Flowed—Entirely Cured by Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Mrs. Hiram Frey, Norwood, Ont., states— "I was troubled for ten years with eczema on one leg. The itching was terrible, and when scratched the blood would come. The doctors could not cure me. Fortunately I heard of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and its persistent use has completely cured me. There is now no trace of the disease left.

My little girl two years old, has also been cured of Eczema by Dr. Chase's Ointment. Her face was a mass of sores and we had to bandage her hands to keep her from scratching it. Today her face is clear of even the scars which the ugly sores made, and she is thoroughly cured. I am glad of an opportunity to let people know what a blessing Dr. Chase's Ointment has proved itself to us."

WHEN BOYS WERE MEN

By JOHN HABBERTON,

Author of "Helen's Babies," "George Washington," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1904, BY JOHN HABBERTON

Meanwhile each horse was looking out for No. 1. The horse is a wedge shaped animal, and each of our four footed wedges pushed his head and shoulders between those of horses in front of him. This gave the animals absolute rest as well as safety while their riders were fighting.

The major turned to the rear, first cautioning his captains to maintain the pressure, and soon we heard him say:

"Two rear companies dismount! Third company deploy on the right; fourth on the left! Pepper their rear with carbines as long as there's a man of them in the saddle! Aim carefully! Be careful not to hit our own men!"

This promised sickening slaughter, for our men with their carbines could get within 100 yards of the most distant Johnny and do a great deal of harm before the enemy could dismount and fire more than a single shot. Probably the enemy would follow our example as soon as they saw what we were up to, if any of them were left after we had given them a volley or two. This is not a joke. Our Sharp carbines were as true as sporting rifles. For several months we had been taught, when fighting dismounted with carbines or revolvers, to shoot from a rest whenever possible, and our practice shooting showed that anywhere within point blank range we could shoot well.

At the major's orders three men of every set of fours in the last two companies dismounted and hurried to trees, logs had fences near the creek.

"Now, men," said the major to us, "as soon as they begin to fire and clear away the rear you press upon the advance with all your might. If we drive them off the bridge, divide, right and left, as soon as you get across and ride down their flanks, and we'll capture every mother's son of them who's alive."

This seemed practicable, and I hoped it might begin at once. Had there been no other reason, it would be vastly pleasanter to take a lot of prisoners into camp than to bury an equal number of Confederate dead, for burial party duty stays in one's mind.

"Why don't those skirmishers begin firing?" shouted the major, though it was not easy to hear him above the horrid din on the bridge.

"Crack!" went one of our carbines. I reined my horse toward the edge of the road to see when the enemy's rear should become weak enough for the pressure to begin.

"Crack, crack, crack!" sounded in rapid succession, but the sounds were not like the report of revolver or carbine. Something new was occurring on the bridge, for all the men, both gray and blue, seemed to press to one side. A second or two later that entire bridge, containing 40 or 50 Union troopers and as many Confederates, went down with a crash and a splash into the creek below.

Here was the unexpected again, and a great deal of it, too, so I looked anxiously at the major to see what he was going to do about it. He didn't seem a bit puzzled. On the contrary, the bridge had scarcely fallen when he roared:

"Skirmishers cover the road on the other side of the bridge! Don't let a reb get away! Second company dismount; lie down along the edge of the bank! Cover every reb trying to get out of the water and order him to come ashore here!"

Out of their saddles dropped Nos. 1, 2 and 3 of each set of fours in our troop, and in less than half a minute each had picked out for himself a gray target in the great gully below. The skirmishers had already begun to blaze away at the gray targets on the other side of the bridge, but the Johnnies, like sensible soldiers, broke right and left into the woods, left their horses pretty well sheltered from fire by the standing timber and then took cover themselves behind the trees nearest the creek and began to operate exactly according to our tactics, firing on our skirmishers and trying to secure prisoners from the struggling mass below. We were the stronger in numbers and weapons, but nature gave the enemy one immense advantage. As members of the Potomac army will remember, creeks on the Virginia coast almost invariably have one bank high and steep and one which is low and shelving, and where we were fighting the steep bank was on our side.

Our fellows could not easily get out, much less drag out prisoners, but the Johnnies had scampered up their own side before all of us were in position to fire. Some, too, whose horses had been hit or who had dropped their guns during the tumble had the presence of mind to take Yankee carbines or horses with them. One had the impudence to lead away two of our horses, including the forage, blankets and overcoats strapped upon the saddles, and he sheltered himself so skillfully with one of the animals that none of the bullets aimed at him seemed to hit. On the other hand, when one of our fellows tried to climb the bank on our side, perhaps with revolver in hand, trying to drive an unarmed prisoner in front of him, he was a capital mark for the other side to shoot at, and if he was hit his prisoner would generally change his own mind and hurry back to his friends, taking with him the wounded man's revolver and carbine as a memento. Such a dash required him to wade the creek, but the water was not very deep, and a man who had once been wet did not seem to mind a little additional soaking.

Suddenly the major, who had been closely eying all that had occurred, passed the word from man to man along the irregular line of kneeling, crouching or flat lying skirmishers that at the word of command all should drop over the bank, ford the creek, press the enemy as closely as possible and try to drive them to the left of the road. Two miles away on that side was another road by which we rightly imagined they would hurry for home should they think us too many for them. Men without carbines were warned to have their revolvers fully loaded before crossing.

It took two or three minutes for captains, lieutenants and sergeants to pass this word along, but when the major roared "Forward!" over we went. The excitement of the jump was intensified by our sabers. Many of us had made long jumps from barn roofs or brick piles or builders' scaffoldings when we were young, but our sabers hadn't. There's nothing adaptive about a saber anyway, so these weapons mixed themselves with our legs in a most alarming manner. We found the water quite as wet as any I had ever stepped into, and the bottom was not as hard and smooth as we would have liked. It made our legs feel overheavy, too, as we went up the opposite bank with our boots full of water, but it was no time and place to call for towels and dry trousers.

"Forward!"

"Forward!" again shouted the major, who had waded the stream with us as unconcernedly as if he were not wearing his $20 trousers. "Forward!" he continued to repeat about once a second, and "Forward!" shouted each captain after him.

The Johnnies were brave fellows, but they weren't fools. They began to see that we could fire several shots to their one, and the fighting was at such close quarters that the instant one of them fired his muzzle loader a Yank was upon him demanding his surrender before he could reload. Soon they allowed us to chase them through the forest, and, as they were better woodsmen than we, they got away quite rapidly, taking with them, besides the prisoners they had already sent to their rear, one or two of our men who were a trifle too expert in the chase. When their firing slackened to scattering shots and finally ceased, our bugle sounded the recall, and we were sent back to cross the stream for our horses, which were led one by one down a path hastily broken and dug in the steep bank with fragments of the broken bridge and then up the opposite slope.

ST. LAWRENCE TRAGEDY

Sail Boat Upset in River and Four Were Drowned.

The Fifth Man of the Party, After Struggling in the Water For Two Hours With the Aid of An Oar, Was Rescued —Three of the Victims Were Employees of the Government at Ottawa.

Quebec, Aug. 23.—Notre Dame Du-Portage, a well known watering place, several miles west of River Du Loup, was the scene yesterday afternoon of an appalling boating calamity, resulting in the loss of four lives and the narrow escape of a fifth. The victims were Didater Dion, Willerod Fraser, both of Ottawa, and Ovide Laforest of St. Andre, Kamouraska, and his son. Edward Cusson, also of Ottawa, was the fifth man of the party, and managed to escape, though not before having had a two hours' struggle in the water.

The party left early in the morning for the Pilgrims, a small island, about six miles distant, in a sailboat, to which was also attached a rowboat. On their way home Fraser thought he noticed a seal in the water and fired at it with a revolver. Some of the other occupants turned sharply around and in some way upset the boat.

An effort was made by all to reach the small boat. It also capsized. The first to go down was the elder Laforest, and he was soon followed by Fraser, Dion and the younger Laforest. Cusson managed to reach an oar belonging to the small boat and with this managed to keep afloat till rescued by some people from the shore. Laforest was the father of seven children. Dion and Fraser were both married men, and with Cusson were employed at the Public Works Department in Ottawa.

Boat Capsized.

Edmonton, N. W. T., Aug. 23.—A drowning accident occurred Sunday afternoon in Cooking Lake, a summer resort, near here. Dr. J. S. McLean, dentist, of Edmonton, and three others were out sailing on the lake when the boat capsized, Dr. McLean being drowned.

Killed Stealing Ride.

Port Hope, Aug. 23.—Joseph Smith and his brother, both residents of Cobourg, were stealing a ride westward on a freight train yesterday. When near Port Granby Joseph Smith fell from the train and was run over, being killed instantly. The remains were brought to Port Hope. Smith had worked in Oshawa until recently.

Student Drowned.

Watford, Aug. 23.—Joseph Hall, a young medical student at the Western University, London, was drowned in Bear Creek, townline of Brook and Enniskillen, on Sunday afternoon while in bathing. He was 26 years of age and leaves a wife and young child. The body was recovered yesterday morning.

Father Brault Killed.

Montreal, Aug. 23.—Father Brault, one of the best-known parish priests in the diocese of Montreal, was accidentally killed at the C.P.R. station at Mile End yesterday morning. Father Brault, had come into the city to get his train for Quebec, and was in the act of crossing between two coaches, when they were backed together and he was thrown under the wheels. One wheel passed over his legs, above the knees, almost completely severing them. He died while being taken to the hospital.

Dynamite Cap Stands Boy.

Peterboro, Aug. 23.—While playing with an unexploded dynamite cap in the rear of his home, Floyd, the 11-year-old son of Mr. Sager, met with a serious accident, which resulted in his losing the sight of one eye, and suffering severe injuries to his head, face and chest. The lad struck the dynamite cap with a hammer.

Lost in the Woods.

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 23.—Two children of Joe Collins, of the Mission near Fort William, disappeared last Monday. The family were camping out seven miles from the Mission, and the girl, 16 years of age, and the boy, 12 years of age, were picking berries in the bush and lost their way. On Friday the girl found her way home, after being out night and day in the bush since Monday. She is seriously ill. A search party is out scouring the woods for the little boy.

Hit By a Train.

Port Arthur, Aug. 23.—A man named Mullins was brought up from Red Sucker Sunday night. He was working on a trestle and was struck by a train. He was seriously injured, a number of bones being broken.

Miss Sutton May Die.

Hamilton, Aug. 23.—Yesterday morning Miss Annie Sutton, daughter of John Sutton, 223 South Queen street, was reproved by her mother. She went upstairs, and a short time after her mother found her unconscious. She had taken a dose of carbolic acid. The doctors have not very great hopes of saving her life. She is 18 years of age.

Boy Swallowed Lye.

Ottawa, Aug. 23.—Thinking that it was some kind of a drink, left for him by his mother, and not knowing it to be a deadly poison, Paul Soure, a 7-year-old son of a farmer living at Sebastopool, a village 16 miles from Eganaville, put a cup of lye to his lips, swallowed the contents, and is now in a dangerous condition.

Big British Apple Crop.

Ottawa, Aug. 23.—Peter Ball, Canadian commercial agent at Birmingham, writes that although fruits were considerably damaged in Britain early in the spring, the crop of apples will be much larger than last year. Canadian shippers should therefore exercise more than the usual care. Only the highest grades should be shipped Resumption at the Soo.

Sault Ste. Marie, Aug. 23.—The Lake Superior Co. is gradually resuming operations. Not the least important is the resumption of construction work on the Algoma Central and Hudson Bay Railway, after a suspension lasting since a year ago last fall. The Algoma Steel Company is practically ready to resume operations. It is expected that by the first of the coming month all departments will be in commission. An official of the steel plant says: "We will be in a position to compete for all Canadian orders and expect the price to range between $26 and $30 per ton."

BUSH FIRES RAGE IN B.C.

Twelve Miles of Country in Flames at Wulffshone Bay.

Five Thousand Acres Belonging to a Toronto Company in Midst of the Conflagration—This Company Are the Principal Losers — Logging Camps Burned—No Sign of Rain to Stay Progress of Flames.

Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 23.—Official sources give the loss of standing timber to date at $3,000,000.

The principal losers are the Toronto and British Columbia Lumber Company, with headquarters in Toronto. Five thousand acres of limits belonging to this company, at Wulffshone Bay, are reported to be in flames.

Other limits being destroyed in the same locality are those owned by the British Columbia Timber and Trading Company, 2,000 acres, and the Moodyville Mill Company, while the limits of the Brunette Saw Mills are threatened.

On many of the islands in the gulf the timber is in flames, fanned by a sweep of the wind, while blazing timber on Vancouver Island and in Kootenay is threatening Hattmen's with destruction.

There is yet no sign of rain. Unless it comes soon the loss will be enormous.

Yesterday Moses Ireland's logging camp at Bull's Point, and Bull's logging camp at Serge Inlet were wiped out by the flames. The loss is $10,000.

The engines and outfits of the Hastings Saw Mill were saved by a tenic ride through a blazing fire at Wulfshone Bay.

Twelve miles of country is now in flames there.

CHURCH UPSIDE DOWN.

Two Dead, Four Fatally Hurt, 30 Injured and Buildings Wrecked.

Watertown, S.D., Aug. 23.—A severe windstorm swept over a region in Hamlin County, in the northeast part of South Dakota, Friday night, killing a man named Erickson, of Willow Lake, and Mrs. H. Schilling, of Bryant, and injuring thirty persons. Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Smith, of Willow Lake, and Mrs. Schilling's son and daughter were probably fatally injured.

The greatest damage was done at Willow Lake and Bryant. At Willow Lake every building was damaged. Three churches, a schoolhouse and all the elevators and livery barns are in ruins.

The Great Northern depot was thrown across the railroad track and seventeen box cars were turned bottomside up. The Methodist Church is upside down in the parsonage.

The loss to farmers by damage to their crops will be heavy.

BRITISH GUNBOAT ON ROCKS.

Columbine, Newfoundland Patrol Boat, May Be a Total Loss.

St. John's, Nfld., Aug. 23.—The British gunboat Columbine, one of the vessels of the squadron patrolling the Newfoundland fisheries, struck on a rock yesterday in Snooks Arm, Green Bay, and it is feared that she will become a total wreck.

The whaling vessel Cabot vainly tried to pull the Columbine off the rock.

The gunboat Fantome left here last night to try to re-float the Columbine, and if that should be found impossible, to save her gear.

OUR CHEESE IN BRITAIN.

Hon. Thomas Ballantyne Just Returned From England.

Stratford, Aug. 23.—Hon. Thomas Ballantyne has arrived home from his trip to Scotland and England. He is in the best of health and enjoyed the trip immensely.

Speaking of the dairy trade, he said that demoralization in cheese prices was caused by the old cheese overlapping the new, and preference being given to the old by the consuming public.

Notwithstanding that receipts of new cheese were a third less than usual at this season, there was no great demand for it, and the July weather being exceptionally warm in London, much of the new goods, although very fine and arriving in exceptionally good condition, was spoiled by the heat.

CANADIAN SENT BACK.

Arrived in New York From Belgium and Refused Landing.

London, Aug. 23.—(C.A.P.)—A Canadian workman of Belgian birth has complained to the Belgian Foreign Minister against the New York authorities. He states he has been a resident of Montreal for years and has there an installation plant capable of procuring the means of livelihood for himself and family. He recently visited his native country, and, returning to Canada, purchased a ticket to Montreal via New York. Arriving at the latter port he passed his baggage through the customs, and also passed the examination of the sanitary authorities, but instead of being allowed to continue his journey was detained for thirteen days on Ellis Island and then sent back to Antwerp.

The prices for exporters ranged all the way from $4.40 to $5.15, only one load bringing the latter price, and only six or seven loads bringing over $5 per cwt. The bulk of shippers sold at $4.60 to $4.90 per cwt. Export bulls sold from $3.80 to $4.25. Export cows sold from $3.65 to $4 per cwt.

There were few of the choice heavy heifers, such as have been taken for export, these weighing from 1100 to 1200 lbs. each, and they were worth about $4.60 to $4.75 per cwt.

Loads of good butchers' sold at $4.25 to $4.40 per cwt.; fair to good, at $4 to $4.25; medium, $3.85 to $4; common mixed lots, at $3.60 to $3.80; fair to good cows, at $3.25 to $3.50; rough to inferior, at $2.50 to $3 per cwt.

A few lots of short-keep feeders, 1100 to 1200 lbs. each, sold as high as $4.50 per cwt.; and some rough, light stockers, 475 lbs. each, at $2.85 per cwt.

Lambs sold at $4.75 to $5 per cwt., and sheep at $3.75 per cwt.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

Montreal, Aug. 22.—About 600 head of butchers' cattle, 8 milch cows, 75 calves and 500 sheep and lambs were offered for sale at the East End Abattoir to-day. A fair trade was done at slightly higher prices all around.

About a score of the best cattle sold at 5¼c per lb.; good medimus at 5¼c to 4¼c; ordinary mediums at 3¾c to 3¾c, and the common stock at 2¼c to 3c.

Calves sold at $2.50 to $7 each.

Shipping sheep brought 3½c, and the others 3c to 3¼c per lb.; lambs sold at $2.25 to $4.25 each, or 4c to 4½c per lb.

Fat hogs were scarce, and sold at 4⅞c to 5¼c per lb.

The Liver to Blame

So long as the liver is active in filtering the bile from the blood there is no biliousness and no constipation, because the bile is passed from the liver into the intestines where it acts as a cathartic in keeping the bowels active. Because of their direct action on the liver on itself as the bowels, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills thoroughly cure constipation, the real cause of nine-tenths of the common ills of life.

Summer Prices FOR Winter Garments

The last month of Summer—August—is a good time to buy Furs. It is known to be a good time. Prices as a rule are lower, because the dealer is anticipating the season.

It is a good time—in fact the best—to order Furs. Because it affords time in which to make them up with care and without the haste that comes with the winter season.

Our show rooms are open. You can view the winter's styles. They are all here. Orders are taken based on the styles we show. It's worth a look at any rate, even if you do not buy, and you are never pressed to do so. All we know about Furs is at your service.

LETTERS OF CONDOLENCE

FORWARDED TO MR. W. A. KINDRED ON HIS BEREAVEMENT.

Letters From Royal Scarlet Chapel of West Peterboro and of Diamond Orange Lodge No. 80.

were ordered by L. O. L. No. 80, and the Scarlet Chapter, to be forwarded to Mr. W. A. Kindred on the recent death of his wife, and a committee consisting of Messrs. R. B. McGill, Geo. Redding and W. H. G. Armstrong, from L.O.L. No. 80, and Messrs. Jas. Garside, Wm. O. Bartley and Robert Wilson from the Royal Scarlet Chapter, waited on Mr. Kindred last evening, and presented him with the resolutions.

To W. Bro. W. A. Kindred, C. M., Peterborough, Ont.:

Dear Sir and Brother,—We, the officers and members of Diamond Loyal Orange Lodge, No. 80, hereby extend to you our sincere and heartfelt sympathy in the sore bereavement and grievous loss which you have sustained by the sad, untimely death of your beloved companion and wife.

We realize how feeble any words of ours are to relieve the burden of sorrow so suddenly thrust upon you, but hope that the expression of our sympathy may in some measure comfort you at the present trying time. You have the great consolation of knowing that she who has so lately been summoned from your side was prepared for the call to enter into that joy which awaits all true Christians, and although you will long miss "the touch of a vanished hand and the sound of a voice that is still," you will be comforted by the hope of a happy reunion, knowing that God, who ordaineth the universe, doeth all things good to them that love Him.

We pray that He who hath borne our griefs and carried our sorrows will sustain you through life and grant unto you and yours that peace which He alone is able to give.

Signed on behalf of the Lodge,

R. B. McGILL,
Worshipful Master.
W. G. H. ARMSTRONG,
Recording Secretary.

Peterborough, Aug. 22nd, 1904.

To Companion W. A. Kindred, Peterborough, Ont.—

Dear Companion Kindred,—We, the officers and companions of the Royal Scarlet Chapter of West Peterborough, beg to tender to you our profound sorrow and sympathy in the great loss which you and your family have suffered in the painful dispensation which has removed from your hearth a kind and loving wife and an affectionate mother. The virtues she possessed were such as to endear her not only to yourself and family, but to every member of the community in which she lived.

You will miss your loved one, but will have the comforting assurance of knowing that, guided by the hand of an All-wise Providence, you will meet her in the home prepared for all those who during this life have faithfully served their God.

We know that human sympathy affords but little comfort in such a sad bereavement, but we commend you to a kind and loving Saviour, whose grace will sustain in every trial, and as a slight balm of human consolation would add the words of Longfellow, who hath said:

"There is no death; what seems so is transition.
This life of mortal breath,
Is but a suburb of the life Elysian,
Whose portals we call death."

Signed on behalf of the Chapter,

W. H. G. ARMSTRONG,
Worshipful Companion in Command.
JAMES GARSIDE,
Companion Scribe.

DOINGS IN POLICE COURT

STANGE INDIVIDUAL WHO DID NOT KNOW WHERE HE WAS.

Came From Brockville and Expected a Doctor to Drive him Back—A Case of Cruelty to Animals.

A rather interesting character appeared before Police Magistrate Dumble in Police Court this morning. He was a rather wild-eyed looking individual, dressed throughout in black clothes that had seen better days, and most unfortunate in that his two legs had been severed, and their place was taken by artificial limbs, which, however, served their purpose not too badly.

"Where did you come from?" asked the Magistrate as the man stood up, charged with vagrancy.

"From Brockville, sir," was the reply.

"You are charged with being a vagrant; are you guilty or not guilty?" was the next question.

"I don't know that I am a vag," he answered. "I haven't been out of work in six weeks."

"What are you doing here?" was the interrogation.

"Why, where am I; how do I know here I am?" said the man, and he looked around with a bewildered air.

"What took you to Peterborough.

"Well, I went over to Peterborough to see the Edison Electric Works; thought I might get a job making cores, but couldn't get nothing. Went to half a dozen places, and I was sitting over here on a C.P.R. truck, when your man came along and gathered me in. I didn't know I was a vag."

"What brought you here, anyhow?"

"You did," was the reply, and there was a smoker.

"What's your name?"

"Joseph Ryan."

"Are you married?"

The man didn't seem to understand the question, but finally the Magistrate got out of him a reply that seemed to indicate that his wife was working in a "hash house," as he called it, in Belleville, and that a little girl was living with her parents. "We haven't lived together for a few years," he said, "as her old man and woman didn't seem to take a fancy to me."

"Can you get back to Brockville?"

"Certainly I can. There's a doctor waiting outside to drive me over to St. Vincent de Paul hospital." He saw that some doubt existed as to his meaning, and he told the court to look out of the window and they would see the doctor there.

"How are you going to get to Brockville?" asked the Magistrate.

"I am going to drive over with the doctor; he fixed me up this morning before I came here," he replied.

"How did you lose your legs?"

"I had them cut off up at Little York," three years ago. The railway gave me $4 a week for twelve months, but I don't get any now except what I earn. Yes, the doctor fixed me up this morning—I was in my coffin and everything—dead and buried." The man said some other wandering things, and the Magistrate told him he wasn't wanted in town, and he was remanded for a week. The intention was to put him on a train for Brockville.

Two cases of drunk and disorderly were punished, one by a fine of $5.75, and the other $4.60.

CRUELTY TO ANIMALS.

A young lad was charged with having ill-treated a dog. The Magistrate read him a lesson, pointing out that it was an inhuman thing for a boy to do to expect a dog to pull him round in a cart, when the animal was not properly fed, and to ill-treat him when the animal refused to work. A dog, said he, should be treated with just as much care as a boy, and he imposed a fine of $2.

STEALING APPLES.

Two young boys were charged with stealing apples. The complainant was not present, nor was the counsel for the Children's Aid. The Magistrate reminded the boys that it was no part of their many apparent privileges to take what did not belong to them. Other people's apples were not on the free list, and it was an infringement of the law to take what was not one's own. The boys said they were not guilty, but promised to be good in future, and the Magistrate let them go.

INJURED A TREE.

A Scotch lad did some injury to a shade tree in Ashburnham with his jack-knife the other day. He is a recent arrival from the Old Country, and did not know the law in regard to shade trees. The chief would impress the fact that it is a serious offence for any person to cause damage of this kind.

Brevities.

—A meeting of the shareholders of the Cold Storage Company was held yesterday but the report given today was, "Nothing for publication; perhaps next week there will be something doing."

—One-fifth of a cent a cup is certainly an economical drink, and yet this is all that "Salada" Ceylon Tea costs. One pound costing 40 cents, at drinking over 250 cups of the purest and most delicious tea in the world.

WINTER WHEAT SHORTAGE

SURE TO HAVE ITS EFFECT ON THE MILLING INDUSTRY.

Price of Flour may go up—It may Effect Export Business of Ontario Millers.

The shortage of winter wheat, as indicated by the crop report of the Ontario Government, is certain to have an important effect on the milling industry of the Province, says the Toronto News. The yield is estimated at 9,800,000 bushels, against 17,208,000 bushels last year. It is calculated that the supply of available wheat for milling purposes will be only one-third of what it was in 1903. The requirements of the domestic trade will absorb the entire yield of the Province, and there will be little or no Ontario grain to grind for export. The deficiency, however, will be made up by an increased employment of Manitoba wheat in the mills of Ontario. In this connection, a statement by Mr. P. R. Miller, flour exporter, of the Toronto Board of Trade, is of interest.

CONDITIONS OF TRADE.

"It is likely that 9,000,000 bushels of winter wheat will be quite sufficient for the needs of the Ontario millers during the coming season," he said. "The conditions of the trade have greatly changed during the past few years, and the blending of flour has become a more and more important feature of the industry. Millers have recently been using twenty-five to fifty per cent. of Manitoba wheat, and have succeeded in producing an excellent quality of flour as a result of the mixture. Indeed, conditions are such that it is preferable to use the hard wheat for even pastry flour. The limit of the millers' activity has really been increased, because a shortage of the Ontario grain means that he will use more of the Western wheat.

EXPORTS IN OTHER YEARS.

"Fifteen years ago the Ontario millers sent large quantities of soft wheat flours to Winnipeg and the West. At that time the hard wheat was useful only for bread-making purposes. Of late years, however, improvements in milling have removed the necessity on the part of the Western consumers, of buying Ontario flour. They are able to make their flour answer all purposes, and now they find it superior to that ground from soft wheat. As the knowledge of the methods of making this flour improves, the demand for it in that country increases. The Ontario miller has been able to imitate these methods, to his own advantage and to the benefit of the trade generally.

"The net result has been to make the millers in the Province more independent of conditions surrounding the yield of winter wheat. The consumer of flour in Great Britain has been educated to appreciate the blended product, and the demand for it there is constantly increasing. The deficiency in the production of strictly soft wheat flours in the Province will be made up by an increased trade in blended flour."

MR. CAMPBELL'S VIEW.

"The millers suffer to a greater extent than the farmers when there is a shortage of wheat," said Mr. Knox M. Campbell, manager of the Queen City Flour Mills, when asked as to the probable effect of the shortage of winter wheat on the milling industry.

"From all accounts," continued Mr. Campbell, "the yield is estimated at about 9,000,000 bushels of winter wheat. This will be barely enough to supply the Ontario demand."

"It depends greatly on the Manitoba wheat crop, whether there will be much export business done by Ontario millers. If the crop is good up there we can draw extensively on that Province for a supply."

"Will the employing of Manitoba wheat result in an increase in the price of flour and in the price of bread?" was asked.

"I can't say anything about the price of bread, because we don't bake it. But, certainly, if Manitoba wheat is used to grind into flour the price of the latter commodity must be increased."

PERFORMED BRAVE DEED

Two Members of M'Master Band at Port Hope.

Two members of the McMaster Band, which, it will be remembered, held services here a few weeks ago, performed an act of bravery in Port Hope Saturday. The Guide says:—

"While Mr. H. R. Nobles and Mr. J. A. Hilts, members of the McMaster Band, were out driving on Saturday, they drove by the electric light plant. Passing by the creek near the plant, they rescued a horse and four children from drowning. The children attempted to pass through the water instead of crossing the bridge, but because of the recent rains having swollen the stream the horse was carried off his feet by the current.

"Mr. Nobles heroically plunged into the creek and succeeded in separating the horse from the rig and in bringing the children safely to shore.

"While performing this feat of bravery the young evangelist ruined a good suit of clothes and lost a valuable ruby ring. Mr. Nobles did not consider the loss of the ring or the destruction of the clothes any sacrifice, being only too glad to assist those needing his help."

The case of Miss Frankie Orser, of Boston, Mass., is interesting to all women.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I suffered misery for several years. My back ached and I had bearing-down pains, and frequent headaches. I would often wake from a restful sleep in such pain and misery that it would be hours before I could close my eyes again. I dreaded the long nights and weary days. I could do no work. I consulted different physicians hoping to get relief, but, finding that their medicines did not cure me, I tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it was highly recommended to me. I am glad that I did so, for I soon found that it was the medicine for my case. Very soon I was rid of every ache and pain and restored to perfect health. I feel splendid, have a fine appetite, and have gained in weight a lot."—MISS FRANKIE ORSER, 14 Warrenton St., Boston, Mass.—$5000 forfeit if original of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced.

Surely you cannot wish to remain weak, sick and discouraged, and exhausted with each day's work. Some derangement of the feminine organs is responsible for this exhaustion, following any kind of work or effort. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you just as it has thousands of other women.

BOUGHT GUERNSEY CALF

Mr. T. M. Hunter Will Raise Animal for Breeding Purposes.

Mr. T. M. Hunter, North Monaghan, has purchased from the farm of Hon. Sydney Fisher, a fine Guernsey bull calf, 14 months old. The Guernseys are a breed of cattle fast coming into favor. There are out four herds in Canada, and reports are that their milk has great richness. The mother of Mr. Hunter's purchase has a record of 50 pounds of milk per day, with 5 1-2 per cent. of butter fat. The Guernseys are larger than are Ayrshires or Jerseys, the bull calf weighing 250 pounds. It is Mr. Hunter's purpose to raise the animal for breeding purposes.

The Golden Lion
A Busy Store
Even in August

Its part of our creed to "keep everlastingly at it," and keep the business constantly in evidence regardless of extreme heat or extreme cold.

Constantly increasing business talks—and talks loud for a store. No argument is necessary to prove that our store is giving satisfaction, in measure full heaped and running over, to the people of the town and county of Peterborough, and surrounding townships, other than to point to the continually larger number of ladies who are making it their shopping place.

A store's success has to be merited, as our's has been. It must give a little better goods, a little better value, have a little newer styles, or give a little fairer treatment than the others.

If we had not had these "little betters" our trade would not have increased to the extent it has over this time last year.

Figures cannot deceive. Test this store's ability to serve you.

THE LAST OF SUMMER FABRICS AND GARMENTS

have been stood up in a row, and made to take their medicine, in the shape of rigid reductions from the old prices.

The store is in the midst of fall now, and Summer Goods are unwelcome, so they have all been given "move out" prices.

BATTLESHIP SEVASTOPOL IS DAMAGED

Another Mishap to Russia's Existing Fleet.

SEVERAL FORTS HAVE FALLEN

Japs Continue Their Pounding of Port Arthur and Capture Several Forts—Four Warships in Port Arthur Unable to Fight—Port Arthur Has All But Fallen and Japs Are Preparing to Celebrate.

Tokio, Aug. 24.—Admiral Kataoka reports that as the Russian battleship Sevastopol was emerging from Port Arthur yesterday, she struck a mine, after which she was seen to be listed to starboard. She was towed back into the harbor.

The battleship Sevastopol was built in 1896 in Russia. Tonnage, 10,960; 17.5 knots; crew, 700; armament, four 12-inch, twelve 5.9-inch guns.

"Clair Fort" Captured.

London, Aug. 24.—The Evening News yesterday afternoon published a despatch from Che Foo, under yesterday's date, announcing that the Japanese captured "Clair Fort," of the Port Arthur defences, Monday, after a tremendous attack.

Two Other Forts Fall.

Che Foo, Aug. 24.—A junk, which left Liaoti Promontory on the night of Aug. 21, has just arrived here. She reports that the Japanese have succeeded in occupying Antesashan Fort, as well as another fort, probably Etashan, about one mile southwest of Antschahan. They have driven the Russians from the parade grounds, which lie about two miles north of the harbor; they have destroyed two forts at Chaotchanko, which is within the eastern fortifications, and they have advanced to a point near Chaotchanko. This news confirms information received here previously, and which the local Japanese were not inclined to believe.

Warships Unable to Fight.

The junk heard firing until midnight of Aug. 22. Scarcely a building in Port Arthur remains undamaged. The Town Hall, which was used as a magazine, has been destroyed. Four large warships, unable to fight, are at Port Arthur. Only one ship, a vessel with two masts and two funnels, has guns on board.

Preparing to Celebrate.

Che Foo, Aug. 24.—According to advices brought here from Port Arthur by a junk, the Japanese were hotly pressing the Russian centre along the railway and the Russian right in the vicinity of Golden Hill. These advices are brought by Chinese who departed from Taipangtze, which is one mile from the city near Golden Hill, between the city and the forts of the Russian right wing. The Chinese declare that the Japanese occupied Taipangtze and penetrated along the railway to Gen. Stoessel's residence on Aug. 21.

As this report would indicate that Port Arthur had all but fallen, the Japanese expert attached to the local consulate received the information with great reserve. The information is accepted, however, as a confirmation of previous reports that the Russians have been driven from Itzshan, and that the Japanese are very close to the southern forts and the eastern defences. The local Japanese, under the leadership of their consul are subscribing money and preparing to celebrate the expected fall of the fortress.

CHINA'S NEUTRALITY.

Shanghai Situation Critical—Time Is Up and Nothing Done.

London, Aug. 24.—The Standard this morning, unable to conceal its disappointment that the United States Government is not prepared to protect the neutrality of China at Shanghai, editorially contends that the United States could have taken the lead in the matter without arousing the jealousies and suspicions which must follow intervention by any European power.

According to The Daily Telegraph's St. Petersburg correspondent, the Russian Government supports the refusal of the Askold and Grosovoi either to disarm or to treat China as a power capable of enforcing neutrality.

The Daily Chronicle's Che Foo correspondent says: "The entire Chinese squadron has left here, doubtless in order that it shall not be seized by Russian volunteer fleet vessels, declaring that "if diplomacy fails, the British navy must clear the high seas of the defenders."

The other newspapers show less excitement, because it has not yet been established that the vessel that stopped the Comedian was the auxiliary cruiser Smolensk.

Expected to Fall Soon.

Tientsin, Aug. 24.—Lloyds agent at Newchwang reports as follows:

"The Russians are detaining produce from the interior. Liaoyang is expected to fall shortly. Newchwang and the country under Japanese jurisdiction are progressing wonderfully. The consuls get every assistance from the administrator."

An Important Meeting.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 24.—Political consequences of first class importance may follow the gathering at Peterhof on the occasion of the baptism of the heir to the throne.

The Emperor last night practically personally exchanged views with Emperor William and King Edward, as both Prince Henry of Prussia and Prince Louis of Battenberg, who arrived yesterday, were not only bearers of letters, but come fresh from personal audiences with their respective sovereigns.

Time's Up.

Shanghai, Aug. 24.—The final time limit allowed by the Taotai of Shanghai for the Russian cruiser Askold and the torpedo boat destroyer Grosovoi to disarm has passed without compliance with his orders.

A meeting of the Consuls was held yesterday afternoon, but the Russian Consul-General, M. Kleinmenoff, was absent and no definite course of action was decided upon.

The Taotai has requested Sir Pelham Warren, the British Consul-General, to order that the repairs to the Askold be stopped.

Arranging a Compromise.

London, Aug. 24.—The correspondent of The Times at Pekin says the waiwipu (Chinese foreign board) is trying to arrange a compromise by which Japan shall be induced to permit the Askold to remain at Shanghai until Sunday next, when the tides will permit the cruiser to cross the bar.

CASE OF IDENTITY.

Did Have That It Was Russian Auxiliary Stopped Comedian.

Durban, Natal, Aug. 24.—The captain of the British steamer Comedian has lodged a protest against the action of the Russian auxiliary cruiser Smolensk in stopping the steamer and examining her papers on Sunday last, off the southeast coast of Cape Colony.

Liverpool, Aug. 24.—The owners here of the Comedian (now at Durban, Natal), have no confirmation from the captain of the steamer of the statement that it was the Russian auxiliary cruiser Smolensk which stopped the vessel off the coast of South Africa.

Complete Report Wanted.

London, Aug. 24.—The Foreign Office has ordered the British officials at Durban, Natal, to make a complete report of the circumstances connected with the reported examination of the papers of the British steamer Comedian by a Russian auxiliary cruiser off the South African coast. If the Smolensk actually examined the Comedian's papers she according to the British officials, violated the assurances given by the Russian Government that neither she nor the St. Petersburg would be used again as men-of-war.

A Call to the Navy.

London, Aug. 24.—The Daily Telegraph demands that the Government adopt vigorous measures to stop the molestation of British shipping by Russian volunteer fleet vessels, de-

THE TREADGOLD SCANDAL

Mr. Justice Britton has presented his report, which the Hon. Mr. Scott endeavored to suppress, on the Treadgold and other concessions in the Yukon. It is largely a whitewashing performance but that is what the judge was sent there for, indeed it may be supposed that it was largely for such work that he was placed on the Bench, being a most violent and no too scrupulous partisan. His partiality does not, however, prevent the truth from peeping out to some extent. The supplying of water to the mines depended, the judge admits, on the good faith of the Treadgolds. He also concedes that there might be risk in attempting to establish the system on account of the hostility to it. But most suggestive is his recommendation that in future hydraulic concessions a number of stipulations and conditions should be embodied as safeguards, not one of which is contained in the Treadgold concession. Any thing more condemnatory from such a source could hardly be conceived, and in fact the Government and especially Mr. Sifton is practically condemned. One of the witnesses, Gold Commissioner Senkler, speaks to the same effect, saying that the Treadgolds should not have an exclusive right to the waters of the Klondyke, but only the quantity required for their own purposes.

Of other concessions on which Judge Britton had to report he says that in a number of cases the conditions had not been complied with. The business was evidently run in the regular Siftonian style.

A JUST REQUISITORY.

How the Liberal Papers of Quebec are Placing the Political Situation Before thier Readers.

(From Le Progres de Valleyfield, 14th August, 1904.)

Mistaken again as they were in 1900 the Tories imagine that they will succeed in gaining over the masses of Ontario by accusing Sir Wilfrid Laurier oft reason.

We acknowledge that he paralyses the efforts of Chamberlain; that he has rendered abortive the Inter-Colonial Conference of 1902, designed to submit Canada to heavy military contributions to the Empire; that recently he has not only taken the head of a powerful English General, but has furthermore chased him from the country; that he claims for Canada all the privileges of independent action, even to the point of menacing the Colonial ties; that he has placed our militia under the command of a Canadian; that he removes him from the will of the English Parliament; that he leaves to the decision of Canada's Parliament the question of our soldiers fighting outside their own country; that he claims for Canada the right of concluding her own treaties.

And we acknowledge that, to the eyes of Imperialism, the case against him is formidable. Furthermore, we also admit the shameless denunciations of the Citizen against the Quebec majority and French-Canadians; the perfidious insinuations of the Mail; of Col. Sam Hughes and Dr. Sproule against Sir Wilfrid Laurier, as well as the intrigues of Orangemen against the chief of the Liberal Cabinet.

But we know that this simulated indignation is only a manoeuvre with a view to the next vote. The citizen of Ontario has as much good sense as the citizens of the other Provinces and, unless a heavy veil is thrown across his eyes, he will not fail to see the right path. He understands, as we understand in Quebec, that our lot and our fortune lie within this continent, and not across the sea. No one will have regard for our future if we do not prepare for it ourselves. Our national riches, as our individual wealth, does not depend upon a sentiment, were it the noblest in the world but upon action and labor. The population of Ontario approves of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's action in steering the ship of state away from the stormy waters of militarism, where there is nothing to gain and where we would only run the risk of shipwreck.

The above is a sample of the way the Liberal papers of Quebec are placing the political situation before their readers.

In washing woollens and flannels, I won't Rub, Soap or Scrub, but will be found very satisfactory. 2

CHAMPAGNE'S EVIL EFFECT

Upon an Occupant of the New York Zoo.

New York, Aug. 22.—The Tribune says: Jack, the big Thibetan bear in the Glen Island zoo, drank three quarts of champagne yesterday, and suffered greatly from the effects of his "jag." Jack occupies the corner pit, which is the most conspicuous one in the big zoo. The men working about the island frequently toss him a cake in an endeavor to make friends with him.

Yesterday one of the hands was on his way from the cafe to Little Germany with a basket containing six quart bottles of champagne. He laid the basket down by the bars and handed Jack a piece of cake. The big brute devoured it with a gulp and then came so near the bars that the man became frightened. He got a rake with which to draw the basket out of the bear's reach and when he returned Jack had three of the bottles on the inside of the bars. The bottles were good plaything and soon he struck out with his paw and one fell over and broke on the stone flooring. As the liquid ran out Jack sniffed at it, and then began to lap it up. It was evidently palatable to his taste, for he got right down to business and began to lap it up with an energy that indicated an immense thirst. He managed to get perhaps half of the wine before it had run away, and then he deliberately knocked over a second bottle and went through the same performance.

The workman had by this time recovered from his astonishment, and called to the keepers. They inserted the rake through the bars in an attempt to get the third bottle out, when the bear observed them. He caught the bottle in his two paws and began to chew the cork off. As soon as sufficient of the cork had been removed to permit the contents to effervesce he held the bottle off at arm's length, then dropped it on the stone floor and at once began to lap up the running liquid. The keepers raked out the broken glass and left Bruin to his fate. He licked the stone flooring clean where the wine had run and then began to dance about the pit half intoxicated. He kept this up for an hour or two and then lay down in the corner to sleep off the effects of his "jag." Last night his eyes were bloodshot and he dragged himself about the pit moaning.

LONG AND SHORT SERMONS

Some Opinion as to what a Popular Length Would be.

Dr. Robertson Nicholl, editor of the British Weekly, says: "Brevity is not the highest recommendation either of a sermon or a church service. The demand nowadays—in the pulpit, in journalism, in books—is for that which is interesting. The question with the public is not so much 'How long is it?' as 'Does it interest all through?'

"The great preachers who have fascinated audiences—such men as Liddon, Parker and Spurgeon, to mention only the dead—have preached at considerable length."

"Archdeacon Sinclair complains," Dr. Nicholl continued, "that 'most of the clergy have no real training in delivery.' Well, I should say that the danger of an elaborate course of elocutionary training is artificiality. Let us keep clear of being stagey in the pulpit, also let us keep the service down to an hour and a half. I am glad to be able to declare that on the whole, our Free Church sermons have improved very much in simplicity and directness."

The Rev. R. de Courcy Laffan, rector of St. Stephen's, Wallbrook, thinks that a ten minutes' sermon would be in many places preferable to a longer one.

"But it takes something like genius," he added, "to preach a ten minutes' sermon which can be called good. To be effective such a sermon must be written, after the manner in which Phil May is said to have drawn his cartoons—first a full sermon and then a ruthless excision of every word and sentence that can be spared. But that means a much longer preparation than an ordinary twenty minutes' discourse.

"Many subjects which need treating from the pulpit simply could not be dealt with in ten minutes. I cannot imagine any preacher giving his views on the higher criticism of the Old Testament, or the education question, in ten minutes.

"I venture to suggest that what we need is perhaps a separation of sermon from service—'conferences,' as they call them in France—sermons or lectures of half an hour or more, preceded only by the 'bidding prayer,' so that those who wanted to hear a grave subject adequately treated might come to that with mind and body fresh.

"Where the experiment is tried, as at the old parish church, Stoke Newington, crowded congregations of men attend at 3 or 3.30 p.m., and listen attentively for forty minutes."

Don't Trust to Luck.

Even if there is such a thing as luck you cannot afford to trust to it in case of sickness. You know by the experience of others that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food actually forms new blood and tissue and revitalizes the nerves, and by using it regularly you can be certain that your system is being built up and that weakness and disease are being overcome.

THE CHANGES DISCUSSED

DR. GORDON OF QUEEN'S GIVES HIS OPINION ON EDUCATIONAL MATTERS.

Thinks there Should be a Stronger Conviction Among the People With Regard to the Importance of Education—The Teacher's Individuality

The opinion of so eminent an educationist as Dr. Gordon, of Queen's University, Kingston, with regard to the proposed school changes cannot but be of interest. In an interview granted to the Kingston Whig, Dr. Gordon said there was not a sufficiently strong conviction among the people regarding the importance of education. "This," said he, "is seen in the widespread desire to cut down salaries to a minimum. I don't think the government has been parsimonious, but the people, or at least, the boards of trustees, who represent them, have certainly been more than economical. This is one of the chief reasons why an overwhelming number of public school teachers are young women. They work more cheaply. We need a crusade to impress upon the people the supreme importance of education, and to place the profession of teaching in such a position that it will attract an increasing instead of diminishing number of the brightest and most capable young men."

"In the regulations submitted there is, in several respects, a marked advance on the existing system. It is a great matter to reduce, as now proposed, the number of examinations and throw upon teachers and inspectors the task of promoting pupils from one grade to another. Of course this means for them heavy responsibility, but if fit for positions they should be able to be willing to assume it. The introduction of nature studies and manual training will meet with very general approval, although many teachers will no doubt require some special instruction to enable them to adjust themselves to the new order of things.

"The effort to develop the initiative power of individual teachers is much to be commended. We have been too reliant on mere methods, satisfied with having a system that could take prizes at international exhibitions, as if we had to do with an excellent machine so perfect that a child might turn the crank. It is high time to look in other directions and to develop the individuality of teachers; to aim at securing those can be trusted with some liberty in applying and adapting the programme of study, and who by their very freedom may be expected to bring more enthusiasm to bear on their work. According to Emerson, it is more important who the child's teacher is than what the child is taught.

"The text books used in the schools have been the subject of very frequent complaint. I have not read reports of any gathering of teachers that endorsed them. It may be expected that improvements, though not definitely pledged, will be carried out in the matter, as even very good good teachers might feel sorely hampered by some of the text books now current.

"Presumably each of us would make changes in the management of subjects. I for one would willingly see less time given to physiology and more to language. Perhaps the subject that has evoked the greatest discussion is the place that Latin should hold in the Public and High Schools, and this not merely for its own sake, but because of the way in which the treatment of it may indicate and affect the relation of the school system to the university."

THE VALUE OF LATIN.

"Latin is now to become optional for junior teachers. In introducing this change it seems to be assumed that a teacher should not be required to study any more subjects than called to teach, which is certainly a very inadequate view of the training of a teacher. It is a change which many will regret, as it tends to disparage a study which is greatly undervalued. The more familiar I have become with the work of education and with the educational system of the country, the more strongly would I favor the retention of Latin, at least in the modest place hitherto assigned to it. It is not because of the place Latin holds in the university matriculation that I wish to see it retained in the schools. It is for its educative value and for its place at the foundation of the scientific study of language. Indeed, not a few of those whose children attend the public schools, but would like to see some provision made for instruction in Latin at an earlier stage than is now possible, so that if our schools are to be common schools they should be common to children for whom benefits of higher education may be desired, as well as for those who may not even enter the high school.

"Besides from the liberty allowed boards of trustees, unless I misapprehend the regulations, out of eight courses presented for high schools, it is possible for the board to decide that no language except English shall be taught in their school, so that possibly a larger number of high schools may exclude Latin, and thus fail to make provision for a pupil in attendance becoming qualified for the university.

"Now, I am aware that the main consideration in our school system is to meet the needs of the great majority, and it is only a small minority who can go forward to the university. But, surely in every high school, provision should be made for the bright and capable pupil who desires to prepare for further and more advanced study.

UNIVERSITY RELATIONSHIP.

"The department of education may say, Let the universities modify their requirements and regulate their demand according to the character of what we can supply. This opens up the wider question, Should not the high school course be a proper preparation for the university course? The university is not an institution cut off from the general educational system, and mainly intended for the training of professional men. Its course should be such as would be suited for any man who desires to be well educated, whatever his calling. If the university has ever been content to stand aloof from the public school system, it can no longer afford to do so; and on the other hand, if those charged with arranging the courses of public and high schools have regarded the university as a thing apart with which they had nothing to do, they also have been mistaken.

"There seems to be a tendency in the new regulations to weaken rather than to increase the connection that should exist between the parts of our educational system; whereas the relation of the public school, high school and university should be so adjusted that each shall act upon the others for the benefit of all."

WEDNESDAY, AUG. 24, 1904.

ONE OF THE BIGGEST DAYS

QUARTER OF MILLION VISITORS EXPECTED AT WORLD'S FAIR, AUG. 27.

It Will be the Last Day of Missouri Week — Artists will Give Souvenirs to Crowds

St. Louis.—Beyond all doubt August 27 will be one of the biggest days of the entire World's Fair period. The fact that it is the last day of Missouri Week, during which a million Missourians are expected to be within the gates of St. Louis alone suffices to show that the attendance will be a record breaker.

One special attraction is counted upon to draw thousands to the city and to the grounds upon that day. It is the opening of the airship and balloon contests by a noted aeronaut, who will start at 5 o'clock from the Wireless Telegraph Tower for a balloon flight to Washington. A wireless operator will also make the trip and will keep in constant touch with Washington and with the operator at the Fair grounds. Thus at the same time as view of thousands of visitors of the great international Exposition will two of the most remarkable inventions in the history of the world be exhibited and shown in practical use. This race against time will be an epoch-making event which in later years many will be glad to boast that they had witnessed.

Another big feature will be the gorgeously decorated pageant of coaches, broughes, automobiles, and other vehicles, with $1,000 in special prizes for the best appearing turnout.

There will be other valuable prizes for visitors and thousands of dollars of special souvenirs will be given away absolutely free to all on that day.

On this day, besides the many regular events, there will be a special organ recital by S. A. Baldwin, of New York, in Festival Hall; a meeting of the Knights of Maccabees, another of the Western C.T.A., and special concerts by the various bands within the grounds.

The Palace of Liberal Arts will be gayly decorated in honor of the celebration. Here the public will see the wonderful Chinese industrial exhibits, the engineering display, including the models of the Mississippi river levee system of Louisiana, of the Chicago drainage canal, and of the irrigation system along the Nile in Egypt, and many search light lamps and reflectors. Here also are exhibits of new processes in building construction, machines for road-repairing, chemical, drug and perfume exhibits of many countries; printing presses of many kinds and other things pertaining to the graphic arts, surgical instruments, musical instruments of every kind and of every age, photographic supplies and apparatus, and so on.

One department which will be of particular interest to nearly everyone of even greater interest than the operation of printing the various magazines by the graphic arts department, is the section devoted to time and labor saving devices. These mechanical inventions introduced to meet the demands of modern business, are machines which correctly count coins, rolling them into paper-covered packages; machines which make correct change; devices for performing mathematical problems in interest and in bookkeeping automatically; scales which compute the money value of the article as well as its weight; cash registers of a hundred different patterns and having scores of useful arrangements; adding machines and typewriters. A notable point in this connection is that in many cases electricity has been very ingeniously utilized as a motive power, thus showing constantly the machines in actual operation.

Liberal Arts Day will be a "hummer." In view of the number of unusual attractions offered and the low railroad rates from all points which can be obtained such an attendance is expected to result which will, in a measure, repay the management for their heroic efforts to please the public.

HARVESTERS GOING WEST

THE NUMBER THIS YEAR IS PLACED AT 15000.

Estimates are Based on Actual Reports - No Fakirs Need Apply.

Toronto, Aug. 23.—The total number of harvesters expected to go West this year is 15,000. Of these 12,000 are needed for straight harvesting, and about 3000 for stooking and threshing. The number carried last year was 13,000. These estimates are based on actual reports made by the farmers in each section of the Immigration offices at Winnipeg. This system of centralising the distribution at Winnipeg has been in vogue for the past two years and has worked admirably. In former years there was a congestion at outlying points, such as Estevan, Moosejaw and Yorkton. Harvesters who had previously worked in these districts insisted on returning there, regardless of the fact that their places in many instances were already filled. This caused unnecessary re-haulage to points on other lines. The surplus excursionists, not having worked their 30 days as required in order to return on their reduced fare tickets, were forced to pay their own fares back again to the main line for redistribution.

PROSPECTS EXCELLENT.

The excursions this year began 3 days later than last, and the arrival of the last one on Sept. 1 will be just one week later, owing to an off day between each excursion, whereas last year the excursions were continuous. Cutting is about a week later this year than last but was expected to be general yesterday. The yield is expected to average 22 bushels to the acre in the Boissevain and Hartney sections; grain filling well and ripening evenly; the best hay crop ever known is the Hartney district is recorded.

The C. P. R is making an extra effort to handle the traffic this year. No crowding is permitted. Each car averages about 45 passengers. Every effort is being made to limit the excursionists to those actually intending to engage in farm work. In former years a large number of "fakirs" have succeeded in getting passage through to various points, raising a kick about the wages, the demand for hands and things in general, and thereby getting free carriage to other points and spying out the land for other purposes. Less of this is expected this year. There will be four more excursions from Ontario, one from Quebec and one from the Maritime Provinces. Already 1000 hands are reported in sight from Quebec alone.

An interesting feature in the crop development of the West is the number of threshing machines imported. Last year such a sight as 27 cars carrying 42 threshing engines and separators of one firm's make alone was seen. The total cost of these outfits would not be less than $120,000. And if other American firms are shipping in like proportion, the Western farmers must be paying out well over the half million mark for Yankee machinery alone, in spite of the 25 per cent duty.

MONUMENT IS COMPLETE

The Permanent Resting Place of Pope Leo XIII.

Rome, Aug. 23.—Pope Leo XIII's permanent resting place in his favorite Church of St. John Lateran has just been completed. The monument is the work of Lucchetti, a Perugian sculptor, the cost being $35,000, the sum being contributed by the Cardinals erected by him, including the present pope. It is erected over the entrance to the sacristy on the left of the main altar. The tomb proper, which is surrounded by a full size statue of the late pope in a recumbent position, will rest just above the door. An arch ornamented with mosaic figures surmounts the tomb, under which are the statues of St. Thomas Aquinas and of St. Francis d'Assisi, at each side of the sacristy's door. The monument occupies a position symmetrical with the tomb of Innocent III, built by the late pope on the opposite side of the choir.

Leo XIII's body will soon be transferred from its temporary resting place in St. Peter's to the new one. The transfer will be made but the date is kept secret for fear of disorders such as happened when the body of Pius IX was transferred to the Church of St. Lorenzo in 1885.

IN THE REALM OF SPORT

BASEBALL.

The Port Hope Guide hardly knows what to make out of the Peterborough Midland League nine. Here is wha tit says:—

"The default of the Peterborough Baseball Club on Saturday came as a sore touch to the management of the locals and a great disappointment to the baseball enthusiasts. The game was looked forward to with great interest; a record crowd was cure a full line-up. Now, excuses day morning Manager Whitcroft telephoned President Crawford that the team would be in for sure, and in less than half an hour sent another message that he was unable to secure a full line-up. Now, excuses like these are by far too flimsy, and no league will put up with such actions. The Port Hopers have twice advertised the Peterborough team to play here, and might do so a half dozen more times with the same result. Aside from this the Peterborough team have been a source of trouble ever since their admission. Two of their games have been protested, and Cobourg could have claimed their game by default had they so desired. At the present time Peterborough has games to be played over with Bowmanville and Lindsay; two scheduled games with Cobourg, two with Port Hope and one with Oshawa, but still Manager Whitcroft devotes his time to arranging exhibition games. It was only on Saturday last that they were advertised to play the Kingston Ponies. At that rate the schedule will be finished about Christmas. The locals have sent in their claims for Peterborough's deposit money, and should certainly receive it.

But now Treasurer McGuire, of Cobourg, hesitates about handing it over. Of course, at the order of the President he is obliged to forward the cheque, and for the benefit of Cobourg he may yet find it to his advantage to do so.

Flaherty is still twirling up in Galt. The Reporter says concerning a victory by the local nine: The Galt-Preston series in the Canadian League was finished on Saturday by the game on the local diamond in which the league leaders scored five runs and shut out the tail-enders, the third performance of the kind we have seen here this season, two last week off Flaherty's pitching, by the way. It was an interesting game of ball for the hitting, though little of it was safe, was good and plenty for not in many a day has the crowd seen so much catching in the field. Flaherty got eight strikeouts and Heimbecker got four, and really it was a bad day for the artists. The temperature was low and the grounds so wet that the balls were soggy and heavy. Flaherty showed his old time reliability. The official scorer shows two hits against him. Flaherty may fairly be credited with having pitched nine innings without allowing a hit. That after the complete shutout of the Waterloo team three days previous makes a good record.

HOCKEY.

There appears to be a mighty poor lookout for hockey in Belleville, this year. The lamentation of the Intelligencer reads thus: Put crape on the hockey sticks. Harry McGuire's gone. Oh, no, he isn't dead, but he's gone from Belleville, and every lover of honest and square sport will be sorry. Who is there with a drop of sporting blood in his or her make-up that doesn't remember with a thrill those grand rushes Dyke used to make? And how he carried disaster into the enemy's ranks amid the thunderous cheers of his fellow townsmen. Those auburn curls of 'Paderewski's' were always in the thickest of the fight, and he was honored by friend and foe alike as a good-natured, square player, who took his knocking without a murmur, and never quit while there was a moment of playing time left. There were other sports, of course, in which Harry shone, but hockey was his "best hold."

And the departure of our star centre causes one to sigh and murmur "Where are the boys of the old brigade who made Belleville famous during the last couple of winters?" Westminster in Toronto, Brown in Kingston, Kennedy in Manitoba, McGuire in Montreal, Wallace a student at McGill—"Sandy" Burrows is the only one left of the speedy septette that had all the hockey teams in this district—and many others—gunning.

Will we ever see as good a team in Belleville again as we had during the last two seasons? Well, they say there's as good fish in the sea as ever were taught, and in "Sandy" Burrows we've got a star to draw to. So cheer up.

However, when these old memories crowded on us, we were thrust to say that Mr. McGuire left on Saturday for Montreal, where he has been appointed physical director of the Y. M. C. A.

Canadian Professors Speak.

London, Aug. 24.—(C. A. P.)—In the British Association of Economic Section Professor Mavor of Toronto, A. Campbell Swinton and Professor MacCullom of Toronto delivered addresses yesterday.

Crushed to Death.

Walkerville, Aug. 24.—A young team driven by W. Moore, of Windsor, became frightened at a passing train Monday. The team started to run away. Moore, in trying to stop them, caught the wrong line, thus causing the truck to turn towards him. He was caught between the truck and a brick wall and badly crushed, three of his ribs being broken. He was taken to the Hotel Dieu, Windsor, but died yesterday morning from the effect of his injuries.

Woman Fell From Window.

Toronto, Aug. 24.—Mrs. Margaret Dougherty, 85 years of age, was killed early yesterday morning by falling from a second storey window at 83 Allan avenue. She had shown signs of mental derangement recently. She had lived in Toronto for ten years.

A Bishop's Consecration.

Montreal, Aug. 24.—The consecration of the Bishop of Joliette will take place to-day.

Good Digestion.

If you can keep your digestive system in proper condition the body will be well nourished and you need have little fear of disease. By regulating the kidneys, liver and bowels, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills ensure a healthful condition of the organs of digestion and for this reason are indispensable as a family medicine.

Fuel economy is an important feature in a range. Almost as important as good cooking facilities. Every housewife wants to do good cooking but she doesn't want it to cost her too much in fuel. The good cooking qualities of the are enhanced by its great fuel economy. The big scuttle of coal of other style ranges is replaced in Imperial Oxford homes by a smaller scuttle less often used.

The fire-box is evenly proportioned to the size of the oven, so there is no more fire needed than the size of range demands—no waste heat. The arrangement of flues and drafts concentrate the heat in the stove—it doesn't lose itself up the chimney.

A CATHEDRAL WEDDING

Miss Maggie Holland and Mr. Jos Kelly of Hamilton.

A wedding of pleasing interest was solemnized yesterday morning at St. Peter's Cathedral. The bride was Miss Maggie Holland, daughter of Mr. Cornelius Holland, Chamberlain street, and the groom Mr. Jos. Kelly, of Hamilton. A large number of friends attended the ceremony. Rev. Father Galvin officiated. The bridesmaid was Miss Maggie Burns, cousin of the bride, while Mr. Austin Duignam, of Guelph, was best man. A becoming costume of champagne voile over taffeta, and black picture hat were worn by the bride. Her bouquet was of white roses. The bridesmaid's gown was of white organdie; she also wore a black picture hat and carried white carnations. Miss Lewis played Mendelssohn's wedding march. Many very handsome wedding favors were received by the popular young couple.

A wedding breakfast was served at the residence of the bride's father after the wedding, and Mr. and Mrs. Kelly left upon the 5.15 C.P.R. train for their home in Hamilton, accompanied by best wishes of their friends.

PRETTY CHURCH WEDDING

Nuptials of Miss E. Ferguson and Mr. A. C. Hawley Both of Town

A very quiet but pretty wedding was celebrated this morning in St. Andrew's church at 9 o'clock, by the Rev. J. G. Potter, who was assisted by Rev. H. P. Novel, brother-in-law of the groom, of Rossbanks. The contracting parties were Miss Elizabeth Ferguson, daughter of Mrs. R. King, 346 Downie street, and Mr. Arthur Clarence Hawley, of town.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her brother, Mr. Herbert King, of Chicago, who gave her away She was dressed in white organdie, trimmed with Nottingham lace, and carried a shower bouquet of white asters. The bridesmaid, Miss Isabella King, also looked very pretty, and was gowned in cream voile with yak lace, and she carried a shower bouquet of pink roses. The groom was assisted by Mr. W. Merris, of town.

Mrs. Peter Kerr rendered Mendelssohn's wedding march after the ceremony. The groom's gift to the bride was a beautiful piano; to the bridesmaid a gold necklace, and to the groomsman, a pearl pin.

After the ceremony the wedding party repaired to the residence of the bride's mother, where a wedding breakfast was served, after which the happy couple left on the 11.35 C.P.R. train for the east. The bride's going-away dress was a brown suit of basket cloth, with cream silk waist.

The young couple were very popular, as was testified by the many and costly presents they received, and their many friends will join with us in wishing them much happiness. On their return they will reside at 18 Congress street.

Everything Points to a Banner Fair to be Held Here Next Month.

While on his rounds this morning our representative called on Mr. K. Hardley-Wilmot, sec.-treas. of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, in search of exhibition news. As soon as our quest was mentioned his face lit up with a satisfied smile and he replied that the outlook was never more promising for the largest exhibition ever held here. He said that every mail brought him enquiries with respect to the Fair, and asking for space and accommodation.

The Board of Management has received many congratulatory letters on their enterprise in bringing the great Black Watch band here, and the exhibition promises to be the greatest event here this year, which will be partly due to the fact that the street cars will run direct to the grounds.

We also had a short interview with Mr. D. Hughes-Charles, the president and he is wearing the Quaker smile that refuses to wash off. He mentioned the special work of Mr. Alex. Elliott, who intends to make the present exhibition the banner one of this district.

We tried to get Messrs. Elliott, Kennedy and Fitzgerald, the directors, but were informed that they were out of town on exhibition matters.

Mr. Robt. Parr, also, is a very energetic director, and the result of part of his work is evidenced by the artistic banners around the streets.

The Exhibition, which is to be held on Sept. 26th, 27th and 28th, will be formally opened by the Lieut.-Governor, Hon. Mortimer Clarke.

LIVELY TIMES EXPECTED

There is a Deficit of $30,000 in the C. M. B. A. and it may be a Source of Trouble.

Mr. Geo. Ball, District Deputy of the C.M.B.A., has gone to Toronto to attend the annual convention as delegates of the local branch. Asked with regard to the changes proposed in connection with the institution, Mr. Ball expressed the opinion that there would be a clean sweep of the old officers. A despatch from Toronto, as follows, explains the cause of trouble:

Toronto, Aug. 23.—James O'Hara, of 321 Ontario street, who is a candidate for the office of grand secretary of the C. M. B. A., which meets here on Wednesday, proposes making a strong fight against the re-election of any of the present grand officers. He bases his appeal for election principally on the incompetence of the governing body of the order, which will have to report a deficit of $30,000. Though the grand officers were under heavy bonds, the trustees have made no effort to collect, and no explanation has been given so far for this want of action.

Hon. Mr. Hackett in a letter said: "The amount of which the secretary was in default was about $30,000, the amount realized about $13,000, leaving a net loss of $17,000 or thereabouts, about seventy-five cents per capita. Bond of treasurer is $25,000, of secretary $5,000, of trustees $2500 each.

"None of the $13,000 was collected from guarantee company. It is not in the interest of the association to collect from the guarantee company."

Mr. O'Hara writes: "There is no question but that the late grand secretary was a mistake and as the present secretary was so long a grand trustee I hold him, with the other members of the executive, as very negligent in the performance of their duties to such an extent that if we had good business men in control of our affairs the membership would not have to be informed of the sad plight in which the executive finds itself—a shortage to be accounted for."

The World has received a communication on the subject from D. J. Musgrove, of Orangeville, in which he says:

"If the C.M.B.A. convention realizes and has the courage to discharge its duty, it will at least peremptorily defer consideration of a benevolent fund for a far-off centenary (and sternly bring to task the grand officers responsible for the existence and concealment of a state of things which threatens the very life of the C.M.B.A. Surely no grand officer is entitled to re-election who admits knowledge of a deficit of thousands of dollars and coolly confesses that no effort has been made to recover the lost or stolen funds."

—Superintendent Cowan is arranging a circuit of Eastern Ontario Fairs for a squad of troopers drawn from the Princess Louise Dragoon Guards of Ottawa. The troopers will give exhibition drills. Mr. Cowan has already arranged for a similar circuit in Western Ontario.

Brevities.

—To-day is Port Hope's civic holiday.

—The Bethany Tabernacle excursion to Stony Lake to-day was well attended.

—All Saints' choir went to Hall's Glen this afternoon to give a concert in St. George's church.

—The Chief has a pair of nose-glasses, which were picked up on McDonnell street yesterday.

—The regular meeting of the Chosen Friends will be held in the S.O.E. hall on Thursday evening at eight o'clock. A full attendance is requested.

—At the last board meeting of the Commercial Travellers' Mutual Benefit Society the claim was passed for $1000 for the late W. H. Ives, who was accidentally drowned at Stony Lake and who had been a member for only one month.

—The very latest style in hair bows adopted by the ladies of New York and Buffalo are bright plaid ones, worn one at the top of the roll or braid and one at the back of the neck. As in order to be up to date you must wear plaid ribbons about four inches wide.

—When the intelligent compositor spelt "air" for "heir" in a sentence to the effect that gorgeous carriages were to be used in conveying the heir to all the Russians from the Villa Alexandra, he quite naturally supposed that the Russians were sparring for wind.

—A very erroneous idea is being circulated in the Midland newspapers about the cost of Bowmanville's new Town Hall and Public Library, says the Bowmanville Statesman. The building erected is not the one originally intended to be built for $10,000, but is a much superior structure, but the cost is something over $15,000, not nearly $30,000 as the paragraph going the rounds of the county press asserts. The building will be entirely paid for this year (if completed) out of the regular taxes, excepting of course the $6,000 debentures issued; and this has been done, including also the new fire hall, and improvements (worth from $1,800 to $2,000) by an increase last year and this of only 2 mills on the $ over the previous year's taxation.

RUNAWAY AT NOON

Frightened by an Automobile and Dashed Away.

A very exciting runaway occurred at noon to-day on London-st. Two young men of Bridgenorth were returning home when they met an automobile at the top of the hill on London-st. west. The horse, which was a very spirited one, became unmanageable and dashed down the hill. the young men jumped for their lives, and the horse continued its mad course along London-st., going towards the Cereal Co's dam. When near Water-st. a young man, recognizing the fact that if the horse passed that street that he would either be drowned or dashed to pieces at the dam, pluckily ran out and attempted to stop the animal. Seeing that the horse was coming too fast, he managed to frighten it up on to Water-st., where the buggy struck the pavement and was turned completely over. The horse ran across the street and fell in front of a house at the corner, where it was held by the young men until assistance arrived. The horse was uninjured, but the buggy was badly smashed.

DEATH OF JAMES W. SHERIDAN

A Gentleman who Formerly Lived Here and was Highly Respected

Friends in town of Mr. James W. Sheridan will regret to learn of his death, which took place in Brooklyn on Tuesday, August ninth. Mr. Sheridan was for many years a resident of Peterborough, having engaged in the stationery business. After his removal to Brooklyn he did not forget this town, but made it a point to spend a few weeks here each year. He will be remembered as a genial, whole-souled gentleman, well read and quite an authority on prominent questions of the day. The following notice is from a Brooklyn paper:

SHERIDAN—On Tuesday, August 9, James W. Sheridan.

Funeral from his late residence, 64 Amity st., thence to St. Peter's church, where a solemn requiem mass will be offered at 9.30 o'clock on Friday, August 12. Kindly omit flowers.

THE SEMI-READY OPENING.

On Saturday, August 27th, a Semi-ready Wardrobe will be opened in Peterboro.

The good people of Peterboro who appreciate suits that are better tailored than ordinary—that possess city snap and dressy style—that are made of the most expensive imported fabrics, should, without fail, see Semi-ready.

Each suit made up to the "trying on" stage by experts on each part—specialists arranged in units enables the tailoring to be so distributed that the price of a Semi-ready suit represents its honest value.

THE REGIMENT PREPARES

HAD A MARCH-OUT LAST NIGHT AND WILL BE IN SHAPE FOR BARRIE.

Orders from Headquarters by Lieut Col. Miller — Capt. Bennett is Acting Adjutant.

There was a fair attendance of officers and men at the turn out of the 57th Regiment last evening. The weekly drills are in view of the proposed trip to Barrie. The regiment last evening had a march out with bands, and presented a very fine appearance. The following orders have been issued from headquarters by Lieut.-Col. J. W. Miller, commanding 57th Regiment, Peterborough Rangers —:

No. 1—Extract from General Order —It is noted for the information of the Regiment that by Militia Order No. 182, of Aug. 8, 1904, it is shown that in the first series of the Dominion Rifle League Competition, the team of the 57th Regiment took first place.

No. 2—Duties—Detail of duty for the week ending Aug 23, 1904; Orderly Officer, Captain Hounsell, next for duty Capt. Mills.

No. 3—Leave of absence is hereby granted to Captain and Adjutant Walker for four weeks from the 25th ultimo. Captain Bennet is hereby appointed Acting Adjutant during the absence of Capt. Walker.

In accordance with Regimental Order No. 3, of Aug. 16th, 1904, referring to the Regimental Camp at Barrie, Ont., the following orders and regulations are promulgated in connection therewith:—

No. 1—Parades—The Regiment, with both bands, Pioneer and Stretcher-bearer section, will parade in the Drill Hall on Friday, Sept. 2, 1904, at the hour of 6.30 p.m. sharp.

No. 2—Dress—The dress on this parade will be "review order"—serges and leggings to be worn, great coats to be rolled and worn over the left shoulder. Tunics are to be taken in Company kit boxes. All ranks must wear black leather boots. During the Camp proper "walking out dress" must be observed when not on duty or when outside of camp limits.

Necessaries—Men will provide themselves with the necessary toilet and cleaning materials for clothing and accoutrements; rifle oil may be procured from the Regimental stores.

No. 3—Transport.—Transport will be by the Grand Trunk Railway, special train. The Regiment will entrain on Bethune street by successive Companies from the front.

Officers commanding companies will remain with their companies for fifteen minutes after the train departs from Peterborough, and rejoin fifteen minutes before arrival at Barrie.

No. 4.—Baggage—All baggage must be in the Drill Hall and ready for shipment at 8 o'clock p.m. on Friday, September 2nd, 1904.

A "baggage party" to consist of one man per Company will be detailed and report to Mr. McLean at that hour in the Drill Hall.

No. 5—Issues—Issues of blankets and rubber rugs will be immediately on the arrival of the Regiment in Camp, from the Quartermaster's stores. Officers Commanding Companies will requisition for the quantity required for their respective Companies before the Regiment detrains.

No. 6—Meals—Arrangements have been made with the hotels in Barrie to supply meals.

Color Sergeants will procure requisitions for the same for their respective Companies from the Officer commanding the Company; all such requisitions must be countersigned by the Quartermaster or Paymaster.

Color Sergeants and Section Commanders are held responsible that mess parades are regular and distinctly orderly.

The hours for meals will be—
Breakfast—7.30 a.m.
Dinner—12.30 p.m..
Supper—6 p.m.

Color Sergeants will parade their Companies fifteen minutes before that hour.

No. 7—Guard—A Regimental Guard to consist of one Sergeant, one Corporal, one Bugler and six privates, will be detailed and mount at the Drill Hall at 6.30 p.m. on Friday, Sept. 2nd, 1904, and report to the Adjutant..

Relief—Guards and other duties during the Camp will be relieved at the hours of 9 a.m. and 6 p.m. daily.

No. 8—Routine—Daily routine during the Camp will be asfollows—
Reveille—6.30 a.m.
Breakfast—7.30 a.m.
Guard mounting—9 a.m.
Dinner—12.30 p.m.
Supper—6.30 p.m.
Retreat—Sunset.
Guard mounting—9 p.m.
Tatoo—10.30 p.m.
Last Post—10.45 p.m.

Reveille and Retreat will be sounded by the Regimental Buglers, the time to be taken from the duty bugler. Tatoo will be sounded by the Regimental Brass Band playing a selection or selections on the Regimental parade ground at last post—10.30 to 10.45 p.m.

Immediately after Reveille all are expected to be up, and if the weather permits, tent curtains rolled up, blankets and rugs folded and placed at the right side of the doorway, rifles to be piled beside the blankets. Clothing and accoutrements are to be cleaned and everything in order.

No. 9—Roster—The Duty Roster of officers during the Camp will be delegated hereafter.

It will be the special duty of the orderly officers to have supervision over the conduct of the camp. They will inspect and march off and dismiss all Guards or other "duties;" attend and see that mess parades are on time and are regular; see that the meals are good and uncomplain to contract and assist in carrying out the daily routine of the Camp. The Duty Roster of the Non-Coms. and men will be supplied by the Sergt.-Major.

No. 10—Parades—While in Camp the parades will be as follows:—

On Saturday—An excursion on Kempenfeldt Bay.

On Sunday—Church parade, 10.30 a.m.

On Monday—"Trooping the Colors," at an hour to be hereafter named, and athletic sports in the Park.

Orders—Company Orderly Sergeants will attend the Orderly Room tent for further orders that may be found necessary, before mess parade each day.

No. 11.—The Officer Commanding wishes it understood that while the Camp is considered to some extent to be a holiday for the Regiment, and while it is his desire that all enter enthusiastically into these social and amusement part of it as generously provided by the citizens of Barrie, yet he will require such military discipline and orderly conduct from all ranks as will contribute to the honor of the Regiment as gained on former trips, and reflect credit to themselves and to the town to which they belong.

No. 12—Appointments— The Commanding Officer has been pleased to make the following promotions—H. Co., to be Corporal provisionally, Pte. J. Ross.

By order,
G. W. BENNETT, Capt.
Acting Adjutant.

The following orders have been issued from headquarters regarding the Regimental Guard:—

The Guard will remain constantly in readiness for any alarm or emergency that may occur requiring them, until relieved.

No. 2—There will be 2 sentries to be relieved every hour.

No. 3—Take charge of all Government and Regimental property; see that nothing is misused or stolen.

No. 4—Pay proper compliments to all entitled to such.

No. 5—Allow none to leave the camp unless properly dressed.

No. 6—Take into custody and confine any disorderly or intoxicated men.

No. 7—Allow no loitering at or near the post; see that the men use the proper latrines provided.

The Guard will turn out at Reveille, Retreat and Tattoo, and at such times as they are inspected by the Orderly Officer or Commanding Officer.

No. 8—Commander of Guard will see that the Guard get their meals by reliefs with their respective Companies.

By order,
G. W. BENNETT.

BODIES IN PICKLING VAT.

A Bold Student Prank -- Removal of Forty-One Bodies.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Aug. 23.—One of the boldest student pranks in the history of the University of Michigan was the removal of forty-one bodies from the "pickling vat" at the hospital some twenty-seven years ago. No one was prosecuted for the offence, and, although the identity of the ring-leaders was suspected, their names were never publicly mentioned. J. C. White, a retired business man here, has broken the long silence and announced the names of the responsible parties and the manner in which the coup was pulled off.

In 1867, Dr. William Lewitt was a practicing physician in Ann Arbor. He was also demonstrator of anatomy at the university. Among his duties as demonstrator was to keep the medical seniors supplied with bodies for work in dissection. The law at that time made no provision for subjects for dissection. Dr. Lewitt was obliged to secure them with his private funds and then get his pay at the university as the subjects were used.

In '67 he received an offer from Rush Medical College, Chicago, and accepted. He had at that time about $2,000 invested in bodies awaiting dissection, and after announcing his intention of leaving Ann Arbor, he went to the hospital authorities and stated his terms for the stock of subjects. The authorities refused to come up to his figures, and when he said that in such an event he would remove the bodies, they mentioned a familiar, but indefinitely located geographical centre and accorded him permission to go there, but they said the bodies were in the possession of the university and would remain there until they had done their turn in the dissecting room.

Dr. Lewitt made up his mind to have the bodies. He enlisted the aid of J. C. Watts, D. C. Bledsoe, W. J. Maynard, T. F. Leonard, John Dale, Edward Barnett and other well-known students of that time. The party, numbering fifteen, repaired to the medical building one Saturday night with several teams. They routed out the janitor, John Nagle. One of the young men presented a revolver and ordered Nagle to say nothing, and hear nothing and see nothing. The bodies, forty-one of them, were then loaded into the waggons, and the students drove away. The bodies were taken to his house and hidden in the cellar. To divert suspicion as to their location, the wind dows of Dr. Lewitt's barn were boarded up, as if to indicate that there was the place of hiding. The Monday evening following, the bodies were placed two in a barrel, with the odd one in a box, and were taken to Ypsilanti. There they were loaded into a freight car and shipped to Chicago.

Dr. Lewitt more than got his $2,000 out of the bodies, and some of them found their way back to Ann Arbor, an extra price being charged the Michigan authorities.

The affair created a great deal of talk at the time, and while it was generally believed that Dr. Lewitt was the leading spirit in the raid, there was no positive proof to this effect, and the names of none of his confederates were known. Whether or not Janitor Nagle recognized any of the boys was never ascertained, but he always insisted that they were strangers.

WHEN BOYS WERE MEN

By JOHN HABBERTON,
Author of "Helen's Babies," "George Washington," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1904, BY JOHN HABBERTON

CHAPTER XII.

AFTER THE FIGHT WAS OVER.

AT last we were on our own side of the bridge—those who were left of us. Roll call showed thirty men missing from the first company, which had carried only fifty men into action, besides several from each of the other companies. Some of the missing we found dead or wounded in the creek and woods, with a larger number of the enemy in the same condition, but after a careful count we found the Johnnies had secured about twice as many prisoners as we.

The proceedings of the next hour or two would not have interested any civilian spectator in search of the glory of war. Several mounted men who had been hurried away to a farmhouse known to be about a mile down the road came back with all the farmer's wagons, carts, colored men, spades and picks. Into the wagons and carts on a lot of pine tufts hastily picked were placed the wounded and our own dead. The colored men, under the direction of the farmer, who had kindly volunteered to help, buried the Confederate dead near the roadside. Some of the wounded groaned terribly, and one poor fellow almost broke my heart by faintly screaming "Father!" every moment. I didn't feel any better when we learned that the wounded boy whom we were about to cart away was a son of the old man who was preparing the dead Confederates for their last home. Then we knew why the old man had offered to assist the burial party and why he had looked so quickly and intently through the gathering dusk into the faces of the dead. The boy had been brought in later from the woods, and the father would never have known of his presence had it not been for his cries.

The next scene was equally painful—the old man begging, with tears in his eyes, to be allowed to take his wounded child to his own house and the major insisting on his duty to carry all the wounded captives to our own camp. Several minutes before the old farmer had been to us only a stay at home rebel. Now there wasn't a man of us who would not have added our entreaties to his had we dared. It was a great relief to all of us when our assistant surgeon, who had been rapidly examining the wounded, assured the old man that the boy would need frequent surgical attention instead of home nursing if his life were to be saved, so he would be better off in our hospital. Then the surgeon offered the farmer his hand, and after a shake the old man sighed:

"I'll take your word for it."

I couldn't understand why a mere handshake was so convincing until one of our middle aged chaps told me that both men were Freemasons. But the agony for us was resumed after we started for camp, for the major, though true to the letter of his duty, was a Freemason himself, so he halted us in front of the old man's farm long enough to let the family come out and bid the boy goodby, perhaps for the last time. They came down with a lantern, for it was now quite dark, and the mother sobbed and wailed as she leaned over the cart and did all her thinking aloud and told how handsome and cheery her boy had looked when he took dinner at home a few hours before for the first time in months. His pretty sister, whom all of us had adored from time to time as she stood at the farm gate with her father to see the soldiers pass by, prayed aloud for heaven's cause to fall on the man whose bullet had pierced her brother's lungs, and I am sure that if he trembled at the thought that the bullet might have been his own. Near them stood a little brother and sister crying in the pitiful, hopeless way that my brother Ned did when he first heard that I was going to the war.

Yet this was not the only family that suffered by that engagement. Besides the men killed outright, some of our own comrades died afterward of their wounds without father, mother, sisters or brothers to say goodby to them. Not all the missing were taken prisoners by the enemy, and nearly half a year of awful uncertainty and of frantic letter writing passed before we learned this through our captured men who returned when exchanged. One of our men, whose leg was broken by a bullet and who then was knocked senseless by a glancing shot on his head, floated down the shallow stream some distance before he came to his senses and got ashore. Stanching his wound by tying a strip of his shirt tightly around his leg, he bound the broken limb in twigs and then spent two whole days and nights in crawling on his hands and one knee to our nearest picket station, several miles distant. In the early spring a colored man who went to the creek to fish found the remains of one of our men beside a tree, a mile below the scene of the fight, and scratched on the bark of the tree were a few words telling how the poor fellow had died a lingering death from wounds, exposure and starvation.

Yet the entire engagement, in which a full third of the men on the bridge were either killed, wounded or captured within 15 minutes, was in military parlance "merely a little brush." Mention of it never got into the newspapers. There were thousands like it, except for the falling bridge, during the war, the results being too small or gradual to be part of the history which was being made by some great engagements which proportionately were not so bloody. Perhaps the story of this one will explain to some people why old soldiers when chatting together about the war talk much of the march and camp, but very little about fighting.

The fight at the bridge was the severest engagement in which our company had ever participated, so I ought to have been so absorbed by it as to be insensible to anything but my duty as a soldier. I am glad to say that I finished, smoked and fired my carefully as if—oh, as if it were the first day of the "open season" for quail in the woods and fields near Summerton. Nevertheless I frequently detected myself in the act of looking about me to see what other men were doing. I saw Cloyne loading and firing as placidly and smilingly as if he were merely making out bills at the Summerton lumber yard. Mick McTwyzay was handling his carbine as energetically as if it were a coffee mill, yet in his excitement he was discharging it in the direction of the sun, the tree tops and his own toes, as if the enemy were atoms of the surrounding air and could be easily hit by a man with his eyes shut. Meanwhile he was volubly cursing his platoon in English and Irish, with some assistance from the verbiage of the holy Scriptures and the vocabulary of the Bowery, for not firing more rapidly and carefully.

"Look at that little divil Brainard!" he shouted. "He's puttin' robs into purgatory as fast as if he was waitin' to Sunday school in Summerton."

Brainard! The sound of his name startled me and caused a guilty pang as my having been concerned only for my own life impressed me. I looked quickly about for him and just in time to see him roll sidewise from behind a fallen log, his face as white as the paper on which I am writing. Killed? No, he moved. I hurried to his side and asked him where he was hit.

"In the heart, Jack, but 'twas not the enemy that hit me. 'Twas Mick McTwyzay's tongue. Great heaven! I've vowed my life a hundred times to the saving of men—you know I was studying for the ministry. But now I'm trying to kill men! It's all—but why aren't you firing? See that red bearded face sticking out from behind a tree on the other side of the creek? No, no! Don't you fire at him! Here goes!"

Brainard's lips closed so tight that I could not see their dividing line, so I looked toward the Confederate with a red beard, and a second after Brainard fired I saw the red bearded man clap a hand to his shoulder. Then the angles of his elbows and knees indicated that he had gone out of action and sat down behind his tree.

At that instant Brainard himself had a strip of skin and a bit of flesh taken from his cheek by a shot from the other side, but he did not know of it till the fight was over. I was recalled to a sense of duty by Cloyne, who drawled:

"What are you lounging for, Jack? This isn't a Sunday school picnic."

Quickly I covered my confusion by regaining the cover I had left, but I was still curious to know what other men were doing. The Balaklava veterans were side by side on the ground and as flat as the head of a snake about to coil, though they did not seem intent on striking. Not far to my right stood Phil Hamilton, handsome and composed as usual, but in apparent trouble with his pistol. He looked so superb, with his clear cut face, erect figure and broad shoulders, that for a moment I wished my cousin May might see him. Then I was glad she could not, for did not Brainard love May, and was not Brainard my dearest friend?

Still, pistols are made only to shoot with, and the moment of battle is the time to use them, so I hurried over to Hamilton and said:

"Take my pistol and give me yours. Mine is in perfect order, and, as I helped father when he was investing a revolver, I know something of a pistol's works."

"Don't you fire at him!"

"Thank you, Jack," said he as coldly as if he had been born and brought up in an icehouse, "but I think I'll conquer it in the course of time."

I was somewhat offended by his manner, but I reminded myself that there is a time for everything and that in the thick of battle was not the time to expect a polite reply, even from the Chesterfield of Summerton. When again I changed to look toward Hamilton, I saw that his face was very white and he was looking at a card photograph. I could not doubt who the original was. On our homeward ride big Pat Callahan married:

"Did ye's see our swell commissary sergeant behind the thickest tree there was? I'm thinkin' he was afeard o' gittin' his beauty spots scratched!"

"G'wan to blazes!" snarled Mick McTwyzay in reply. "Commissary sarjints don't made to fight if they don't want to. Besides, it's better that we'd lose the captain—yes, or the colonel—than the man that kapes us in the best of grub that can be made of rations."

SLEEPLESSNESS AND HEADACHE

Toll of Exhausted Nerves--A Peterboro Man Cured by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Mr. Harold Crane, Sophia street, Peterborough, Ont., and who is employed in Hall's store, states:—"I believe the close confinement of shop work was responsible for my becoming very nervous, and as a natural result I did not sleep and at times had severe attacks of splitting headaches. I heard of the good results obtained by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and decided to try it. I can now say that I am more than pleased with the results, as it has benefited me very much. It built up my system, restored my nerves, and I am now entirely free from headaches. I have every reason to give the credit to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food."

GENERAL AMNESTY.

Czar's Manifesto Has a Number of Liberal Provisions in It.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 24.—Emperor Nicholas' manifesto on the birth of an heir to the throne, the text of which will be published to-day,

Abolishes corporal punishment among the rural classes and for first offences among the sea and the land forces;

Remits arrears owing to the state for the purchases of land and other direct imposts;

Sets apart $1,500,000 from the state funds to form an inalienable fund for the benefit of landless people of Findland;

Grants amnesty to those Findlanders who have emigrated without authorization.

Remits the fines imposed upon the rural and urban communes of Finland, which refused to submit to military conscription in 1902 and 1903, and Remits the fines imposed upon the Jewish communes in the cases of Jews avoiding military service.

The manifesto provides for an all-round reduction in sentences for common law offences, while a general amnesty is accorded in the case of political offences with the exception of those in which murder has been done.

The manifesto provides for the education of the children of officers and soldiers who have been victims of the war, as well as assistance for such families as need it, whose breadwinners have fallen in the service of their country.

MARCH OF JOHN BROWN

Premier Ross and Mr. Stratton Charged As Corrupt Agents.

North Perth and Muskoka Election Protest Particulars Filed—Personal Charge Made Against Mr. Brown—Mr. Whitney, Leader of the Opposition, Mentioned in the Particulars in the Muskoka Case.

Toronto, Aug. 24.—Particulars in the election protests of North Perth and Muskoka were filed yesterday at Osgoode Hall. The Premier and Mr. Stratton are named as having assisted in the distribution of large sums of money in North Perth; Mr. Whitney and others are mixed up in the "purity fund" in Muskoka. There are 125 charges against the Liberals in Perth and five less against the Conservatives in Muskoka.

Charges Premier Ross.

Of the charges in the North Perth petition, this is what is said of the Premier:

"During the said election, or shortly before it, Hon. J. R. Stratton and Hon. G. W. Ross, agents of the respondent, sent Edward Culleton of Toronto, baker, to Stratford to assist in the election. Mr. Culleton was instructed by Hon. Mr. Stratton and Premier Ross to call upon R. T. Harding, an agent of the respondent, and that the said Mr. Harding would instruct him what to do. Mr. Culleton received from him, the said Harding, or some other agent of the respondent, a large sum of money to be used in bribing, treating and corruptly influencing voters. The said Culleton did so spend a large sum.

"And Hon. Mr. Stratton, either alone or with some other member of the Ontario Reform Association or other agents of respondent, gave or provided the said Culleton a large sum of money to be brought into the riding and to be used partly by him in bribing, treating and other corrupt practices."

Brown's Political Quietus.

A charge, which the Conservatives may will alone give John Brown his political quietus, is this:

"Shortly before the polling day the respondent either personally or by and through Capt. John Sullivan and James Vance, Liberal organizers for Ontario, and other members of the Liberal Association of Ontario entered into an agreement with James T. Nelson of Buffalo, by which he was to supply men who were to go into the electoral district of North Perth to personate voters, spend money and do other corrupt acts.

"The said James T. Nelson, Leon J. Malley, John Freeman, James Haskitt, Frank Gallagher, William Bain, Michael Crosby, F. Schley and John McCarthy did go into the electoral district, and in connection with R. T. Harding, barrister, Stratford; W. M. O'Beirne, publisher, and others, agent of the respondent, did give, lend or promise money or valuable consideration to James Campbell, Donald Campbell and George Schwoob, all of Stratford, voters in the riding, to induce them to vote for the respondent or to refrain from voting."

Distribution of Money.

Charge 37 alleges that liquor was stored in Alexander Hanson's barn, and that he was provided with money for corrupt purposes.

The very first of the 125 charges gives these details of the distribution of money:

"Within one week of the election, Hon. J. R. Stratton, Provincial Secretary, and James Vance, Liberal organizer, held a meeting at the Grand Central Hotel, Listowel, at which were present John A. Hosking, Francis W. Hay, William Cline, John H. Macdonald, E. J. Livingstone, J. N. Hay and others. All were told that the money 'wherewith to win the election' had arrived, and Hon. Mr. Stratton and Mr. Vance distributed among those present a large sum of money."

Petition Against Mr. Mahaffy.

Dr. Hart's petition against A. A. Mahaffy, M.P.P., charges Mr. Mahaffy with having, through Newton Langford of the Township of Ridout, fraudulently, by the use of threats of force, violence and restraint, and of the infliction of injury and damage, intimidated Michael Cassidy, a lumberman, in order to induce or to compel him to refrain from voting, and that he did prevent the exercise of the franchise.

The respondent is accused of having, through T. H. Lennox of Aurora, the Conservative candidate against Hon. E. J. Davis in the last two elections, offered money to voters and obtained from them drink and refreshment corruptly.

It is charged that the respondent, either personally or by and through Samuel Hurling of Medora, did illegally furnish liquor within the limits of the polling sub-divisions for corrupt purposes.

T. W. H. Leavitt of Toronto, and the respondent, are charged with having distributed a large sum of money received from outside the polling division for corrupting the electorate.

Mr. Whitney Charged.

Charge No. 117 reads: "Some time prior to said polling day, Oct. 27, 1903, J. P. Whitney, M.P.P., leader of the Conservative party in the Province of Ontario; Dr. Beattie Nesbitt, M.P.P., E. B. Osler, M.P., Dr. Pyne, M.P.P., E. B. Ryckman, J. W. Flavelle, all of the City of Toronto, and other persons, whose names are at present unknown to the petitioners, being members of a political association or organization, corruptly and illegally contributed and raised a fund or sum of money under the guise of a 'purity fund,' for the purpose of assisting and promoting the election of the respondent by corrupt and illegal means, and did give and furnish to the respondent and his agents a large sum of money to be corruptly and illegally expended by the respondent and his agents in order to induce voters whose names have been mentioned, and others whose names are at present unknown to the petitioners, to vote for the respondent, or to refrain from voting at the said election."

Brought in Strangers.

The final paragraph of the particulars charges that R. L. Joynt, M. P.P.; Dr. Beattie Nesbitt, M.P.P.; R. R. Gamey, M.P.P.; Donald Sutherland, M.P.P.; Edward Little, M.P. P.; Dr. Pyne, M.P.P.; M. D. Morrison, M.P.P.; W. H. Bennett, M.P.; T. H. Lennox, and J. D. Cotes, all agents of the respondent, and a large number of those persons whose names are at present unknown to the petitioners, expended the funds by bringing into the electoral district strangers whom they had hired for corrupt purposes, and to prevent the free exercise of the franchise.

ROOSEVELT ALARMED.

Takes Seriously the New England Agitation For Reciprocity.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 24.—President Roosevelt is alarmed by the magnitude of the demand for Canadian reciprocity in New England, which the National Administration has so far ignored, as far as definite action is concerned, and will take the matter up in his letter of acceptance. From what standpoint he will deal with it and what recommendation he may make is not disclosed at present.

The President's idea is, however, that something must be done. He expressed the fear that New England would show a great Republican defection, especially in Massachusetts, due to the scant recognition given reciprocity in the Chicago platform.

The issue was the subject of a long and grave discussion at Sagamore Hill yesterday on the part of the President, Senator Lodge of Massachusetts and Senator Aldrich of Rhode Island.

TO SETTLE BRITISH CLAIMS.

International Tribunal Between U.S. and Britain to Be Established.

Honolulu, Aug. 18 (via San Francisco, Aug. 24.)—It is stated that an international tribunal is to be established by Great Britain and the United States for the purpose of settling, among other things, the claims of a number of British subjects here who were imprisoned as revolutionists after the rebellion of 1895. Over 20 claimant have placed their claims for damages in the hands of the British consul here.

Governor Carter took the matter up while he was in Washington, and was informed that a tribunal would be formed to make settlements. It is now seven years since this decision was taken in the matter. Most of the claimants were kept in jail for some weeks while the provisional Government feared a revolt.

Killed By Runaway.

Drayton, Aug. 24.—On Saturday Jas. Forest of the second of Maryboro was driving his team through his farm gate when they ran away past to the village of Glenallen, striking a retired farmer, Charles Crapp, in the back, breaking his ribs and otherwise injuring him so badly that he died yesterday.

FOR NEW RIFLE RANGES

Plans Now Being Laid to Carry Out Minister's Intentions.

Several Sites Already Reserved in Different Parts of the Country—The Ontario Rifle Association Matches Begun at Toronto —Three Completed Events the First Day—Record Breaking Attendance of Rifle Shots.

Ottawa, Aug. 24.—The Minister of Militia, in his department estimates last session, made provision for the encouragement of rifle practice throughout the Dominion. Plans are now being laid in the Department to carry his intentions into effect. In company with his colleagues Sir Frederick is now framing the contracts for the erection of rifle ranges in different parts of the country. The Minister has already reserved sites in British Columbia and in the Northwest Territories for ranges. There will be a new range at Winnipeg. A contract has been given to Martin Jeck for the building of a range at Cobourg, Ont. Sites have been acquired for one at Goderich, Ont., and another at Agnes, in Mogantic County, Quebec. The Department has decided to build a new range at Sussex, N.B., where the militia of New Brunswick spend their annual camp. A range will also be built at Woodstock. The proposal is now under consideration to provide ranges for the militiamen at Windsor, Ont., and at Amherst, N.S.

ONTARIO RIFLE MATCHES.

Three Events Completed First Day—Record Breaking Attendance.

Toronto, Aug. 24.—The annual competitions under the auspices of the Ontario Rifle Association were begun yesterday under the most auspicious circumstances. The weather approached the ideal from the marksman's viewpoint during the afternoon, the sky being a cloudless blue and little wind stirring.

Canadian Club Match.

The number of contestants who appeared was considerably in excess of that of any previous year. In the Canadian Club match the principal of the three events brought to a conclusion yesterday, there were no less than 325 entries. The Canada Company contest, open to tyros alone, the definition of tyro being one who had never won a prize in any former year at any Provincial, Dominion or National Rifle Association match, save in the novice class, attracted 156 entries, a number overshadowing last year's list, and supplying a healthy indication of the interest being awakened in the sport among the youthful element. The winners of $10 and above were: Pte. D. Mitchell, 13th, 49, $20; Staff-Sergt. A. Graham, 48th Highlanders, 49, $15; Capt. W. H. Forrest, 6th D. C. O. R., 48, $12; Pte. P. Armstrong, R. G., 48, $10.

Cadets' Challenge Trophy.

Harboard Collegiate—L. Klingner, 35; A. B. Mitchell, 44; W. Foulds, 30; H. Kipp, 41; H. Hartney 30; J. Macklem, 40. Total, 220.

Dundas High School—F. Thornton, 27; R. Shaver, 40; G. Ross, 36; N. Finlayson, 36; A. Bertram, 37; R. Knowles, 33. Total, 198.

St. Alban's Cathedral—W. Amsden, 35; C. Flint, 40; J. Barnes, 22; H. Lovell, 37; H. Hamilton, 31; H. Davidson, 18. Total, 181.

Toronto Public Schools—R. Williams, 7; E. Noble, 27; E. Williams, 18; B. Fraser, 25; H. Cooper, 31; R. Weir, 17. Total, 119.

Canadian Club Battalion Team Match.

First—48th Highlanders, 224; Jubilee Challenge Trophy.

Next in order: Governor-General's Foot Guards 219, 48th Highlanders (2nd team) 216, Royal Grenadiers (1st team) 212, Royal Grenadiers (2nd team) 211, 12th York Rangers 210, 13th Regiment 206, Queen's Own Rifles 206, 43rd D.C.O.R. 206, 7th Fusiliers 206, 77th Regiment 200, Royal Grenadiers (3rd team) 190.

Special prize—Pte. D. Mitchell, 13th, 49, value $25.

The City of Toronto's match was begun and will be finished to-day.

Fishery Inspector Drowned.

Barrie, Aug. 24.—A report has reached here of the death by drowning of John Steele, fishery inspector, of Uptergrove. At 2 a.m. Sunday he left Strawberry Island in a canoe for the mainland. About 4 a. m. a farmer's wife was awakened by his cries for help, but, not having any boat, could not go to his aid. A few hours later the body was found by a searching party not far from shore. The hands were badly lacerated in his attempts to hang the canoe. Steele was a powerful man, about 35 years of age, and was an expert canoeist and boatman.

Nothing a Dare Thing of It.

"What in the name of Jupiter have you sewed up all the pockets of my overcoat for?" asked Mr. Wilson.

"My dear," said Mrs. Wilson, "I have an important letter to my milliner that I want you to post."

An orator or author is never successful till he has learned to make his words smaller than his ideas.—Emerson.

Receipts of live stock at the city market were 57 cars, composed of 1048 cattle, 1540 hogs, 2703 sheep and lambs, 60 calves and 5 horses.

Few shipping cattle were offered, and only one load of good quality, which was sold by Crawford & Hunniett at 4¾ per cwt., which was the highest price quoted. Two other lots were sold by Corbett, Henderson & Mayne, weighing 1240 to 1280 lbs. each, at $4.30 to $4.40 per cwt.

All butchers' cattle of good quality sold readily. The highest price quoted and picked lots was $4.30 per cwt.; loads of good at $4 to $4.25; fair to medium, at $3.60 to $3.85; common, at $3.30 to $3.40; rough and inferior, at $2.90 to $3 per cwt.

There was a fair delivery of feeders and stockers, but few lots of good quality. Several farmers and dealers were on the market, and several loads were sold, weighing 1020 to 1225 lbs., at prices ranging from $3.70 to $4.25 per cwt.; light feeders, 800 to 900 lbs., each are worth from $3.40 to $3.75. Stockers sold all the way from $2.50 to $3.35 per cwt.

There was a little better demand for milch cows and springers, especially those of the better qualities, which were readily picked up. Prices ranged from $25 for inferior to $50 for those of good quality, but the bulk of sales ranged from $30 to $40 each.

The offerings of veal calves were moderately large. Prices remained steady at $3.50 to $5 per cwt. for the bulk of offerings, but choice quality veals would bring a little more.

There was another heavy run of about 2000 sheep and lambs. Lambs sold at 20c to 40c per cwt. lower. Export ewes sold at $3.65 to $3.75 per cwt.; bucks, at $3 to $3.25; lambs, at $4.25 to $4.80 per cwt.

Receipts of hogs amounted to 1200. Altho the run was not large, prices declined 15c per cwt. for both lights and fats. William Harris bought all offerings to-day at $5.70 for selects, and lights and fats at $5.45 per cwt. for all hogs, fed and watered.

Girl Victim of a Trolley.

Toronto, Aug. 24.—At noon hour yesterday Beryl Edna Gordon, aged 8, living at 180½ West King street, was killed by a Belt Line car opposite the Princess Theatre. Her mother works during the day and the girl stays with her aunt. She had gone to buy a loaf of bread, and in crossing the street waited for an eastbound car to pass and stepped in front of a westbound. She went beneath the fender and was instantly killed, her body being almost cut in two.

Fell Under Binder.

MacGregor, Man., Aug. 24.—The only son of E. W. Green of Rose Hill, was instantly killed Monday. He was holding a team of horses which was hitched to a binder when the bridle broke and the horses ran away. The wheel of the binder passed over the boy's chest and head.

From Balcony to Death.

Montreal, Aug. 24.—The wife of Richard Marchand, assistant boiler inspector, residing at 847 Charlebois street, while leaning over the balcony last evening, fell over into the street, fracturing her skull and dying almost immediately.

RUMORS OF LAND BATTLE.

Defeat of Paraguay Government Troops, But No Confirmation.

Buenos Ayres, Aug. 24.—There are persistent rumors that a land engagement has been fought between the Paraguayan revolutionists and the Government troops, resulting in the defeat of the latter and the capture of 400 men.

The rumors cannot be confirmed.

There is no definite news regarding the progress of the revolution.

Attempted Suicide.

Hamilton, Aug. 24.—Last evening an unfortunate young woman about 24 years of age was found just inside the gates of Dundurn Park. P. C. Reynolds stumbled across her about 10 o'clock. He tried to rouse her, but without success. When he tried to lift her up off the beach and stand her on her feet a bottle labeled "Opium" fell on the ground. No one appears to know her name. The only clue the police have is a handkerchief bearing the initials "H. I." At midnight the whole staff of doctors at the hospital were working over her, but did not succeed in bringing her around so that she could tell her name.

Canada and Newfoundland.

St. John's, Nfld., Aug. 24.—Bitter feeling has been aroused here over the action of Canada in deciding to establish a custom house in Hamilton Inlet, Labrador, which Newfoundland claims as her territory, by reason of her occupation of it for the past 100 years, though Canada, in recent years, has advanced a claim to the region. The Government is being urged to prevent the erection of the station, and it will protest strongly to the British Government against the alleged engroachment.

SEIZED FOR SMUGGLING.

Two Yankee Schooners in Trouble at Nova Scotia Ports.

Halifax, Aug. 24.—The American schooner Two Forty was seized at Westport Monday for a breach of the customs regulations in landing goods at Wood's Harbor, Shelburne County, last November, when Capt. Wood was in charge. She was released yesterday on deposit being made pending the decision of the department. The extreme penalty is $400.

The schooner S. T. Willard was seized Monday at Pubnico, Yarmouth, for a similar offence committed some months ago.

Summer Prices FOR Winter Garments

The last month of Summer—August—is a good time to buy Furs. It is known to be a good time. Prices as a rule are lower, because the dealer is anticipating the season.

It is a good time—in fact the best—to order Furs. Because it affords time in which to make them up with care and without the haste that comes with the winter season.

Our show rooms are open. You can view the winter's styles. They are all here. Orders are taken based on the styles we show. It's worth a look at any rate, even if you do not buy, and you are never pressed to do so. All we know about Furs is at your service.

Leaving for Northwest

It is expected that about sixty-five people will leave Peterborough this year on the harvesters' excursions to the Northwest. A gentleman who can speak with authority was discussing this matter today, and he stated there was little excuse for a man to leave this town or district in search of employment if he at present holds a job—and there are few who do not. The wages obtained by farm laborers in the district are considered as very satisfactory, and unless a man went to the Northwest to locate permanently, he would probably be as well off here in the long run. Those who are going from Peterborough will, for the most part, take up land in the West, while not a few young men evidently have little intention of farming. For such as these, the new and progressive towns have great possibilities.

AN ODDFELLOW EXPLAINS

With Regard to the Return of the Excursionists on Monday.

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—After reading the article in last evening's Review with reference to the excursionists from Rochester, I wish as an Oddfellow to make some explanation. It is stated that no blame attaches to the Railway Company. What I have to say is this—and I have it straight from a member of the committee—negotiations for the trip were carried on entirely with the Railroad Company, they to also make arrangements with the Steamship Company. The agreement was to return the excursionists not later than Saturday on the general ticket. The weather was rough and the trip could not be made. There was no announcement made, evidently, that the steamer would attempt a trip on Sunday, or all of the people who intended returning on Saturday would probably have been at the wharf. As it was, about 40 of them who were lingering there with the idea of returning at the first opportunity, embarked on the North King. But apart from all this, and regarding the matter of principle not lightly, the Canadian law, I understand, forbids the entrance of a passenger steamer to any Canadian port on Sunday. Is this law being "more honored in the breach than in the observance?" Then, again, I am told, the railway company was advised by the steamboat people to have a special train in readiness at Port Hope on Sunday. This is also part of the new arrangement the excursionists were not made acquainted with when the unavoidable happened. So that, considering the circumstances, my opinion is—and I think all of the party will agree with me—that the G.T.R. was in duty bound to accommodate the returning excursionists on Monday. Not a few there were who paid their fares, but the action of those who refused to do so was, I consider, justifiable. There was, therefore, considerable delay occasioned, and probably had it not been for the determined stand of a gentleman of holy orders—who in this case proved the good Samaritan by demanding that he be conveyed as a first class passenger to his destination without delay, and, in fact, I am told, wired the Superintendent from Garden Hill—the train would probably have been much later in arriving, and the officials of the train might have had a more interesting time. I claim that in the light of developements they had no right to call for the extra fare, which otherwise would have been proper, had not unforseen difficulties not presented themselves, and conditions brought about of which the people were not previously made conversant.

AN ODDFELLOW.

CURRENT ITEMS OF PASSING INTEREST

EXAMPLES OF CONSTANCY.

That "absence makes the heart grow fonder" is a very true saying, is evidenced in the case of not a few of the young men who have come to Canada, within the past few years, from the Old Country. That they did not forget their old loves is emphasized almost every day by announcements stating how this or that young man, for two or three years resident here, has either returned home for his love, or been joined by her in Canada, to be wed. It was ever thus, and the passing days furnish many fine examples of constancy. A peculiar story was told the other day of a new-comer in town from Europe. Prior to landing here he had worked in England, and there met a young lady and loved her. This is not extraordinary, but the young man states that he was informed while in England that law compelled him to marry any girl whom he courted for a period of three months. Of course he had gone the limit, but the law made no difference to him. The two are now living in town, the young lady with relatives, and they are to be married soon. It would be interesting if such a law existed in this country.

NEED BUY NO BOOKS.

The parents who have pupils attending the public schools will have no books to buy when their youngsters get down to their studies again in September. The Board of Education has adopted the free distribution idea, and purchased a supply of the books required in all classes. These will be rented to the pupils at rates according to classes—junior first, five cents a month, and so on up to 20 cents a month for the highest grade. This system is an enlargement of one that has been in vogue for many years—of supplying pens, ink and foolscap to the pupils. The charges are very moderate and will mean a great saving to the people who are responsible for the education of the children. For almost every class the requirements are different, and heretofore have called for an outlay perhaps every year. In some instances there have been people who could ill afford to keep up with the pace in the matter of outsty, but under the new system there will be no difficulty. The Board of Education will make the distribution subject to rules and regulations, and the idea will be worked out in a business like way. In Brantford such a system has worked satisfactorily for something like fifty years. Tenders have been asekd for a supply of books, so that they will be purchased at a reduced rate.

HORSE SEES DOG FIGHT.

Quite a number of people were this morning interested in what may be regarded as an intelligent demonstration of feeling on the part of a horse. The animal, it appears, was enjoying a short respite from its ordinary round, and stuck its head out of an upstairs window of R. H. Leary's livery stable, that overlooked Water street. The horse appeared to be interested in the scene more especially when two dogs appeared on the street and betrayed intentions of having a scrap. The preliminary growls caused a somewhat surprised look to develop on the equine countenance, the ears stuck out in front and the neck craned, pretty much in the same manner as a man would "butt into" a crowd where some uncomplimentary things were being said. The dogs became more violent and one sbied at the other, whereupon, as if expressing disapproval, the horses' ears went back, and had he figured as a constable among the lower animals—if such a thing could be imagined—those two dogs would be up in court tomorrow on a charge of disorderly conduct. They now had quite a tussle, and the horse shook his head quite vigorously—his own way doubtless of expressing what in words would be, "Break away there, you lobster's!" The scrap ceased suddenly, the horses' ears stuck straight up, indicating agreeable surprise, and the next thing that happened was the hitching up of that equine and his participation in a gay wedding turnout.

THE CHAMPION CANOEIST

IS REGGIE BLOOMFIELD, A LAKEFIELD BOY.

Something About his Powers—What he Does not Know About a Canoe is not Worth Knowing.

"He would be nothing to the Stricklands if he wasn't a canoeist," remarked a relative of Reggie Blomfield's to-day. This young man is undoubtedly the star Canadian canoeist, and is well known here, being a native of Lakefield. The Toronto News has the following sketch:—

Members of the Toronto Canoe Club swear by "Reggie" Blomfield, and very properly so, for what Reggie Blomfield does not know about a canoe, and what he cannot do with it, is not worth knowing or doing. If it were not that so many persons of known veracity and rectitude could be called up at a moment's notice to support the statements with their solemn affidavits as witnesses, one would hardly venture to relate some of the things that Blomfield will do in a canoe.

WON'T BRAG.

It is no use trying to get Reggie Blomfield to talk about his feats himself. He is one of those incurably modest fellows who simply won't talk about his prowess. If you want to hear his praises, you must buttonhole one of the experienced members of the Canoe Club, and softly whisper, "Blomfield" in his ear. Then he will start right off, and keep going till further orders. A reporter thus held up Mr. H. Fisher, one of the most enthusiastic members of the Canoe Club.

"Blomfield," said the reporter, in an insinuating tone.

"Blomfield!" answered Mr. Fisher, looming up at once to the bait. "He's the best man we have. He made another record down at Sugar Island. There's nobody like Blomfield in a canoe."

IN THE FERRY'S WAKE.

Persons who cross Toronto Bay to indulge in the wild festivities at Hanlan's Point and other haunts of giddiness upon the Island have by now become accustomed to the strange spectacle of a canoeist, poised deftly on the second swell of the steam ferry's oily wake, flying along after the ferry without stroke of paddle, and thus without effort gliding clean across the ferry from shore to shore. Isn't it cute?" say the people on the ferry. Reggie Blomfield was first to introduce this particular form of trick canoeing on the Bay, where it has become highly popular. There are now several members of the Canoe Club who can do it quite well.

TURNING THE "FLIP."

But more common or garden ferry-chasing no longer attracts Blomfield. "I believe I could turn a flip in the Pacific," he one day confided to a club companion.

"No, you can't. Don't be silly," said the club companion.

"Yes, I can," said Reggie Blomfield.

"Flip-turning," it should be explained for the benefit of the uninitiated, is an art which in still water might call forth the utmost skill of the expert canoeist. The "Flip" is another specially invented—or at any rate introduced to Toronto—by Blomfield.

What happens in this: The canoeist puts a foot on one gunwale of his light craft, a hand on the other, and with a sudden spring throws himself and his canoe into the air, so as to turn a kind of somersault. The canoe makes a complete revolution, coming down right way up in the water. The canoeist douses in the "drink," but almost at the same moment as his canoe touches the water again he has grasped her on the other side and sprang back to his place. This startling feat Blomfield can perform in the record time of 2 2-5 seconds. And if you don't believe it you can go to the Canoe Club and ask the fellows there.

Obviously, to turn a "flip" in the ferry boat's wake is therefore an evolution of considerable delicacy. Blomfield found it so. "The first time he tried, he did the journey on his head, as the old tobagganing dity has it. That is to say, Blomfield went one way, and his canoe went the other. Of course, "Reggie" is a first-class swimmer, and he soon rejoined his friend, the canoe, and lay in wait for the next ferry boat. When it came along, he got on the swell, game another ump, and peformed as neat and successful a "flip" as in quiet water. Great applause at the Canoe Club.

Emulating the "flipping" propensities of their champion, the club has now quite a little group of "flippers." Those include R. Moody, F. Finley, T. Lewis, and T. Temple. But none of them can come near the "only original" Blomfield.

EMPTYING THE CANOE.

Another feat of Blomfield's is emptying his canoe. Of course anybody can empty a canoe, but it is not everybody who can swim around in the water, and taking old of a swamped canoe, givt it just a couple of deft shakes from side to side, empty the whole of the water from it, and be peacefully seated inside it within four or five seconds.

BUT THIS "TAKES THE CAKE."

But the latest masterpiece of Blomfield has as yet no name and no imitates. His "properties" for his trick are a canoe and a short rope fast to one end. Holding the rope in his hands, Blomfield stands on the deck-in part at the other end of the canoe, and so sinks her into the water, punk foremost, so that she goes down with him almost perpendicularly. About 30 feet of water is required for this operation. When the end of the canoe touches bottom, Blomfield gives a little spring upwards, and takes hold of the canoe's gunwales with his hands. She shoots straight up, sending her upper end high out of the water, until nothing but the decked in part of the lower end contains any more water. Then she gently drops flat on the surface of the water, right side up, with Blomfield safely inside her.

Not only is "Reggie" Canada's crack canoeist, but his comrades at the club do not tire of saying what a downright good fellow he is. He is a thorough "spert." At the club regatta last Saturday, for example, he was set to "tilt" against T. Temple, another expert of the club. The two had never encountered each other before, and both wanted to see which would win. Blomfield scored three points over the other man by making him touch his canoe, or drop on a knee, and the umpire told him he had won. But this would not do for him. He insisted on going on till one of the pair should knock the other clean into the water, which he eventually succeeded in doing to his friend.

Besides the "fancy" canoeing above described, Blomfield has done a good deal of soldid canoe work in connection with surveying in the wild district round James' Bay.

"He beats any Indian I ever saw," is Mr. Fisher's summary of his prowess.

PE-RU-NA NECESSARY TO THE HOME.

A Letter From Congressman White, of North Carolina.

HON. GEORGE H. WHITE.

Congressman George Henry White, of Tarboro, N.C., writes the following letter to Dr. Hartman in regard to the merits of the great catarrh cure, Peruna:

House of Representatives, Washington, Feb. 4, 1903.

Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O.:

Gentlemen—"I am more than satisfied with Peruna, and find it to be an excellent remedy for the grip and catarrh. I have used it in my family and they all join me in recommending it as an excellent remedy."

Very respectfully,
George H. White.

Mrs. Nannie Wallace, Tulare, Cal., President of the Western Baptist Missionary Society, writes:

"I consider Peruna an indispensable article in my medicine chest. It is twenty medicines in one, and has so far cured every sickness that has been in my home for five years. I consider it of special value to weakly women, as it builds up the general health, drives out disease and keeps you in the best of health."—Mrs. Nannie Wallace.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

A Busy Store
Even in August

Its part of our creed to "keep everlastingly at it," and keep the business constantly in evidence regardless of extreme heat or extreme cold.

Constantly increasing business talks—and talks loud for a store. No argument is necessary to prove that our store is giving satisfaction, in measure full heaped and running over, to the people of the town and county of Peterborough, and surrounding townships, other than to point to the continually larger number of ladies who are making it their shopping place.

A store's success has to be merited, as our's has been. It must give a little better goods, a little better value, have a little newer styles, or give a little fairer treatment than the others.

If we had not had these "little betters" our trade would not have increased to the extent it has over this time last year.

Figures cannot deceive. Test this store's ability to serve you.

THE LAST OF SUMMER FABRICS AND GARMENTS

have been stood up in a row, and made to take their medicine, in the shape of rigid reductions from the old prices.

The store is in the midst of fall now, and Summer Goods are unwelcome, so they have all been given "move out" prices.

FINISHING TOUCH IMMINENT

Hundreds of Guns at Port Arthur Clearing the Path.

PREPARING FOR INFANTRY

Entire Line of Harbor Defense now Within Range of Japanese Guns--Death Roll Will be Heavy but Tokio is Preparing to Celebrate.

Tokio, Aug. 25.—The final assault on Port Arthur is imminent. Hundreds of Japanese guns continue to pour a destructive fire into the city and harbor along the lines of forts and entrenchments, preparatory for the infantry assault.

It is evident that the Russian lines have been weakened and partly penetrated in the vicinity of Autzshan Itzshan forts.

The entire line of Russian defences immediately about the harbor is within range of the Japanese guns. A number of Russian forts and batteries continue to be vigorously defended. The Japanese death roll will be heavily increased before they are captured.

Final Stand at Liaotishan.

The direction of Japanese attack creates the impression here that the city and defences on either side of the harbor entrance will fall first. The final stand will be made at Liaotishan.

It is believed here that both sides have suffered heavy losses, and that the final record will make the siege the bloodiest since Sedan.

The Japanese are supremely confident of the ultimate result. The leaders of the Government await the outcome in calm assurance.

The people are everywhere decorating the streets and houses and erecting arches and flagstaffs in preparation for a national celebration of the expected victory.

If Etcounhan Is Gone Position Critical.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 25.—Reports from foreign sources represent that the Japanese assault at Port Arthur has become exhausted. Others claim that they captured the Etcounhan Fort, on the western line of the defences.

If this position has been occupied, it is realized that unless the Japanese are at once dislodged the chain of forts will be breached and the position of Port Arthur rendered critical.

The simple fact that the day to which a large portion of the public looked forward to with superstitious dread passed without the fall of the fortress, suddenly encourages the popular hope that the christening of the Czarewitch will make a turn in the tide.

Golden Hill Silenced.

Che Foo, Aug. 25.—Information of undoubted authenticity states that the Japanese armored cruisers Nishin and Kasuga have bombarded and silenced the Russian forts east of Golden Hill, at the entrance of Port Arthur.

FLAGS LOWERED AT LAST.

Shanghai Situation Relieved By Disarmament of Askold and Grosovol.

London, Aug. 25.—The correspondent of The Times at Shanghai, in a despatch dated August 24, 11.35 p. m., says that orders from Emperor Nicholas have been conveyed to Capt. Reitzenstein, commanding him forthwith to disarm the cruiser Askold and the torpedo boat destroyer Grosovol, and that the flags on both vessels were lowered at 7 o'clock to-night.

Sebastopol's Bows Submerged.

London, Aug. 25.—A telegram from Tokio to the Japanese Legation says the Russian battleship Sebastopol was bombarding the Japanese land position Tuesday from outside the harbor at Port Arthur when she struck a mine. Besides a list to starboard, the battleship's bows were submerged.

Outward Bound.

Nyborg, Denmark, Aug. 25.—A large steamer flying the Russian naval flag passed through the great belt yesterday, outward bound.

OUR CONSULAR SYSTEM.

Special British Canadian System Would Be Viewed With Suspicion.

London, Aug. 25.—(C.A.P.)—The St. James' Gazette, re the consular system, says the proposals of Gervais, the Canadian M.P., should revive the subject in a quarter where the weakness of the system is most apparent. Gervais suggests that a special British-Canadian consular service would be viewed with suspicion, as this will be by home-keeping Britons. It is apparent the demand does not arise from the idea of one man, but must be taken as expressive of a strong Canadian opinion.

Move Pull Over Farmers.

London, Aug. 25.—(C.A.P.)—The Daily Chronicle says it would be interesting to have the views of the Canadian woollen manufacturers on Mr. Chamberlain's preferential scheme. The Canadian farmer may be willing enough to reverse the policy of high protection in return for a preference, but the Canadian manufacturer is a confirmed protectionist, and far the stronger of the two at Ottawa.

To Protect British Consumer.

London, Aug. 25.—(C.A.P.)—The Financial News says our hopes of protecting the consumer from the assault of African speculators must depend on the freedom with which India released her stores, on the salvation of the Canadian crop, and the favor nature may show to the important crops, whose futures are still in the incipient stages—viz., Australia and Argentina.

Three Per Cent. on Preferred.

London, Aug. 25.—(C.A.P.)—The directors of the Canada Northwest Land Company declared a dividend of 3 per cent. for the half year which ended 31 June 30, 1904, on the preferred stock.

WANTED FOR MURDER

Killed a Child at Toronto on Aug. 2nd and then Escaped.

The following circular was received from Chief Grasett, Toronto, by Chief Rossel, this morning, and tells of a most villainous murder:—

"On the afternoon of Tuesday, the 2nd inst., a man and woman, having with them a male child from 7 to 9 months old, secured a boat at the Munro Park boat house, in the eastern suburbs of the city, and went out on the lake, returning within an hour. At 1.15 p.m. the following day they went out again, and in the evening the boat was found at the east end of the island, where it had been abandoned about four o'clock by the man and woman, who walked from that point to Centre Island and took the ferry across to Yonge-st. wharf, where all trace of them has been lost. On Thursday, the 4th inst., the body of the child, which had been killed by a blow on th ehead, was found floating in the lake, evidently a clear case of deliberate murder.

As these people may have come from some outside point, your assistance is desired in our effort to trace them. We will have no difficulty in identifying them if they can be located.

DESCRIPTOINS.

Man—Probably 35 years of age, medium height, rather stout, broad face, prominent cheek bones, large nose, wide at nostrils, dark hair and moustache, very large soft hands, wore a dirty grayish colored suit, turned down collar, much soiled, a dark red necktie and a soft black hat, appeared to be expert in handling a boat.

Woman—30 years of age, slender, and of medium height and complexion, dark eyes and hair, thin lips and gums noticeably red, wore a dark skirt, light colored blouse, white hat and badly worn shoes, fastened with a strap across instep, long neck chain, to which was attached a locket which hung from her belt, a number of cheap looking rings on the fingers of right hand, but no wedding ring, although she appeared to be married, probably five or six months advanced.

Child—From 7 to 9 months old, well developed, full round face, very dark eyes, dressed in white with tight fitting hood tied with pale blue ribbon, and white woollen bootees.

THURSDAY, AUG. 25, 1904.

THE PREFERENTIAL POLICY

The suggestion of Mr. Chamberlain that there should be a conference of representatives of Greater Britain to discuss fiscal relations within the Empire, and the endorsement by Lord Rosebery of this idea, have revived the discussion on both sides of the Atlantis as to preferential trade.

It is well to meet frankly the arguments of both the friends and the opponents of the imperial preference. Canada is not prepared, and is not in the least likely to consent to making such tariff arrangements as will close our factories, for the benefit even of the people of the United Kingdom. To take a specific case, we were not satisfied with a tariff which compelled many of our woollen mills to close down and placed others in serious straits, hanging on in the hope of better times. In altering the duty it was, however, a mistake to reduce the preference that Britain had over our goods. We are not willing that British woollens, more especially dishonest shoddy goods should come in so profusely as to deprive our own people of work, but at the same time we do not wish to see foreigners placed in a better position to compete in Canada with British manufacturers.

That is the gist of the policy which we wish to establish. We would protect our own people from crushing competition, even from the United Kingdom. We would protect British goods in Canada from undue foreign competition, and instead give a preference. Our trade and commerce returns show that there is ample scope for giving such an advantage to the Mother Country and sister colonies as will be of considerable advantage to them. We import, and are likely to continue to import, goods to an enormous amount, and the returns show that most of these are foreign. There would be no insuperable difficulty in so framing our tariff as to transfer our custom for such goods to our own people beyond the seas. Unfortunately our present Government in adopting the principle of the National Policy while tinkering with it, whether by design or mere hap hazard muddling, so arranged the duties as to bear less heavily on the goods we were likely to obtain from foreign countries, and especially from the United States. This could easily be remedied, especially as the Administration seems to have abandoned in a measure the idea that we are likely to obtain any reciprocal advantages from the United States.

This is the policy which is adopted both by the present Administration of Canada and by the Opposition. At the Coronation conference Sir Wilfrid Laurier asked for some return for the preference we had already given, and undertoo kin such case to recommend an increased advantage by lowering the duties on British goods, or by making changes in the free list. He recognized the truth that British goods can be placed in a more preferred position without necessarily lowering the duties upon them.

Of course if the United Kingdom accords Canadian goods a preference, we may have to make some sacrifices to meet them. But apart from this, we have stated the broad lines of the policy that is favorably regarded in Canada; a preference for Canadian goods all over the others, and a preference for British over foreign goods within the Dominion.

BARBARA HECK METHODIST MOTHER

CEREMONY AT GRAVESIDE OF A MOST DEVOTED WOMAN.

Her Life Had Marked Influence in Pioneer Days—Surviving Members of Family.

Prescott, Aug. 22—If there is one name more than any other inseparably connected with the history of Methodism in this new world it is that of the saintly Barbara Heck, a woman who amidst varied surroundings and much temptations was not only true to the light within her, but whose life, both by precept and example, was such that many were turned from the error of their ways, scores strengthened in the faith, while as a result of her labors the Methodist church was planted in New York state and in this part of Canada. One hundred years after her death representatives of this denomination from different parts of New York and Ontario gathered together at her grave on Wednesday of last week to honor her memory and made arrangements for the erection of a memorial hall for union services. To A. Binnington may be given the credit for the idea of thus remembering her services. Among those who were present and delivered addresses were Rev. William Dunn, who was on this circuit four years ago; Rev. D. Winter, president of the Montreal conference; Rev. Mr. Philp, Morrisburg; Rev. Mr. Scanlon, pastor of the Methodist church, Rev. Mr. Brown, of the Presbyterian church, and Dr. J. D. Reid, M.P.. A nucleus of over $600 was raised on the ground and more is coming in daily from interested parties throughout the United States.

Early in the eighteenth century a number of Palatine Germans to avoid persecution for religion's sake were forced to leave their native land and emigrate to Ireland, where they settled in Limerick, near Rathkeale. Among those who thus suffered were the Embury's, Hecks, Ruckles, and Switzers. In 1734 there was born at Ruckle Hill a girl who, from her eighteenth year, worked for the good of mankind. In fact the whole settlement was one of such godly nature as to call forth unstinted praise from John Wesley, when he visited it in 1785. In 1760 Paul Heck married Barbara Ruckle and in a few weeks, in company with a few of his neighbors, emigrated to America, landing in New York, August 10th. With the young couple were Philip Embury, a local preacher, and Catharine Switzer, who afterwards became his wife. After settling along the banks of the Hudson, these immigrants with the exception of the Hecks, seem to have lost their gripe of religion and for five years there was no further service or worship of God than Barbara Heck's pious study of her German Bible, which, by the way, is today in the possession of George Heck, the only living male descendant of Paul Heck in Canada. On the fly leaf may be traced the quaint inscription "Paul Heck Seine Buch ihm gegeben darin zi lernen die Neiderlandsche Sprache." At that time a number of other Irish Palatines came out and settled near the Hecks and all were so pleased that hilarity reigned supreme and the good time was celebrated with card games. This aroused Dame Barbara, and rising in her anger she swept the cards into the fire and then in the spirit of prophesy, came to Embury, who had backslidden and bade him to do his duty. Thus aroused, the erstwhile preacher called together a congregation, the first Methodist congregation in New York State, composed of Paul and Barbara Heck, John Lawrence, the hired man and the negro servant, Betty. From this unpretentious beginning the class gained in such members that in a short time it was necessary to get a place larger than the best room of Carpenter Embury the leader, and funds were raised sufficient to build a chapel in John street, New York, but as there was a law against persons entering any but regular churches, this was overcome by having a fireplace and chimney in the building. This building, which was opened October 20th, 1768, remains still in part.

With the advent of the American revolution troublesome times came to the little community, and in 1778, accompanied by Joel Delmage and Peter Switzer, with their families—there were now two girls and three sons given to Paul and his good dame the Hecks, came in bateaux to Montreal, where they remained over the winter and in the following spring came up the St. Lawrence to the new township of Augusta, where, being United Empire Loyalists, they were given land near "New Oswegatchie," and started to hew out a home. Shortly after the arrival of this small band a number of godly Quakers settled a couple of miles further west and these two communities were always fast friends. Until 1790 the only manner of worship was the class meetings held at the home of Paul Heck, but in that year the settlement was visited by a young local preacher, named William Losee, who ministered to these families, among others scattered hundred of miles apart. During these years the spirit of Methodism was kept alive by Dame Barabra in the home of her pious husband. Great was the rejoicing of this good "sister" when, on the arrival of Elder Darius Dunham, a regular camp meeting, the first in Canada, was held, and much good resulted from it. The people, old and young, who were spiritually nourished by this earnest worker in her Master's vineyard, soon grew in numbers, so that while part of them met in class or for worship at the Heck home, another little band met on the third concession at the home of Mr. Scott, and in 1816 were able to build for themselves a church where they could worship as their conscience dictated.

In 1804, on August 17th, Barbara Heck rested from her labors and was interred in what is now known as the Blue Church cemetery, but the work she so nobly started went on until there is scarce a hamlet in all this broad Canada that has not regular Methodist service.

Paul Heck was no mere dreamer, for he was such a successful farmer that he was able to will 10,000 acres of the best land in the district to his family of two daughters and three sons, Jacob, James and Samuel. The present generation are descended from the latter son, whose family consisted of John, who died without issue; Jacob, father of George Heck, and Mrs. John Drummond; Samuel, whose son Samuel is the only Heck of the race living in the United States; George, father of Mrs. (Dr.) Cowan, of Napanee; Mrs. A. Binnington, and Mrs. Martindale, of Alliston; Elizabeth, whose daughter is Mrs. James Howard; Sara, mother of his worship Mayor W. H. Stephenson, of Prescott; Mary, who is dead, and Hester still living. There is another branch of the Ruckles in Australia, and at the time of the world's fair at Chicago one of them who came to the windy city, came down here for the express purpose of paying his respects to the memory of his godly relatives.

The Blue Church cemetery, a historic place for many reasons, but interestingg particularly to Methodists of Canada and the eastern states as the resting place of one whose name in America will be remembered as long as that of the Wesleys, has a history interwound with the development of Canada. Some time prior to the American revolution the entire land from what is now C. W. Heaven's house west to Mr. Smade's and north a little past the Grand Trunk railway, including Miss Merrington's property, was laid out in 333 town lots, comprising 170 acres, and the nearby town called New Oswegatchie, what is now Ogdensburg being then the settlement of Oswegatchie. This name it retained for many years, though the authorities appeared to have but a hazy idea of the locality in some deeds the land is said to be variously in the district of Montreal, district of Lunenburg, Augusta, and even province of Quebec. As early as 1784 there is evidence that the cemetery was set apart by the government as church property—as that time of course the established Church of England—and in deeds the lots are said to be east or west, as the case may be, of the church commons. At present there is a stone bearing the inscription 1784, which is the oldest authentic monument on the grounds. In 1809, there being quite a number of settlers in the district, a church was erected by a number of "bees" in which all took part. This one was burned in 1811, when another and much larger edifice was erected in the same way some seventy-five feet north of the present structure. Among those who ministered to the settlement in things spiritual might be mentioned Mr. Jackson, a missionary of the S.P.G.; Dr. Strachens, afterward Bishop Strachan; Mr. Bethune, afterwards rector of Christ church, Montreal. In 1812 Rev. Robert Blakey, M.D., was sent out by the society as a resident missionary, and in the same year an Anglican church was erected in Prescott and in 1823 one in Maitland. Consequent upon this the old Oswegatchie, or as it was at that later time called Town of Augusta church was much too large for the congregations. The old church of 1811 was an excellent temple of architecture of the early part of the thirteenth century. The pulpit was a regular three-decker, from which the minister could hurl anathemas at those of the congregations who failed in attention or tried betimes to take quiet snooses in their high closed-in pews. After regular service ceased to be held in it, it was used both as a Sunday school and common school, in which some of the younger generation were grounded in the three R's by Mrs. Thomas Coates. Mrs. Blakey was a sister of Mr. Coates. In 1841 the material of the old edifice, which was then getting to be a disgrace, was taken to Lord Mills to build a church there, and it was not until 1845 that the present Blue church was erected—mostly out of what was left of the former one. This building is still in good condition, is comfortably seated, and service is held there every Thursday evening by the rector from Prescott. In probably no other English church cemetery are there so many different denominations represented, and in none are more of the makers of Leeds and Grenville interred irrespective of whether they are "churchmen" or not. When the cemetery was first used nearly all residing in the district were members of the established church, and on account of its establishment those who did not belong were looked upon as parishioners—dissenting members of the church and entitled to the ministrations of the rector and interment in the church burying ground. When consolidation came the even then historic ground had become the resting place of so many heads of families, some of whom were then Methodists and Presbyterians, that no effort was made to hold to the strict letter of the law.

Among the contemporaries of Barbara Heck, were Capt Munro, Fredrik Fendl, John Lawrence.

One Drowned, Other Clung to Stump in Scugog River For Two Hours Before Rescue.

Lindsay, Aug. 25.—Ben Bryans, a resident of this place, was drowned in the Scugog River, about four miles north, on Tuesday night at 9.30 o'clock. He and a companion named Charles O'Leary were tipped out of a canoe in some unknown way. Both were good swimmers, but the river channel at that point is lined with weeds and stumps, so that solid ground could not be easily reached.

O'Leary tried hard to save Bryans, but had to give him up to save his own life. He was rescued after clinging to a stump for nearly two hours.

Bryans' body was recovered yesterday morning. Deceased was 46 years old, and leaves a widow and a large family.

Killed By Derrick.

Montreal, Aug. 25.—A laborer named Deschamps was killed yesterday by the falling of a derrick at the new court house, St. James street.

ACCIDENTALLY SHOT.

Young Belleville Lawyer Meets Death in Northwest.

Wapella, N. W. T., Aug. 25.—Mr. Cooley, a lawyer here, whose parents live in Belleville, accidentally shot himself Tuesday and died from the effects yesterday morning.

He was out duck shooting with a youth named Winning. They got separated, and Winning found him later wounded, but conscious.

He had been here only since spring, and was highly respected by all.

Killed at Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, Aug. 25.—John Stainfort, a mortar mixer, fell from the top of the new land title office Tuesday afternoon and was picked up in a mangled condition. He died at the hospital yesterday morning.

Feared He Was Going Crazy.

Toronto, Aug. 25.—W. H. Watt, 145 Booth avenue, is dead from asphyxiation. His wife went to Munro Park for a day's outing, when she returned she was surprised to find the house full of gas, and her husband lying dead on the floor. There was also a note from the deceased, saying that he was going crazy, and that it was the best thing he could do. Watt worked for Robertson Bros., the confectioners. He had been in poor health for the past two years. He had acted strangely for the past two weeks.

Took Overdose of Arsenic.

Winnipeg, Aug. 25.—At the mines of the Manitoba Union Cement Company at Gypsumville, on Sunday, Charles McDonald, formerly a veteran trader with the Hudson Bay Company, and latterly employed in the mines, committed suicide. McDonald had been despondent for some time owing to domestic troubles, and death resulted from a dose of arsenic which had been self-administered.

Loneliness Drove Him to Death.

Vancouver, B.C., Aug. 25.—Isaac Cochrane, a young Scotchman, precipitated some time ago at Notch Hill, B.C., and worked on a section gang on the C. P. Railway. He advertised for a wife in The London Mail, owing to his loneliness in the mountains, and got 600 replies from all over England. He arranged with Rev. Mr. Duncan to send for one of these girls. In the meantime his loneliness drove him mad, and he blew off the top of his head with a rifle. The minister cabled the would-be bride not to come.

OLD MOORE'S PROPHECIES

Some Gloomy Events are Scheduled for Next Year.

"In October, 1905—the date is not yet definitely fixed—there will be a royal marriage with an American beauty, which will bind the Union Jack and Stars and Stripes still closer; there will be much wealth brought from the western republic by pretty bridal American women."

So writes Old Moore in his Almanac for 1905. The cryptic prophet appears to regard 1905 as a fairly quiet year, but to the lay mind, unskilled in measuring the lore of horoscopes, he sets forth a positively appalling catalogue of disaster.

There are fires, collisions, earthquakes, cyclones, wrecks, tidal waves, assassinations, death of great rulers, colliery explosions almost monthly, and a number of undefined "appalling disasters."

These, however, are the common upheavals of humanity. Exceptional events are predicted in this form.

"A yelling, surging, savage crowd, fur-coated and thickly clad, desperate through taxation, bad government and the horrors of war, try to clear the throne of a weak-minded, badly-advised autocrat; bullets fly, blood flows and people fall—but not yet. Later will they—like their allies—honor a president of their own choice; but education must march on first and set the workers thinking."

In January—"Death will reap a rich harvest of financiers, but the general health will be good."

In November—"A mighty ruler will pass away with a suddenness that is tragic." A case in the law courts at this time will cause much washing of autocratic linen in public; and a British gunboat will have to make a flying visit on particular business.

In the last month of 1905 there will be an improvement in the maritime means of progression; and there will be three-day trips to New York. Every tradesman will keep a motor car, and horse stables will be condemned as unsanitary.

A JEWISH TESTIMONY

Thirty Thousand Hebrews Live in New York Without a Saloon.

Rabbi Bleamfeld of New York says 300,000 Jews in the "east side" of that big city live practically without a saloon. Jews generally are not abstainers. Their Scriptures say plenty in regard to the virtues of temperance, but do not condemn wine or its modern equivalents as something not to be touched, tasted or handled. The Jews are not unmusical, and in New York, as in most American cities, they work hard, often for moderate or low pay. They are of the class to whom the saloon as it exists in New York is presumed to be an necessary as his club is to the drinker of higher social degree. They find in cafes and other resorts, however, the social relations and recreation that the saloon is presumed to afford to the Christian proletariat. The fact is advanced as a justification of Bishop Potter's model saloon, which aspires to imply, along with alcoholic beverages, attractions that will tend to reduce the demand for the intoxicating fluids. Bishop Potter's is not a new idea. There is an English association whose purpose is to buy out the worst class of drinking places and turn them into respectable resorts, where, while liquor is sold, there is no inducement to press its sale. Perhaps, because of Bishop Potter's connection with the church, and perhaps because the teetotallers on this continent are more vigorous than those of Great Britain, he is being severely assailed where his English prototypes are being rather encouraged by public opinion. His experiment is on little a glass, however, that those who doubt its wisdom might leave it to its fate. One saloon more or less will not appreciably damage New York's moral standing. If it should be the means of teaching even a few to live as do the 300,000 Jews referred to it will be of some moral use. It needs a given joy if it is likely to be more harmful than beneficent, and probably will be given up under any circumstances.—Montreal Gazette.

Piles It seems to some that Dr. Chase's Ointment is a certain and infallible cure for each and every form of blind, bleeding and itching piles. Its manufacturers have commenced it, but the thousands in the daily press spoil not your neighbors what they tell of it. You can use it and get your money back if not cured. Sold by all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

RUSS SOLDIERS ARE BRAVE

MANY DEEDS OF HEROISM DURING FIVE HOURS BATTLE.

Some Strange Freaks of Shell Havoc on the Warships Rossia and Gromoboi.

Vladivostock, Aug. 23—Most of the wounded officers now in the hospital are expected to get well, and of the wounded men the recovery of 312 is now assured. Vice-Admiral Skyrdloff has visited the hospital, complimented the men, and distributed among them crosses of St. George.

The death of Lieut. Brash, of the cruiser Gromoboi is reported to have been particularly tragic. He was hurled from the bridge of the cruiser by the explosion of a shell. Although mortally wounded, the lieutenant pulled himself together and continued to issue orders and encourage the men until he was removed between decks.

FREAKS OF SHELL HAVOC.

Some of the Japanese shells performed queer actions. On the Rossia a shell burst in a clothes cupboard. Garments therein were torn to shreds but a mirror was not scratched. Photographs and knicknacks on a writing table nearby were not disturbed. In another part of the cruiser the walls were blackened by the smoke of a fierce fire, in which eight men were burned alive, yet an almanac on the wall was not even scorched.

It was deadly work on the upper deck of the Gromoboi, where the gunners were without protection, and shells striking burst into a thousand fragments, killing and wounding men until the deck became a veritable shambles—strewn with dead and dying and slippery with blood. Not a single gunner protected by casements lost his life. The value of protective armor was demonstrated whenever projectiles struck the armored portions of the vessels.

RUSSIAN BRAVERY.

There were many deeds of heroism during the five-hour battle, but the greatest praise of all belongs to Capt. Babich of the Gromoboi, who remained at his post on the bridge from the beginning to the end of the fight; when wounded in the back he persisted in resuming command directly the wound had been dressed, but yielding to the entreaties of his officers he sought shelter in the conning tower. No sooner had he entered than a shell struck the foot of the tower, glancing upward to the overhanging cover and entered through the peep-hole, killing a lieutenant and two quartermasters, wounding two lieutenants, and again wounding Capt. Babish, in the head and breast. Not a single man in the tower escaped. There being no one to steer the ship, the captain, severely wounded though he was, dragged himself to the wheel and managed it until another quartermaster had been summoned.

Subsequently learning that the men were depressed by the fact that he had been wounded a second time, the captain insisted, after the second dressing, in being supported along the decks to the casemates, encouraging the sailors, saying:

"I am alive, brothers. Go on smashing the Japanese."

HANDLED EXPLOSIVES IN FIRE.

When Capt. Andrieff of the Rossia ascertained that only three out of her twenty big guns could be fired, he coolly gave orders to get explosives in readiness to sink the ship.

Lieut. Molas also distinguished himself. A shell entered the compartment where he was directing the fire and set fire to the deck, on which a number of charges were standing about. Then came an eight-inch shell which scattered the charges and caused a terrific explosion, which threw men in every direction, and hurled Lieut. Molas to the deck. Fortunately he fell on a heap of dead bodies and escaped with severe bruises.

Dense fire and smoke were then pouring out of the compartment, but Lieut. Molas did not hesitate for a moment. Calling for volunteers, he plunged headlong into the flaming compartment and succeeded in putting out the fire.

Another officer, followed by a number of sailors, brought a hose and played water upon Lieut. Molas and his men while they were removing the unexploded charges, regardless of the fact that they might have exploded at any minutes in their hands.

Good Digestion.

If you can keep your digestive system in proper condition the body will be well nourished and you need have little fear of disease. By regulating the kidneys, liver and bowels, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills ensure a healthful condition of the organs of digestion and for this reason are indispensable as a family medicine.

—Bobcaygeon Independent: The czar of Russia is tickled all through and the arrival of a son last Friday was the cause. It is strange how these things affect the people. The czar is reported to have said, "I am happier at the birth of a son and heir than at the victory of my troops, for now I face the future calmly and without alarm, knowing by this sign that the war will be brought to a happy conclusion." That was during the first day, and he must be crowned. He has got over that by this time. The first night that kid gets its little tummy soured the czar will not be quite so cock-sure on signs, and be a trifle less calm about the future. Just wait till that young chipper gets a pin in his waist band, jabbing it into the small of his back, and listen to what the czar has to say about signs. Signs! why that meal-time cackling will be a sign factory working double shifts.

GORGEOUS STATE COACHES

To be Used at the Baptism of the Czar's Heir.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 23.—The golden carriages which are used at the time of imperial christenings have been taken from the annex to the Winter palace, where state coaches and sleighs of every conceivable shape and color are kept, and, drawn by six pairs of milk-white steeds, gorgeously caparisoned, have been removed to Peterhof to be used in conveying the Czar to all the Russians from the Villa Alexandra to the Great Palace of Peterhof, a couple of miles distant.

The christening ceremony will take place in the beautiful little palace church, in which the brilliant assemblage of diplomats, courtiers, statesmen, generals and admirers to be present will have difficulty in finding room. Two of the highest personages in the land, the young Empress and Emperor Nicholas—will be absent. Their Majesties cannot enter the church while the christening is in progress, because it is contrary to the rules of the Orthodox church for parents to attend such ceremonies, the godparents being considered to represent them before the Almighty.

It is now known that little Alexis will be borne to the font accompanied by Prince Henry of Prussia and Prince Louis of Battenberg, representing the godfathers, Emperor William and King Edward, and by the godmother, the Empress Dowager. The Metropolitan of St. Petersburg will have the honor of annointing the infant and immersing him in holy water. Complete immersion is necessary, according to the rules of the church. The imperial party will then return to the Villa Alexandra in the golden carriages that convey them to the palace. It was at first intended to follow the custom of giving a grand banquet at the palace after the christening, but the sovereigns have decided to forego functions of this kind while the country is undergoing the ordeal of war.

DEGENERACY IN HAIR PARTS

Chicago University Professor Enumerates Marks Stamping a Man Hopeless.

(Chicago Chronicle.)

If one has a dozen marks of degeneracy he might as well prepare for the lunatic asylum, and if he has as many as fifteen his chances are that he will spend the majority of his days behind prison bars, according to Prof. Frederick Starr, of the University of Chicago. Prof. Starr says that he never has found a perfect man, or a perfect woman, either, for that matter, and he declares that any one who has as many as a dozen marks of degeneracy is a hopeless case.

The Chicago anthropologist was discussing marks of degeneracy to his class in elementary anthropology at the university yesterday, when he gave out a list of marks that should designate one as a degenerate.

His list included parting the hair in the middle, or on the right side, baldness, gray hairs before the age of 45, stub nose, flat ears, small lobes on the ears, receding chin, protruding lips, left-handedness, cross eyes, fondness for jewellry for hand wear by men, red hair for the most people, (the professor said that the Irish were entitled to the privilege of having red hair without being degenerates), blond hair (except with the Swedes), teeth wide apart, pigeon toes, knock knees, and many similar blemishes which are branded by the Midway sage as marks of degeneracy.

As to parting the hair on the right side or in the middle, the professor explained that parting in the middle was effeminate and parting on the right side was unnatural. It is more natural for a right-handed person to part his hair on the left side for it is easier to comb. The most natural man and the most perfect type of man is right-handed and not left-handed, hence, although it is easier for a left-handed man to part his hair on the right side, he is a degenerate because he is left-handed, and the fact that he parts his hair on the right side for convenience sake is no excuse, according to the professor's rules.

Prof. Starr could not find a perfect student in his classes. He says that he has yet to find the perfect man, and as the professor is a confirmed bachelor the class took up his declaration to mean that he was still looking for the perfect woman.

While the class was deeply absorbed in the discussion the professor digressed from his lecture long enough to observe that the only two bat-eared students in the class were seated together. Immediately every boy began to study the auditory appendages of his seat mate. This brought the retort from the professor that they need not worry about these deformities unless they could count up about a dozen.

"I wouldn't give much for the fellow who has a dozen marks on him," he said, "and the fellow who has fifteen is almost a hopeless case."

Don't Trust to Luck.

Even if there is such a thing as luck you cannot afford to trust to it in case of sickness. You know by the experience of others that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food actually forms new blood and tissue and revitalizes the nerves, and by using it regularly you can be certain that your system is being built up and that weakness and disease are being overcome.

RAPID WOOING RECORD

THE RECORD WAS BROKEN IN ST. LOUIS RECENTLY.

Pretty Fast Work—The Man in the Case was Cured of Marrying—Bride's Father Gunned for him.

Louisville, Aug. 22—All previous records for rapid wooing and wedding and especially parting, were broken Wednesday night, when Joseph T. Hannah, a member of one of Louisville's most prominent families, and Miss Julia Alpiger, who is twenty-one years of age, met, were secretly married in Jeffersonville, and parted, all within four hours' time. Mr. Hannah, is city shipping clerk for Torbitt & Castleman, and a nephew of both members of the firm. Mr. and Mrs. Hannah were introduced over the telephone last Tuesday night and a date for a meeting was fixed for 7 o'clock that evening. Mr. Hannah showed up at the trysting place, but Miss Alpiger did not. She satisfactorily explained her failure to keep her engagement the next day, however, and another was made.

On Wednesday evening they met on Clay and St. Catherine streets for the first time, and were much smitten with one another at first sight.

After taking a soda at the corner drug store, a ride to Shawnee Park was proposed by Miss Alpiger. In the course of the conversation, Miss Alpiger mentioned that it was necessary for her to be home by 10.30, as she had to take a lesson in bookkeeping.

"Why take bookkeeping?" asked Mr. Hannah.

"Well, you know I have to make my living," Miss Alpiger answered.

"Indeed you don't, as long as I am living," replied Mr. Hannah. "And why not?" asked Miss Alpiger.

"Because we will go to Jeffersonville and get married," said Mr. Hannah without the slightest hesitation.

For a moment Miss Alpiger is said to have bowed her head and then putting her mouth to Mr. Hannah's ear whispered with conclusive brevity: "I'm your huckleberry."

The proposal and acceptance was made while the car was speeding between Twelfth and Thirteenth streets.

When it reached Fourteenth street they alighted and entered the Fourteenth street depot and tickets for Jeffersonville were purchased and a few moments later they were on their way to "Gretas Green."

While Miss Alpiger waited in Magistrate Nixon's parlors, Mr. Hannah went to the county clerk's office, and after repeated knocks on the door succeeded in arousing him from a sound sleep in his room above.

He made the proper sworn statements, and after some parleying procured the license. When Hannah returned, shortly afterward, the word was spoken which made them man but Miss. Alpiger's statement, "We were much wrought up about it," sigand wife.

They kissed for the first time and left the office to return to the bride's home.

Here they aroused Mrs. Hannah's parents, who were asleep.

"Papa and mamma, this is my husband, Mr. Jim—I mean Mr. Joseph—Hannah. Here's our license. We've been married."

Exactly what sort of a greeting the married couple received on returning to the bride's home is not known.

Anyhow, Mr. Hannah kissed his wife good-by at 12.15 o'clock for the last time and has not seen her since.

When a reporter called on Mr. Hannah this morning, he was greeted very cordially. Mr. Hannah offered the reporter a seat, while he himself walking up and down the room, apparently somewhat agitated. He smoked a cigar in a nervous manner, and between rapid puffs made the following statement:

"D— fool escapade. If I get out of this marriage I'll never marry again." Four rapid puffs of cigar.

"How do I spell my wife's name? Why, Alphagee, Alphagee, Alpigan; oh, I really don't know exactly how you do spell it.

"You know that the affair was such a rapid one that I really don't know how you do spell it exactly." Two more puffs at cigar.

"I was carried away on the spur of the moment and don't really know how it did happen. All I know is that I met my wife for the first time Wednesday night at 8 o'clock, and said good-by at 12 o'clock, and don't intend seeing her again."

"Why am I staying in the house?" (About twenty very rapid puffs of cigar here.)

"Well, if you really want to know, I've heard that Mr. Alpiger is gunning for me, and I'm laying low.

"I've been told to stay in the house for several days and I am obeying instructions."

VERY SAD DEATH

Of Mr. Geo. Furber at Nicholl's Hospital Yesterday.

The sad death occurred yesterday morning at 10.30 o'clock of Mr. Geo. Furber, at Nicholl's Hospital. He was taken to the hospital two weeks ago, suffering from typhoid fever, and he gradually grew worse. He was only thirty-two years of age and leaves a wife and a father, besides several brothers and sisters, to mourn his demise.

The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon at 2.30 o'clock from his late residence, 574 Aylmer st., to Little Lake cemetery, where interment will be made.

FELL UNDER THE BUS

Bicycle Rider too Daring and Sustained Serious Bruises.

While the All Saints' choir were returning from Hall's Glen last evening a young man had a narrow escape from being killed. He very foolishly attempted to pass between the 'bus and some pedestrians on his bicycle in a very narrow space, and not being a very expert wheelman, he fell off under the heavy 'bus, and a wheel passed over his legs. He was picked up, but fortunately no bones were broken. His wheel was a complete wreck. The young man was taken to his home near Lakefield, and was bruised so badly that he could hardly walk. His name could not be ascertained.

TWO SURVEYING PARTIES

Organized for the Survey of the Trent Canal—The Port Hope Route

A despatch from Ottawa says:—Mr. E. J. Walsh leaves Ottawa today with the two surveying parties, which have been organized for the survey of the Trent Canal. One of these is under Mr. G. L. Law, C.E., of Ottawa, who has recently been engaged on C.P.R. western construction work. Assisting him will be Mr. A. T. Kevy, who has done surveying on the Trent route before. This party will work between Port Hope and Rice Lake. The other party is in charge of Mr. Hetherington, lately engaged upon the Quebec bridge, and he will be assisted by Mr. Murphy, of Halifax, who has recently been doing surveying work upon eastern railways. This party will make the survey between Lake Simcoe and the Georgian Bay. Both of the parties will be under the supervision of Mr. Walsh, who will make Ottawa his headquarters, that he may be in touch with the survey of the inside basin in Montreal harbor, which is also being done under him.

GERMAN ENGINEERS HERE

Came to see the Lift-Lock — Are Touring the Continent

Mr. R. B. Rogers, Superintending Engineer of the Trent Canal, today had the honor of showing the lift lock to three German gentleman, one of whom, it is said, is a Government Minister, and the others engineers in the German public service. The gentlemen have been doing the St. Louis Exposition, and a tour of the continent, and of course were greatly interested in the great engineering enterprise, which has just been completed here. It seems like a return trip on their part, since it was to a part of Europe adjacent to the locality from whence these gentlemen came, that Mr. Rogers went some years ago to obtain pointers relative to lift locks as constructed in that country. The visitors could speak very little English and Rev. E. A. Langfeldt acted as interpreter.

SOME NAVIGATION ITEMS

Water Lily Hauling Peas — The River is very low

The steamer Water Lily has begun towing grain from Rice Lake and river points. She arrived to-day with 3000 bushels of peas for the Houdrey Company. The new scow was used.

The water in the river is reported by navigators to be very low. They recall a circumstance that occurred two years ago, when a large drive of logs made the run of the Otonabee from Peterborough to Rice Lake in a day and a half. There is about three feet of a difference in the level of Peterborough and Hastings, and there must have been a lot of water in the river in those days and this was a record run. A remarkable comparison is made between this and the fact that this year it took the Dickson Company about three weeks and a half to bring a drive from Lakefield to Peterborough, the drop in the river being about 150 feet between these two points. It is hard to disguise the fact that the water in the river is pretty low for lumbering and navigation purposes. A few weeks ago navigation people were surprised at a sudden drop in the level, and a consultation was held with a view to discovering the cause and a remedy. Again is the necessity of conservation in the north emphasized. One navigator, discussing the drop, expressed the opinion that the water went over Hastings dam.

CHOIR AT HALL'S GLEN

Had a Most Enjoyable Drive Last Evening.

The choir of All Saints' church drove out to Hall's Glen last evening and gave a concert at a tea meeting held there. The drive was much enjoyed by the members and the beautiful moonlight night was everything that could be desired. Mr. East of Toronto made a most capable chairman, and the success of the evening was largely due to his efforts. Following was the programme given by by choir:

Chorus by choir, "Break Forth.'
Solo—"Always"—Miss M. Elliott.
Characteristic duet — Messrs. B. Cranfield and B. Rickey
Solo and chorus—"Always in the Way"—Miss Rickey and choir.
Reading—"Boot black at church" — Miss E. Free.
Solo—"Tick-tack-too" — Mr. J. Legg.
Comic song by Mr. E. Coleman.
Part. II.
Chorus—"King of Kings"—By the choir.
Musical sketch by Messrs. Cranfield, Tovey, Peters and Patterson.
Duet—Miss Rickey and Mr. B. Rickey.
Solo—Mrs. Reid.
Reading—"Tommy's boots" — Miss E. Free.
Solo—"The bird that never sings" —Mr. E. Crowe.
Solo—"Greeting to the King" with drum chorus, by Mr. B. Rickey and Messrs. Patterson and Cranfield, and chorus by male voices.

POLICE COURT

A Man Fined for Being Drunk — A Noted Couple Have Left Town.

William John Smith appeared in Police Court this morning on the charge of being drunk and disorderly last night. When asked if he was guilty or not he replied that he had got a drop too much yesterday. When the Police Magistrate imposed a fine of $2 and costs, amounting in all to $5.75, his smiling countenance changed to one of dismay. He said, "It is my first offence, your 'onor, and I don't see why you shouldn't give me the same treatment as just-ice as in England."

"I intend to make it so hard that it will be your last offence, $5.75 or ten days," replied the Magistrate.

"I haven't earned that much since I arrived in this country."

The Magistrate remarked that he ought to be fined for that, too. The man reluctantly counted out the $5.75 remarking, "Golly, I'll get out pretty quick if you go on that way."

Flora Lousse, a somewhat notorious character, was charged with using grossly insulting language to another woman. She failed to appear in the court and it was announced that the famous "team" had left Town. A warrant was issued for Flora's arrest if she ever returns to town, and the magistrate remarked that the town was well rid of such disreputable characters.

Raffia Baskets

Wouldn't you like to have something novel in the way of presents for your friends this Christmas? If so, why not make some of those pretty raffia baskets that are both useful and ornamental. They are very easily and quickly made and several ladies in town who have become adept in the art would be willing to give some instructions in it for a small fee. Instructions may be found in several of the magazines which are widely read in town and in the issue of the Ladies' Home Journal for August 1903. The raffia comes in many pretty shades and is for sale only at the Review office. So use moments these long evenings in getting ready for Xmas and avoid being hurried later on.

THEY SAW THE BALLOON

Several Hundred People saw the Ascension.

The Sweet Caporal Cigarette Company's balloonist made an ascension from the T.A.S. grounds last evening about seven o'clock. A crowd of several hundred people saw the daring feat. The balloon is an aerial monster, and considerable time was taken up in its inflation. When released, the huge fabric shot into the air and drifted off in a north-easterly direction, reaching a height of about 4,000 feet. The aeronaut states that he encountered three currents of air when he had reached the maximum heighth, one drifting him towards the south-west and another carrying him west. The parachute worked to perfection, and the balloonist dropped on McBain's hill, north of the golf grounds, the trip having been a great success. The balloon turned over and dropped into Mr. Hugh McKay's field of oats. A number of souvenirs were distributed prior to the occasion.

Bathing Place Needed

There have been some suggestions made at different times with regard to a bathing place for children at Inverlou Park. Nothing, however, has come of it. This is a spot frequented by large numbers of little folk, and there is apparently a great tendency for splashing about in the shallow water at the river's edge. It would seem that, with very little difficulty and expense, the town might fix up a bathing place where these youngsters could tumble about, without causing the hearts of their nurses or guardians to jump every time they hear a splash. There is an old raceway running down from the defunct dam above Smith st. bridge. The outer wall of this raceway is of stone, and the depth is about five feet. Owing to the recent raise of the water there is very little current there and by perfecting an enclosure and making the water of certain and safe depth, a very satisfactory bathing place for young people could be formed. The approach to the water could be easily improved, and a proper bathing house erected. Some father in the council should get busy.

SEMI-READY OPENING SATURDAY.

On Saturday, August 27th, Semi-ready will be introduced in Peterboro.

You are hereby invited to attend this opening to see for yourself just what clothes Semi-ready tailor.

You will see these Semi-ready suits that are all carefully hand tailored by experts on parts. You will see for yourself exactly why a Semi-ready suit looks differently and better—has a more city appearance, retains its shape longer than ordinary custom tailored suits.

We would appreciate it if you would try on one or more of these suits.

THE CITY AND SUBURBS

Important Opening.

The opening of a Semi-ready wardrobe in Peterborough next Saturday is somehwat of an event in Peterborough. We have heard of Semi-ready have heard of Semi-ready for a good many years, but, unfortunately the location of the nearest wardrobe in Toronto has prevented the particular dressers of Peterborough from patronizing Semi-ready as much as they would like. It will be worth your while to look at the Semi-ready hand tailored suits on Saturday.

VERY ENCOURAGING YEAR

IS THE RECORD OF THE C. G. E. MUTUAL BENEFIT SOCIETY.

The Financial Report Shows a Surplus and an Addition to the Reserve Fund.

The annual meeting of the Canadian General Electric Company Mutual Benefit Society was held last evening with Mr. M. Mowry, president, in the chair, and a fair attendance of members. The minutes of the previous meetings were read by Mr. T. W. Wilson, the secretary, and confirmed. Mr. Mowry in his opening address pointed out that the past year had been a success and gave the executive committee a large share of the credit. He expressed his appreciation of the support given the President by the members, and stated that as far as he was concerned the work had not been arduous but very pleasant He expressed his desire to make way for a successor.

The secretary's report was then presented. It showed that the number of meetings during the year was 12, special meetings 1, special general meetings 3, average number of representatives attending 10.

The attendance of representatives was very much larger than in other years since organization ,showing a deeper interest in affairs of the Society.

The Society is better financially this year than in previous years, $6 ,20 being added to the reserve fund.

Following is the classification of members: Class A 181, class B 109, class C 201, class D 101. Total 592.

GEO. TOVEY,
W. S. ROBINSON,
Auditors.

Peterborough, Aug. 4th, 1904.

Mr. Layfield stated that there was much in the report upon which the Society was to be congratulated. The year had been started with practically a deficit of $464.25. This had been wiped out during the year and there was to the good $161.30, showing a betterment in the Society's condition of $625.55. There were besides $101 and some cents that properly belonged to 1903 year carried over to last year and wiped out, and considering that there was some $52 and some cents of last year's accounts which were not accounted for in the report because the checks were not put through the bank, the Society could actually be considered as being some $50 or more dollars better off, or over $200 in all. Mr. Layfield considered this a most promising result, and the Society had undoubtedly recovered from the smashing which had threatened its early existence. Its affairs were carried on in a business like manner, which in the end was easier and more economical, and an increase in membership had resulted. The Executive Committee was entitled to great credit for work accomplished.

Mr .W. S. Robinson also made a congratulatory speech and credited the executive for the satisfactory condition of affairs. The membership had increased from 90 per cent. to 94 or 95 per cent. of the hands employed.

The report was received and adopted.

Following are the officers elected:
President—Mr. W. Hill.
Vice-Pres.—Mr. J. Reid.
Secretary—Mr. F. Shannon.
Treasurer—Mr. R. E. Layfield.
Auditors—Messrs. W. S. Robinson and R. E. Harding.
Physician—Dr. Young.
Entertainment Committee — Messrs. J. Hooky, J. Reid, R. Martin and M. Brickenridge.

Votes of thanks were tendered the retiring president, the Executive, the officers and the press, and after the discussion of minor business the meeting adjourned.

"BLACK HAND" MURDER.

An Italian From Toronto Kills a Man For Giving Up Secrets of Society in New York.

New York, Aug. 25.—Salvatore Bossito, eighteen years old, was shot to death in his father's restaurant on Park street by Carlo Rossati, 35 years old, early yesterday, because he had disclosed to the police the secrets of the alleged "Black Hand." The father was knocked down and choked into insensibility by the slayer, who then ran down the street followed by a great mob.

Italians to the number of 1,000 attacked Elizabeth street police station, hurled missiles at the police and prisoner, injuring two detectives and one policeman. They would have killed Rossati had not the police from two stations arrived and used clubs and fists on the mob and threatened to shoot.

Rossati a Toronto Man?

According to the police, the murder was deliberately planned by an organized gang, and this gang is alleged to have sent to Toronto for Rossati, who arrived here Tuesday night. After his arrival he was seen about Mulberry Bend with Italians, and because of his immense stature attracted attention.

Bossito is an enemy of these organized gangs, and his son inherited the enmity.

At the police station Rossati said little beyond declaring he shot in self-defence.

In Toronto Three Weeks.

Toronto, Aug. 25.—A prominent Italian was asked yesterday whether he knew a Carlo Rossati who had been in Toronto lately. After considerable hesitation, he said he did. "He is a very handsome man, tall, with broad shoulders," he added, "and dressed very showily. He was very energetic in talking with the Italians around the city, and on two or three occasions he had large numbers of sympathizers with him on street corners, where he was haranguing them. He could talk very well, if the snatches of the conversation I heard were fair samples. He proposed to form a society for the protection of the Italians of this city from being down-trodden, as he described it, and, if an Italian does get into trouble, to see that he is properly defended."

Agent of the Black Hand.

"Was he successful in his attempt to form the society?"

"I do not know. However, I believe this man was here to form an agency of the 'Black Hand,' a society whose kidnappings and blackmailings in New York and the larger cities of the United States have given the police much trouble."

"Where did Rossati come from?"

"Baltimore, I believe. He was only here about three weeks and I have not seen him for the last couple of days, so it is possible that he has gone back to New York."

Admitted Duty Free.

Ottawa, Aug. 25.—An Order-in-Council has been made to allow the free importation into Canada of articles of Canadian manufacture sent here temporarily for repair, and to be again exported.

SHOOTING PAINS THROUGH THE BACK

Not a Day Without Suffering Until Cured by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Mr. C. Noyes, for many years section foreman, and now flagman for the G.T.R. at Peterboro, Ont., states: "For twenty-one years I was section foreman on the C.P.R. and was exposed to all sorts of weather. As a result my kidneys became effected and there was scarcely a day that I was not troubled more or less. At times I would have sharp shooting pains through my back and would get so used up that I felt like giving up work. During this time I was also a great sufferer from constipation. As I had heard so much about Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for kidney disease and constipation I began using them, and can say that I was entirely cured of my old troubles in a short time. I cannot say anything too good about Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and never lose an opportunity of recommending them."

WHEN BOYS WERE MEN

By JOHN HABBERTON,
Author of "Helen's Babies," "George Washington," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1904, BY JOHN HABBERTON

"I'm not sayin' yo lie," Pat replied, "but if I had as little stomach for grub as he has for fightin' I'd go to the hospital and stay there."

After unsaddling I was greatly delayed in reaching the quarters, for I "went over" my horse very carefully to learn whether he had been wounded. Horses have their own reasons for not reporting "a mere scratch" that might in time disable them. Climbing our bunk—Brainard's and mine—which was at the top of a tier, I saw my chum lying down, with a pocket mirror in one hand, my cousin May's portrait in the other and with tears in his eyes.

"Brace up, old chap!" said I.

He quickly turned his hands to hide their contents, but his face was too honest to hide anything that was behind it. Besides, he said in fragments between sobs:

"I was homely enough before. Now I'm disfigured for life. The surgeon wouldn't deny it, and Hamilton—he always was handsome. Heaven made him so. Therefore I've no right to complain, but—but"—

"But you fought, and he didn't."

"Eh?"

"He didn't, I say. I was watching him."

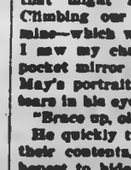
Brainard mopped his eyes with his hands and looked proud an instant. Then he groaned:

"'Tis a hard world, Jack."

The cruelest thing about it was that Brainard was the only member of our company that got a scratch, though fully half of us, not being handsome, like Hamilton, coveted the scar which Brainard were after his wound healed. Among the half that did not covet that "red badge of courage" was Hamilton. He never spoke of it, but many times afterward did I see our handsome commissary sergeant look at Brainard's cheek with an expression that indicated extreme satisfaction and triumph, with a dash of contemptuous pity that made me hate the man, though he had always been so considerate of my abnormal appetite that he had slyly given me double rations of hard tack when we went out scouting.

CHAPTER XIII.

WHICH I HAD NOT COUNTED UPON.



ONE day our company was sent out to rebuild a ruined bridge, several miles beyond the picket lines, which would give us the use of a road by which we might increase our capacity for threatening the enemy. All the material, even to the flooring, was to be cut from the woods near the little river.

The first two days of this work would have been very happy ones to me but for a single circumstance. All day long there wandered among us the farmer who owned the young pine forest from which we were cutting our timber, and his face looked as if his family were dying one by one, with no doctor or medicine within reach. Had he lost his temper and sworn at us we could have got rid of him and our uncomfortable feelings, but he was a gentle, slow spoken, tired looking man, like the American farmer of almost any other state, and he told us how he had been saving that bit of woods from the time he married, so that the timber upon it should pay for educating his sons when they grew up and also to give himself and his wife a little money with which to see something of the world after the boys married and the farm was divided between them. Now it all was being swept away and without a word of warning or a cent of pay.

"Well, sir," said our captain kindly, "I'm awfully sorry for you, but it's one of the fortunes of war. A full half of my company are young men who ought to be in college or learning some business by which to live and perhaps provide for their parents' later years; but, so far as their own future is concerned, their time is being wasted about as thoroughly as your property."

"I suppose that's true," said the farmer, looking around at the men at work. "You've got some likely looking young fellows. But that don't give me back my trees."

"Very well," said the captain, "the government will pay you the full value of your trees if you will certify and prove that you are and always have been a true and loyal citizen of the United States and have never given aid or comfort to the enemy."

The farmer stopped looking gentle and tired as he replied:

"I've given the Confederacy my three sons, and I'm proud of it."

"That's square, honest talk," said the captain, "but it brings us back to the fortunes of war again."

"I didn't bring on the war," said the farmer.

"I believe you," said the captain.

"I only went with my state," continued the farmer. "God knows I never wanted any war; neither did any of my neighbors, except a loafer or two."

"'Twas the same way with me and my neighbors," said the captain. "I suppose if we on our side and you on your side had been more particular about the men we sent to congress and to the legislatures—if we had thought more of our country and less of our party, there wouldn't have been any war."

"There's a right smart lot of sense in that," said the farmer after a moment's reflection. Then he looked sad eyed and continued, "But it doesn't give me back my trees."

As the farmer wandered away I offered the captain an argument or two which seemed to me first class clinches of the rightfulness of his position, but he smiled sadly and replied:

"It's of no use, my boy, to fuss over a man's head when his heart's turned upside down."

"But"— I began.

"Oh, go back to your ax," interrupted the captain. "Any logic that I have I need for use upon myself. If you live through the war and have a farm and a family of your own some day and look back to this particular time, you'll probably believe that I'm about as unhappy over this work as the farmer is at his loss."

I was made so wretched for two days by this sad eyed farmer's manner that I tried to devise ways of escaping it. It wasn't long before I found one. Many of our logs had to be floated to the point where we were massing the timber preparatory for use, and it was not easy for men walking along the shore with long poles in their hands to prevent an occasional log from drifting out of reach and escaping us entirely. I suggested to the captain that a single rowboat or a skiff would help us greatly, and the captain agreed with me, but wanted to know if I had never heard that for military reasons all boats on streams in a fighting country were destroyed.

"If southern boys are as smart as northern boys," said I, "I guess a boat or two escaped and lie hidden away in the bushes somewhere along the shore."

I couldn't forget how many times I had stumbled over boats while roaming along the edge of creeks and ponds not far from our village up north.

"Very well," said the captain, with an odd smile, "if that is true and northern boys are as smart as southern boys, you may go and find one of those boats. Take two or three men with you. Don't go without carbines. And be in a hurry about it. We do need a boat."

Hurrah! Here was to be an outing that would bring back a taste of old times. I wasn't long in selecting my party. Brainard almost danced with joy when I asked him to come along, and two other fellows about as old as we begged to go with us. Just before we started the captain handed me a canteen of whisky, telling me not to use any unless some one fell into the water, in which case I was to dose him frequently, a few swallows at a time. We were on the search within a quarter of an hour, and I felt a year younger in each successive five minutes. Blessed be nature! There isn't much difference 'twixt north and south as to the underbrush and dry leaves along the banks of small streams during winter. It was almost as jolly a trip as if we were out chestnutting in the woods about Summerton. Once in awhile we would startle a squirrel and long to fire at him. It was so hard to be bound by the rule to fire at nothing but the enemy when outside our own picket lines! What enemy could hear us, anyway? There was no road within three miles except that which was broken by the bridge. The temptation to shoot became still stronger when we saw the head of a deer on the other side of the stream, but Brainard reminded us that the deer would do us no good unless we could cross the stream to get him.

So on we tramped. It was as good as an excursion. We continued to be reminded of old times at home. In one place were the remains of a toy boat such as each of us had whittled from sticks in other days. Then we came upon a path which cattle and pigs had made in tramping to the river to drink. A little farther along was a little dock, such as northern farmers with water fronts generally have. All of these discoveries had no suggestion of war about them, and we all agreed with Brainard when he said:

"I feel as if I weren't down south at all."

Suddenly my heart bounded with joy, and I shouted "Hurrah!" for through a screen of bushes I saw the side of a boat. It was only a skiff, made of about four boards, but hadn't just such a boat often been as good as I wanted at home? We surrounded it in an instant and murmured a chorus of delight. The oars were in it instead of being hidden a little way off, as they would have been had the owner been a northerner, and it seemed in as good order as if recently used.

"The captain ought to make you a sergeant for this, Frost," said one of the boys.

Flat bottomed skiffs make up in weight what they lack in grace, so we laid our carbines in a heap and began to lift and drag. The boat was fully 50 feet from the water's edge, so we had a great lot of tugging and shouting of "Now!" "All together!" "Again!" etc., before we reached the water. At last, however, we got it where a single shove would place it afloat; then we straightened our backs and took another admiring look, while one of the boys became ecstatic enough to spring in, seat himself, snatch the oars and go through the motions of rowing.

"Don't forgit to take yer guns with ye," said a voice which none of us recognized. We looked around quickly, and there, kneeling right by our carbines, were three Johnnies, each with his own gun at the position of aim. And two of those three awful guns were double barreled!

This was something that none of us had looked forward to. With one accord, however, we began to look forward to Libby prison.

"Don't ye know it's a sin to steal skifts?" asked one of the Johnnies, still keeping his piece at the aim. I never saw so unpleasant looking a weapon in my life—two great, yawning, dismal holes that ended in utter darkness and behind them two hammers within an inch or two of which glittered bright red percussion caps. I never again wanted to contemplate any kind of a gun from that point of view. And how everlastingly—it seemed at least a thousand hours—that fellow held his gun in that one position!

"We were not stealing the skiff," said Brainard after the silence had become almost maddening; "we were merely appropriating it, according to the customs of war as recognized in all countries."

To be continued.

POISONED.

Rank Poison is Created when Food does not digest, and that is when Sickness Commences.

If the man or woman who does not feel right, will at once look to putting the stomach right they will strike the right key—Every ache and every pain is a cry of poison, too much of which has been made in the process of converting food into nutriment. It may be the backache or sideache of the kidneys telling they are overtaxed and cannot filter the poison—It may be weight, pain or distress in the stomach that tells of fermentation and decomposition instead of digestion—It may be headache, dull, depressed, which tells poison has reached the fluid which surrounds the brain cells. The first cause in the same—lack of gastric juice to properly digest. ANTI-PILL, the Great System Treatment, is a new discovery which so acts on the mucous membrane of the stomach, a natural supply of gastric juice is secured. To prove the wonderful action of ANTI-PILL, you may have a free trial bottle by addressing Wilson-Pyle Co., Niagara Falls, Ont.

ONTARIO RIFLE MATCHES.

Three Complete Events on Wednesday—Shooting Above the Average.

Toronto, Aug. 25.—Yesterday at the Ontario Rifle Association matches the program was more of a social one than on the opening day. After the Osler Cup match, E. B. Osler, M.P., president of the Association, gave a luncheon, and speeches urging the importance of rifle shooting were made by the Lieutenant-Governor, Hon. J. M. Gibson and Mr. Osler.

Three Complete Events.

There were three complete events on the card yesterday, the Macdonald, Osler and Duke of Cornwall and York matches, while the City of Toronto contest, begun on Tuesday, was completed. Pte. J. Straiton of the 37th, carried off the honors in the first named and Pte. G. Scheurer of the Q.O.R. in the second. In the City of Toronto finals, Corp. R. McGregor of the G.G.F.G., Ottawa, who led in the primary stage, maintained his position, and with a total of 116 points secured the gold medal and $25 cash awarded the winner. McGregor is one of the most consistent shots in Canada. He has been a competitor in association matches for years and has earned a splendid reputation.

Shooting Above Average.

There were about 320 entries in each of the four events decided yesterday, the list of entries being practically the same for each contest. The average of marksmanship in all four was above last year's.

To-day's great attraction will be the Tait-Bransey match, which is known as the militiaman's contest.

UNDER THE POOL PRICE

C.P.R. Gets 60,000 Tons Steel Rails at Discriminating Rates.

Purchase Was to Have Been Kept Secret, For It Meant Trouble For the Trust—Information Leaked From Canada and New Harriman Says R. Will Not Pay $28 For What C.P.R. Pays Only $20 For.

New York, Aug. 25.—A break in the rail pool is believed in Wall street to be imminent.

Official announcement is made that the Canadian Pacific Railway Company has purchased 60,000 tons of steel rails at $20 to $21 a ton. This is $7 to $8 a ton under the pool price. The rails have been sold by the United States Steel Corporation, and the Pennsylvania Steel Company.

Technically, the officials of both companies declare the sale of steel rails at lower prices to Canadian buyers is not a violation of the pool agreement, as this is export business. It is said that the United States Steel Corporation wanted to keep the deal secret because of its political effect. It feared that an announcement that it was able to sell rails across the Canadian border $8 a ton cheaper than it was selling them to American railroads would put a powerful weapon in the hands of the Democratic party in its fight against high tariff. The story came out from Canadian sources.

It is expected that the American railroads, especially the big eastern trunk lines, will make a fight over the discrimination in favor of the Canadian road. E. H. Harriman, who needs nearly 100,000 tons of rails for his various systems, has declared that he will not pay $28.

Steel officials do not deny that the Steel Corporation would make a good profit on rails sold to the C. P.R. at $20 a ton.

See Plant Operating.

Sault Ste. Marie, Aug. 25.—Without any hurrah, the first rails to be made as the resumption of operations in the steel plant were turned out Tuesday evening at 7.30. Operations were commenced with a full complement of men, and Superintendent D. D. Lewis says that as fast as material arrives the blast furnaces will be started.

A despatch was received yesterday, informing the management of the acceptance of the contract for rails to be used by the Government in the relaying of the Intercolonial tracks. This will need between 30,000 and 50,000 tons. This and other orders on hand ensure work, as far as market conditions are concerned, for some time to come.

Fruit is Nature's Laxative.

Fruit contains certain principles which act like a charm on the liver—and keep the whole system well and strong. But these principles in the fruit juices are too weak to have any marked effect on the internal organs. The value of lies in the secret process by which they are made. The fruit juices are so combined that they have an entirely different effect from fresh fruit. Their action is the action of fruit greatly intensified. They have a marked effect on the liver—toning it up—making it active. "Fruit-a-tives" are, without doubt, the only complete cure for all Stomach, Liver and Kidney Troubles.

Fruit-a-tives
or Fruit Liver Tablets

TOUCHED THE BARBARIC

Imposing Ceremonial Marks Christening of Czar's Heir.

Account of All the Routine Omitted, But Had No Place in the Ceremony Inside the Church—Baby Shrouded in Filmy Lace, Gave a Hearty Yell When It Was Immersed in the Warm Water of the Font.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 25.—The christening occurred at the church of the Peterhof Palace with imposing ceremony. The Empress left her bed Tuesday for the first time since the birth of her son. Both she and the infant are in excellent health. The heir weighs about ten and one-half pounds.

Within the royal port of the Peterhof Palace, from the moment the cortege issued from the gates of the Alexandra Villa to the instant the glasses were clinked around the Imperial table in the great palace, the scene was one of magnificence and brilliancy almost touching the barbaric.

Over perfect roads, beneath stately overhanging trees, the procession moved through the royal park, a beautifully composed, slowly changing picture, perfect to its smallest detail.

The Guard of Honor.

The centre of interest of course was the golden State carriage, drawn by eight milk-white horses,

M. POBEDONOSTSEFF.
Procurator-General of the Holy Synod.

with out-riders and walking grooms, in which sat the Princess Galatsin, mistress of the Empress' household, with the Imperial heir. At the door of the coach on one side rode the grand equerry of the court, Lieut.-Gen. De Grunwaldw, and on the other side the commander of the household troops, Lieut.-Gen. Hesse, both superbly mounted and uniformed, like glittering equestrian statues. Following the coach came an armed escort, with poised lances, of the famous Blue Cossacks of the Don, of which the baby is now commander-in-chief.

The procession passed through the palace to the church. There was another picture in the waiting rooms.

Now Him Smiling.

The Emperor, his face wreathed in smiles, and the Dowager Empress, led the procession, followed by the other members of the Imperial family, the grand dukes and grand duchesses in the order of their rank, the baby bringing up the rear, the youngest of all. His Majesty was met at the door of the church by the Metropolitan of St. Petersburg with a raised cross. But here the Emperor retired, as the rules of the church give him no place in the ceremony, in which the baby was presented by his spiritual parents to the Heavenly Father.

Inside the chapel were assembled M. Pobedonostseff, Procurator-General of the Holy Synod, and the members of the Holy Synod, the diplomatic corps and Imperial guests from every court in Europe.

The Ceremony Itself.

The christening party gathered at the jewel-crusted font. The baby was carried by Princess Galatzin, and the cushion on which it was borne was supported by Gen. Reichter and Prince Dolgorouki, aides-de-camp to the Emperor. The sponsors represented an Emperor and an Empress, two kings, one princess and four grand duchesses. The baby was so shrouded in filmy lace, dainty flannels and a purple silk overmantle that it was almost impossible to distinguish the form that lay so still and quiet as the Metropolitan of St. Petersbug anointed its hands, breast and forehead, with the mystical holy oil, compounded for the purpose in solemn secrecy in the Kremlin. But when the moment came to complete the immersion in the warm water of the font, the royal infant showed its humanity by a lusty yell, which echoed through the chapel and was greeted by a murmur of amusement and approval as being a sign of luck and good augury for the future.

With Cannon and Chimes.

The Te Deum, melodiously chanted by a hidden choir, was the signal to the bells overhead, which swung clamorously, while the royal yacht, off the shore of the gulf, thundered a salute of 301 guns. The signal was taken up at Cronstadt and St. Petersburg, and Moscow's 500 bells chimed while the guns of the Kremlin rolled.

As the message sped forth from the forts to the town the Emperor left the chapel and mass was celebrated. During the singing of the psalm His Majesty conferred on the heir the cross of St. Andrew and tenderly draped the distinguishing ribbon around the baby's shoulders.

Congratulations were pressed on the father through the crowded length of the salons where the baby passed, now the head of the royal party, next in rank to the Emperor himself.

Breakfast in the Palace completed the ceremony.

Decorations Conferred.

An Imperial autograph letter was published yesterday making a number of promotions and conferring decorations on the occasion of the baptism of the heir to the throne, including the bestowal on M. De Witte, president of the council of ministers, the Order of the White Eagle; on Foreign Minister Lamsdorff the St. Alexander Nevsky Order in Brilliants; and on Minister of Justice Muravieff and M. Vermoloff, the Minister of Agriculture, the St. Alexander Nevsky Order, Prince Hilkoff, the Minister of Railroads, is appointed a Secretary of State.

No Harm in Guessing.

Montreal, Aug. 25.—"Unless the most positive signs fail, a dissolution has been decided upon by the Government, and I believe the new Parliament will have been elected before the 10th of November." was the statement made yesterday at the Windsor by a Canadian Privy Councillor. This view is shared by all those who saw Sir Wilfrid Laurier at work in Quebec, as well as others who called on the Prime Minister during his short stay at the Windsor en route for Arthabaskaville.

Will Visit the Fair.

Toronto, Aug. 25.—His Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury will, it is thought likely, visit the Canada National Exhibition in this city on Sept. 5.

MONTEITH CHARGED.

North Perth Liberals File Counter Charges of Election Misconduct—The "Purity" Fund.

Toronto, Aug. 25.—North Perth Liberals yesterday filed their cross-petition, by which it is hoped to disqualify John C. Monteith, the unsuccessful Conservative candidate. There are forty charges in all, and one against Mr. Monteith declares that shortly before the election E. Sydney Smith, K.C., agent of the respondent, entered into a corrupt bargain with A. Miscampbell, E. B. Ryckman, Edmund Bristol, A. W. Wright and others, whereby the respondent was corruptly induced to become a candidate by undertaking to pay his election expenses as well as all his personal expenses out of the "purity fund." On Dec. 31, 1902, the trustees of the fund, paid the respondent $700 on account of the said bargain.

Shortly prior to the election of May, 1902, this fund was raised by a number of prominent Toronto and other Conservatives, among them E. B. Osler, M.P., J. W. Flavelle, W. R. Brock, M.P., J. J. Foy, M.P.P., A. E. Kemp, M.P., E. B. Ryckman. The fund was distributed by E. B. Ryckman, E. B. Osler, M. P., and others to different candidates, and agents of the Conservative party.

After the election a considerable balance, which was used in the by-election of December, 1902, and Jan. 7, 1903, in North Perth, and was distributed by A. W. Wright, E. Sydney Smith, K.C., A. M. King, Chas. Cameron, J. R. Gillis, Jacob Huether, James Sharman, James Steele, J. J. Coughlin, George Close, Fred Cerrie, Alex. F. McLaren, M. P., A. H. Monteith, Dr. Monteith, Felix Devlin, Orrie Sebastian, Dr. W. N. Robertson, J. J. Hagarty and others.

Christopher Riley, of Stratford, hostler, was the night before election locked up in a room in the Cabinet Hotel, and there supplied with liquor to keep him in an intoxicated condition.

Money Thrown Away.

"So that city doctor helped ye right smart, did he, Silas?" asked Mrs. Giles on her husband's return from a week's visit to a specialist in a neighboring town.

"Well, I guess he did! I'm feeling fine as a fiddle now, sir' he says I won't likely have any return of it if I just keep to what he tells me."

"What did he say was the matter with ye?" inquired the wife eagerly.

"I forgit now what he called it, but"—

"Silas," she cried, "ye don't really mean to say ye paid out all that money an' didn't git no good of it after all!"—Exchange.

Winter Garments

The last month of Summer—August—is a good time to buy Furs. It is known to be a good time. Prices as a rule are lower, because the dealer is anticipating the season.

It is a good time—in fact the best—to order Furs. Because it affords time in which to make them up with care and without the haste that comes with the winter season.

Our show rooms are open. You can view the winter's styles. They are all here. Orders are taken based on the styles we show. It's worth a look at any rate, even if you do not buy, and you are never pressed to do so. All we know about Furs is at your service.

BASEBALL.

Toronto defeated Newark by 10-8 yesterday and are now in fifth place.

The T.A.S. and Auburn baseball baseball teams will play the second game of the local series on Saturday afternoon.

The game on Saturday afternoon must between the T.A.S. and Auburns in the City League promises to be very interesting, as the Auburns have some new material and are practising hard and intend to win. It will be remembered that the last game resulted in a tie, 9-9 for the T.A.S. by 8-4. The game is called for 3 o'clock.

THE RING.

The Jeffries-Munro fight will take place on Friday night.

LACROSSE.

The T.A.S. will play the final game in the T. V. L. Series on Saturday and a good crowd will accompany the boys.

Lindsay defeated Port Hope at the latter place yesterday, in a Midland League game by the score of 6—4. It looks like Oshawa and Lindsay to fight it out.

A special rate of $1.00 return has been arranged with the C.P.R. for the the team of that place will play the the final with the T.A.S. for the Trent Valley championship. Those who intend going may leave their names at the Review or Examiner offices.

BOWLING.

Three rinks from Port Hope slipped in on the Peterborough Bowling Club yesterday quite unawares, as we had not previously received their letter, and beat the local club to the tune of 4 shots.

LACROSSE.

Millbrook played lacrosse at Lindsay yesterday and were defeated by the locals by 6 to 2. Judge and Rusel scored for Millbrook, while for Lindsay Leggerre notched one, Cameron one and Gillespie four. Referee Albert Denman gave universal satisfaction. The game was witnessed by a fair crowd. Millbrook brought their band and a big excursion to Lindsay.

The Tecumsehs defeated Fergus yesterday by 8-1. What will Brantford do to them on Saturday?

UNIVERSITY STUDENTS WORKED THEIR PASSAGE

One Was a Peterborough Man and He Tells of Some Interesting Experiences That Occurred on a Cattle Ship Crossing the Atlantic to the Old Country.

Five college students, one of them a well-known Peterborough boy, recently worked their passage across the Atlantic to England, on one of the large ships that carry cattle, and some very interesting experiences are recounted in the letters which the Peterboronian has written with regard to the trip. It was a somewhat hard-working way of spending part of a vacation, but for all that the young men apparently had no end of fun. They were enabled to spend considerable time in the Old Country, and an opportunity of this kind is not without great significance to the student. It may not be generally known that although the majority of the men who make these "cattle trips," as they are sometimes called, must be hands of some experience in looking after cargoes of this kind, while the remainder are made up for the most part of those who merely do a share of the work, while it lasts, their chief aim being to get to the other side of the pond. They get their board free as well as their passage. All sorts and conditions of men constitute this class—men whose means have run out, and take this opportunity of getting "home," the returning immigrant who has been tossed upon "the rocks" in this grand and glorious country, the individual who from mere lack of something more interesting to do, breaks into this as "a matter of spec," and then there are men who do the trip for the same reason that the students did, pretty much for "the fun of the thing," for the work is not hard, their duties being to assist the men of experience, who follow this kind of work as a means of livelihood.

And so it was on a day in May, that the Peterborough student says he left town, and joined the other fellows in Toronto. A few days later, with luggage on their backs, they went to the C.P.R. stockyards. The letter continues:—"Here we saw about 30 cars of the biggest and finest looking animals that were ever loaded. About 5.30 p.m., we climbed up on top of a freight car, luggage and all, and started on our peculiar and ever to be remembered trip. Our feelings were rather peculiar, but what did we care? Just then our foreman climbed up and made himself acquainted with his green crew. He proved to be rather nice, and in fact showed himself to be a true gentleman, in spite of his rather rough occupation. When we reached the Union station a caboose was hitched on and we got into it. The conductor and brakemen were jovial fellows and we soon made ourselves agreeable. We were all dressed in style according to our work, and formed a rather picturesque-looking group.

THE FIRST STAGE.

From Toronto to Peterborough we viewed the scenery by moonlight from the back of a caboose, and I tell you it was glorious, as the moonlight felt its straggling way through the bursting buds and branches of trees. We reached Peterborough at 11 o'clock, but our train ran right through, so I didn't have time to call. At Havelock we changed cabooses, and a couple of the fellows ran over to a hotel to buy a loaf of bread. A cynical looking chap said he had some, but he had some sandwiches. We didn't regale ourselves on his dry bread and cold ham, minus butter and other accessories. We started again, but this time our train crew were rather snubbish, so we pulled out the boards—soft ones—and tried to sleep, but to sleep in that old caboose, as it jolted and shook, jerked and rattled, would have defeated Morpheus himself. Another change at Smith's Falls,—where it was more like the north pole than the equator—with a warm up in the engine, made our last stop before we reached Montreal. At Smith's Falls one of the "green hands" bbought some sandwiches and pie, but he was so tough-looking they would not let him in the house."

FIRST EXPERIENCES.

The letter goes on to say that at Montreal the five young men went on board their boat, one of the Elder Dempster line, carrying, besides cattle, passengers and the mail. He continues:—"We went down to where the cattleman both eat and sleep, to await developments. Of all the holes to call a dining room and boudoir, I ever saw! This was King Dark as a streak of black cats, and as dirty, or dirtier, than possible, but we stayed with it, being visited by many a stoker, sailor or cow-puncher, whom we did not receive with much familiarity. We had been posted by our boss, and we were on the lookout for all tricks, for they tried to steal and us watching. One would come down and carry away our little dim lamp, pretending he was looking for something, while another would try to remove something in the dark. We were too quick, however, and right glad we were when all our baggage was stored safely in the steward's cabin. We were now free and went up street to buy provisions for our trip, i.e. something eatable, for we had heard enough stories from those who went last year. By good luck one of the bunch met a fellow whom he knew, and he took us to a wholesale house where we got a great supply of oranges, lemons and pickles, canned fruits, meats etc., also letters to the Canadian Commissioner at Paris, so if we go we will be right in town. The fellow came down to the boat with us to see us off, and we got talking to the steward and this fellow loaded him with cigars and blew us up as University men until the steward promised to look after us in fine style.

HOLE IN HOLD.

"We now went back to our hole in the hold again. About 1 o'clock a barge with about 463 cattle came alongside and we helped a gang of Frenchmen to put them on board, being up all night. Of all the times and all the noise, as the great brutes came down three decks, I never heard and never expect to hear again. The poor brutes were hammered into their places, and we soon cast off all feelings of tenderness; for we found if we didn't go for them, they would go for us. We got them on board and tied, and the bell rang for breakfast for stokers, cattlemen and sailors. The "five" had made up their minds to have a taste of it all or rather a cattleman's life in all its branches, so we started down into the black hole again, for our first meal on board. When we got there, of all the characters you ever dreamt about! Indians, Frenchmen, Cockneys and university students. We were a little late and got three granite plates, spoons and cups between us. Two went up and brought the breakfast, one with a panful of big beans in his grimy paws, so heavy that you would almost wonder how the ship carried them—and the other a pot of mush, potatoes and meat, in a big dish like our bread pan, also a pail of coffee which had a striking resemblance in smell and taste to lie. We each literally grabbed (our bun and mush, I choked down part of mine and pulled the other fellows with the rest, tasted the mush and coffee, but that was enough. However, I was out to experience it all and see what men have to do in this world.

"Every man kept his dishes and to see those dirty "hands" wash those dishes sickened the crowd, so I guess I would have starved if we had had to fare there. However, for a tip of $2.50 for the voyage, each one got second class passenger food, so we are practically second class passengers—not dressed so neatly and have not touched our own as yet. We get up at four in the morning and up can do all we have to do in the day in two hours. Our work amounts to nothing and I rather enjoy it. We "five" have our foreman and all to ourselves, having by far the best part of the ship, and are happy as kings. Night came, however, and rather than sleep on that black hole we preferred to be clean having nothing on us but dust in the morning. We got our blankets (our own) and slept in the hay as sound as in a feather bed, and no wonder, for we had been up for two nights. This is all up to May 12, and I think I have told all with the exception of a few incidents where the cattle would get loose and we would have to tie them up again.

A Moonlight Excursion

The Floradora Club last evening held a moonlight excursion by Steamer City of Peterborough and scow. The beauties of Little Lake constituted the extent of a most charming panorama, but the evening was a most delightful one for the large crowd of young people on board. The band was in attendance and not only the excursionists but the people of the town were treated to an exquisite programme. The air being clear, the music was wafted for many miles around. The evening's outing was a pleasant one from every point of view.

St. Thomas, Aug. 24—The convention of the Ancient Order of Hibernians closed here this afternoon. The following officers were elected:—W. Falvay, Toronto, Provincial President; J. J. Lynch, Peterborough, Vice-President; Thos. O'Dowd, Hamilton, Secretary; Ralph J. Slattery, Arnprior, Treasurer; Frank Walsh, Toronto, Insurance Secretary-Treasurer; D. Conghlin, Peterborough, Provincial Medical Examiner; Frank Slattery, Toronto, Solicitor. Board of Directors—J. J. Lowery, St. Thomas; J. O'Meara, Pembroke; C. J. Foy, Perth. Peterborough was chosen for the next convention two years hence. Resolutions of thanks were passed to the Mayor and City Council, the officers and members of the local lodge and Ladies' Auxiliary for hospitality and attentions. The Provincial Secretary was instructed to forward a communication to Hon. John Costigan, M.P., thanking him for the magnificent service he has rendered to the cause of home rule for Ireland in the Canadian House of Commons, which resulted in a memorial being despatched to the Imperial Parliament, asking that the Irish people be granted the same freedom to make their own laws as is enjoyed by the people of Canada. It was decided to increase the amount of insurance from $300 to $500 per member.

REPORTS WERE SATISFACTORY

Apart From the Deficit the C. M. B. A. has had a Prosperous Year.

(Toronto Globe.)

The first day's work of the C.M.B.A. convention in the Temple building was marked with a long and animated discussion over the financial statements presented by the Grand Treasurer for the Executive of the association, covering the three and a half years ending June 30th, 1904. The motion to adopt the report and sustain ther action of the Executive in settling the matter of the deficit of $29,550 left by the late Grand Sectary, Samuel R. Brown, of London, was lost. The whole question was referred to a special committee, of which Hon. F. R. Latchford, the Grand Solicitor, is chairman, with instructions to report today.

This is the first time the matter has come before the Grand Council, by reason of the fact that it meets triennially, the last meeting having been held at Niagara Falls in 1901. The last convention cost the association $10,542, and it is felt the business can safely be left to the Executive in the meantime. The general feeling of the convention is understood to have been that the Executive did the best thing under the circumstances, but in order to satisfy the doubtful the motion to refer was carried.

Apart from this deficit the reports are entirely satisfactory. The books have been audited by Edwards, Morgan & Company, and bank accounts and balances verified. Starting with a balance of $11,445, the total receipts of the beneficiary fund from January 1st, 1901, to June 30th, 1904 were $800,596. The total sum paid out during that time was $810,978, which was $9,483 in excess of receipts. The reserve fund, which amounted to $110,426 Jan 1st, 1901, has increased to $101,857. The membership increased since the last convention by 4,456, and now amounts to 19,966. Thirty-seven new branches were organized during the three and a half years.

No Winter Retirement to Give Russians Breathing Space

TWO TORPEDO BOATS MINED

Two Russian Destroyers Are Unfortunate -- General Attack May Be in Progress Near Liaoyang--Oyama With the Besiegers.

London, Aug. 26.—According to the correspondent of The Daily Chronicle, with Gen. Kuroki's army, the Japanese are not likely to retire into winter quarters. Rather than to thus give the Russians a breathing space, they will prosecute a vigorous winter campaign. The correspondent says the Japanese are accumulating immense stores, ammunition and guns at Haicheng.

A despatch from Liaoyang to The Daily Telegraph reports that severe fighting has taken place at Toranstepu, twenty-two miles southeast of Liaoyang, and that a general attack is in progress.

Wet Season Over.

Gen. Kuroki's Headquarters in the Field, Aug. 21, via Fusan, Aug. 26.—Fair weather has returned after five days heavy and three days light rains. It is hoped that this is the last stretch of the wet season. Streams are falling and the sandy soil is absorbing the water rapidly. The Russians are reported to be fortifying Liaoyang extensively. There has been no fighting recently.

Torpedo Boats Mined.

Tokio, Aug. 26.—Two Russian torpedo boat destroyers struck mines at the entrance of Port Arthur Wednesday evening. The larger one of the destroyers, a four-funneled one, was sunk. The names of the vessels and the number of lives lost are unknown.

The Awful Cost.

Che Foo, Aug. 26.—Russian advices received here say that the Japanese assaults on Port Arthur, Aug. 21 and 22, were repulsed with tremendous losses. It is added that the attempt of the Japanese to capture Fort No. 1 cost them 10,000 men, and that their attack on Fort Etzeshan resulted in their losing 3,000 men killed or wounded.

Port Dalny is said to be filled with wounded men.

At Liaoyang.

Liaoyang, Aug. 26.—At the Russian headquarters here, General Kuroki's army is estimated at 100,000 men, Gen. Nodrus' force at 70,000, and Gen. Oku's at 40,000. This is exclusive of two divisions of about 30,000 men moving upon the right bank of the Liao River.

According to the Chinese the Japanese have converted the branch railroad from Newchwang to Tashichao into a narrow guage and are conveying thither twenty siege guns.

Field Marshal Oyama, the Japanese commander-in-chief, is understood to be with the besiegers of Port Arthur.

AFTER THE SMOLENSK.

British Cruisers Sent to Convoy Russian Orders to Quit Interfering.

London, Aug. 26.—Replying to a deputation of the East India trade section of the London Chamber of Commerce last evening, Premier Balfour said he had been informed last night by Ambassador Benkendorff that the Russian Government was not certain that the Smolensk had received orders in accordance with the recent agreement concerning the treatment of neutral ships.

Therefore, in accordance with the suggestion of the British Government, the Russian Government had authorized Great Britain to assist in locating and notifying the cruisers. In consequence, the British Government had ordered two cruisers from the Cape of Good Hope to proceed immediately and search for the Smolensk and her consort and convey to them the instructions to desist from further interference with neutral commerce.

Mr. Balfour said he hoped, therefore, that they might really consider the episodes connected with the volunteer fleet as now entirely ended.

The Isle Was Stopped.

London, Aug. 26.—The Ancher Line steamer Asia, which sailed Aug. 11 from Liverpool for Calcutta, has arrived at Port Said and reports having been detained two hours while her papers and cargo were examined by the Russian cruiser Ural. The search took place sixty miles east of Cape St. Vincent, Portugal.

Stopped a Cooler.

London, Aug. 26.—News has reached England that the Russian auxiliary cruiser Ural stopped and examined the British collier Pencalenck, on Aug. 12. The Pencalenck was bound from Cardiff for Malta, with coal for the British navy.

Monster Turbine Vessel.

Belfast, Ireland, Aug. 26.—The Allan Line steamer Victorian, the largest turbine vessel yet built, was launched here yesterday morning. It is expected that she will be ready for service before the end of the year. She is 540 feet long, has 60 feet beam and her depth is 40 feet 6 inches. The Victorian is to be fitted in a most luxurious manner, and is to carry 1,500 passengers. Her tonnage is about 12,000 and she is expected to develop about 10,000 horse-power.

Dr. Willoughby Again.

Warkworth, Aug. 26.—The Conservatives of East Northumberland met yesterday. There was a good representation from all over the county. Dr. Willoughby was unanimously chosen to be the standard bearer for this riding.

Bounty on Petroleum.

Ottawa, Aug. 26.—Regulations for the payment of the bounty of 1½ cents per gallon on crude petroleum produced in Canada have been approved in Council and are now being prepared for distribution.

Fred. Myers' Case.

Hamilton, Aug. 26.—Fred Myers, the Oak Hall clerk, appeared before the police magistrate yesterday morning, and was committed for trial. The evidence against him was to the effect that he sold a suit for $6, handed $4 into the cashier, and put $2 in his own pocket. F. R. Smith, manager of the store, says that Myers confessed to him that he had stolen $300 from the store in that way.

Suicided in Calgary.

Calgary, Aug. 26.—Mrs. Louise Hensal, a woman about 20 years of age and married to Frank Hensal, a man considerably older than herself, suicided Wednesday night by taking strychnine. She declared her husband had deserted her, but a letter from the man, dated Lethbridge, showed he was only looking for work. The couple came here from Toronto, but had formerly lived in Ohio.

Lord Minto's 500-Mile Ride.

Ottawa, Aug. 26.—Col. White, comptroller of the N.W.M.P., and Major Moodie, paid a visit to Rideau Hall yesterday. Lord Minto is arranging with the N.W.M.P. for a special escort across the western plains in a 500-mile ride he proposes making before his departure from Canada.

KEPT IN LEADING STRINGS

One characteristic of the session of 1904 has been a sin of omission, not of commission. Nothing was done to release the Northwest Territories from their leading strings and to give them that measure of autonomy which the various provinces of Canada enjoy. Mr. Haultain and his colleagues have urged this act of justice with irrefutable arguments, but the Laurier Administration has turned a deaf ear to their well-founded demand. The growing population of the Northwest already so large, and such an important element in Canadian prosperity, has been a unit in supporting this appeal, but only to find themselves treated with contumely by Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his colleagues. They would not abandon the revenue which they obtain from the sale of crown lands, and especially millionaire Sifton must continue to enrich himself with his share of the spoil. So this numerous population must be kept in a state of tutelage and have the funds they need for their yearly expenditure and for building up their country, doled out to them by their usurping masters at Ottawa. It is not only that they cannot use the revenue which is fairly their own, but a restriction is thus placed upon their credit, which would be so in valuable at the present time for opening up their wide prairies and rendering them more fit for the settlement which is progressing so marvellously.

There is no excuse for withholding from these people the most valued right of their race, that of self-government. Their population is already greater than that of other provinces which have been admitted into Confederation, and is increasing by leaps and bounds. With the exception of Mr. Sifton's Doukhobor friends and other undesirable pets of the Minister of the Interior, and friends, and other undesirable pets of these will soon be a negligible quantity in the mass of the population, they are the picked people of the civilized world, immigrants from the United Kingdom, settlers from the older Provinces of the Dominion, accessions from the United States, a large proportion being of Canadian origin, with smaller numbers of Scandinavians, French and Germans. These are all accustomed to self-government and are well qualified to exercise it, so there is no need for their being made to serve an apprenticeship in this respect. They would at once settle down to the control of their own affairs as sensibly and judiciously as the people of any other Province in the Dominion, as any other people in the world indeed.

It is a failure on the part of the Administration to do justice, which should be resented in the constitutional manner by those concerned.

THE EMPEROR'S MANIFESTO

Issued by Nicholas of Russia on the Birth of a Son.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 24.—Emperor Nicholas' manifesto on the birth of an heir to the throne abolishes corporal punishment among the rural classes, and for first offences among the sea and land forces; remits arrears owing to the state for the purchases of land and other direct imposts; sets apart $1,500,000 from the funds state funds to form an inalienable fund for the benefit of landless people of Finland; great amnesty to those Finlanders who have emigrated without authorization; remits the fines imposed upon the rual and urban communes of Finland which refused to submit to military conscription in 1902 and 1903, and also remits the fines imposed upon the Jewish communes in the cases of Jews avoiding military service.

The manifesto provides for an all-round reduction in sentences for common law offences, while a general amnesty is accorded in the case of all political offences with the exception of those in which murder has been done. Provision is made for the education of the children of officers and soldiers who have been victims of the war, as well as assistance for such families as need it whose breadwinners have fallen in the service of their country.

The manifesto is introduced in the following message to the people:—"By the will of God, we the Czar and autocrat of all the Russias, Czar of Poland, Grand Duke of Finland, etc., announce to our faithful subjects that in this day of the christening of our son and heir, the Grand Duke Alexis Nicholevitch, the following promptings of our heart, turn to our great family of the Empire, and, with the deepest and most heartfelt pleasure, even amidst these times of national struggle and difficulty, bestow upon them some gift of our royal favor for their greater enjoyment in their daily lives.

"Nicholas."

THE BLACK HAND CRIMES

EVIDENCES OF THE WIDESPREAD INFLUENCES OF ASSASSIN.

Mysterous Terror of Organized Robbery and Murder.

New York, August 24—The mysterious terror of organized robbery and assassination; the secret society of murder; the unknown hand which strikes with the unerring certainty of the pirate gang in "Treasure Island." These are the disturbing elements which send a cold shill through the community.

Another "Black Hand" outrage; another daring murder of one who had offended; evidence of the widespread influence of the assassin gang, because the murderer was a gigantic Italian imported from Canada for the purpose. These are the sensational incidents which stir New York this morning.

Because he told the police of the plans of the "Black Hand" society to rob a number of Italian miners who had come to New York with money on their way back to Italy, Salvatore Bassoto, a boy of eighteen, was killed in his father's restaurant to-day.

The father was knocked down and choked into insensibility by the slayer who then ran down the street followed by a great mob.

Italians to the number of a thousand later attacked the Elizabeth st. police station and hurled missiles at the police and prisoner. Two detectives and one policeman were injured. The mob would have torn the murderer limb from limb had not it been for the arrival of reserve police from two station houses. They were forced to use clubs and fists and threaten to shoot.

THE MURDERER FROM TORONTO.

The killing of young Bassoto, according to the police, was a murder deliberately planned and executed. To carry out their plans the "Black Hand" society sent to Toronto for one of their number who was assigned to do the work. The man who did the killing gave his name as Carlo Rossati, 35 years old. He only came from Toronto last night. After his arrival he was seen about Mulberry Bend, and because of his immense stature attracted attention.

THE MOTIVE FOR THE MURDER.

Bassoto is an enemy of these organized gangs, and his son inherited the enmity. When not studying music young Bassoto helped about the restaurant. Several weeks ago he learned that the murderous gang about Mulberry Bend had planned to rob a number of miners who were coming through New York and who had engaged board in the lodging house over the Bassoto restaurant.

Young Bassoto went to the police and asked protection for the men, and soon an Italian detective had arrested twelve suspicious characters, who were held until the miners had taken a ship for their homes.

Once out of gaol it is said the gang determined upon Bassoto's death. Early to-day Rossati entered the restaurant, and when approached by the elder Bassoto said he wanted nothing. As Bassoto was about to close the place he asked Rossati to leave. The latter became insolent and refused.

Young Bassoto, who was in the kitchen, heard his father in an argument with the man. He came out, and up to this time the man had made no demonstration of violence, but the instant he saw young Bassoto Rossati drew a pistol from his pocket and shot the youth.

The bullet struck the youth between the eyes, and he fell, dying instantly. Rossati then, according to the police, struck the elder Bassoto with his fist, knocking him down, and started to run, but was captured before he had gone two blocks.

THE BLACK HAND WARNING.

On Sunday the Bassottos found on their door the "Bridge of death," a cabalistic sign of the Sicilians, which is said to be a threat of death. The elder Bassoto looked upon this as a joke at the time.

At the police station Rossati said little beyond declaring that he shot in self defence.

This city is confronted with an Italian problem with which at the present time it seems unable to cope. Citizens are waking up mornings to find "Black Hand" letters demanding extortionate sums of money to be deposited in some part of the way rendezvous or else a pistol shot or dynamite bomb will end their days. Some of these letters have been turned over to the police, but it is believed that not one-tenth of them have been made public. Besides such threats, there have also been acts of violence, and even of death. Boys have been kidnapped and held for ransom. Homes have been wrecked with dynamite on the failure of their tenants to pay blackmail and not long ago an Italian was murdered and his body thrust into a barrel because he had aroused the vengeance of a gang of conspirators.

CRIMES IN KEEPING WITH FEUDAL TIMES.

The Italian problem is peculiarly hard for the American to solve, because its roots go far deeper than American soil. The crimes of the Italian quarter have a character more in keeping with feudal times than the present age, and they reflect certain evil conditions in Italy at the present time which have been inherited from a lawless and semi-barbaric past. The barrel murder, for instance, has all the stamp of the Mafia, and the kidnapping of the Mannino boy has the very thumbmarks of the Camorra. The present murder was preceded by the warning of the Black Hand.

HE COMMITTED FOUR MURDERS

"That undertaker over there," said the detective, pointing to a sad, half-starved looking man leaning against a sign shaped like a baby's coffin, "committed four murders in Sicily. Though he seems to bury here only those who die from natural causes, yet we have suspected him of foul work several times. On that other corner, where you see that heart, thick set fellow, with the bushy moustache, is another member of the Mafia, and if understand that he was high up in the organization. Few patrons he has, and yet he seems to prosper. We have thought several times that he got odd sums by blackmail, but we can prove nothing."

Whenever a crime is perpetrated in the Sicilian quarter the police find its inhabitants peculiarly dumb. Even the oldest Italian detectives are likely to meet with only grunts and shrugs in answer to their questions. The more ignorant, even though absolutely innocent, seem to feel that they must keep silent or they will be drawn somehow into the net. At home they dreaded the police, because, if they helped an officer, some relative of the pursued murderer might assassinate them as they slept. Loyalty is still stronger than law in some parts of Sicily.

BLACK HAND FROM SICILY.

The "Black Hand," which has appeared on a number of threatening letters recently exposed, is of Sicilian origin, and is frequently used by those members of the Mafia who still terrorize the province of Syracuse. Such a letter was recently received by A. J. Polise, a tailor in Third avenue. It threatened Polise, his wife and child, with death, unless he handed $200 to a "man with a black moustache and wearing dark clothing, with a white silk handkerchief," at an uptown rendezvous. At the end of the letter there was a poorly drawn hand, which was blackened with ink. Although Polise said it was a joke, he has, nevertheless, obtained a permit to carry a revolver. Another letter having such an ominous emblem for a signature was received the other day by Joseph Bruno, the fourteen-year-old son of a Newark fruit dealer. It was as follows:

"Dear Sir,—If you don't send $100 in 3 days we will kidnap you. Leave the money under a brick under the railroad on the right-hand side. If you don't look out for yourself. Only a warning.

"BLACK HAND."

A pen drawing of a heart transfixed with a dagger decorated the lower left-hand corner of the page.

The emblem of the Mafia has also appeared on blackmailing letters. It is a crucifix, on the arms of which is written the victim's name.

For Over Sixty Years

An old and well-tried remedy.—Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used for sixty years by millions of mothers for their children while teething, with perfect success. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for diarrhoea. Sold by all druggists in every part of the world. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Its value is incalculable. Be sure and ask for Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup and take no other kind.

JOLLY ENTERTAINERS.

Stealing a Ride at Hastings — Finances Amounted to 25cts.

Toronto News:—Three members of a defunct vaudeville company, styling themselves The Jolly Entertainers, which has been playing the eastern towns, were convicted by Magistrate Kingsford in the Police Court yesterday morning of stealing a ride of a C.P.R. freight train, and were fined with costs $5. One of them, Ralph Wordley, described on the hand bills as "rag-time coon singer and fancy buck dancer" is a Toronto man. The others who are from Montreal, are Prof. Harry West, celebrated contortionist, wire-walker and champion high kicker of the world, and Fred. W. Crosbie, "black-face comedian, whom to see is to laugh."

C.P.R. Constable Samuel Wright arrested the trio after they had jumped on a freight train at Hastings. When he found them, they were seated on a flatcar, with a small valise as their only baggage. Their financial resources amounted to the exact sum of twenty-five cents and they looked hungry, according to the officer.

They told him a story of hard luck and he brought them to Toronto. In court they pleaded guilty.

Magistrate Kingsford refused to give the men time to pay the fines, but at noon someone came to the Police Court clerk's office and paid five dollars to release Crosbie.

Don't Trust to Luck.

Even if there is such a thing as luck you cannot afford to trust to it in case of sickness. You know by the experience of others that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food actually forms new blood and tissue and revitalizes the nerves, and by using it regularly you can be certain that your system is being built up and that weakness and disease are being overcome.

TORONTO WHEAT CRAZE

SOME SPECULATORS MAKING MONEY WHILE OTHERS MISSED CHANCE.

Tales of Tall Profits — What one Man Might Have Made and Didn't — The Rapid Rise.

The rapid rise in the price of wheat in the Chicago market, and consequently elsewhere, has, according to current report, been a bonanza to many local speculators, who have been skimming the cream off the advance as it went along, says the Toronto Star. The most interesting of these reports has to do with a local speculator who, the story goes, bought before the rise, and a week or so ago had a profit of $18,000 in sight. He couldn't stand prosperity, however, and went on a tear, with the result that when he sobered up a little dip in the market had wiped him out. Then he bought some more May wheat, and when he sold on Saturday around $1.16, had a profit of $12,000. That is the story, and it may be true.

Generally, however, it is hard to get at the facts. There have been plenty of chances to make money in the wheat market the past month or so, for the fellow who had the money and the necessary nerve. September wheat closed at $1 3-8c a bushel on June 30 and at $1.10 1-2 on Saturday last, while December closed at $1 1-4 on June 30 and at $1.12 5-8 on Saturday, so that the fellow who went long a couple of months ago and held on would have a profit of 30 cents a bushel on his purchase, and a profit of 30 cents a bushel on a ten, twenty or fifty thousand bushel line would be worth having. It is a pretty safe guess, however, that not many did.

SOME NOT IN IT.

Around the brokers' offices they tell different stories of how the boom has caught the local speculators. "Our fellows have all been short of it," said one broker, and its needless to say they haven't made much. "Most of our traders," said another broker, "went short of wheat around 90 and stayed that way till she got to 92, when they got out and switched. I know several who bought wheat at 92 1-2 and closed out their trades at $1.00." There was a profit of 15 cents a bushel for one bunch.

Here is what one little operator, that is a trader who deals in a bucket shop with a $10 or $20 stake, did. He bought 2,000 bushels of September wheat at 93c and sold for 97c a profit of 4 cents a bushel. On a dip he bought 2,000 more September at 96 and sold at $1.02, a profit of 6 cents. Then he bought 3,000 bushels at $1.03 and sold when the market went back on him at $1.00, a loss of 3 cents a bushel. Then he had other trades. One day he bought September wheat at $1.01 and sold before the day was over at $1.04, making $60 on the turn. But he is in a position to watch the market closely. However, he does not profess to have made much of his ventures, having had his losses earlier in the game.

Still, somebody must be making money or losing money out of the wheat market, if you accept the statement of one local broker whose house trades largely in Chicago and New York options. He claims to have done a trade of 800,000 bushels last Thursday on both sides of the market, which he is inclined to think is a record breaker, and that was only one day's trading by one house. If other houses did anything like as much there must be a lot of people who wouldn't know a grain of wheat if they saw one, dealing in the stuff the Manitoba farmer grows.

SHARK'S STRANGE PERFORMANCE

Acted as Pilot for a Ship Which Had Lost Her Bearings.

New York, Aug. 24.—The Herald has the following from Honolulu:—From Kallua, one of the Hawaiian Islands, comes the marvellous story of a shark acting as a pilot for a steamship which had lost hear bearings.

In the beginning it should be known that the name of the shark is Barnacle Bill, and that he is known to all seafarers, and best of all to Captain Simerson, of the inter-island steamship Manna Loa. This shark can pick out the Mauna Loa's keel from a hundred others, and whenever the vessel comes to anchor in her appointed berth, off Kallua, Barnacle Bill is always there, and always with his port eye cocked up and awaiting the chunks of salt pork which Captain Simerson never fails to heave at him after his ship has been brought to anchor.

It eagle about one week ago that the Mauna Loa appeared off the island at night. The lighthouse keeper had not expected her until daylight, and there was no light to guide the vessel in. But Captain Simerson is an expert navigator, and, having made the harbor many times, decided to try the dangerous passage at night. He brought the vessel safely in, but mistook her usual berth and came to anchor some distance away, and near jutting and dangerous rocks.

Soon after the anchor had been let go, the boatswain, who was standing on the forecastle meditatively winding his starboard watch, heard a grating sound from the cable, as though its under-water lengths were ripping through coral beds. Looking over the side, he saw Barnacle Bill, illuminated in a husk of phosphorescent light, with the anchor in his teeth, swimming with it and towing the ship to her old berth and away from the dangerous place where she had anchored.

There is no movement under way at Kallua to get Barnacle Bill duly licensed as a pilot.

IT HAPPENED IN NORWOOD

REVIEW CORRESPONDENT SENDS SOME INTERESTING ITEMS.

What the People of the Eastern Capital are Doing — Painters an Decorators Busy.

After quite a long vacation we again make our bow to the readers of the Review and try to interest them for a few of their leisure moments with some items of passing interest.

Our little town has been undergoing quite a transformation in appearance at last, as a good many of our business places have been putting on new clothes. The painter and decorater have been quite busy of late, and as a consequence the Pearce block, the Roxburgh block, and the King's hotel present a very pleasing appearance, which looks like full and plentiful prosperity.

The High and Public schools are being re-kalsomined and several other necessary repairs are being completed in time for the re-opening of the schools on the 8th of September. Applications for substitute for principal of the Public school are in the hands of the Secretary and will be considered by the Executive of the Board of Education on Monday next.

Quite a number of our townspeople have returned from the lakes and resumed their several occupations. They all are well pleased with the outing, having had a pleasant time, and return feeling recuperated and ready for their various duties and occupations.

Reeve Brault has purchased the vacant lot on the corner of Spring and Colborne streets, and has had a very neat and attractive barber shop erected on the north side of the lot, leaving the south east corner reserved for a dwelling.

Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Coffe will return this week after a two weeks' outing on the Upper Lakes of Ontario.

The Cadet grant of $50 has arrived, and is deposited in the Bank to the credit of the Board of Education.

Quite a number of people went from this vicinity to the West with the Farm Laborers' excursion, including the following—Messrs. Samuel McConnell, Wm. Ferguson, Geo. Andrews, A. Spence, Edw. Searight.

Miss Mamie McCammus, daughter of Rev. J. A. McCamus, of Wellington, is visiting with Miss Gertie Squire, of town.

Mrs. McGarvin, of Toronto, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. G. H. Nichol, at the Station house.

Mr. C. E. Pakenham, Norwood miller, is paying $1.00 per bushel for white winter wheat.

Mr. J. L. Sparis shipped a car of cheese from Norwood and one from Havelock to Montreal last Saturday.

Miss Ida Gjerdrum has returned after a month's visit to Carleton Place and Ottawa.

Rev. R. B. Beavis, and family, of Dell Rapids, South Dakota, are spending a three week's vacation with his father, Mr. Adam Beavis, of Asphodel, and other friends in Norwood and Peterborough.

Mrs. Fred. Anderson and son Garfield are visiting friends in Peterborough and Lakefield.

Rev. C. Parker, pastor of the Norwood Methodist church, is spending his vacation at the Thousand Islands and other places of interest, and during his absence the Rev. J. A. MacLellan is conducting union services in the Presbyterian and Methodist churches.

The Norwood Baptist church is closed for two weeks, undergoing necessary repairs, including plastering, papering and painting.

The newest thing in a morning bath is a plunge in a cistern. The success or pleasure of the experiment can be attested to by a Queen street lady. For further particulars apply to head office of the society of Local Gossipers.

Mrs. Sid. Hunter, of Lakefield, returned home on Monday after a short visit with her brother, Mr. E. J. Laing, Norwood, and Mrs. Nelson Beavis, of Asphodel.

Mr. W. H. Roxburgh has fitted up the vacant shop next to the Union Bank for his office.

Mr. John MacMillan has sold his carriage shop and business to Mr. Stanley Hendren, an old Norwood boy. The business will change hands some time this fall, when Mr. MacMillan will retire from active business.

Piles It proves to you that Dr. Chase's Ointment is a certain and absolute cure for each and every form of Piles, itching, blind, bleeding and protruding piles. The manufacturers have guaranteed it. AN AUTHORITY ON RUGBY MATTERS

ED. BAYLY OF TORONTO ON THE EVOLUTION OF THE GAME.

The Want of a Traditional Game — Canadian Game has a Half-way Tendency to Follow American — Slavish Imitation.

Probably no one in Canada knows so much about Rugby, or has had half the experience of the game, as Mr. Edward Bayly, says the Toronto News. He saw one of the first contests ever played since the formation of the Untario Rugby Union—the game between the city team and the University of Toronto, when the Toronto city team won the first of a series of victories and gave them the championship. Since that time Mr. Bayley was for years a keen Rugby player, probably, than any other two men in the Dominion.

"In those days," said Mr. Bayly, "they played a tight scrimmage, with a formation similar to the one played in England now, but with an entirely different system, because in England now they heel a ball out, and as a rule make it a very quick gate. Here they kept the ball in. I have seen scrimmages last ceertainly fifteen minutes, without moving fifteen yards. In those days they never charged a gate, because you could not get a gate. It was such a very slow game to watch, and the speactators, such as there were, used to scatter all over the field, because it was not roped off. However, seeing that about nine-tenths of the game was scrimmage, this common use of the field did not have such a demoralising effect on the game as you might think."

THE AMERICAN GAME.

Mr. Bayly, who was secretary in 1889, was sent at one time by the Rugby Union as representative to watch a game in New York, because, although Canadian players had heard a good deal of the American game, very few people had seen it. Asked about a comparison between the American and the Canadian game, Mr. Bayley said: "They are as different as baseall and cricket." Canadian Rugby he described as a sort of half way house between the English and the American games.

WANTED—A TRADITION.

"The trouble here is," he said, "that there is no tradition in the game. A fellow plays for three years, and then gives it right up, and not only drops out and is forgotten, but in most cases does not preserve his own interest in the play. In England a man keeps up his interest, and then helps to form a tradition, and a conventional way of doing things. In England a man is not encouraged in any original is not encouraged in any original breakin gof the rules, as here he is. I won't say encouraged, but permitted to break them. Of course, if a man intends to brea kthe rules in minor particulars, no referee can prevent him."

RULES NOT EVERYTHING.

"Could the rules me made more strict?"

"If you were to adopt the English rules in Ontario to-morrow," answered Mr. Bayly, "we should not play the English game. You see a game is governed partly by rule, partly by tradition. The rules and the tradition are complimentary to each other. In England there is tradition in the game, and even their attempts to break the rules are what you might call traditional attempts, and an umpire knows what to look out for. Here, on the other hand, there is no tradition. You get hold of a fellow who has never played before, and he commences to break through the rules in most novel way. We played a fairly traditional game up till 1885, when Ottawa College entered the Union. They had a lot of athletic fellows, and they picked the rules, and while playing good football, they found that they could do a whole lot that the other fellows didn't do, and they won from 1885 continuously till 1889, when, owing to some row, they retired from the Union. They reentered in 1903, but having a new crowd of men, and havin ghad very little practie, they met the Toronto team, and we beat them in the neighborhood of 30 points."

TENDENCY OF THE GAME.

"Is Canadian Rugby tending to follow the American game?" the reporter inquired.

"Well, I suppose it is about half way. From the formation of the Ontario Union up to the introduction of the snap-back rules, the tendency was gradually towards an attempt to open the game op. It has resulted in heeling out, and the throwing out of wings. But the trouble was that the wings rather neutralized each other, and the result of that was that while the game was opened up a good deal, it did not carry out the hope of the rule-makers. Last year the Union adopted the Burnside rules which are really almost exactly the same as the American rules. The distinguishing feature, however, both of the English and Canadian games, as contrasted with the American game, is that the American allowed off-side interference with the ball, and the ball was not in play in a scrimmage until it was in motion. This meant that there was a regular intermission between the downs, during which the signals were made."

"Canadians haven't attained to playing in armor-plate yet," remarked the interviewer.

Mr. Bayly laughed. "There's a good deal of the fad about the armor he said. "The Americans are awfully good fellows, but, on the other side they will wear anything. If you invented a tin eye they would wear it. But they're all right."

EFFECT OF BURNSIDE RULES.

"What do you think of the way the Burnside rules work?"

"Well, I have only seen three or four games under the new rules, and I can hardly tell yet. They are much more open, but I think they have not reached their final development. One season is not a sufficient time to test rules. The only games with them that I have seen were very pretty, but the weak point of the rules seems to be that they have a lot of forwards standing off-side, who are forbidden to do anything, and I think by the time the novelty has worn off, these men will be doing things on their own account, and the referee won't be able to prevent them, and then the Union will be up against the old problem of wing interference, and will either have to come to the American game or go back."

SLAVISH IMITATION.

"There is only one thing," added Mr. Bayly, "which I think prevents the development of footbal in Canada a good deal, and that is, that as a rule a man who is a good player is a good imitator, and picks up football because he sees othe fellows play. The result is that when a team wins a championship, their good and their bad points are both imitated almost slavishly, and so you often find a team that plays a very good defence and a bad attack, abandon their good defence, for instance, in favor of the defence of the team which won the championship, and which very likely may not be as good a one as their own. I could give you several instances of that sort of thing. There was much imitation of the Osgoode Hall team of 1892, and of the Ottawa College team. You see it right along."

Little Girl Had Eczema

Which Defied All Treatment Until Dr. Chase's Ointment Was Used and Cured Her.

Many children suffer from scald head and eczema who could be cured if their parents only knew about Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Mr. C. Wiley, who is employed as cooper by the Kennedy & Davis Milling Company, Lindsay., Ont., states; "I used Dr. Chase's Ointment for eczema on my little girl some few years ago, and soon brought about a thorough and permanent cure. She suffered for considerable time, and although we tried a great many remedies, Dr. Chase's Ointment was the only preparation to prove effective. I cannot speak too highly of Dr. Chase's Ointment, as it certainly effected a prompt and permanent cure in this case."

Dr. Chase's Ointment, 60 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Company, Toronto. To protect you against imitations, the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box.

THE NEWSPAPERS' VOICE

Cardinal Manning Says it is Some thing Between a Voice and a Thing

Coleridge said that "a picture is something between a thought and a thing. It is not a thought, because it is visible to the eye. It is not a thing, because, beyond a combination of lines, lights and colors, it has no existence."

So we may say that a newspaper is something between a voice and a book. It is not a voice, because it speaks inaudibly. It is not a book, because it is a mere sheet or leaf, which is scattered broadcast every day, or once a week. He that writes a book studies long, and weighs, and writes and re-writes, and lays up his wrok till the whole is finished. He prints it, and is a successful author if he sells a thousand copies. Many buy and do not read; many read half and never finish; many read and do not understand. The sphere of a book is small; and its fate is the shelf, dust and oblivion. But a newspaper is like a knock at the door morning by morning, or Saturday by Saturday. It is so sheerd that even the idle will read it, and so plain that even the simple can understand. It speaks to thousands at once. Mere curiosity will make men read, and mere dullness will make them talk of what they have read in their newspaper. It thinks for them, and they reproduce it in their talk at breakfast, and dinner and supper. It becomes a voice, and speaks wide. There is no more prompt, direct, intelligible and certain way of speaking to men in this nineteenth century than by a newspaper. Books move slowly in a narrow circle; voices are heard only in a church or in a lecture-room; but a newspaper speaks everywhere, whithersoever it floats by sea or flies by post. "The thing becomes a trumpet."—Cardinal Manning.

Good Digestion.

If you can keep your digestive system in proper condition the body will be well nourished and you need have little fear of disease. By regulating the kidneys, liver and bowels, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills ensure a healthful condition of the organs of digestion and for this reason are indispensable as a family medicine.

DUMPING CLAUSE WORKS

IT APPLIES TO IMPORTED PROPRIETORY MEDICINES.

What the Act Says — Does not Apply to Medicines that Contain Alcohol.

Ottawa, Aug. 24—The Commissioner of Customs states that the dumping clause applies to imported proprietary and patent medicines, because in nearly all cases there are Canadian-made character. For instance, Pain Killer may not be manufactured in this country, but other medicines of a somewhat like nature are, and therefore the dumping clause is interpreted as applying to this class of goods, since by its terms it deals with all articles imported upon which an ad valorem duty does not require to be paid.

Formerly a duty of 25 percent. was paid on all imported proprietary medicines which did not conatin alcohol. The dumping clause increases the duty on such imports to 37 1-2 per cent., 12 1-2 per cent. being added to the former duty by the dumping clause.

In the case, however, of medicines that contain alcohol, the dumping clause does not apply. The tariff lists these at the rate of 50 per cent. ad valorem, that is, 50 per cent. on the value of the whole medicine, not that amount merely on the quantity of alcohol the medicine may contain.

DOES NOT APPLY HERE.

It is thus seen that there is no need for the dumping clause to apply to them, the tariff on them being much greater than that exacted on non-alcoholic imported medicines under the dumping clause. Fifty per cent. is considered the limit, beyond which imports should not be taxed, and, in view of this, it was specially enacted that the dumping clause should not apply to this class of medicine.

Since the passing into law of the dumping clause many proprietary medicines have had to pay the surtax. American patent medicine manufacturers have expressed dissatisfaction with the extra duty, claiming that the clause does not apply to them, since medicines of a precisely similar character are not manufactured within the Dominion. It has, however, hitherto been their custom to sell their products at a price low enough to enable Canadians handling them to dispose of them to the customer at a charge equal to that at which the medicines are sold to the public in the States. This has meant that the manufacturer has paid the duty, and the extra tax is similarly being met. In no case has the retailer been required to pay the duty, nor has the retail price of any patent medicine been raised.

WHAT THE ACT SAYS.

The Act to amend the Customs Act, passed 10th August, 1904, having reference to this importation of undervalued goods, contains the following clause:—

Whenever it appears to the satisfaction of the Minister of Customs, or or any officer of customs authorized to collect customs duties, that the export price or the actual selling price to the importer in Canada of any imported autisble article, of a class or kind made or produced in Canada, is less than the fair market value thereof, as determined according to the basis of value for duty provided in the Customs Act in respect of imported goods subject to an ad valorem duty, such an article shall, in addition to the duty otherwise established, be subject to a special duty of customs equal to the difference between such fair market value and such selling price; Provided, however, that the special customs duty on any article shall not exceed one-half of the customs duty otherwise established in respect of the article, except in regard to the articles mentioned in items 224, 226, 228 and 231 in schedule. As to the Customs Tariff 1897, the special duty of customs on which shall not exceed fifteen per cent. ad valorem, nor more than the difference between the selling price and the fair market value of the article.

The expression "export price," or "selling price" in this section shall be held to mean and include the exporters' price for the goods, exclusive of all charges therean after their shipment from the place whence exported directly to Canada.

No Difference.

No distinction is made as to the kind of Piles that Hem-Roid cures.

The names internal, external, bleeding, blind, itching, suppurating, etc., are simply names of the different stages through which every case will pass if it continues long enough.

Piles are caused by congestion or stagnation of blood in the lower bowel, and it takes an internal remedy to remove the cause.

Dr. Leonhardt's Hem-Roid is a tablet taken internally.

It is a permanent cure and no case of Piles has ever been found it failed to cure.

Raffia Baskets

Wouldn't you like to have something novel in the way of presents for your friends this Christmas? If so, why not make some of those pretty raffia baskets that are both useful and ornamental. They are very easily and quickly made and several ladies in town who have become adept in the art would be willing to give some instructions in it for a small fee. Instructions may be found in several of the magazines which are widely read in town and in the issue of the Ladies' Home Journal for August 1903. The raffia comes in many pretty shades and is for sale only at the Review office. Go use moments these long evenings in getting ready for Xmas and avoid being hurried later on.

Mr. Gainey will go.

Peterborough Union, No. 294, will be represented at the International Convention of Barbers' Unions to be held in Louisville, Kentucky, about the first of October. The man chosen is Mr. C. Gainey, Hunter street, who has always taken a lively interest in the affairs of the local union, and will make a most worthy representative. The Convention will be one of the largest gatherings of barbers that the world has ever seen, and it will be quite an honor for any union to have representation there.

CLOSING OF LOWER LOCK

Necessary Repairs Here to be Made Before Frost Sets in.

The lock at the south end of the town will be closed for repairs after Sept. 5th, Labor Day. It has been found necessary to make extensive repairs to the lock, which have to be done before the frost sets in. New gates have to be put in and the bottom of the lock lowered three feet.

It is expected that the street cars will be running by that time, so that passengers and freight will be handled by the Street Railway Company.

THE STREET RAILWAY

A Test Run to be Made in a Few Days

In a very few days now the people will see electric cars running on the streets of Peterborough. Preparations to that end have been going on for some time at the car barns. The cars have been repainted and varnished and look like new. They have been equipped with all the latest requirements for their operation and appliances for the safety and comfort of the public, and the rolling stock of the Company will be equal to the finest in Ontario. A test run will be made in a very few days. Each of the old cars in their improved condition is equipped with the latest style of fender, an electric head light, sun shades at the sides, and everything is up-to-date.

A DELIGHTFUL RESPITE

Is Being Enjoyed by Mr. John Lang of East Peterboro.

The Shawville, (Pontiac County Que.) Equity, hands out the following Qpiece of comment with reference to the member for East Peterborough:

The electors of East Peterborough will be interested as well as gratified to learn that their member for the Commonhs, Mr. John Lang, has been enjoying a delightful respite from his legislative duties away among the rugged hills of Thorne, this county. Mr. Lang, like all politicians of the Liberal stripe, appreciates a good thing when he discovers it, and if his political gods should require to be propitiated for indulgence in this only too natural season of abandon, the missionary work he has been doing among the sturdy German element will no doubt be recognized as ample proof of his fidelity and serve to full restore him to their good graces.

DEATH OF HARRY CAVANAGH

Son of Mr. Ted Cavanagh, a Young Man With Many Friends.

In the death of Harry Cavanagh, which occurred on Wednesday evening at his home on Simcoe street, there has passed away a young man who was a general favorite in a large circle of friends, for his many companionable qualities. He had not been seriously ill—only since last Thursday—but an accident that he met with some time ago, by which he lost an eye, seemed to have an unfavorable effect upon him, and he never enjoyed the robust health that was his previous to the misfortune. He was the son of Mr. Ted. Cavanagh, and was born and educated in Peterborough. His wife, who died a few years ago was Miss Henrietta McNair, of town, and there were three children, two boys, one of whom died over a year ago, and one daughter, Alto, aged nine years, who is living. His father and mother are both living, and three brothers, Roy, Charlie and Jimmie. By these this great bereavement will be most keenly felt. The late Mr. Cavanagh was 34 years of age.

The funeral will take place tomorrow morning to the Roman Catholic cemetery.

THE HYDRANGEAS STOLEN

MAGNIFICENT PLANTS IN CENTRAL PARK SHORN OF THEIR BEAUTY.

Horticultural Society Will Offer a Reward of $ 10.00 for the Arrest and Conviction of Guilty Party.

The Horticultural Society have at present a problem on their hands and the person who solves it will receive a reward of ten dollars. Yesterday there were two fine beds of hydrangeas in Central Park. The plants were in blossom and were a magnificent sight. This morning their glory had departed, some thief having clipped the blooms and carried them off. These beds have for several weeks past been the particular pride of Mr. B. Cooney, the caretaker, who has nursed the six plants in each bed, and their splendid showing when they burst out in full bloom was of the nature of a triumph to him, and all who passed that way admired their appearance. The Horticultural Society have shown great interest and have spent considerable money in the work of fixing up the beauty spots of town, and when some scoundrel comes along and steals some of the "essential ingredients," it is very discouraging. This is the third time robberies of this character have been committed. On the first occasion nine geraniums—plants and all—were carried away from one bed, and at another time some splendid tuberous begonias were taken. The thief, whoever he or she may be, undoubtedly is very fond of flowers, but there is not apparent the kind of appreciation that the Horticultural Society expects, when plants and blossoms are carried off. The police are working on the case. Mr. D. W. Dumble, police magistrate, who has shown a great interest in the work of the society, considers the theft a detestable piece of business.

THE RUSS FISHING CLUB

A PARTY OF PITTSBURG GENTLEMEN CAMPED ON SANDY POINT

They Have a Most Complete Outfit—Their Second Visit to Stony Lake and They are Well Pleased.

If the charm of an outing at Stony Lake were ever questioned, there could be ample proof to the contrary by a visit to Sandy Point, Clear Lake, where for the past two weeks the Frank Russ Hunting and Fish Club, of Pittsburg, have been camping. These gentlemen go in for a vacation on an elaborate scale, and are apparently not hampered by the absence of what is these days termed "the sinews of war." There are about twenty in the party, and there is assembled in a favorable spot on Sandy Point a colony of eight tents, not including the cook's tent, the dining tent, and the "refreshment" tent. These gentlemen are from Pittsburg, where they are well known business men, and when they go abroad on a vacation trip such as this, they do it in a private car. They constitute what is distinctly a Hunting and Fishing Club, and they number among their members some crack shots—one, for instance, F. Jeffery, being a wonder at punking a five cent piece at fifty yards, with a revolver. (The outfit is one of the most complete imaginable, the tents having comfortable beds and everything essential to a happy life—free from the maddening crowd—has its place in the equipment. When the steamers arrive at Sandy Point, the campers give them a right royal welcome. There is a vocal quartette in the party, and their singing is considered by campers and cottagers to be particularly fine. Its members are Oscar Neubert, Philip Clements, August Specht and David Grier. These four men have the melody market cornered. The other members of the party, with a few exceptions, as all the names could not be obtained, are August Lewis, F. Jeffrey, S. Miller, F. Russ, President; J. Deagon, Sam Lenox, J. Miller, F. Rise, jr.; Max Weber, F. Brethole, E. Hasselman and J. Weber, all of Pittsburg.

This is the second year for the party to camp at Stony Lake, and undoubtedly will not be the last. A ceremony which has made quite a hit at the camp, is the saluting of the steamers with a small cannon, a part of the fortifications of the place. The Stars and Stripes and Union Jack flutter above the tents. One of the party captured a 39-pound lunge the other day, and altogether the fishing has been good.

Mr. R. M. Roy has some very fine pictures of the party.

POLICE COURT

Drunk Heavily Fined—Two Liquor Charges Dismissed.

At the police court this morning several witnesses gave evidence that John Pogue created a disturbance at his residence on Aug. 24th, and the Magistrate fined him $2 and costs, amounting in all to $3.25.

A local hotel keeper answered to two charges of selling liquor during prohibited hours on Sunday, Aug. 7th and the following Sunday, Aug. 14th. A lot of witnesses were called but no evidence was forthcoming and both cases were dismissed. R. E. Wood appeared for the prosecution and Jas. Haverson, of Toronto, for the defence.

GERMAN VISITORS HERE

ONE WAS SPECIAL COUNSELLOR IN CONSTRUCTION OF RAILWAYS AND CANALS.

Came Here to see the Lift-Lock—The Other is Government Architect and Director of Navigation on the Baltic Sea.

They were two very distinguished German gentlemen, who were here yesterday for the express purpose of examining the lift lock. One was Mr. Richard Eger, special counsellor in construction of railways and canals, and assistant to the Minister of Public Works, Berlin, Germany, and the other was Mr. Nakons, Government Architect and Director of Navigation in the Baltic Sea, from Pillau, East Prussia. There are four in the party, one of the others having gone to Chicago, while the fourth will meet them in Detroit. The four gentlemen are making a special study of the navigation problem, and before returning will make a tour of this continent. They are going to St. Louis, where Mr. Eger is the representative of Germany in the exhibition by the Imporial Government.

Mr. R. B. Rogers accompanied them upon their visit to the lift lock, and explained its details. Rev. E. A. Langfeldt being the interpreter. The visitors admired the large enterprise, and showed considerable interest in the concrete work, of which material for construction not much is known in Germany. They stated that there is now under consideration the construction in the neighborhood of Berlin a lift lock of 120 feet drop, and they are now trying to find out whether they can overcome it by one lift lock or two.

They were delighted with their visit. The fame of the Peterborough lift lock had gone abroad, for these gentlemen heard about it in Germany. They remarked upon the very fine appearance of the grounds surrounding the works, and in a drive, upon which Mr. Rogers and Rev. Langfeldt accompanied them about town, including a visit to the C. G. E. works, where Mr. Patterson kindly showed them through, expressed great pleasure with what they saw.

FIRE IN WATERLOO

Canada Furniture Company Completely Destroyed.

Waterloo, Ont., Aug. 26.—The large four storey furniture factory controlled by the Canada Furniture oC., was completely destroyed by fire this morning. The fire was caused by a lighted candle in the hands of the factory foreman, who was oiling the elevator machinery, coming in contact with some waste. The draft caried the flames up the elevator shaft and within a short space of time the factory was in flames. The loss on the building, machinery and stock probably will reach $125,000, insured in companies for $68,000; 85 men are thrown out of work by the fire.

MARK GUY PEARSE PRAISES CANADA

SAID HE FAILED TO SEE ONE DRUNKEN MAN.

Impressions Left Upon his Mind of the Overwhelming Destinies of the English People.

The British Weekly contains an interesting talk with Rev. Mark Guy Pearse, who has just returned to England from a year"s tour of Canada and the United States. It will be remembered that this eminent clergyman spoke in Peterborough, and what he has to say about Canada will be of interest.

"I have traveled," he says, "in Canada from Montreal to Victoria, in California, and other States. The chief impression left in my mind was an overwhelming sense of the destinies of the English-speaking people. Just think that in the home islands there are 121,000 square miles, in Europe about 3,800,000, while in America, English-speaking people occupy nearly eight million square miles. These figures become realities as we travel over the vast continent, and remember that these people—for I cannot separate Canada from the United States—are of one industry, one religion and one destiny. Surely we see in our Empire, not less than in Palestine, what I may call the providence of geography."

CHURCH UNION.

From the religious standpoint, the feature of the hour is the proposal for the union of the Presbyterian, Methodist and Congregational churches. Canada led in the union of the Methodist churches, and her example was followed by Australia and New Zealand. This large union which is confidently expected to take place in a few years, will provide an object lesson to the world.

"It will be greatly to the advantage of religion that two or three churches in many scattered districts should be united under one pastor. Here is a typical case. I passed one village which had a Baptist, an Anglican, a Roman Catholic and a Methodist church. The Anglican minister drove thirty miles to hold a service on alternate Sunday afternoons. The Methodist drove 28 miles every third Sunday. I was told that each church had a congregation of about ten persons. The difficulty might, I think, be solved by a much larger use of lay preachers."

A WARM WELCOME.

Mr. Pearse speaks of the very kind welcome he everywhere received from ministers. "The kindness and love shown me made me greatly long that it were possible to arrange for some London reception committee or club that would enable us to reciprocate this hospitality."

During his tour Mr. Pearse used to preach eight and ten times a week, but he broke down in the far West, owing to the sudden change in climate, and was obliged to take three weeks of complete rest at Catalina, on the Californian coast, which he described as a heaven on earth.

It has been of great interest to Mr. Pearse to meet in all parts of the country men whom he knew in the old home. There are laborers who have gone out to Canada, and in seven or eight years have made a fortune by their farms. There is no complaint of hard work, but the extreme loneliness of prairie life is apt to be depressing. "I wish to say," Mr. Pearse went on, "that I never saw a woman in any public-house in Canada or the States, that I never saw on any table, or even in the dining-cars, or in the hotels, a glass of beer, wine or spirits. I never saw a drunken man until I reached an English port. I was deeply impressed with the self-respecting bearing of the people. They walked with a firm step, as if they knew whose world it is, and felt that they had a share in it."

"My own plans are unsettled," says Mr. Pearse, in reply to a final question.

The Opening Saturday.

The Semi-ready suits are certainly the best looking, the best made suits that have ever been seen in Peterborough. This is the opinion of one who has been favored with a private view. Saturday is the opening. From tomorrow the masculine portion of Peterborough who like something different and better in the way of dress will have an opportunity to satisfy their taste—and they will be able to assure themselves that their suit is just right before they buy.

WATER POWER PROBLEM

CANADA ONLY COUNTRY TO SUCCESSFULLY SOLVE IT.

Canada has Financed Many of the Biggest Enterprises — Peterboro Men Connected With Some.

Montreal, Aug. 24.—"Canada is the only country that has successfully solved the problem of water power," was the statement made to a press representative by the general manager of a leading bank, "and a review of the large enterprises Canadians have undertaken in foreign countries show that both England and the United States have been easily distanced. In England there is only one company using a water power that has had marked success, and it is situated in Wales; while in the United States hardly one power company enters into the category of the big successful enterprises."

Among the big projects undertaken by Canadian capitalists of Toronto and Montreal in foreign countries are the Sao Paulo Tramway Light and Power Company, the Mexican Light and Power Company and the Rio de Janeiro Tramway Light and Power Company. At home similar big enterprises include those on the Canadian side of Niagara, the Shawinigan Falls, the Lachine rapids, and the falls at Chambly.

CANADA FINANCED THEM.

A peculiar feature is that in all the biggest enterprises it was an American engineer, Mr. F. S. Pearson, who first realized the opportunity of securing big money makers, and it was only after failing to secure the support of American capitalists that he came into Canada and secured the millions required to put through his various undertakings.

The first big enterprise in a foreign country by Canadian capitalists was the Sao Paulo Tramway Light and Power Company, with a capital of $7,000,000. The group of capitalists who ventured to underwrite the bonds were given stock as bonus at the rate of 100 per cent., and now this purely water stock is paying 6 per cent., is selling around par, and there is already talk of another increase in dividends.

MEXICAN COMPANY.

The next enterprise abroad was the Mexican Light and Power Company, and this time Mr. Pearson, instead of going to Toronto, came to Montreal to get the greater part of the capital required. The company was capitalized at $12,000,000, and expects to practically have a monopoly of light and power business in the city of Mexico when it enters the field next March. The company, which has already secured the big lighting company of the city of Mexico, formerly owned by Siemens and Holske, the German bankers, earns more than enough to pay the five per cent. interest on the six million bonds.

THE BIGGEST YET.

Once the construction work of this enterprise was assured, Mr. Pearson again asked Toronto capitalists to take the principal part in the biggest foreign project yet, and on their assenting the Rio de Janeiro Tramway Light and Power Company was formed with a capital of fifty million dollars, half of which is to be secured now and the remaining half when the power plant is placed in operation. The company will supply power and run the tramway and lighting companies in Rio de Janeiro, the capital of Brazil, the enterprise being almost identical with that of Sao Paulo.

A curious feature in connection with these big enterprises is that while English capitalists have almost steadily refused to go into them at the outset, Canadians have found little difficulty getting them to pay them as much as ten times what the stocks cost them after the enterprise has proved successful.

DRAFTS FOR TORONTO.

A number of the banks have complained that it would be much better if Canadians put all their money into Canadian projects, but when it is remembered that every month the Brazilian Bank sends a draft for $60,000 into Toronto from the Sao Paulo Company yit can also be seen that the enterprises will bring a great deal of money into this country. The Canadians who have played the most prominent part in these foreign investments include William Mackenzie, James Ross, Hon. G. W. Cox, Frederic Nicholls, E. R. Clouston, E. R. Wood, J. H. Plummer, H. M. Pellatt, Sir Geo. A. Drummond, J. Paterson, F. L. Wanklyn.

WHEN BOYS WERE MEN

By JOHN HABBERTON,
Author of "Helen's Babies," "George Washington," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1904, BY JOHN HABBERTON

"'Properatin', eh?" replied the man, relaxing his aim, though his comrades neglected to follow his praiseworthy example. "Well, 'cordin' to the customs of nations we'll 'properate you. Come up here—one at a time."

Nobody moved.

"D'you hyah me?" shouted the Johnny.

"Yes, sir," said I politely as I stepped forward.

"Gimme yer belt," said he. I obeyed, and he bound my arms behind my back

We looked around quickly.

with it, saying as he did so, "You uns bein' four to we uns three, we uns has got to be more'n ord'nary keerful."

I didn't look at the other boys while they were being bound. I was afraid they might be looking at me. Besides, I had too much else to occupy my mind. Capture meant prison, poor food, perhaps sickness and death. It certainly meant no more communication with home for months. Probably my parents would think me dead, and they would daily wonder where and how I met my fate. Oh, what an awful load of punishment belonged to whoever was to blame for the war!

When all of us had been bound, the men who had kept us covered with their guns arose, came in front of us and stared at us. Suddenly one of them exclaimed:

"It's a fact! I was doggoned sure of it from the fust."

"What you talkin' about?" asked another.

"This here," was the reply as I felt a big hand on my shoulder and looked up; "this here is the little cuss that got us coffee the night the Yanks grabbed us three months ago. Mebbe you didn't git some of it. I did, though, an' I shayn't never fergit it. I'm right glad to see you again, my friend, though I wish 'twas somebody else we'd ketched."

I felt much better at once and then felt ashamed that the sound of a friendly voice had made me forgetful of the awful future before me.

"Don't look so down in the mouth," continued my old acquaintance. "We ain't goin' to kill an' eat you. After we git you across the river we'll treat you as well as we know how. Won't we, boys?"

"Of course," growled the leader of the party.

This was kind, but would their good will be of any service to us in Libby prison or Castle Thunder? Still, I thanked him as heartily as I could and told him truthfully that if we had to be captured I was glad we had fallen into the hands of some one who seemed to remember us pleasantly. Then my old acquaintance became chatty and told me they had hung about the edge of our camp all the day before, trying to find out what we were doing, word having been sent to their camp, 15 miles away, that a "lot of Yanks was cuttin' pine by the river." They had followed us, keeping on one flank as my little squad went up the river, for they wanted to learn what we were up to. They were glad they had seen us leave camp; otherwise they would have missed their boat, on which they nightly crossed the river to the house in which they slept.

All this was interesting, but it made cold chills play hide and seek all over me. Suppose, instead of following us through mere curiosity, they had shot us as soon as we were out of hearing of our camp. Ugh!

"Guess we'd better git across the river now," said the man who seemed leader of the party. "The Yanks 'll be sendin' out for these boys pooty soon, like as not, an' we don't want to git into no mess."

CHAPTER XIV.

A FRIENDLY CANTEEN.

TWO Johnnies got into the boat, putting two of us, still bound, in the stern, and crossed the river; then one brought the boat back and took over the remainder of the party, first stowing our carbines in the bow under the legs of a man who held a double barreled gun ready for use. When all had crossed, the boat was hauled up into the bushes just as we had found it on the other side. Then we were marched about half a mile from the river to a big log hut.

"Now, boys," said my old acquaintance, "we'll make you feel as much at home as we can without bein' onsafe. We'll enloose one of you at a time, so you can stretch your arms an' eat, an' we'll send word to our camp soon as we can for somebody to come an' take you 'long to Richmond."

"We're in no hurry to get there, I'm sure," said I.

He looked at me sharply a moment and replied:

"Mebbe they ain't as well fixed thar as you uns at Fort Monroe, where they tuck us when we got ketched, but they'll do the best they can for you. Besides, you'll be exchanged 'fore long, just as we was."

It was real kind of him to say this, and I told him so, but my heart grew heavier and heavier. What would father and mother think? Who would write them about my disappearance? What would the writer say? Could there be any possible way of getting word home from Richmond? I asked my old acquaintance this question and told him I was afraid my disappearance would kill my parents unless they knew what had happened.

"That's so, my friend," said he. "Just you write a scrap to some friend of yours in your camp, an' I'll see it reaches him in a week. Nuthin' else, though, mind, except that you're captured."

"How will you get it there?" I asked, with natural curiosity.

"Ask me no questions, an' I'll tell you no lies," said he. "You give me coffee one time, don't you remember? Well, that's enough."

As it happened that just then was my turn to be unbound, I got some letters out of my breast pocket and found a blank half sheet of paper, on which I penciled:

Inez Hamilton—We were captured by the enemy. Tell my father not to worry. Our captors say we'll be exchanged pretty soon.

Jack Penn.

My old acquaintance looked over my shoulder while I wrote. When I had finished, he said:

"Put in a little more. Say The man that I gave coffee to when he was hetched in the mess that's got me, an'

AT PETAWAWA.

Dominion Government Accepts Ontario's Offer of a Free Site For New Training Ground.

Ottawa, Aug. 26.—The Dominion Government will accept the offer of the Ontario Legislative Assembly, of a free training ground for artillery and infantry at Petawawa, one of the most desirable grounds on the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway for that purpose.

It was learned yesterday morning that an inspection had been made of the Kazabazua site, the one first proposed this spring, and that for many reasons the place was considered unsuitable.

The settlers on the site objected to the place being turned into a military camping place and, besides, the Quebec Government refused to let the grounds pass into the control of the Dominion for less than $50,000 or $60,000.

CANTERBURY IN MONTREAL.

Elaborate Program Arranged For His Stay in That City.

Montreal, Aug. 26.—According to present arrangements the Archbishop of Canterbury on his arrival here Sept. 1 will be met by the Archbishop of Montreal and the members of the special reception committee.

He will be dined by Sir George Drummond, and in the afternoon will be taken for a drive over Mount Royal and to see the principal points of interest.

In the evening a service will be held in Christ Church Cathedral, where Archbishop Bond will present an address to the primate and the latter will preach.

Following the service a reception will be held.

On the following morning service will be held at the cathedral, and at 1 o'clock the primate will be tendered a luncheon at the Windsor Hotel.

A garden party will be given in the afternoon, and in the evening he will be dined at Bishop's Court.

OIL FIELDS AFLAME.

Horse Wells in Louisiana Fired By Friction in Pipe.

New Orleans, Aug. 26.—A long distance telephone from Jennings, La., says that three of the Morse oil wells are on fire and five other wells are in danger.

There seems little hope of saving the entire oil field from destruction.

The fire was caused by friction in the pipes of Morse well No. 6.

So far as known no one has been injured.

Canada's Trade Returns.

Ottawa, Aug. 26.—Complete trade returns for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1904, have just been completed. They show that Canadian trade last year was $472,733,000, against $467,064,000 the previous year and $239,025,000 in 1896.

IN BRITISH COMMONS

Chamberlain Would Welcome Younger Colonials to Seat.

Former Colonial Secretary Says There's Nothing to Prevent Any British Subject Being Elected to That Assembly—Sir John Gorst, Conservative M.P., Believes Chamberlain's Preference Scheme Would Increase the Price of Food.

London, Aug. 26.—(C. A. P.)—Mr. Chamberlain, replying to C. T. Grant of the Royal Exchange, Glasgow, who suggested that some younger spirits from the colonies should be asked to come over and find seats in the British House of Commons in order to hear their views from their own lips said he would be glad to welcome colonial statesmen in the House of Commons. There is nothing to prevent any British subject being elected to that Assembly.

Sir John Gorst, M. P. (Conservative), writing to the newly formed Cambridge University Free Trade Association, said that Mr. Chamberlain's scheme of a colonial preference would in his judgment exact a contribution they can ill afford from the British people, in the shape of an increased price for food for the benefit of certain classes of colonial producers. He must doubt if such an expedient would promote imperial unity.

The Cambridge University Free Trade Association has issued a circular opposing the preferential treatment of colonial imports because of the inevitable connection between any practical scheme for preferential duties and some form of protection not only on food, but on manufactures.

Trained Jap Navy.

London, Aug. 26.—(C.A.P.)—The Daily Chronicle says that Admiral Douglas had a large share in the training of the Japanese navy and its brilliant success in the present war must bring special gratification to him.

CROP ESTIMATE DOWN.

Winnipeg Grain Tourists Strike An Average of 44,000,000 Bushels.

Winnipeg, Aug. 26.—The weather now is ideal for harvesting operations, being warm, with drying winds. The harvesters continue to come in gradually. Cutting is by no means general as yet.

The main party of the Winnipeg grain dealers' excursion has returned, and is inclined to be optimistic, so far as rust is concerned. On the return trip each member of the party was asked to give an estimate of the probable yield of the western Canadian crop for 1904.

This was done and an average taken, making the estimated yield 44,000,000 bushels. A month ago the estimate was between 60,000,000 and 65,000,000, which makes a shrinkage of 30 per cent.

At Melita, Farmer Neely brought in the first load of fall wheat yesterday. It graded No. 1 northern and Ogilvie & Co. paid $1 a bushel for it.

OFF TO TEMISKAMING.

Railway and Township Commissions on Tours of Inspection.

Toronto, Aug. 26.—The Temiskaming Railway is approaching a degree of completion which requires preparation for business, and last night the Railway Commission left on a tour of inspection. Representatives of the C.P.R. and G.T.R. went along to make arrangements for through settlers rates and other details. P. Byrne, secretary; W. B. Russell, chief engineer, and R. Galbraith, assistant engineer, were also in the party.

The Town Sites Commission, consisting of Aubrey White, A. W. Campbell, T. Southworth and T. W. Gibson also went to the Temiskaming district last night to locate sites along the line of the railway.

ONTARIO RIFLE MATCHES.

Brought to a Conclusion For 1904.—Tait-Brassey Match the Feature of the Day.—Gzowski Match.

Toronto, Aug. 26.—Under lowering skies and with a fair breeze blowing the annual O. R. A. matches were brought to a conclusion yesterday.

Tait-Brassey Match.

The great event of the day was the Tait-Brassey or militiaman's match. Keen interest centered therein, and in view of the number of crack shots grouped together in different teams of six and companies of four, the outcome was awaited with more eagerness than that displayed in any other contest. The highest quartette of individual scores were: O. R. Sergt. J. Phillips, R. G., 100, $20; O. R. Sergt. J. H. Simpson, R. G., 100, $15; Pte. W. T. Willoughby, Australia, 99, $12; Pte. D. C. Draper, 43rd D. C. O. R., 98, $10.

Tait-Brassey—Battalion Team Prizes.

Royal Grenadiers (1st team), 553, Tait Challenge Cup and $45; 43rd D. C. O. R., 552, $42; Royal Grenadiers (2nd team), 546, $36; 48th Highlanders (2nd team), 545, $30; 13th Regiment, 544, $24.

Tait-Brassey—Company Team Prize.

F Company, Royal Grenadiers, 375, Brassey Cup, and $20; B Company, Royal Grenadiers, 366, $15; C Company, Royal Grenadiers, 366, $10.

Three-Cornered Tie Shot.

The Duke of Cornwall and York match, held on Wednesday afternoon, resulted in a three-cornered tie for first place, necessitating a shoot off yesterday. Capt. H. J. Dennen of the First Hussars, was the victor with a possible of 25; Lieut. J. H. Armstrong, 77th, landing second with 20, and Staff-Sergt. T. Mitchell, 13th, with 16.

The Semi-Annual Meeting.

The semi-annual association meeting was held after the mid-day luncheon. A committee was appointed to select the provincial eight for the London Merchants' Cup, and chose representatives at the D. R. A. council. All of last year's officers were re-elected, with the exception of Capt. Kirkpatrick, Q.O.R., who retired, Major Mercier of the same regiment taking his place.

The Gzowski Match.

Queen's Own Rifles (1st team), 516, $40 and Gzowski Challenge Cup; Governor-General's Foot Guards, 488, $27.50; 10th Royal Grenadiers (2nd team), 488, $27.50; 12th Regiment, 478, $20; 48th Highlanders, 474, $15.

Next in order: 10th Royal Grenadiers (1st team), 464; Queen's Own Rifles (2nd team), 456; 7th Regiment, 452; 91st Highlanders, 439; 13th Regiment (1st team), 416; 48th Highlanders (2nd team), 409.

A number of extra series matches were shot, and the slate was cleared for another year.

MR. MAHAFFY'S REPLY.

Gets Order For Liberal Politicians to Appear in Court.

Toronto, Aug. 26.—A. A. Mahaffy has replied to the election protest lodged by the Liberals against him by asking an order of the court, that Peter Hutcheson and others show cause why they should not pay the penalty imposed by the election act for corrupt practices. Mr. Mahaffy says in his affidavit:

"I charge that during the election Peter Hutcheson, grocer; George H. O. Thomas, stationer; Frederick Cochrane, station agent, all of Bracebridge; McKechnie, station agent at Uttersen; William Nasmith, farmer of Macaulay; Dr. F. L. Howland, Huntsville; S. A. Hutcheson, Huntsville, committed corrupt practices to influence voters.

"Peter Hutcheson received money from George O. H. Thomas and others, and paid the same to William Nasmith, the amount being about $800, and to Frank Snider $10 for corrupt practices.

"Frederick Cochrane gave Milton McEwan, George Symms and other voters $300 each and other valuable considerations to influence their votes.

"William Nasmith promised to pay William Taylor, farmer of Macauley, $5 for his vote.

"S. A. Hutcheson and —. McKechnie promised to settle the account of Peter Sprague, a blacksmith of Stephenson. The account was one of $10 owed to Dr. Hart, the Liberal candidate, by Sprague.

"Dr. F. L. Howland, on election day, induced Orvil Shay to vote in two polling sub-division.

"Duncan Marshall paid Andrew Yuile some $40 in settlement of a former election account."

The order was made as a matter of practice and the summonses will be issued.

Boat Child Till Blood Came.

Whitby, Aug. 26.—George Johnson, of the Township of Reach, a widower and the father of six little children, received his trial here Wednesday at the County Judge's Criminal Court, on the charge of inflicting bodily harm on his little boy, aged 12. The boy, who is an under-sized, delicate looking little fellow, still bears the marks of the fearful beating given him over a week ago. The unnatural father gave as an excuse that he did not think he was hitting him so hard until he saw the blood come. He used a clothes-line to flog the little fellow with. Judge McCrimmon found Johnson guilty and remanded him for sentence until houses are found for the children. Feeling is very bitter towards the prisoner.

BANK CLERKS DROWNED

J. C. Patterson and Herbert D. Hill Near Sault Ste. Marie.

While Heading Up the St. Mary's River Where the Current Is Strong a Squall Struck Their Sailing Canoe and Overturned It—Water Was So Rough That An Attempt to Rescue Was Futile.

Sault Ste. Marie, Aug. 26.—What appears to be a double drowning accident occurred here last evening in St. Mary's River, about one mile from the town.

Two young men, J. C. Patterson, teller in the Canadian Bank of Commerce, and Herbert D. Hill, jr., in the employ of the bank, went canoeing. A high wind was blowing from the west and the young men put up a sail and were heading up the river, just at a point where the current is strong.

They were struck by a squall and the canoe overturned. The accident was seen by parties from the club boat-house, who immediately started to the rescue, but owing to the heavy sea running, they were forced to put back with the skiff.

Launches and tugs were summoned, but up to the present time no tidings of the young men nor of the canoe have been found.

Mr. Patterson was one of the fastest hockey players in this district, and was a member of last season's hockey club.

Three Were Drowned.

Binghamton, N.Y., Aug. 26.—By the capsizing of a sail boat late yesterday afternoon, three young people were drowned in Oquaga Lake, about three miles from Deposit.

MAN ATTEMPTED RESCUE.

But Train Killed Young Girl at Lorne Park.

Toronto, Aug. 26.—Maud Dowdall, a little girl, aged 11, was instantly killed at Lorne Park yesterday by C. P. R. train No. 30, Conductor Osborne in charge. Maud, her mother and two other girls were coming from the park to catch the 2.30 train. C. P. R. No 30 being late, was coming along at the rate of fifty miles an hour. They attempted to cross the track, but misjudging the speed of the train, it was upon them in an instant.

Maud's two companions managed to jump clear. The engine struck her just behind the ear, killing her instantly and throwing the body many feet down the track.

J. F. Phippe, an elderly man, who was sent to Lorne Park by the Toronto City Mission, seeing the little girls' plight, made an heroic but futile attempt at rescue. The tender struck him, inflicting several nasty gashes around the head.

The father of the child is practising law at Spokane, Wash. The funeral will be from the home of her uncle, Thomas Mulvey, K.C., 125 Bathurst street.

Ran Down By Train.

Toronto, Aug. 26.—Garfield McDonald, 339 Dufferin street, while driving across the railway tracks at Windermere avenue yesterday afternoon, was run down by a C. P. R. westbound train. He was thrown high in the air, but beyond the rails, and was but little hurt. The horses escaped, but the wagon was wrecked.

Tornado Kills Four.

Jamestown, N.Y., Aug. 26.—A tornado swept through Chautauqua County late yesterday afternoon, leaving death and great destruction in its path. Parkhurst's Grove, where the Stockton town picnic was being held, was directly in the path of the storm. Five thousand people were on the grounds when the storm broke. Four persons were killed and several others were injured. At the assembly grounds of Chautauqua many trees were uprooted.

Killed By Lightning.

Pembroke, Aug. 26.—John Gould, aged 72 years, a farmer of Alice township, was struck by lightning and instantly killed yesterday.

Barns Burned.

Newtonville, Aug. 26.—The barn and most of the contents, belonging to William Walker, three miles east of here, was burned by lightning yesterday afternoon.

Struck By Lightning.

Port Robinson, Aug. 26.—During a severe storm that swept over this district about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, a large barn on the farm of Henry Moyer, two miles southeast of here, was struck by lightning and, with the greater portion of the season's crops, was burned.

Wrecked By Dynamite.

Birmingham, Ala., Aug. 26.—The first acts of violence in connection with the present strike of the United Mine Workers of America in the district were reported to the sheriff's office yesterday. The house of a nonunion worker at Brolomite was wrecked by dynamite. The occupants were not injured. A reward of $500 has been offered for the arrest of the guilty persons.

Government Orders Rails.

Ottawa, Aug. 26.—The Government has given the Soo steel works a contract for 10,000 tons of rails for the Government railway. The price has not been divulged.

London, Aug. 25.—Cattle are firm at 11¼d to 12¼d per lb; refrigerator beef, 11c per lb. Sheep, 10½c to 12¼c, dressed weight.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

Receipts of live stock at the city market since Tuesday, as reported by Messrs. Fox and May of the C.P.R. and G.T.R., were 162 carloads, composed of 1400 cattle, 2200 hogs, 2200 sheep and lambs and 60 calves.

(Outside of the load quoted by Crawford & Maunsiett, which brought $5 per cwt., there were a few odd cattle reported as shippers at $4.60 and $4.80 per cwt., the latter price being obtained by McDonald & Maybee for one steer, 1280 lbs.

Trade for butchers' cattle was good at the price reported below, but there were not a dozen cattle reported by the different commission firms that sold over $4.25 per cwt. McDonald & Maybee report 3 butchers' cattle, weighing 3200 lbs. each, at $4.60 per cwt.; and Maybee & Wilson report 8 butchers' cattle, 1000 lbs. each, at $4.25 per cwt.; the next best price reported to a sale of 18 butchers' cattle, 1040 lbs. each, at $4.20, which is the only load of butchers' reported as bringing that price, but McDonald & Maybee sold 25 butchers', 1025 lbs. each, at $4.12½. All other sales are reported as going under these quotations.

Deliveries of feeders and stockers were fairly large. Feeders weighing from 900 to 1000 lbs. each, of good quality, are in demand, and there were not enough of these on the market. Prices for this class ranged from $3.25 to $3.60 per cwt. There were one or two lots of what might be called short-keep feeders, weighing 1200 lbs. each, that brought $4.20, but there are few of these wanted at the present time. What is wanted is steers of good quality, 800 to 1000 lbs. each, to turn on grass so that they will be ready to stable and feed for export.

There were some fair lots of stockers, weighing 600 to 650 lbs. each, that sold at $3.15 to $3.30 per cwt. But there were also a lot of ill-bred mongrels that sold at $2.80 to $2.75 per cwt., as will be seen by sales quoted below.

Trade in milch cows and springers was a little brisker, prices ranging from $30 to $50 each.

Prices for veal calves were unchanged and firm for all of good quality. Prices ranged from $3.50 to $4.25 per cwt., as per quality.

The run was fairly large and prices ranged a little easier. The bulk of sheep sold at $3.75 per cwt., and the bulk of the lambs at $4.75 per cwt. But choice lots of both classes brought a little more money.

The run of hogs was fairly large, and prices declined another 10c per cwt. But it was not large deliveries that caused the drop. Packers report that they are making no money at the prices they have been paying, and stated that they must have them at lower prices. Selects are quoted at $5.60, fats at $5.35 and lights at $5.25 per cwt.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

Montreal, Aug. 25.—About 120 cattle, 80 calves, 300 sheep and lambs and 25 store hogs and small pigs were offered for sale at the East End Abattoir to-day. Trade was very dull. There were no very good cattle, and prices ranged from 2¼c to 4c per lb.

Calves sold at $2.50 to $8 each.

Shipping sheep brought 3¼c, and the others 3c to 3¼c per lb. Lambs sold at $2.25 to $4 each.

Fat hogs sold at 4¼c to 5¾c per lb. Store hogs sold at $7 to $10 each, and young pigs at $2 to $4 each.

EAST BUFFALO CATTLE MARKET.

East Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 25.—Cattle—Receipts, 600 head; light demand; barely steady; prices unchanged.

Veals—Receipts, 50 head; active, 25c higher. $4.50 to $7.75.

Hogs—Receipts, 3400 head; slow, 5c to 10c lower; heavy and mixed, $5.75 to $5.80; yorkers, $5.50 to $5.85; pigs, $5.50 to $5.75; roughs, $4.75 to $4.95; stags, $3.50 to $4; dairies, $5.25 to $5.70.

Sheep and lambs—Receipts, 2000 head; active, 10c to 25c higher; lambs, $4.50 to $7; yearlings, $4.50 to $5.25; wethers, $4.25 to $4.50; ewes, $3.75; sheep, mixed, $2 to $4.25.

NEW YORK LIVE STOCK.

New York, Aug. 25.—Beeves — Receipts, 1044; no trading to-day; feeling firm, as reported light receipts to-morrow; exports, 3236 cattle. Calves—Receipts, 88; steady; veals, $5.50 to $8.25; tail ends, $4.50 to $5; grassers and buttermilks, nominal.

Sheep and lambs—Receipts, 1630; good sheep, strong; others, steady; lambs, 25c to 50c higher, on scant supply; common to good sheep, $3 to $4; culls, $2; common to prime lambs, $6 to $7.75; one car, $8.

Hogs—Receipts, 2142; 25 on sale; feeling a trifle weak; no sales reported.

Crew Abandoned Ship.

Boston, Aug. 26.—The three-masted schooner Sanoa, from Calais, Maine, for New York, with lumber, was struck by a gale and dismasted off Gloucester. Capt. Stanton and crew abandoned the craft and were picked up by a passing schooner and brought here.

When a Sore Won't Heal.

Because of its power to heal raw flaming flesh, to allay the inflammation and stop the dreadful itching, Dr. Chase's Ointment has a world-wide reputation. If you have become discouraged by the failure of other treatments put Dr. Chase's Ointment to the test. Like thousands of others you will be surprised and delighted with the results.

—One day this week Mr. Edw. Diamond, lot 2, concession 2, South Fredericksburgh, sent to Dr. Wagar, dentist, a curiosity in the shape of six small pickerel that were dipped out of a well on his farm. Two years ago a hole was drilled 3 feet deep for water, but was given up as dry. Last winter when water was scarce it was discovered that there was plenty in the well and it was used for the stock. Later it was noticed that the water contained small fish, which proved to be pickerel, of which tehre are thousands. The question is, how do the fish get there? The well at the bottom is considerably higher than the surface of either Hay Bay or the Bay of Quinte. Did the drilled hole come in contact with a subterranean passage from one of the upper lakes, through which these small fish find their way?—Napanee Beaver.

Summer Prices

—FOR—

Winter Garments

The last month of Summer—August—is a good time to buy Furs. It is known to be a good time. Prices as a rule are lower, because the dealer is anticipating the season.

It is a good time—in fact the best—to order Furs. Because it affords time in which to make them up with care and without the haste that comes with the winter season.

Our show rooms are open. You can view the winter's styles. They are all here. Orders are taken based on the styles we show. It's worth a look at any rate, even if you do not buy, and you are never pressed to do so. All we know about Furs is at your service.

FRIDAY, AUG. 26, 1904.

IN THE REALM OF SPORT

BASEBALL.

The Peterborough ball team will play a Midland League game in Cobourg to-morrow.

Manager Whiteroft's opinion is that the kickers in Port Hope do not know what they are talking about when they intimate that Peterborough ball team has contrived to escape their league games. He states that the local nine has played every game scheduled except two—one with Cobourg and the other with Port Hope, and these were called off at the request of those two places, owing to disadvantageous circumstances.

With reference to the game with Lindsay in which the Port Hopers were defeated by 8-4, the Guide says: "It was a good exhibition of ball and the result was in doubt until the last man had been called out. What little luck there was Lindsay had it. Workman drove a fly to left field which was lost and he and Walker scored. But then there is no use making excuses; they won on their merits. Their outfield simply outclassed ours and there was never a ball that went in reach of them that was not gathered in. The pitching honors were about even, but there are a couple of weak spots on our infield that need to be strengthened. Then the Lindsayites are all good batters and their hits came just when needed. On the other hand the locals seldom made a hit except when two men were out and the runner was generally left on second or third A change in the battery order as suggested some time ago might easily remedy this and assist very materially in winning games."

Toronto lost again yesterday.

Bowmanville defeated Cobourg yesterday in a Midland League game by 7-6 at Bowmanville.

LACROSSE.

Bradford defeated Orillia yesterday in a very rough game by the score of 4-1. Eleven Orillia and seven Bradford men were penalized during the game.

There will undoubtedly be quite a number of the T.A.S. Lacrosse Club's supporters on the trip by C. P. R. to Havelock to-morrow when the final game in the Trent Valley League will be played. A special rate has been secured.

SPRINTING.

Mr. A. J. Burns accepts the challenge of Mr. W. Payne, of London, England, to run a race of five miles on the Lakefield road. They will meet to-night to arrange the date and other particulars.

THE RING.

The big fight between Champion Jim Jeffries and Jack Munro takes place tonight.

THE TRIGGER.

At yesterday's O. R. A. meeting Col. Sgt. W. H. Moore won $3 in the Tait-Bressey match, and Pte. E. A. Wilson $3 in the tryes.

The rgular shoot of the Peterborough Gun Club, postponed from last week, was held yesterday afternoon, and in spite of the stormy winds blowing at the time, some good sport was enjoyed. Following are the scores:—

UNIVERSITY STUDENTS WORKED THEIR PASSAGE

One Was a Peterborough Man and He Tells of Some Interesting Experiences That Occurred on a Cattle Ship Crossing the Atlantic to the Old Country.

The Peterborough student, who, with five others, worked his passage to the Old Country on a "cattle ship" continues the account of his experiences as follows:—

"Today, May 12, we were up at four o'clock and worked for two hours, then laid around until breakfast. During the day we have not much to do, and to learn all we can we mingle with anyone and everyone. Say, of all the talk that was heard of from these cockneys, so vile that if anyone wanted to cure himself of a tendency to say cuss words he had better take this trip. Everything has its sanguinary side, and is bloody blooming and blasted, not to mention numerous other epithets and references which I will omit from the hasty account of my strange experiences. We fell in yesterday with another piece of good fortune. There is a Frenchman on board and one of the sailors pointed him out, so to start a chat he was asked 'Fumes vous le pipe?' (Do you smoke the pipe?) That Frenchman was the happiest individual alive, and by talking with him we discovered that he had lived in Paris for ten years, and was well educated, lacking that dagger-like look so common to the French. He was nearly starved, because he could find no one who understood what he wanted. He was willing to pay anything, and went to the cook and started to talk French, but the "cockney cook" told him to go to a warmer climate. We arranged for him to come with us, and he takes great delight in talking to us in French. Its the queerest thing how quickly all the passengers have spotted us five fellows, and lady passengers, both French and English, will talk to us, but will hardly look to the side of the boat where a regular cattle "stiff" is. Many think we are bricks to do this, and I tell you I wouldn't take firstclass passage and miss my experiences as a cow-puncher. Yesterday a little French girl started to talk to us, and I think by the time we get over there our French will be improved, and will stand us in good stead when we go to Paris.

WHERE IT IS HOT.

The stokers, too, are the greatest class of men I ever saw. They work four hours out of every twelve and then they come up and sit on deck. No wonder they die in a few years. It is so hot where they work they wear nothing more than necessary, and when they come up, all they have on is a shirt and a pair of pants, and often a large part of these is missing. They are a terrible body of men to be called human, and to believe it you have to see it.

Last night when we went to sleep—not to bed—we had more fun than a cage of monkeys. We decided to make a new place away from the hatch where it wouldn't be so cold, but between shifting bales of hay and bags of meal and keeping the horns of the cows away, we laughed until we were sore. We split a bale of hay and spread it out, filled the bags for pillows, and rolled in. We slept finely, but the old boat was rolling to one side, and we had a tendency to lean one way. I was amused in the night when one of the fellows wakened me and whispered, "Isn't you he over a littlef" and the way he said he kept me laughing for an hour. I tell you that we don't even take our coats off when we sleep, and I haven't had my hair combed or had a wash, except out of a barrel, since I left Toronto. We slept well last night, only the cattle were leaving land and were rather restless. It was as dark as pitch, and to hear one getting up, you would think a dozen were coming out on top of you, and some of them weigh a ton.

A NEWFOUNDLAND FOG.

On the morning of May 13, we got in our regular two hours' work in fine time; had an elegant breakfast, and say, by the time you get up at four and don't eat until eight, you stow away a little. We have been very lucky, having the best foreman to ourselves that ever goes across. We are all to ourselves, and so far as work is concerned, it just keeps us in good humor—"a reasonable amount of fuss is good for a dog." We came down with good train crews, and we meet the Frenchman, and we can say like Kruger, "Mine gracious! Everything seems coming our way yet." Last and least, we get five shillings for our work, so I guess we are out for experience and a time instead of money. We are out of sight of land today and it seems queer. Today, Sunday, we are just passing Newfoundland, and its rough, shaggy outlines can be seen in the distance. It's a much larger place than I imagined. We have just passed through that deliciously chilling mist which some evil disposed person has called a fog. We all sat up on the upper deck through it all, the cold dampness being marred only by the heavy throb of the engines, and the rough roar of the whistle every minute. I might just whisper that our heads are beginning to swim a little, for the old ship is rising and falling about ten feet now, and what will it be when she gets going twenty, thirty and forty. I can't imagine. Monday we travelled about 283 miles. Today about five o'clock we saw the last of land, Cape Race. We are on the rolling wave for sure now. Perhaps we didn't toss last night. Two of us laid up on deck until about 9.30 and saw a full moon at sea—one of the prettiest sights I ever saw. Before we went down we thought we would like to try our sea-legs, and started up the deck.

THEIR SEA LEGS.

Of all the sensations you ever felt, at one time stepping high and the next minute unable to find footing. I felt the ship leaving me, and I grabbed a rope and hung on for dear life. However, I got steadier, and stood the test and toss for about half an hour. Two of the fellows turned up their toes last night and were good and sick. I went to bed—no, to hay—but I was only down about two minutes when I jumped and made for the centre of the boat. It was a close shave, but the nausea passed away, and I feel happy as a tomight. Some of the fellows are trying to feed the fishes, but without much success. We have had a good time today, and among other things started a game of pedro to last until we get to Liverpool. It is a five-handed game, and we choose our partners; the last treats when we strike the sod again. Our tea tonight was exuberous, and as our steward had been imbibing freely, I laughed until I was sick, at his antics. A beautiful sunset closed the day—a similar one from which Bryant got the inspiration for his beautiful poem, "A cloud lay cradled near the setting sun."

May 15th—It has been very cold today, but there was one of the most beautiful sunrises I ever saw. I can now appreciate what is meant by a sea of diamonds, for the vast undulating stretch of waters sparkled and glittered with a thousand glossy gems, rising as it leaves the ship. All of the four are now under, and I am left to tell the tale, being still hale and hearty, and can pace the deck like an old salt. I was amused when one of the fellows said, 'By George, boys, I've got mine' and get it he had. We brought three dozen oranges, and two of lemons, and they are worth 50 cents apiece to us now. I think a life on the sea would be glorious, for I do so enjoy watching the great swells as they race toward you, with their powerful sweep tossing in victorious glee their bits of foam. An incident: One of the fellows washed his socks and went without any until they dried. They were rather slow and his feet turned to icebergs. During the afternoon he got them, and the toe of one was still wet, so he says, 'Boys, I'll put one on, and put it on the coldest foot.' At present we are in the dampest, coldest, thickest fog I ever thought of. The old whistle roared every minute for about two hours, hours, and we barely moved. We made 286 miles today however, and expect to reach Ireland by Sunday and Liverpool Monday. They literally starve the cattle on board. We asked a comical little Englishman what he was going to do when he got to Liverpool and he said, 'Have a d—— good meal; wait till you see me run for a restaurant.'"

LACROSSE.

The Tweed News says:—The first game of lacrosse in Tweed since the memorable game with Havelock on Friday, July 8th, was played at the exhibition park on Thursday afternoon last, when the home team crossed sticks with a team from Peterborough. The attendance was not large, the gate receipts amounting to less than $35. The game was fairly interesting, but far from exciting. The visiting team was altogether too much for Tweed, and it looked as though they could have made a much larger score had they been so disposed. There were several occasions where it appeared as though the visiters purposely missed scoring. Way, in goal, had numerous opportunities to display his ability, and he was generally equal to the occasion. The game was played with only ten men to a side, and the score was four to two in favor of the visiters.

Miss Alice Bailey, of Atlanta, Ga., tells how she was permanently cured of inflammation of the ovaries, and escaped the surgeon's knife, by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

The universal indications of the approach of woman's great enemy, inflammation and disease of the ovaries, are a dull throbbing pain, accompanied by a sense of tenderness and heat low down in the side, with occasional shooting pains. On examination it may be found that the region of pain will show some swelling. This is the first stage of inflammation of the ovaries.

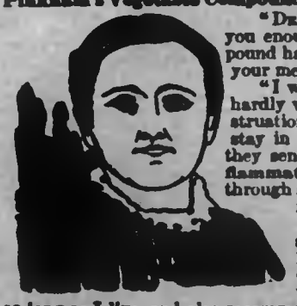
"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I wish to express my gratitude for the restored health and happiness Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has brought into my life.

"I had suffered for three years with terrible pains at the time of menstruation, and did not know what the trouble was until the doctor pronounced it inflammation of the ovaries, and proposed an operation.

"I felt so weak and sick that I felt sure that I could not survive the ordeal, and so I told him that I would not undergo it. The following week I read an advertisement in the paper of your Vegetable Compound in such an emergency, and so I decided to try it. Great was my joy to find that I actually improved after taking two bottles, so I kept taking it for ten weeks, and at the end of that time I was cured. I had gained eighteen pounds and was in excellent health, and am now.

"You surely deserve great success, and you have my very best wishes."—MISS ALICE BAILEY, 50 North Boulevard, Atlanta, Ga.

Another woman saved from a surgical operation by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Read what she says:—



"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I cannot thank you enough for what your Vegetable Compound has done for me. If it had not been for your medicine, I think I would have died.

"I will tell you how I suffered. I could hardly walk, was unable to sleep or eat. Menstruation was irregular. At last I had to stay in my bed, and flowed so badly that they sent for a doctor, who said I had inflammation of the ovaries, and must go through an operation, as no medicine could help me, but I could not do that.

"I received a little book of yours, and after reading it, I concluded to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I am now a well woman. I shall praise your medicine as long as I live, and also recommend the same to anyone suffering as I was."—MRS. MINNIE OTTOSON, Otho, Iowa.

All sick women would be wise if they would take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and be well.

NEW SCHEDULE PROPOSED

The C. M. B. A. Mear Expert on Insurance Conditions.

Toronto, Aug. 26.—The reading of the report of the Grand Secretary was the first business before the Catholic Mutual Benefit Association yesterday morning. This was deferred, however, on account of the arrival of Mr. Landis, the insurance expert, of Davenport, Iowa, who has been engaged by the trustees to advise concerning the raising of rates. Mr. Landis gave an account of the basis of insurance grading and explained the rates of assessment employed by the different fraternal organizations. This address and report occupied the whole of the forenoon session, and was not yet finished when the convention adjourned for lunch.

Mr. Landis then resumed his report. He stated that some method of assessment must be adopted which will be advantageous and at the same time attractive. At present the amount of outstanding insurance is some $9,000,000, and it would take 30 assessments annually to make an adequate fund to carry this amount. This, however, would involve raising the rates, which would be unattractive to the young lives which it is especially desirable to obtain. An insurance organization profits, according to Mr. Landis, by two things—having a majority of young risks or by the lapse of policies; but the man who allows his insurance to lapse is not usually the man who thinks himself likely to die.

Mr. Landis presented two schedules—one a straight life and one an endowment system, to mature at the age of 65. He stated that the funds of the association were not earning four per cent. interest which they might easily do. He closed by advising that immediate action be taken.

In the evening the report of the special committee was read, and the question of the deficit in the accounts of the late Grand Secretary was taken up. It was recommended that the guarantee bond of $5,000 be not collected, but that the insurance of $13,000 carried by the deceased be taken over by the association. The report of the committee was adopted.

The report of the Committee on Laws was then read by Chairman Murphy, and it was moved and carried that the report be discussed clause by clause. This provoked a motion to adjourn, which was defeated by a standing vote amid great enthusiasm, and the clauses of the report were read one by one in French and English and voted upon separately.

The clauses discussed and carried last night were for the establishment of a fund to guarantee the fidelity of the officers of branches and for the appointment of two auditors to examine annually into the books of the Grand Council and into those of such branches as may desire it.

The convention took no action upon the prospective alteration in assessment rates, but there was a strong sentiment in favor of the schedule proposed by Mr. Landis, and a recommendation for such a schedule was incorporated in the report of the Committee on Laws.

The convention adjourned at a quarter after eleven, and will sit again at nine this morning.

FALL OF PORT ARTHUR VIRTUALLY ACCOMPLISHED

Japanese Will not Make Announcement Until Fighting is Over.

THE LOSSES ARE HEAVY ON BOTH SIDES

London Correspondent Reports on Private Information Received —Entrance was Made by Way of Itzishan Fort—Jap Troops Very Courageous.

Special to the Review.

London, Aug 27th.—The correspondent of the Evening Standard at Tien Tsin says:—"I have good reason to deliver from private information which I have received, that the Japanese have effected an entrance to Port Arthur, and that the fall of the fortress, consequently, is virtually accomplished."

Despite the fact that an entrance has been effected at Port Arthur, the Tien Tsin correspondent of the Evening Standard says the Japanese will not make an announcement until all the fighting is ended. The correspondent says the entrance was made by way of the Itzishan fort. The Japanese occupied Pei Yushan and the parade grounds within the forts at dawn on Aug. 24th, from which they swept down an unceasing fire throughout the day. The casualities were heavy the correspondent adds, but the courage of the Japanese troops was undaunted.

GAVE PATRIOTIC PROOF

Lord Dundonald Appreciates Exigencies of Situation.

Sir Charles Tupper Declares That the Incident Has Not Blown Over—Former Canadian Premier Heartily Approves of the Conduct of the Ex-General-Officer-Commanding of the Canadian Militia—Sails For Canada.

London, Aug. 27.—(C.A.P.)—Sir Charles Tupper sailed for Canada Thursday by the steamer Bavarian. He was interviewed at Liverpool and asked if the Dundonald incident had blown over. Sir Charles replied that it had not. Lord Dundonald considered that the militia should not in any way be mixed up with politics, so that all classes might join the citizen soldiery with the object, if necessity arose, of defending their country, which Sir Charles considered the weakest spot in the Empire. In propounding his policy in regard to the militia, Lord Dundonald knew he would be retired. He did not complain that he had been unjustly treated, but Lord Dundonald had had the courage of his convictions, and in expressing them publicly had magnanimously sacrificed himself in the interests of Canada and the Empire. Lord Dundonald had achieved his object, that of making and raising a strong militia, the crucial question in the Dominion. In the views expressed Lord Dundonald had carried with him the thinking people of Canada, the bone and sinew of the country, and the effect would be for the lasting good of Canada. Sir Charles entirely approved of the attitude of Lord Dundonald and was convinced that no man in anything like a similar position had done so much to advance the real, better and higher interests of Canada. Of all men who had occupied the position vacated by Lord Dundonald no one had given such patriotic and Imperialistic proof of his appreciation of the exigencies of the situation.

Trouble With Hutton.

London [illegible]. 27.—(C.A.P.)—Minister of Justice Dawson, in Premier Watson's Labor Cabinet, answering General Hutton, charges the general with gross insolence when interviewing the Minister on official questions. According to Dawson, Hutton refused to take his word concerning the authorship of official minutes, endeavored to spend three times the Parliamentary amount, and retained in barracks documents required in the Minister's office.

NO FROST IN WEST.

Another of the Chicago Bull Influences Put to Route.

Winnipeg, Aug. 27.—Reports of frost in Manitoba, which proved such a powerful bull influence in the Chicago grain market yesterday, are entirely without foundation. The lowest point Thursday night in Manitoba was 40, at Cartwright. The lowest temperature were recorded in the Territories, Red Deer 39, and Regina 41, being the lowest figures; but even one degree of frost is not sufficient to damage wheat at all. Like the exaggerated stories of rust damage to Canadian Northwest wheat, the reports are circulated for the sole purpose of bulling the market. Unfortunately these reports receive credence in England.

FURNITURE FACTORY BURNED.

Total Destruction of Waterloo's Largest Industry.

Waterloo, Aug. 27.—The large four-storey brick furniture factory, the largest factory in Waterloo, controlled by the Canada Furniture Syndicate, was completely destroyed by fire yesterday morning. The fire originated through the factory fireman, Fred Buchholtz, while oiling the elevator machinery with the aid of a lighted candle, which in some manner ignited some waste, and the draft carried the flames up the elevator shaft. In a very short space of time the whole interior of the immense factory was in flames. The Berlin brigade was telephoned for to assist the local brigade, and arrived in time to prevent the fire spreading south to Bauer's Shoddy Mill and Warehouse.

The roofs of residences and buildings for two blocks on the south side were repeatedly ignited from sparks carried that way by a high wind, but bucket brigades prevented any property loss. Luckily the wind blew from the north and west, thus greatly aiding the fire-fighters.

Eighty-five employes are thrown out of employment, of whom fifty-five worked at the manufacture of frames, which supplied the upholstering factory. The loss on building, machinery and stock will probably reach $125,000. The insurance on factories and contents was covered by a blanket insurance policy in about twenty American and Canadian companies. Local insurance men place the amount of insurance on the two factories at $68,000.

Staples Hotel Burned.

Comber, Aug. 27.—The Staples Hotel, together with contents, barns and other out buildings, were destroyed by fire Thursday night between 11 and 12 o'clock. The hotel was occupied by A. and D. Chauvin, who recently rented it from A. Gagnier. The loss will exceed $5,000, insurance $2,000. Staples is six miles from Comber on the Leamington branch of the M.C.R. This is the second fire this week.

Saw Mill Burned.

Bayfield, Aug. 27.—The saw and planing mill and a large amount of lumber belonging to William Mustard, was burned here yesterday morning. Loss heavy. No insurance.

C.P.R. New Stock.

Montreal, Aug. 27.—It can now be definitely announced that the directors of the C.P.R. have decided to ask the Government and the shareholders of the company to authorize an issue of new common stock to the amount of $25,500,000. Notices to that effect were sent out yesterday, and October 5th at noon was set as the time for the shareholders to meet here at the head offices of the company and record their votes. It is expected that the annual meeting will be held on the same date.

Saw Baby Cast Into Lake.

Toronto, Aug. 27.—At the coroner's inquest last night into the murder of the infant found dead in Coatsworth's Cut Richard Taylor, fisherman, testified to seeing the baby cast into the lake, Aug. 2. He was three-quarters of a mile away and could not tell just what the man threw from his boat. The wind died out and he did not investigate.

Assassin Sentenced to Die.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 27.—It is reported that Samsonoff, the assassin of M. Von Plehve has been sentenced to death, and that the sentence is now before the Emperor. The reports which have been circulated about Samsonoff having escaped, and also that he was dead are declared to be false.

Fighting Has Been Going on at Liandiansian for th

First Intelligible Account of Situation at

St. Petersburg, Aug. 27.—After four weeks' interval the Japanese have resumed their advance against Gen. Kuropatkin's positions. The opposing armies are in contact east and south of Liaoyang and fighting has been in progress since Wednesday. The advices at hand are too meagre to enable the officials to form a correct opinion as to whether it will result in a general engagement, but the extent and character of the Japanese movement leads to that conclusion. Since the rains ceased a week ago there have been continued intimations that Gen. Kuropatkin was about to assume the offensive, but instead of that it was the Japanese who attacked the Russian commander's eastern and southern positions.

Along the Whole Line.

Kantsetun, 7 miles southeast of Liaoyang, Aug. 27.—The Japanese are advancing along the whole line of the Russian eastern front. On Aug. 26 there was a rifle skirmish and the next day the Japanese artillery opened fire. On both days the firing ceased at dusk, and the small energy displayed by the Japanese might have been taken to indicate that it was merely a demonstration or a reconnaissance in force. On the morning of the 26th, however, the rifle and artillery fire was renewed with an energy that left no doubt that a severe battle was intended. The Japanese pushed their attack against the Russian right flank and centering their fire on the first battery of the third brigade. Three officers and several men were wounded early in the day, but the battery held its position and replied to the Japanese fire with such marked effect that Gen. Ivanoff, who commands Lieut.-Gen. Kellerja corps, sent a congratulatory message to its commander. The Japanese several times attempted to cross the Taukcho (Liank River), but only a few succeeded and these were forced to hide in the fields of Chinese corn. At 2 p. m. the artillery fire became as hot as it was at Vafangow, but it fluctuated considerably, and occasionally the Russian fire almost silenced that of [illegible] fell in torrents

HISTORY REPEATED

The saying that history repeats itself is one of the tritest of truisms, but nowhere has it been better exemplified than in the treatment accorded to the two heroic Dundonalds, grandfather and grandson. Admiral Dundonald, better known by his earlier title of Lord Cochrane, was one of the most gallant and dashing officers in the annals even of the British navy. He rendered the most brilliant and valuable services to his country. His uncompromising honesty, his hatred of all chicanery, of corrupt political meddling with the service and injustice to th officers and men who were serving their country, excited enmity which was a credit rather than a disgrace to him. A conspiracy was formed against him by corrupt politicians and dishonest speculators—the Frederick Bordens and Sydney Fishers of that time and place, though history does not tell of any of them going the length of providing murderous emergency rations for the forces. As these disreputable men could not make a tool or an accomplice of him, they determined to ruin him and by their machination and calumnies they succeeded in establishing for a time their false charges against him. He was deprived of his rank, dismissed from the navy and driven to transfer his valuable and appreciated services to other countries. He was not, however, a man to succumb easily to such enemies, and after a brilliant career in different parts of the world he had the satisfaction later of establishing his innocence and his former rank and honors were restored. The injustice of the treatment he had received from his rascally enemies and his deluded country was fully recognized and he died at an advanced age, having enjoyed and leaving behind him a renown of which Great Britain is proud.

Both, too, has been the experience of his grandson. The dashing cavalry officer, the gallant and successful general, the hero who was prominent even among the many heroes of North and South Africa, the Sirdan and the Boer war, the commander who was beloved by those under him for his consideration for them, and his determination that they should have justice, the man of simple habits and unswerving integrity, with all these qualifications he could not escape the enmity of men who might be the lineal descendents of the scoundrels who plotted against his grandfather. He stood in the way of corruption and dishonesty, he could neither be seduced nor intimidated into complicity in wrongdoing, so he had to be removed.

For the moment General Lord Dundonald has been subjected to the injustice which had formerly been inflicted upon Admiral Lord Dundonald. We venture to prophecy that the parallel will still hold good and that the fame of the late general commanding our militia will survive when the little rogues and trickers who have calumniated him will have sunk into contempt and oblivion.

THIS MESSAGE IS FOR WOMEN

Dame Burdette Cured of all her Pains by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Suffered for Years before she found Quick Relief in the Great Canadian Kidney Remedy.

St. Rose du Degele, Temiscouta Co., Que., Aug. 28—(Special)— Suffering women all over Canada will read with feelings of interest and relief the experience of Dame Amedee Bradette, of this place.

"It gives me pleasure to be able to tell," says Dame Bradette, "that I am cured of all the ills I suffered for a number of years. I found in Dodd's Kidney Pills quick relief from all my pains. I only had to take one box to bring back my health, and in five months I have had no return of my trouble."

Those troubles known only to women always spring from disordered Kidneys. The female organs are entirely dependent on the Kidneys. Dodd's Kidney Pills never fail to cure the kidneys. That is why they always bring health, strength and cheerfulness to weak, run down, suffering women.

A BRILLIANT CEREMONY

WAS THE CHRISTENING OF RUSSIA'S HEIR.

The Infant Gave a Lusty Yell When Immersed — The Czar a Happy Father.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 24.—A wave of rejoicing and festivity swept over Russia with the rising of the sun on the christening day of the heir to the Russian throne, culminating when the Te Deum, softly chanted in the beautiful litch of the Peterhof palace, announced that the ceremony was accomplished, and the news was heralded to the world without by the crash of cannon and the chiming of innumerable church bells, echoing from the Baltic to the Black Sea, and from the frontiers of Poland to the confines of the farthest East. Notwithstanding the momentous events passing at the front of the whole population turned gladly for the time being from more serious considerations to participating in the day of glittering ceremonial and pageantry at Peterhof, where the tiny successor of the great White Czar received at the hands of the church the name of Alexis Nicholaevitch, from which he is destined to pass in course of time to the dignity and responsibility of autocrat of all the Russias. While some of the festivities usual on such occasions, for instance, the state banquet, were omitted, a simple breakfast being substituted in deference to the grave struggle in which the country is engaged nothing was discernable in the bright morning at Peterhof to put the slightest damper on the christening day. From every angle and corner of the palace flags waved in the crisp, cool wind, driving in across the clear blue water of the Finnish Gulf. The historic well fountains, stretching in magnificent vista below the palace, broke into snowy foam and rainbow spray in the clear sunlight. The soldiers of the guards, brilliant in the imperial uniforms, moved in a continual swirl of color around the doorways of the palace.

St. Petersburg itself woke to the flutter of flags from every house front. Even the street cars flew pennons, like those of battleships under way, and the droskys were nearly all decorated with flags. The garrisons of the fortresses were more alert than usual. There was a bright panorama of guard mounts and dress parades, and the gunners were early at their stations, ready to fire a national salute in honor of the baby heir.

A BRILLIANT SCENE.

Within the royal port of the Peterhof palace, from the moment the cortege issued from the gates of the Alexandra Villa, to the instant the glasses were clinked around the imperial table in the great palace, the scene was one of magnificence and brilliancy almost touching the barbaric and possible nowhere in the world save where the West meets the East in the court of "The Little Father of the Russias."

Over perfect roads, beneath stately overhanging trees, the procession moved through the royal park, a beautifully composed, slowly changing picture, perfect to its smallest degree. It was headed by the master of the imperial household, his uniform a blaze of gold and decorations. He was surronded by a retinue of officials only a little less brilliant.

The centre of interest, of course, was the golden state carriage, drawn by eight milk white horses, without riders and walking grooms, in which sat the Princess Galatzin, mistress of the Empress' household, with the imperial heir. At the door of the coach, on one side, rode the grand equerry of the court, Lieutenant-General de Grunwald, and on the other side the commander of the household troops, Lieutenant-General Hesse, both superbly mounted and uniformed, like glittering equestrian statues. Following the coach came an armed escort, with poised lances, of the famous Blue Cossacks of the Don, of which the baby heir is now Ataman, or commander-in-chief. Each man and horse of this picturesque guard was groomed to perfection, the very ideal of the wild, light cavalry of the Russian steppes.

The procession passed through the palace to the church. There was another picture in the waiting rooms. The royal salons were filled with a most brilliant assemblage, the ladies of the court, all in sparkling jewels, the officers resplendent in the gorgeous uniforms of the empire. Mingling with the modern throng were many persons in quaint and curious national costumes, some of them antedating the founding of the Northern Capital on the banks of the Neva.

The Emperor, his face wreathed in smiles, and with the Dowager Empress on his arm, led the procession, followed by the other members of the imperial family, the grand dukes and grand duchesses in the order of their rank, the baby bringing up the rear, the youngest of all. His Majesty was met at the door of the church by the metropolitan of St. Petersburg with a raised cross. But here the Emperor retired, as the rules of the Orthodox church give him no place in the ceremony, in which the baby was presented by his spiritual parents to the Heavenly Father.

IN THE CHAPEL.

Inside the chapel were assembled M. Pobiedonostseff, procurator-general of the Holy Synod, and the members of the Holy Synod, the diplomatic corps and imperial guests from every court in Europe.

The scene within the picture covered walls was a climax of brilliancy—uniforms, decorations and court dress being all outlined by a rippling flame of jewels which fairly lit up half the gloom with an effulgence of their own.

The christening party gathered at the jewel-crusted font. The baby was carried by Princess Galatzin, and the emblem on which it was borne was supported by General Bubikter, and Prince Dolgorouki, aide-de-camp to the Emperor. The sponsors represented an emperor and an empress, two kings, one duchess and four grand duchesses. The baby was so shrouded in filmy lace, dainty flannels and a purple silk over-mantle that it was almost impossible to distinguish the form that lay so still and quiet as the Metropolitan of St. Petersburg anointed its hands, breast and forehead with the mystical holy oil, compounded for the purpose in solemn secrecy at the Kremlin. But, when the moment came to complete the immersion in the warm water of the font, the royal infant showed its humanity by a lusty yell, which echoed through the chapel and was greeted by a murmur of amusement and approval as being a sign of luck and good augury for the future.

THE BELLS RING.

The Te Deum, melodiously chanted by a hidden choir, was the signal to the bells overhead which swung clamorously, while the royal yacht, off the shore of the gulf thundered a salute of 301 guns. The signal was taken up at Cronstadt and St. Petersburg and Moscow's five hundred bells chimed, while the guns of Kremlin rolled.

As the message sped forth from the fort to the town the Emperor entered the chapel and mass was celebrated. During the singing of the Te Deum His Majesty conferred on the heir the Cross of the Order of St. Andrew and tenderly draped the distinguishing ribbon around the baby's shoulder.

Congratulations were pressed on the father through the crowded lengths of the salons where the baby passed, now the head of the Royal party, next in rank to the Emperor himself.

Breakfast at the great palace completed the ceremony, and, then rain, which had been gathering late in the forenoon fell in torrents as the guests scattered to various quarters and made the best of their way back to the capital.

LAKEFIELD GROVE SCHOOL

Changes that are Being Made there Entire Back Wing Torn Down.

A number of Peterborough lads are attending the Grove School at Lakefield, and the following reference in the Lakefield News to changes being made there will be of interest:—

A visitor to "The Grove" will be surprised at the big change that has taken place during the last month at this popular preparatory school for boys. The entire back wing of the school has been torn down and its place taken by a substantial three-storey structure, 60 ft. x 23 ft. The new addition contains, on the ground floor, dining-room, kitchen, pantry, class room, and locker room; on the first floor are the dormitories, matrons' rooms, bath rooms and sick room. The maids' rooms are on the second floor. The different rooms are all commodious and cheerful, a fine view being obtained from each. From the second floor a magnificent view can be obtained of the lake and surrounding country. A boy's work room has been fitted up in the basement, and here the boys can find employment to while away their leisure moments, when not engaged in out-of-door pursuits. A furnace provides heat for every room, all of which are well ventilated. The building is lighted throughout with Sche gas, the generator being placed in a separate building some distance from the school. The room formerly used as a dining room has been turned into a boys' reading room, and in this a large open fire-place has been built, making it an exceedingly cheerful and cosy place. In connection with the school there is a splendid gymnasium, open air rink, and large cricket and football grounds, all of which, to keep pace with the other improvements, will receive their share of attention. Work was commenced on the new addition about a month ago, and very rapid progress is being made in its erection. The contractors, Messrs. Baptie Bros., are rushing the work along, and will have it ready for occupation in time for the re-opening of the school, which takes place on Monday, September 19th. Rev. A. W. Mackenzie, the Head Master, certainly looks after the comfort of the pupils in a thorough manner, and we doubt if there is any more popular or better equipped school in the country.

A PRESENT FOR THE OLD FOLKS.

FOR THE STOMACH'S SAKE.

An eminent physician says, "human life should last five times the years it takes to mature"—thus if twenty-one is maturity we should live over a hundred years, but there are not many reach the century mark. A great deal more longevity would exist if the stomach did not get crippled and played out—That organ gets plenty of abuse, and is deserving of attention—It is the starting point of most ailments, and it needs the first attention when symptoms of sickness appear. If an elderly stomach can be kept working right, you may be sure of a ripe and contented old age, comparatively free from physical burdens. The great new discovery, ANTI-PILL, the Great System Treatment, has a grand effect in helping old and deranged stomachs. Any aged person who will address a Postal to Wilson-Fyle Co., Niagara Falls, Ont., will get a free trial bottle by return mail.

ITALIAN SECRET SOCIETY

ORGANIZATION BECOMING MORE AND MORE DANGEROUS.

Several Gangs Exist in Toronto — How Plundering Gang of Cut-Throats is Organized.

(Toronto News.)

"The growing power of the Italian secret organizations in Toronto is becoming more and more dangerous every day," is the statement of a well known local Italian.

"Italian secret societies," he continued, "have always existed in every place where there were enough Italians to form two factions.

"In Italy they are innumerable. In Toronto there are branches of the Malanita, the Mafia and the Comorroti. There are many others that have not even a name. When an Italian becomes dissatisfied with the treatment he is receiving, no matter from whom, he thinks that his grievances can only be remedied by himself, and he proceeds to organize a gang which usually develops into a plundering bandd of cut-throats.

"The depredations which are now being carried on in New York and Chicago by these people are not unusual. There have been several instances of the same thing here in Toronto, but not in recent years.

"When Inspector Hall succeeded Inspector Ward, of No. 2 Police Station, a clique of Italians disapproved of his method of government, and he was shot at one day as he was coming out of a lane on Edward-st. The man with the gun was never arrested. Several Italians have been murdered in the ward, and their deaths have remained shrouded in deep mystery to this day. These crimes can be charged to Italian secret organizations, and to them only.

"It does not matter how small the grievance is. The Italian banana vendor will become more vindictive over being moved on once by the policeman than an Irishman will in his enthusiasm over patriotic society affairs. I do not think there are more than eight or ten Italians who care a snap about remaining in Toronto. Their object here is to gather together a little money and get back to Sunny Italy. This characteristic makes them susceptible to the influence of such men as Rossati, who come along with schemes to organize protection organizations to improve their lot.

"The only precautionary measure I can suggest to prevent a repetition of the New York and Chicago depredations would be to isolate completely the Italian population. When the two races begin to mix trouble is bound to ensue."

WHAT THE MAFIA IS.

Harry B. Raimondo, an Italian living in Toronto, writes as follows:—

"As during the last few weeks America has heard so much of the famour—or rather infamous—Sicilian secret organizations known throughout the civilized world as the Mafia, or 'La Mano Nera' (The Black Hand), I take the occasion to furnish the public with a few facts in relation to this now world-famous society.

"The Mafia is purely and simply a creation of the island of Sicily; and although it has members and branches all over Italy, and, in fact, all over the world where Italians can be found, all its members are Sicilians.

"As is well known, Sicily has been continuously infested with brigands, and as the number of these grew they united and formed the Mafia. The original object of the Mafia was to levy blackmail on all persons of wealth, under penalty of death, and nearly all cases it was successful in extorting money from its unfortunate victims. As it increased in numbers and strength it became more feared, and many a wealthy and noble Sicilian, in order to be on good terms with these bandits, has aided them in escapting the vigilance of the Italian secret police. They continue their infamous practice for many years, but lately the police having made Italy too hot to hold them, and as their protector, Cavalier Palizzolo, was then in prison implicated in the murder of Hon. Notarbartolo (this murder case has lasted four years, Palizzolo having been released last month on account of insufficient crown witnesses), they emigrated to this continent, finding a safe refuge among their compatriots in New York, and other large American cities.

"As their number grew they became bold, and began a system of crime against wealthy Italians, and against the governments of all the American countries. The society is divided into two branches. The first is composed of the most illiterate of its members, many of whom have already more than one murder on his conscience, and exists only for the purpose of blackmail. The second, composed of the more educated and refined members, exists for the purpose of issuing spurious coin, and its distribution throughout the country.

"That the organization has been successful in its efforts is apparent by reading the columns of the American press.

"Many of the English-speaking people are under the impression that almost all Italians if not connected are at least in sympathy with this organization. But they are greatly mistaken. This society fears not the police as much as the Italian-speaking people, who threatened, trampled upon, robbed of their earnings by this set of criminals, will, when the opportunity offers itself, secure information as to their whereabouts and intentions, and reveal all to the police.

"It can truthfully be said that the Italians of this country would be the first and of all the most glad to help the police in running these criminals to earth. It is surprising to note that the American secret service, notwithstanding their professedd courage and shrewdness, are unable to cope with the requirements of the situation. In fact, all the headway that has been made against this set has been made by the Italian members of the New York police force, chief amongst whom must be mentioned Sergt. Detective Petrosino, who is considered by the United States press as the peer of all his American contemporaries."

PREFERENCE AND WOOLENS

A STATEMENT IN ANSWER TO ENGLISH PAPER

The Position of the Woolen Manufactures is not Antagonistic to Chamberlain Idea.

What do the Canadian woollen manufacturers think about the Imperial preference? The London Daily Chronicle, according to a cable is anxious to know their attitude, and Secretary Younge, of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, which has been identified with the movement among woollen manufacturers for higher protection, this morning kindly issued the following statement for the information of the great English daily, says the Toronto News.

"The Canadian woollen manufacturers, like other Canadian manufacturers, believe that the minimum tariff in Canada should be sufficient to afford proper protection to their industry. This does not necessarily imply that they are antagonistic to Chamberlain's policy. Nearly $15,000,000 worth of woollens were imported into Canada in the last fiscal year. The Canadian manufacturers believe that a proportion of this amount should be manufactured by Canadian labor on Canadian soil; and we are sure that so far as the importations of the balance are concerned, that they would prefer to see this purchased from the Mother Country or some other British source. This is assuming that Chamberlain's idea is truly Imperial, and that while building up the factories in the Mother Country he is also interested in building up the industries in the colonies. It must be remembered that the difference in the various elements of cost in the woollen industry in Canada and Great Britain amounts to considerably more than 30 per cent., and even if there were a preference with the present rate of duty, the British manufacturer would still have the advantage over the Canadian competitors. We have never seen any good reasons shown why a prosperous factory in Canada is not worth just as much, if not more, to the Empire, than a factory of the same magnitude and prosperity in the British Isles."

Galt, Ont., Aug. 25— When asked his opinion of Mr. Chamberlain's tariff proposition in view of the Montreal Woollen Mills going on half-time, Mr. George Forbes, of Hespeler, manager of the big Forbes Woollen Mills, stated that he could not give a decided opinion, since there appeared to be no definite understanding of what Mr. Chamberlain's proposals really are. According to Mr. George Drummond, they are entirely different from what has been published in Canadian newspapers. Mr. Forbes, however, said that the preferential tariff is continuing to seriously injure the business of the Canadian woollen manufacturers. In the case of his own mills, they are running with less hands today than for several years.

Mr. George Randall, of Waterloo, late Vice-President of the Waterloo Woollen Manufacturing Company, and now a director of the new Canada Woollen Mills Company, said that if Mr. Chamberlain's policy is to make it easier for British manufacturers to get into the Canadian market, he is decidedly opposed to it. While it may not be entirely due to it, the reason for the closing of the Canada Woollen Mills establishment as well as the Montreal works lies in the low prices for British goods, against which the Canadian manufacturer has to compete. If the effect of the present preference is to close so many mills in this country it could mean nothing short of entirely obliterating the woollen industry to allow British manufacturers into our market on still better terms, which seems to be what Mr. Chamberlain wants.

Very vague ideas are entertained by other woollen men in this country as to what Mr. Chamberlain's proposals are. Mr. Geo. Pattinson, of Preston, is at present in the Old Country, and is giving the whole question considerable attention while there.

Dame Fashion decrees That the Figure Must Change--A New Shirt Waist Which is Decidedly Unique.

In Woman's Realm Some New Ideas

Interesting Paragraphs Mainly About Women and Her Sphere in the Home as seen through Eyes Feminine.

NEW SHIRT WAIST FIGURE

MOST INTERESTING THING IN THE WORLD JUST NOW.

Waists no Longer to be Pulled Down -- Round Slender Belt of Years Ago Revived.

There is a new shirt waist and a new shirt waist figure. This new figure is absolutely the most interesting thing in the world just now.

The new waist is narrow in its lines around the belt and the new shirt waist figure must be slender in its waist lines and it must in all other ways conform to the new figure which is coming in this fall.

Dame Fashion has decided that she will no longer pull down her waist in front and that she will return to the round, slender belt of some years ago, and this is what has so absolutely changed the figure.

During the last five years every woman has been pulling down her stays in front, hitching them fast to her stockings, and then pulling down her bands and belts and girdles to make them meet the low waisted requirements. The result has been both good and comfortable and it is doubtful if the new figure will be one half as satisfactory.

But Dame Fashion says the figure must change, and, to support her word, she brings over models and living figures from Paris and exhibits them. They are almost universally small in the waist.

The new figure is higher in the bust; it is higher in the waist line, and decidedly higher in the belt line. And what is much more important from every standpoint is that the waist itself is smaller.

Now the figure is changing back to the small waist. It is a waist that is less by six inches than the waist of last winter. Women who measure twenty-nine around the belt must get ready to measure twenty-three. And women whose belt measurements were twenty-four inches must drop to about twenty. The smaller the waist the better.

But there are laws and limitations and they are clearly defined.

The first one is that a woman must not lace herself. The second one is that a women must in no way compress her diaphragm. She must so plan her figure that it will come under the new rules without difficulty. Plan is the only word to use. She can do it by planning when she cannot do it by lacing.

The bust must be full and high. The low bust effects are going out and the high, full, well developed figure is coming in. It will take a great deal of physical culture to develop the figure properly, but it can be done.

Then, the shoulders must be broad. Indeed, a study of the new figure is a study in breadth. The wider the shoulders the better. The woman whose shoulders call for a forty-inch waist or a thirty-eight inch will not be too well developed for beauty. Nearly all of the Gibson girls wear a forty inch shirt waist. They need all the fullness in the shoulders, for wide shoulders are to be the rage.—Chicago Tribune.

Good Digestion.

If you can keep your digestive system in proper condition the body will be well nourished and you need have little fear of disease. By regulating the kidneys, liver and bowels, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills ensure a healthful condition of the organs of digestion and for this reason are indispensable as a family medicine.

Fruitful Suggestions.

A good salad accompaniment to a heavy dinner is one made of dates and oranges served on lettuce leaves. The dates should be stoned and sprinkled lightly with sugar and the oranges cut into small pieces. Pour over this the juice of an orange, with a tablespoon of chopped parsley and a dash of red pepper.

In the land of oranges they have a delightful way of serving the fruit. It is peeled down to the bottom as one would pare an apple, leaving a sort of disk at the end of the peel. Then a fork is plunged through the remaining skin to the depth of the tines. The fruit is eaten from the fork. It is delicious this way, but of course one needs a finger bowl after the process.—Exchange.

COMFORT IN DRESS.

Tight Clothes Are a Mistake and Are Not Essential to Style.

A woman who is healthy and happy (and the terms are synonymous) does not wear her clothing uncomfortably tight. She has grown wiser. Women's clothing is cumbersome enough at best, but when vanity and a mistaken sense of style prompts the wearing of tight shoes which distort the feet, high collars which beget throat troubles and cause the face to flush and darken, and tight corsets, then the woman of civilization is but a step removed from the women of China, who bobble on maimed feet. Many women have an idea that comfort and untidy looseness of attire, coupled with lack of style, go hand in hand, and are victims of "nerves" in consequence. How this wrong idea still obtains it is hard to imagine, in view of the fact that perfect cut and fit have made the loose outer garment and shirt waist artistic and a pronounced success for years past. If all women would apply this knowledge in the selection or making of other garments all might be as comfortable as men, who scorn a garment if it pinches. If the corset is properly fitted and loose enough for perfect comfort, and shoes, belt, etc., fitted on the same principle, woman's health would be much better than it is. An hour a day spent in exercise will not undo the work of ten or twelve hours of improper living, hence the absurdity of women trying to obtain better health by exercise and gymnastics when they go from such exercise directly into the mistake of tight fitted clothes.

RULES FOR THE HOME.

Ten Commandments That the Wise Housewife Will Follow.

1. Make your household one harmonious whole, no matter how small the scale.
2. Use only what you can comfortably afford in good quality and ample quantity.
3. Let your home appear bright and sunny. It is not easy to be unpleasant in a cheerful room.
4. Treat you servants wisely and kindly, and it will be impossible for them to either impose or oppose.
5. Have time for everything and be never in a hurry.
6. A certain formality is necessary to save everyday life from triviality and freedom from looseness.
7. Do not forget that "society" is the death of home life, hospitality its flower.
8. Know how to talk and how to listen, how to entertain and how to amuse.
9. Have many interests and no studies.
10. Do not forget your home should not only be a well conducted dormitory and boarding place, but truly a home, the center and focus of all interest, pleasure and happiness for everybody connected with it.—Harper's Bazar.

CULINARY CONCEITS.

Too many eggs will make waffles tough instead of tender.

A custard pie will bake a nice even brown if a little sugar is sprinkled on the top before putting in the oven.

If you happen to get a cake too stiff, don't add milk. Beat up an egg and add it gradually until the desired consistency is obtained.

The white of an egg added to cream will not alter the flavor, though increasing the quantity, and will cause it to whip to a froth more readily.

To obtain a drop or two of onion juice for seasoning cut the onion across the grain and, holding it firmly, draw a sharp edged spoon across the cut edge, holding the spoon so as to catch the juice.

A custard or gelatin preparation containing eggs should always be strained after adding the eggs in order to remove the "spiral spring" that holds the white and yolk together and that does not "beat up" with the rest of the egg.

Blankets and Woolens.

The old fashioned s... soap of our grandmother's day is still the best thing to wash blankets and woolen garments. Allow a tablespoonful of the soap and one of liquid ammonia to each gallon of washing water, which should be just hot enough to bear one's hand in. Let the blankets soak fifteen or twenty minutes in this mixture. Wring out and repeat the operation in a similar lot of suds. Rinse in clear water of the same temperature, and hang in a nice airy place to dry, out of doors if possible. In washing eiderdowns, be particular to shake them frequently during the drying process to prevent them from thickening. It is less expensive to wash such articles at home than to send them to a laundry, and with a good wringer the amount of labor entailed is small.

Silk ribbons may be washed in suds made of lukewarm water and good soap, but they must not be wrung or they will be badly creased. Wash in a second lot of suds and rinse in clear cold water. Then lay on a table or board and with rather a stiff nailbrush brush sideways till all the creases are removed. Leave till thoroughly dry.

IDA ECKERT LAWRENCE.

The Dramatic Poet Who Wrote the St. Louis Exposition Ode.

Few women ascend the lofty pinnacle of worldwide fame as writers of poetry. A number, quite limited, gain a national reputation. A still larger number are locally renowned, but it is rarely that one is selected to inscribe a poem to celebrate such an occasion as the dedication ceremonies of a world's fair. But Ida Eckert Lawrence is distinguished by that honor, and her Louisiana purchase ode earned the eulogistic commendation of the most qualified critics of verse in the United States. Mrs. Lawrence gained an enviable reputation when, at the request of President McKinley, she wrote the ode on the launching of the battleship Ohio, which was copied throughout the English speaking world.

IDA ECKERT LAWRENCE.

She has risen rapidly to the front rank of women who are devoting themselves to literature. She was chosen to represent the American woman at the international congress in Paris in 1908, and her address, "The American Woman in Literature," won her marked recognition. She became a social favorite and was entertained by President and Mme. Loubet. Mrs. Lawrence has contributed many stories to the newspapers and magazines, but her fame has come to her in the last few years. Her dramatic poem, "Vesuvius," is exceptional for its glowing use of English.

When the committee on ceremonies of the Louisiana Purchase exposition cast about for an American poet to compose the official ode, which custom has made a feature of such undertakings, the choice fell upon Ida Eckert Lawrence, the "Ohio poet." Her fulfillment of the important commission assigned to her fully justified the wisdom of the committee. Mrs. Lawrence is a native of Toledo, O.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Best Cleansing Agents.

I once asked a little French scullery maid whether she was using soap on her pans. "Oh, never, madam," with an expressive shrug. In France the traditional experimental methods still linger, but in the decadence of such old fashioned methods with us, when our tins were cleaned with wood ashes, the various patented soaps have invaded American kitchens and are being promiscuously applied to surfaces for which they have no affinity. The grease or fat which is the basis of all soaps will combine with textile fibers, but will not combine with polished surfaces. It forms on these a glaze or scum which it is very difficult to remove and is, in fact, not removed; hence the peculiar flavor we call fiat in coffee, the flavor of soap that may often be detected in a glass of apparently clear water and the malodorous smell of frying that greets the nostrils even on the sill of many houses. It is the soap that, failing to combine with the frying pan, has entered readily into combination with the fat in the pan and sends forth this sickening odor. How often have I heard wonder expressed at the appetizing smells of French cooking. It is done in lard or butter and not in soap.

There is a simple scientific formula that will cover all the subject of kitchen cleaning—namely, use soaps which contain fats and alkalis with all textile fibers and soft porous wood, such as pine tables, floors, etc., and some form of potash or acid with all polished surfaces. Never use soap in a coffee pot or frying pan.

Acids are best for glass, but the danger of strong acids renders them undesirable. If, however, a good housekeeper will keep some form of lump acid in a jar and prepare a weak solution, the cleaning of glass will be greatly facilitated and, well rinsed, the glass will take a bright polish.—The House Beautiful.

Piles It pays to use Dodd's Dyspepsia Compound for a certain and speedy cure for each and every form of Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Heartburn, Sour Stomach, Sick Headache, Biliousness, Constipation, Piles. Dodd's Dyspepsia Compound is also sold in tablet form, 50 tablets in a box, price 50 cents. Dr. Chase's Ointment Beating Eggs.

When a recipe calls for "slightly beaten" eggs it means that the eggs should receive about fifteen strokes of the egg whisk, according to What to Eat. When eggs are "slightly beaten" they are not separated, but the white and yolk are beaten together.

"Well beaten eggs" means eggs that have been beaten till they are light and pale yellow in color. Eggs should never be beaten in tin, on account of the unpleasant flavor it is likely to impart to them. Nor should a single egg be dropped into a large dish or bowl, where it is almost lost when one tries to beat it. Long, narrow beaters may be purchased that will just fit into a tumbler, which is the best of all things in which to beat an egg. If eggs are washed before they are broken, the shells may be put away and used for clearing coffee and soups.

When the white of an egg is to be beaten alone, first of all chill it thoroughly and add a pinch of salt before it is whipped. The white should be beaten in a narrow dish, like a cup or tumbler. In this way it will froth more readily.

Two whites beaten separately make more froth than when beaten together.

Eggs are beaten "to a froth" when they will stand alone. They are beaten "till dry" when they have a certain shiny appearance, and, the bowl being inverted, fall out all in a lump.

Do Not Dolittle Dress.

The question as to whether the influence of the well dressed woman is not greater than that of the frump needs no argument by way of answer, says Katharine Pratt Horton. A picture rich in golden tints and beauty of design offers more pleasure to the eye than one less brilliant and less perfect in technic. The beautiful blending of colors either in dress or in painting exhibits the touch of an artist mind. Just as a bird with gorgeous plumage outshines its sister bird with dull gray feathers, so the well costumed woman, with every article of dress corresponding in color and texture, attracts the attention and admiration of all whom she meets and thereby exercises far more influence for good than the frump giving little heed to the fashions of the day who boasts that she has not changed her style of dress in twenty years.

A Clothes Closet Hint.

In a house where there is a dearth of closets I have discovered a makeshift that to me is invaluable. In improvised closets made with a wide shelf and a curtain with hooks underneath I pin a great many safety pins to the inside of the curtain so that the pins come point downward next to the curtain. Twist the pins down solid so that the little rings will hold, and with these pins hang all manner of dainty belongings to the inside of the curtain. It is the best place I have ever found for shirt waists, fichus, ties, etc. When taking down a garment do not remove the pin, but simply uncatch, and in hanging shirt waists pin through each side of the neck band. — Good Housekeeping.

Physical Culture.

Every woman can be greatly benefited by physical culture. This does not mean that you are to become so graceful that you make everybody have the fidgety wiggles, but it does mean that you will grow muscles and cover up your bones with good, solid, healthy tissue. It would pay you to go to a good instructor in the work. In a few lessons you could get a lot of splendid ideas.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Knitting.

Knitting, as a helpful exercise for hands that are stiffened by rheumatism, is the prescription of one physician, who thinks it limbers up the hands of sufferers wonderfully. Not only does this old time art give the hands a healthy little gymnastic, but it furnishes a sedative form of activity to nerves that are shaky from insomnia or debility.

Old Towels.

Old towels may be made to renew their youth, says an economical housewife, by cutting them through the center and sewing the two outside edges together. The raison d'etre of this is that the towels get thin down the center long before the sides are worn.

Drive nails through spools to hang clothes on in the attic or in the woodshed. This will prevent many a torn place when things are taken down in the dark.

The bride's linen should be marked with her own initials, those of the name she is to bear never being used until after she is married.

Butter on bread not only increases its nutritive value, but tends to assist its digestibility.

Use a piece of flannel dampened with camphor to polish mirrors.

SHOWING OFF CHILDREN.

It Is Very Apt to Breed Vanity and Self Consciousness.

The writer considers showing off a child's accomplishments a very hazardous thing to do.

"We should all of us soon become sorry prigs if we accustomed ourselves to exhibit our latest acquirements every time someone appeared who was not acquainted with them.

"The temptation is almost too great a one, it is true, to ask the happy papa and mamma to resist. That the baby who a few months ago could hardly speak at all should now be able to repeat rhyme after rhyme of the classic Mother Goose is certainly a very wonderful thing, and it is very hard for the happy parents to realize that it is a miracle which has taken place sooner or later with every sometime baby in the land.

"But if the little songs must be repeated for company it makes a great difference with what motive the child is led to go through with them. If you say to him, 'Wouldn't you like to tell this lady about the poor little pussy cat who fell into the well?' it may happen that we can get it out without having any other feeling aroused than one of friendly human sympathy, but if you say, 'Come and let this lady see how well you can say "Tom, Tom, the Piper's Son,"' you give him a distinct and too easily learned lesson in vanity and self consciousness."—St. Louis Republic.

LINEN CUPBOARD.

A Handy Piece of Furniture That Takes Up Little Room.

Every housewife feels it her duty to have a linen cupboard, and where space is at a premium and the spacious cupboards that were the delight of the grandmothers of the present generations are out of the question, a specially constructed cabinet serves admirably for a substitute. Such a cupboard is the one here shown, fashioned of English walnut and cedar and distinguished for its simplicity. It is scarcely five feet in height, the soft coloring of the unpolished walnut being so unobtrusive as to harmonize excellently with ordinary modern furnishings. The trays of Lebanon cedar are so constructed that each draws out upon a ledge fixed to the inside of the cupboard doors. For the mistress of a cottage or for the city apartment such a cupboard is certain to prove a boon and a joy.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Stale Bread.

If properly treated stale bread may be kept for years, always ready for instant use, says a writer in What to Eat. As the scraps of bread, biscuit, cake and crackers accumulate save them in a dust proof bag or any other receptacle that will keep them without attracting mold. When enough is collected to fill a baking pan of large size put them in it, set in the oven and allow them to stay there till toasted crisp. While yet warm put them in a cloth bag or on the molding board and beat or roll until reduced to wheat grain size. Put through the flour sieve and keep the meal in a tin box or in whatever one uses for holding bread timbers and the grains in another. The success of the process depends upon toasting the scraps sufficiently without burning.

DIZZY SPELLS AND DYSPEPSIA

Soon Disappeared When the Nervous System Was Set Right by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Mrs. M. A. Sharp, 346 Dublin-st., Peterborough, Ont., states: "For some years I was troubled with indigestion, which developed into nervous dyspepsia, and besides suffering from nervousness, strange dizzy spells would come over me. Hearing of the good results obtained from Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, I decided to try it. After a pretty thorough test of this medicine I can say that I never used anything that did me so much good. It seemed to be the very treatment that I needed, and as a result of the use I am quite restored to health."

Raffia Baskets

Wouldn't you like to have something novel in the way of presents for your friends this Christmas? If so, why not make some of those pretty raffia baskets that are both useful and ornamental. They are very easily and quickly made and several ladies in town who have become adept at the art would be willing to give some instructions in it for a small fee. Instructions may be found in several of the magazines which are widely read in town and in the issue of the Ladies' Home Journal for August 1903. The raffia comes in many pretty shades and is for sale only at the Review office. So use moments these long evenings in getting ready for Xmas and avoid being hurried later on.

UNIVERSITY STUDENTS WORKED THEIR PASSAGE

One Was a Peterborough Man and He Tells of Some Interesting Experiences That Occurred on a Cattle Ship Crossing the Atlantic to the Old Country.

The Peterborough student, who, with five others, worked his passage to the Old Country on a "cattle ship" continues the account of his experiences as follows:—

May 16—Ever since last night the wind has been increasing in force from the southeast, and today what I wished for is realised—a storm at sea, and in mid-ocean. It is a fascinating sight to see mountains of bluish green water rolling towards you and breaking in great waste of force over the vessel, but I tell you it makes me feel squeamish when you see the life-boats all fitted and made ready with life preservers. Two of the fellows are completely done for—one has not eaten anything for a day. You talk about rockers; this is where you get them. The wind blew one woman down today, but its seldom you see them on deck now. At dinner today there was a tendency for everything to come your way all at once, and then suddenly to leave you, and things emptied themselves. The storm is increasing, with the water going over the ship in sweeps. As it heightened in fury the boat rolled and rolled, throwing you off your feet if you did not hang on. All the boys were sick, and they laid under the hatch like ones dead. The foreman and I had an awful time with some of the cattle. They were terrified for they could not hold their feet, and the crash of their huge bodies as they went through two-inch planks, was enough to make one think he was up against the real thing. Morning came at last and the boss and I did all the work, as we did for tendays, and I alone showed up for breakfast.

STORM AT SEA.

On Thursday we spent the day trying to keep the cattle in their places. During the storm six cattle were thrown overboard, for they are no good if they cannot walk off the ship. The little Englishman, during the storm, provided all sorts of fun. He was about half sick, and the look of him would have made a post laugh. He was a very small fellow and wore a pair of long boots about as big as himself, and talked very English. I asked him how Chawley was, and he said, 'Oh, I want to go 'ome; I wish the bloody boat would quit rolling.' Saturday night the storm cleared out. On Monday morning, to our great joy, through the misty atmosphere we saw the cold, bleak outlines of "auld" Ireland. Its steep sides formed an impregnable barrier, while here and there a lighthouse held guard like a stern sentinel over the dangerous coast. The gulls, which had been following us for two or three days, now increased greatly in numbers, and little fishing boats could be seen close in. As we passed around the north of Ireland, quaint little white farm and fishing houses could be seen nestling down in their cosy nooks among the hills, looking the very picture of happiness and comfort.

When we reached Moville, where the mail was taken off, a landscape beyond my description met our eyes; the prettiest sight I ever saw. A long slope interdited with hedges, covered over with bright verdure and over-run with yellow whin bushes with here and there a bushy tree to give variety to the scene. Down near the coast the old village nestled, with its old stone walls and hedges, while a ruined castle, ivy-grown and mossy, reared its still proud head above its more common fellows.

ARRIVAL IN ENGLAND

The pilot came on board, and we started for Liverpool, which we reached Tuesday morning. We were up most of the night, and at Birkenhead we watched them put the cattle off. Four hundred and sixty-three went off in about half an hour. In the distance New Brighton tower made us welcome, while the seven miles of docks, which employ 85,000 men of Liverpool, gave us a slight idea of England's commerce. It was a wonderful sight, and more so when we got into it. We left our old clothes as a bequest to the people on board, and it was rather good to get into respectable clothes again, to get washed, etc. About eight, we left on board, and were asked by the Customs officer if we were first-class passengers. How he did look when we told him. We went with our foreman to a hotel and immediately cabled home and telegraphed to London. Here to our disgust, an old religious Liverpool lodge-keeper tried to jew us, but we sat in him rather severely. The debauchery and crimes of all classes and sexes that I witnessed in Liverpool on Tuesday night was surprising. It was awful; especially to see the women. I'd give one pound today, the 25th of May, in Cheltenham, to see the face of a Canadian girl, a lady, for I haven't seen a pretty girl since I landed here. The girls are coarse, heavy and sheepish looking, and to cap it all, throw their dresses on.

ENGLISH CUSTOMS.

We all went to Gloster, and the ride in their little cars, which are divided into apartments, was the most enjoyable I ever took. We passed through Birmingham and Wolverhampton, seeing salt works, iron works, and all sorts of manufactories, and also numerous old tow-path canals. The country is very pretty, so clean, so solid and so typical of the English nation as she stands at the head of the world today. At Cheltenham we met a Canadian traveller from Brockville, who had been there for three years, and he showed us more in one hour than we could have seen in one week. On the 24th we went to Pitville Gardens, and there saw an English custom. There was quite a crowd there and all you had to do to get a girl was to raise your arm; I kept mine down. We came upon a ring of young fellows and girls and a number of others of both sexes outside. They had provides themselves with a bundle of strings about three inches long. The girls would place one of these on any fellows' shoulder in the ring, and and he after her. She did not run very fast, and when she was caught they would kiss each other. Of all the smacking I ever saw! This went on and by-and-by any fellow could throw his arms around any girl and kiss her. I could hardly believe my eyes, and, and it fairly made me sea-sick. These are the girls that would not speak to you on the street, and would insult you if you did. Talk about love-making and kissing; well, I saw more last night than I ever saw in my life before.

We visited Gloster Cathedral yesterday morning. I can't describe the awe of that old place, filled as it was with its many tombs of royalty and church life, its archaic beauty and roughness. Its windows were a sight in themselves. We went through the crypt where secret services used to be held away underground, and saw the destruction of Oromwellian times, passed through the cloisters and chapels, saw the old box where the monks kept their robes, and the trough where they used to wash. We visited a number of galleries, especially the whispering gallery, where you can whisper and it will carry for a number of yards. We saw columns of the Duke of Normandy, Bishop Godfrey, 1004, and the tomb of the founder of the crypt. Osric the Saxon King, 740. We saw the tomb of King Edward II., 1327, and many others, while we visited also the Pilgrims Pulpit, where the Bible was chained, the only one in England.

TO-DAY'S MARKET

Largest for Some Time and Garden Produce Much in Evidence

The market this morning was very large, in fact the largest that has been here for some time. Although the farmers are very busy just now, the ladies brought in the products. Garden produce was very much in evidence and potatoes and apples were plentiful. Corn sold for 10c per doz., carrots 4c per bunch or three for 10c, cabbage 5c per head, apples 10c per peck, potatoes 60 to 70c per bag, eggs 15c to 16c per dozen, butter 19 to 20c pound, chickens 60 to 75c per pair. Fowl was not as plentiful as usual.

BLACK WATCH BAND ARRIVES

Famous Organization to be here for the Fair.

The Directors of the Peterborough Fair met in the Bank of Montreal offices and made further necessary arrangements for the big show to be held here in September. There is every promise of a most successful exhibition and reason for confidence that the result will be away ahead of anything in former years. The prize list is attracting considerable attention among the farmers of this and other districts. The fact that Hon. Mortimer Clark, Lieut.-Governor of Ontario, will open the show, has tended to arouse great interest. The Black Watch Band has arrived in Quebec, and it will be one of the delights of the occasion to hear and see this famous organization.

LEAVING FOR WEAST

Four Trains Of Harvesters Left Toronto On Thursday

Thursday four trains, each very heavily loaded with harvest hands, left the Union Station, Toronto, for Manitoba. The harvesters were mostly from eastern Ontario and were certainly a very fine body of men.

The Manitoba Government offices in Toronto were advised early in the month that, notwithstanding the large number of settlers who had come into the Province too late to sow wheat for themselves, and would consequently be available for harvest work, there would still be work for from 12,000 to 15,000 special harvesters, which is about the same number as was required last year.

In reference to the cry about damages by rust, the Government made inquiries and found that the damage was greatly exaggerated. The yield, it is expected, will be considerably in excess of the first estimate, which put the yield at about eighteen to twenty bushels per acre, whereas it is believed that it will be from 22 to 25 per acre.

F. Hismatra, head of a big biscuit and general bakery concern in Holland, has written for particulars relative to wheat lands in connection with which he desires to establish a biscuit factory and bakery.

GREAT PROGRESS BEING MADE

At the Locks Dam Under Manage ment of Mr. M. A. M'Namara.

We were much surprised, and very agreeably so, when we visited the new dam being built at the lower lock. We vividly remember only last spring the most horrible state everything was in, and the opinion of the Ottawa experts in declaring that the work was almost impossible. Since Mr. M. A. McNamara has taken charge of the works everything has assumed a business-like aspect, and now presents a very finished appearance. A former contractor from Ottawa did not have much success with the work, and had to abandon the project and much credit is due to Mr. McNamara, who is an old Peterborough boy, for his success. It was also thought that navigation would have to be closed for a time, but such has not been the case. An immense quantity of clay had to be put along the navigation front in the coffer-dam, and there is not a leak in it now. The piers will all be set by to-night and the moulds made.

This is only another instance where our local men have shown themselves superior workmen in undertaking difficult projects like the present one and we congratulate Mr. McNamara on his good success.

DR. BENSON DEAD.

Was Born and Educated in Peterborough.

Today's Mail and Empire contains the following notice:—

"Winnipeg, Aug. 26—Dr. E. Benson, a city coroner, died here tonight. Some time ago he suffered a paralytic stroke, and latterly he had not been in the best of health. Last night he suffered another stroke, and never regained consciousness."

The late Dr. Benson was an old Peterborough boy, having been born and educated here. He was the son of the late John R. Benson, and was a brother of Mrs. Arthur Brooks, Weller street. Many old residents will remember the deceased, although he went to Winnipeg when that place was in its infancy. The family formerly occupied the house now belonging to Mr. Richard Hall, on Water street, and Dr. Benson studied medicine with Dr. Boucher in the office of the late Dr. Burnham. The deceased's many friends in town will regret to learn of his demise.

Miss Wismar and Miss Jean Farrell, of St. Catharines, who have been the guests of Miss Maud Foote, left for their home this morning.

Miss Florance Copeland, who has been the guest of Mrs John Hunt, Stewart st., returned to her home in Bracebridge yesterday.

Mr. F. D. Mackay, of the Canadian Machine Telephone Company, addressed the Telephone Committee of the Brantford Council last evening on the merits of their system.

Mr. Bert Armstrong, who represents Kilgour Bros., Toronto, leaves Monday on a three months' business trip in the interests of his firm in Manitoba and the North-west Territories.

Miss Edna and Miss Stella Ackerman left this morning for Winnipeg, where they will join Mr. B. F. Ackerman and spend the next two months travelling in the Northwest. They expect to go as far as Portland, Oregon, before returning.

Rev. and Mrs. J. G. Lewis arrived home from Britain this morning. They had a pleasant eight day voyage from Liverpool. The famous Black Watch Band came over on the same boat, and added greatly to the delight of the trip.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Davis, Mrs. Geo. A. Cox and Miss Stephens returned from Stony Lake this afternoon. During the past few weeks Mr. and Mrs. Davis have entertained a very jolly house-party at their summer cottage "Glen Oak Lodge," amongst whom were the following guests:—Miss Alice Boger, Miss Helen Davies, Miss Pearl Lundy, Miss Agnes Hall, Miss Lysbeth Southerson, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Lount, and daughter Edith, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Stanley, Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Shaw and son, Mr. Arthur Rogers, Mr. Geo. Perkin, Mr. Warren Dean, Mr. John Laurence, Mr. Edgar Jarvis and Mr. F. D. Kerr.

THE LAST PARK CONCERT

GIVEN BY THE 57TH. BAND LAST EVENING.

Have Given 18 Concerts During the Summer and ten Different Programmes—Something about the Repertoire.

The 57th band gave their last park concert of the season last evening. There was a very large gathering of people and they listened with great pleasure to the programme. Victoria Park has seen many such audiences on Friday evenings during the past summer, and the fact that the concerts have been concluded will cause regret as it ever does. However the band has a very busy season ahead and preparations for the fall and winter programmes will require close attention. Very few people are aware that the 57th band, of which they are so justly proud, has a somewhat extensive repertoire. The programmes of the past summer have demonstrated this. There have been thirteen concerts given, and in these have been ten different programmes. It certainly must be requisite in the members of a band such as the 57th to possess a fine musical ability and culture. The instrumentation of the band is certainly a pronounced feature, and the effectiveness with which the music has been treated emphasizes this. Mr. Gliddon and his musicians have been most successful in pleasing the different tastes of their very large audiences, and looking back upon the summer's record there is every reason for appreciation and commendation on the part of the citizens, to say nothing of the congratulation that is decidedly the due of those who have provided delightful entertainments.

The band has given selections from such operas as 'William Tell,' 'Zampa,' 'Fra Diavolo,' 'Poet and Peasant,' 'Pique Dame,' and 'Nebuchadnezzar,' and in Grand Opera have played delightful numbers in 'Traviate,' 'Il Travatore,' 'Ernani,' 'Attilla,' Reminiscences are always pleasing and in these the band has excelled, the compositions being 'Bellini,' 'All Nations,' 'Verde,' 'Scotland and Ireland.'

The large number of delightful waltzes also found a welcome and there have been any amount of the very popular style, including "Cake walks," and pieces from 'Floradora,' 'Ermione,' 'Wang,' and other comic operas. This is but an outline of the excellent work done by the band during the summer. The winter months will undoubtedly bring many opportunities of hearing still greater successes of the band in the extension of their repertoire.

PORT HOPE'S STORM

Lightning did Much Damage—Barns and Out-buildings Burned.

Port Hope, Aug. 26—One of the worst electrical storms of the season passed over this section of the country yesterday afternoon. The lightning was very vivid and rail fell in torrents. In the course of the storm the barns and outbuildings of Mr. W. A. Walker, lot 32, con. 4, Township of Hope, near Zion, were struck by lightning and burned to the ground. Mr. Walker had just finished threshing and had the grain in the barn. The contents consisted of ten or twelve hundred bushels of grain, fifty tons of hay, and implements and machinery which were all totally destroyed. In addition to this another barn and driving shed were burned and the only building left standing is the residence. Mr. Walker's loss is very heavy, but is partially covered by insurance in the London Mutual.

Around town the lightning played havoc with the phones. A telephone pole near the viaduct was badly splintered and the wires burned to a crisp. A transformer at the corner of Charles and Bramley streets was struck, and a large hole burned in the centre and windows of the Standard Ideal Factory were badly broken. No less than twenty-three phones were burned and are under repair by the employes of the Bell Telephone Company today.

A lady was standing near the viaduct for shelter from the rain, when the lightning struck the telephone pole close by. She felt the effects and hurried to a nearby residence. There were several other cases where persons near the phone were dazed for a few minutes, but were not seriously injured.

In Bowmanville and Cobourg they had a light rain, but no thunder or lightning.

When a Sore Won't Heal.

Because of its power to heal raw flaming flesh, to allay the inflammation and stop the dreadful itching, Dr. Chase's Ointment has a world-wide reputation. If you have become discouraged by the failure of other treatments put Dr. Chase's Ointment to the test. Like thousands of others you will be surprised and delighted with the results.

VERY LARGE FUNERAL

Last Remains of Harry Cavanagh Laid at Rest This Morning.

The funeral of the late Harry Cavanagh took place this morning at 9 o'clock, and was very largely attended, showing the esteem and respect in which the deceased was held. Mass was said at St. Peter's Cathedral by Rev. Fr. Galvin, and the service at the grave was conducted by Rev. Fr. McColl. Following were the pall-bearers: Messrs. G. White, H. Snowdon, D. Gleason, W. Hatton, W. Robinson and H. Carney. Interment took place at the R. C. Cemetery.

THEY FOLLOWED THE CANAL

But the Port Hope Presbyterian Choir Could not get Past the C. P. R Bridge.

(Port Hope Guide)

The First Presbyterian choir and a private company (mostly Methodists) numbering in all nearly seventy persons, took advantage of Wednesday being the Port Hope Civic Holiday to enjoy an excursion. Mr. and Mrs. T. Neelands are entitled to the credit of projecting this ambitious trip, one, which so far as we are aware, has never before been attempted, that is from Port Hope to Peterborough and return (following nearly the route of the short cut canal) all in one day.

It was considerably after eight before the last rig left Port Hope, and one hour and three-quarters found the slowest at Bewdley where the steamer Rainbow (Capt. Burnett and Mate Simpson) was waiting. Jubilee Point was so inviting that a landing was made and dinner served on the tables conveniently awaiting under the spreading trees. The run up the Otonabee was a delightful experience, very few of even the older members had ever been either up or down the river. It was rather difficult to believe that we were progressing north when the river appeared only occasionally pointing from that direction, but in spite of the numerous twists to almost every point of the compass our speedy little steamer landed us at the foot of the locks above Peterborough by three o'clock. Owing to a break in the C.P.R. swing bridge we could not go further by boat, so everybody walked the remaining short distance to see the lift lock. Navigation having been suspended, there was "nothing doing," but Mr. H. W. Gillespie was good enough to start her working from his perch away up in the high tower, and he also explained the machinery of the lift. An hour or more was spent there. Returning, supper was served on the boat, and after a delightful sail over Rice Lake in the magnificent afterglow of the sunset, Bewdley is reached. This port has no dock, the boat simply shoves her nose into the mud and the passengers have to literally "walk the plank" very unsteady at that, to the shore. But as someone remarked that will be all right when the concrete approaches to the canal outlet to Port Hope are completed.

Home is reached by the last team about 10 o'clock, demonstrating that the round trip can be comfortably accomplished in fourteen hours, including at least three hours for transfers and stop overs en route.

Y. M. C. A.'S WORK NOW IS OUTLINED

BOOK OF VALUABLE INFORMATION FOR MEN

What the Institution Proposes Doing for the Coming Season — Outline of Work.

A booklet containing valuable information for men of all trades and professions has been issued, with usual enterprise by the Y.M.C.A. It is entitled "What Men Ought to Know," and is for the season of 1904-1905. A calendar and identification and memoranda blanks are features, then follows the officers, directors and committees of the Y.M.C.A.. An interesting explanation of what the institution is and what it is not, follows:—

"It is not a circus. It is not a playground. It is not a loafing place. It is not a reformatory for unruly boys, nor a home for ex-convicts, nor a tramps' lodging house, nor a free dispensary, nor a charity organization society, nor a dude's rest. It is not organized for political purposes, nor for the teaching of any pet theological dogma, nor to supply a meeting place for disgruntled religious cranks.

"The Young Men's Christian Association may be more or less of all of these. Barnacles fasten themselves to everything. But its primary object is to show young men how to help themselves."

"The Young Men's Christian Association is neither a money maker nor a charity. Its expenses exceed its income all years; the difference is made up by gifts. Everything is done below cost."

"It is a club for the pleasure and profit of its members; open to all but the vicious; so nearly free that public spirited citizens generally are glad to bear a share in the cost of its maintenance."

"It is not a prayer meeting, not an athletic club, not a business college, not a concert hall. It combines the best features of all, and does much more. Leading men in business, pulpit and statecraft have given it the highest praise and are among its most cordial supporters."

Literary and Debating Club.—The Literary and Debating Club will be re-organized. It will meet fortnightly during the fall and winter months.

POINTS.

Keep the Light Burning.—The lighthouse in the reception room stands for the work of Mr. J. N. Farquhar, for the Young Men of India. Members are asked to become regular contributors to his support. He is the representative of the Provincial Young Men's Christian Associations.

Employment.—We do not guarantee to find young men positions, or to personally recommend those for whom we wish to secure employment. We strive to bring the employer and the employee together. A man's worth will be the point that will count.

Transfers.—Almost every day some member leaves to go to another town or city. We give him a letter of introduction. His ticket is transferred, without cost, to any Association in the world.

Renewals.—Members are expected to renew their tickets promptly when they fall due, if they wish to continue to enjoy the privileges. This should be a first duty.

How to Help.—We depend to a large extent on our members bringing in new ones. Every man can bring in at least one during the year. Get after him now; he is waiting for you to ask him to join.

How the Work is Run.—It is managed by a board of directors, elected every year by the active members. These manage the Association with the assistance of the committees and members.

How the Ladies Help.—The Ladies' Auxiliary, open to all ladies who are interested in work for young men, have a special pride in keeping the building well furnished and in assisting in many other ways. They hold monthly meetings.

WHY SUPPORT THE Y. M. C. A.

1, Because it is a resort open daily to young men, under Christian auspices.

2, Because it is the best substitute for the home which many young men are able to find; and because many homes need the supplemental influences which are at work in the Association.

3, Because it is a great economic school, teaching young men the importance of proper attention to business, the value of character, of good citizenship, and of money.

4, Because it provides recreation without temptation, and provides for the physical, mental, social and moral welfare of young men.

5, Because men of any, or of no religious belief, are welcome to its privileges.

6, Because it helps all the churches, and does not interfere with any.

7, Because like a college, the Association furnishes privileges much in excess of the amount of money received from those who enjoy its advantages; otherwise a large proportion of its membership could not avail themselves of its benefits.

8, Because the Association is touching and helping a constituency greatly in excess of its membership; the reading room, religious meetings, lectures, and time of the Secretaries are at the disposal of the public, and are used liberally, and for a very large number who could not pay for the privileges.

9, Because the Association gives all strangers full privileges of the building for the first month in town, secures for them boarding house, and introduces them to Pastors and church homes.

10, Because it does an all round work for boys who are our coming men.

The Semi-ready Opening.

To-day the Semi-ready agency is having its debut in Peterborough. Such a wealth of beautiful suits has seldom been shown in this city. The principal feature of Semi-ready, and really a tremendous advantage, consists in the suits being carefully hand tailored to the basting stage. The inner part of the suits are basted only and the seams left with outlets. The suit can be tried on and adjusted to perfect shape in two hours. The Semi-ready Company refund money for any dissatisfaction. See their opening to-day.

Brevities.

—There was nothing doing at the Police Court this morning.

—A large crowd accompanied the Band excursion to Jubilee Point this afternoon.

—Large numbers came to town this morning from Rice Lake porter by the different boats.

—The new staff-pattern caps for the officers of the 57th Regiment arrived today, and they will likely be worn on the Barrie trip.

—Over a hundred took in the Foresters' excursion to Belleville this morning, per G.T.R. Two engines were used, and they expect to make record time.

—A ladies' chatelaine bag was picked up on Aylmer street this morning, and the owner may have it by applying at the Police Station.

—Mrs. Waddell, of Kansas, will sing at St. Paul's church at the morning service, and Mr. Snelgrove at the evening service tomorrow.

—Two bus loads of Lady Stenson-bore drove to Chemong yesterday afternoon and enjoyed a most pleasant outing. While there they called on Lady Brooke and Lady Tinley, who are summering there, and a pleasant afternoon was spent. Tea was partaken of at the garrison and a start made for home about 7.30, which was reached shortly before nine; the bright moonlight made the drive most enjoyable.

PREVENTION OF DUMPING

NEW CUSTOMS REGULATIONS HAVE BEEN PROMULGATED.

Official Explanation of how the Scheme is Carried out — New Declarations Required.

Ottawa, Aug. 25.—The customs department has, after careful deliberation, promulgated regulations giving effect to what is known as the "anti-dumping clause," and has given the press the following explanation of the regulations:

In view of the facts that the new law has an important bearing upon the trade and commerce of the country and that it is the adoption of an entirely new and striking idea in tariff making, it is considered that it would be beneficial to the business community to give a full explanation of the principal features of the legislation and the regulations thereunder.

For a proper understanding of the matter it is necessary at the outset to state that the customs law of Canada now and for many years past in force provides, in effect, that the value for customs duty purposes of any imported articles subject to any ad valorem duty shall be the fair market value of such article as sold for home consumption in the principal markets in the country of export at the time of export in the ordinary course of trade and on the usual terms of credit in like quantity and condition. Heretofore, therefore, although a manufacturer or merchant in any other country might sell goods (subject to an advalorem duty) to Canada at lower prices than he sold similar goods for home consumption in his own country, the Canadian customs law required payment of customs duty, not upon the special price for export, but upon the basis of the home consumption value in the country of export.

Briefly stated, the Canadian parliament has now provided that in any case where imported dutiable goods of a class or kind manufactured or produced in Canada (whether subject to specific or advalorem duties) are sold to Canada at a price below the fair market value of such goods as sold for home consumption in the open market of the country of export, in the usual and ordinary way, and on the usual credit terms, at the time of export, there shall be levied thereon, in addition to the ordinary duty established by the customs laws, a special duty equal to the difference between the selling price to Canada and the said fair market value for home consumption in the country of export, provided, however, that such special duty shall not exceed one-half the ordinary duty provided by law. The rate and extent of the special duty to, however, varied in respect of the following articles, upon which additions are paid when manufactured in Canada, viz.:

Pig iron, viz., iron kentledge, and cast scrap iron; iron cut steel ingots, cogged ingots, blooms, slabs, billets, puddled bars, and loups or other forms n. o. p.; iron finished less than iron or steel bars, but more advanced than pig iron, except castings; rolled iron or steel hoops, tees, beams, channels, joists, girders, sills, stars or other rolled shapes, or trough, bridge, building or structural rolled sections or shapes, not punched, drilled or further manufactured than rolled, n. o. p. and flat bar-iron blanks not punched or drilled; rolled iron or steel plates not less than thirty inches in width and not less than one-quarter of an inch in thickness, n. o. p. round rolled price rods not over 3-8 of an inch in diameter.

As regards these articles the law is that the special duty (which is in addition to the ordinary duty) shall be the amount of the difference between the selling price to Canada and the fair market value for home consumption in the country of export but that such special duty shall not exceed 15 per cent. of such market value.

To illustrate the working of the clause the following suppositious instances may be cited:

AN EXAMPLE.

Take the case of a piece of machinery sold from another country to Canada at say $90, but which is usually sold for home consumption in the country of export at $100, the calculations under such circumstances would be as follows:

1st. Ordinary duty at 25 p.c. on the fair market value for home consumption, viz. $100 $25.00

2nd. Add for special duty the difference between the selling price and the fair market value, viz. 10.00

Total duty $35.00

If the difference between the selling price and the fair market value as aforesaid had been $12.00 or more, the maximum special duty would be imposed, namely $12.50, or one-half the ordinary duty charged upon the fair market value.

ANOTHER EXAMPLE.

Take the case of bar steel sold from abroad to Canada at, say, $23 per ton, but which is usually sold for home consumption in the country of export at say $27 per ton. The rate of duty is $7 per ton. The calculation would be as follows:

1st. Ordinary duty at $7 per ton.$ 7.00
2nd. Add for special duty, one-half the ordinary duty or $3.50 the difference between the selling price and the fair market value in the country of export being equal to and in excess of that amount ... 3.50

Total duty $10.50

It is provided in the law that exemption from the special duty may be allowed in respect of any article which is rated for duty in the tariff at 50 per cent. advalorem or upwards, or at specific rates of duty equal to 50 per cent. of the fair market value for home consumption in the country of export.

For instance, take the case of certain soap which is dutiable at two cents per lb. under the tariff. If the fair market value of such soap for home consumption in the country of export is four cents per pound or under the equivalent ad valorem duty would be 50 per cent or upwards, and the exemption referred to on this paragraph would, therefore, apply.

Provision has also been made for exemption from the special duty when the difference between the fair market value as aforesaid and the selling price to Canada amounts to only a small percentage of such market value. With regard to this provision it has been determined on the advice of the board of customs that the special duty shall not be applicable when the difference between the fair market value and the selling price of the goods to Canada does not exceed five per cent. of such fair market value, the whole difference, however, when exceeding 5 per cent. to be taken into account for the purpose of imposing special duty.

The special duty clause does not apply to articles of a class which are subject to excise duty in Canada.

It shall be particularly observed also that the law does not apply to articles of a kind or class which are not made or produced in Canada.

It is declared in the regulations that when the value of goods for duty purposes is determined by the minister of customs under the provisions of the Customs Act, by reason of the goods being exported or imported under unusual conditions, the value so determined shall be held to be the fair market value thereof within the meaning of that term as used for duty purposes.

REGULATIONS

The regulations require in the first place that invoices in duplicate, properly certified to, shall be delivered to the custom house with the bills of entry for all imported goods. Heretofore, the regulations only required one copy of each invoice to be produced and left with the customs. Such copy was filed at the port of entry and was not forwarded to the department at Ottawa unless when called for. The idea of the department in requiring invoices to be produced and delivered in duplicate is that one copy shall be held as usual at the ports and that the other shall be sent with a copy of the entry to a special checking branch at headquarters in Ottawa. This is a very important reform, and will undoubtedly be of much benefit, inasmuch as it will tend greatly to ensure uniform collection of the revenue in accordance with the law. It is the intention to have all invoices carefully scrutinized and compared at the checking branch at headquarters by a competent staff. It may be noted here that the United States customs authorities require two copies of each invoice to be presented and left with them.

The regulations further provide that each invoice shall show in one column the actual price at which the articles have been sold to the importer in Canada, and in a separate column the fair market value of each article so sold for home consumption in the country of export. Under old regulations the exporter was required to note the fair market value in the margin of the invoices only where there was a difference between such market value and the selling price and the practice was to make a very brief notation, which very often only referred to the total cost, and not to the cost of each article. The new requirement will, it is believed, impress more firmly upon the minds of exporters the importance of the information as to the home value and will probably result in more accurate information in that respect being given.

The department has prepared and approved a form of invoice and it is intended that such form shall be adopted by all exporters to Canada as soon as possible. Specimen copies of such forms for the information and convenience of exporters will be furnished at the various customs houses.

An important change has been made in the form of certification of invoices. The certificate known as form "J," which heretofore has been required on all certificates of goods except for entry under the British preferential tariff has been abolished, and a new and more comprehensive one substituted. The said form "J" which is abolished is as follows:—

"This invoice is true and correct; and where there is a difference between any of the prices shown therein and the ordinary credit prices at which the same articles are now sold bona fide by the exporter in like quantity and condition at this place for consumption in this country, the latter prices are shown on the margin or elsewhere on such invoice."

The new certificate reads thus:

FORM "M."

I, the undersigned, do hereby certify as follows:—

(1). That I am the (Insert the words partner, manager, chief clerk or principal official, giving rank as the case may be) exporter of the goods in the within invoice mentioned or described.

(2) That said invoice is in all respects correct and true;

(3). That the said invoice contains a true and full statement showing the price actually paid or to be paid for the said goods, the actual quantity thereof, and all charges thereon;

(4) That the said invoice also exhibits the fair market value of the said goods at the time and place of their direct exportation to Canada, and as when sold at the same time and place in like quantity and condition for home consumption, in the principal markets of the country whence exported directly to Canada without any discount of deduction for cash, or on account of any drawback or bounty, or on account of any royalty actually payable thereon, or payable thereon when sold for home consumption, but not payable when exported, or On account of the exportation thereof, or for any special consideration whatever;

(5) That no different invoice of the goods mentioned in said invoice has been or will be furnished to any one; and

(6) That no arrangement or understanding affecting the purchase price of the said goods has been or will be made or entered into between the said exporter and purchaser, or by anyone on behalf of either of them, either by way of discount, rebate, salary, compensation, or in any other manner whatsoever, other than as shown in the said invoice.

Dated at..... ....

this... ..... day of... .....19 .....

A comparison of these two forms will show the improvement now affected. The new certificate gives a succinct statement of the law in regard to the value of duty, and the value of the certificate is therefore enhanced. The clause referring to secret arrangements or rebates affecting the price is worthy of careful attention. It is phrased with the object of providing, as far as a certificate can, against evasion of the special duty.

This certificate is to be written, printed or stamped on all invoices of imported goods, including invoices of goods for entry under the British preferential tariff.

The special form of certificate under such preferential tariff which has heretofore been furnished in continued, and is to be furnished in future on invoices in addition to the above certificate. The German surtax certificates are also be provided hereafter, as in the past.

OATHS.

Changes necessitated by the dumping clause have also been made in the form of oaths to be taken by importers when making entry of goods, and also in the form of declaration required to be made by foreign owners of goods shipped to Canada or consignment without sale by the exporter prior to shipment.

With regard to the oaths, the principal and indeed only important change is the addition of a clause as to arrangements or understandings affecting the purchase price, but which are not disclosed on the invoice. This clause is practically the same as that in the certificate Form "M" quoted above.

The regulations, including the new forms of oaths and certificates, are to take effect on the first of October. Recognizing, however, that it takes time to disseminate information among exporters in foreign countries in such matters, and that it may, therefore, be some considerable time before the regulations can be complied with entirely, collectors of customs are being instructed that they may for a temporary period after the first of October, but not later than December thirty-first, accept entries on invoices bearing the old certificate "J" instead of the new form "M." Duplicate invoices, however, ever, are required to be delivered with the bills of entry after the first of October in all cases, but to enable importers to comply with the regulations in this respect collectors may permit them to make an additional copy to be compared and initialed as a true copy by the customs officer.

The department has also matured plans fo securing full information as to foreign market values. In this connection officers have been and are being assigned to make investigations in other countries.

PASSED MANY A SLEEPLESS NIGHT

Till he Used Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets — They Set H. S. Barnes Right on his Feet.

Hot weather and indigestion travel hand-in-hand each helping to make the other more disagreeable. For when the stomach lags in its work the body grows weak, and weakened bodies cannot stand inconveniences of any kind.

The remedy is to help the stomach and the help the stomach needs is contained in Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. Those who have used them will tell you that. H. S. Barnes, of Rat Portage, has used them, and he says:—

"I was a victim of Dyspepsia, and reading of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets led me to try them. The effect was marvellous. They set me right on my feet after having spent many a sleepless night suffering from disordered conditions of the stomach."

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets cure all stomach ailments. One or two Tablets taken after a hearty meal is an insurance policy against discomfort of any kind.

St. Luke's Harvest Festival.

Sept. 21st the annual harvest festival will be held. The Rev. WHEN BOYS WERE MEN

By JOHN HABBERTON,

Author of "Helen's Babies," "George Washington," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1903, BY JOHN HABBERTON

"All I want, you said!"

be says I'll be well treated or his name ain't Clay Hillyard.' That ought to make 'em feel easier to home, oughtn't it?"

"I'm sure it would if they knew you," said I. "I wrote them a long letter after that scout in which you were captured, about how you fixed fried bacon and hoecake for us that night and how you showed me how to parch corn in bacon fat. I wrote how awfully hungry I was on that trip, too, and my mother wrote back that she'd pray for you every night of her life for being kind to her boy."

"Shoo! You git out! Is that so, though?" said my particular Johnny, with a sheepish look. "Well, mothers is all alike, I s'pose." Then he and one of his party began to prepare a meal of bacon and hoecake, for it was now nearly dark.

The aroma of the cooking diverted my thoughts from the situation, for we had started near noon and in such haste that we had forgotten to bring our haversacks. The Johnnies evidently intended to feed us, for they were preparing an immense quantity of food.

"Say, sarge," remarked my friend to the large, quiet man who seemed to be the leader of the party, "these boys cayn't eat with their arms tied. S'pose we tie their legs instead. They'll be safe ag'in runnin' away, an' they'll be more comfortable."

The sergeant muttered assent. The change was made, and then, as we sat on a long, low bench against one wall, we were bountifully fed. We chatted freely, our captors being quite willing to converse, and the conversation ran as entirely to farming methods as if there was no war or other special subject of interest. Two or three hours after dark the sergeant said to us:

"Now, gentlemen, any of you that tries to get away 'll be shot like a dog, but if you behave yourselves you can sleep as comfortable as if you was at home. Just lie down on the floor where you are whenever you like, or sit up, but keep to that side of the room. We'll keep to this side. If you even put your hands to your feet you'll be shot, so don't do it."

I said something to the effect that we weren't fools. Meanwhile my friend and the third man dropped upon the floor, with their guns and our carbines, while the sergeant sat down upon a box in front of the fire, cocked a double barreled shotgun and kept his eyes upon us. Conversation languished after that. It is hard to talk to a man whom you know is ready to take your life on sufficient provocation. We exchanged remarks occasionally with one another, but they weren't at all hilarious. I was just dropping asleep, still sitting on the bench, when Brainard whispered:

"Any water in your canteen, Jack?"

I hadn't thought before of the captain's canteen of whisky. Would it be safe to tell Charley in the hearing of the guard that the canteen across my shoulder was full of whisky? Suppose the Johnnies should learn of it, drink it and get fighting mad and kill us? I answered Brainard, "No."

Then, remembering some fair inscriptions that he and I had spelled out together in our village drug store and persuaded the druggist to translate, I continued, trusting the sergeant did not understand Latin, "Spiritus frumenti."

The surprise that gleamed through Brainard's eyes would have startled the sergeant had he seen it. Before I dropped asleep again the guard was changed by the sergeant rousing the man of the three who seemed to amount to least. He was a thin, rather feeble looking fellow, with a stupid face, the lower half of which had been left unfinished soon after it was begun. He threw fresh wood on the fire so as to keep the room alight, then he sat down with the gun and yawned so fearfully that I feared he might fall asleep with his hand on the trigger and rouse the house, perhaps to our serious injury. Finally, however, he got entirely awake, and then he seemed to feel dismal amid so much silence, so he tried to chat with us. He was a poor talker, but Brainard helped him along to the best of his ability. They drawled along for an hour, and under the soothing influence of their monotones, the snoring of the sergeant and the wheezing of the other Johnny I began to drop asleep again just as the guard was explaining a lot of bad feelings he had from time to time.

"I could cure you, I think, if you wouldn't get me into trouble," said Brainard.

"Ef you've got any medicine of any kind, stranger," said the guard, "fo' the Lawd's sake, gimme some. I don't keer what it is. I know it'll do me good some way."

"Wouldn't whisky be the very best medicine you could have?" Brainard asked.

The man's face looked like a beatified saint in a fourteenth century picture as he placed a hand on his waist and murmured "Oh!"

"If I find you some right here without stirring, will you promise to leave me a little of it?" asked Brainard.

"Of co'se I will," said the guard softly. "But how— Shoo! Quit your foolin'."

"I'm not fooling," said Brainard. "You promise, too, not to wake your friends to help drink it all? I don't believe in whisky except for sickness, and your friends don't look or act as if they had any bad feelings."

"Stranger," said the guard hoarsely, "I'd promise anything, 'scep' to be a Yank or to let you git out, fo' one drink of whisky."

"All right," said Brainard, taking the captain's canteen from my neck, drawing the cork and holding it out to the guard.

What Brainard was up to I could not imagine, and I closed my eyes as the guard stepped toward him. I feared Charley had some desperate idea of seizing the man's gun as he passed the canteen. In such case discretion would be the better part of valor—for the rest of us. But there was no scene. The guard quickly received his seat, and out of a mere slit of my eye I could see he had his gun ready for us with one hand while he raised the canteen to his mouth with the other.

"All I want, you said?" he whispered after he had ascertained that it really was whisky.

"All you want," was the reply, "so you leave me a little in case of sickness."

How that canteen did gurgle for a full minute! When the drinker was compelled to stop for breath, he held the canteen in front of him with a "you have saved my life" expression of countenance that was really touching. Then he began again and drank for a full minute longer, it seemed to me. As he breathed a long sigh of content he placed the canteen at his feet and said:

"Stranger, you're a gentleman. Nobody ever done me so much good be'o'."

"I'm glad to have been of service," said Brainard. "My friend here helped your friend there to a good drink of coffee about three months ago, and I'm glad to be about even with him."

"You're a gentleman. I say it again, an' I'll say it always."

Evidently whisky really was the medicine he needed, for he began to be quite happy, though quiet. Then he fixed his eye on something on the floor. He appeared to go into a brown study. Finally he closed his eyes and loosened his grasp on his gun, which fell softly across his knees. I looked toward Brainard to wink, but to my horror I saw him kneeling the strap at his feet and motioning me to do likewise. Then he rose softly, took the guard's gun, handed it to me and proceeded to tie the fellow's feet.

Then I understood what Charley was up to, and, although I was so frightened that I was afraid I would drop the gun, I covered the sergeant and my rebel friend with it. I wasn't going to be outdone in appearance of bravery by any five foot ex-student of theology alive, even if he happened to be my particular friend. Nevertheless as I stood there with that gun I devoutly prayed that the slumbers of the recumbent Johnnies might continue to be very sweet.

Meanwhile Brainard carefully unbound the two other men of our own party. I wondered why he didn't wake them and tell them to loosen themselves, but I offered no suggestions. I don't believe I could have spoken had I tried. With the belts taken from our boys Brainard softly bound, or hobbled, the feet of the sleeping graycoats. Then he cut the sling strap from our captain's canteen and bound their hands also. They became somewhat restive under this operation, and the sergeant suddenly opened his eyes. The fire that shot from those eyes when the sergeant saw me with his gun at a point made me tremble, and when he strained at his bonds I recalled the story of Samson.

"We're awfully sorry, sergeant," said Brainard, "that it had to be done, but duty is duty, you know."

The sergeant was speechless. Perhaps 'twas just as well, for I learned afterward that he was a member of the church. He did, however, arouse my old acquaintance by nudging him with his tied feet, but when that matter of fact fellow grasped the situation he ejaculated, "Well, I'll be ——."

Charley took one of our boys and went out of the but. They came back in about half an hour and said they had the boat ready. In the interval my old acquaintance had exclaimed about once in five minutes and each time apparently after profound thought, "Well, I'll be ——."

I finally told him I hoped not, and it wasn't his fault we had turned the tables on him.

OIL WELLS IN FLAMES

Great Fires in Louisiana and in Belgium.

Boiling Gusher Ignites and Fires Other Wells—Tanks Containing 90,000,000 Gallons of Oil Burning—Started in Russian and Spread to the Standard Oil Company's Tanks—C.P.R. Liner Lake Michigan in Danger.

Antwerp, Belgium, Aug. 27.—The oil tanks at Hoboken, three miles from here, containing about 26,500,000 gallons of petroleum, are ablaze, together will all the sheds, wagons, and paraphernalia. The fire started at the Russian companies tanks, through the ignition of escaping gas, and the flames quickly spread to the Standard Oil Company's tanks. A high wind fanned the fire. Troops are assisting the firemen to localize the conflagration. Estimates of losses run into millions of francs.

Seven Persons Burned.

London, Aug. 27.—A despatch to a news agency from Antwerp says that seven workmen perished in the oil fire at Hoboken, and that only two out of forty all tanks were saved. The loss is estimated at $2,400,000.

C.P.R. Liner in Danger.

London, Aug. 27.—(C. A. P.)—The petroleum blaze at the South Docks, Antwerp, caused the C. P. R. Liner Lake Michigan at one time to be in great danger.

Oil Wells Blazing.

Crowley, La., Aug. 27.—The biggest fire in the history of the mammoth all fields is raging. Thursday Morse Well No 8 came in a boiling gusher, pouring out a volume of oil at the rate of 10,000 barrels a day. The loss is placed at $100,000.

The fire caught from a spark emanating from friction and rapidly spread to other wells. Four oil tanks each of which had a capacity of 1,200 barrels, caught fire and burned. Two were full of oil and two were empty. Four standard rigs, the property of the Morse Company, also were destroyed. During the afternoon the fire was confined to the Morse Wells Nos. 7 and 8. Large lakes of oil which had formed when the Morse No. 8 came in, caught fire. Eight lines of steam pipes have been laid to the burning wells and more are being prepared.

Killed By Train.

Toronto, Aug. 27.—Dominique Vanturo, a G.T.R. sectionman, while working at the foot of Brock avenue yesterday morning, was run down by the Stratford train and instantly killed. The train was running 20 miles an hour.

Crushed By Gangway.

Walkerville, Aug. 27.—Alexander A. Parret, a laborer, was standing on the wharf Thursday, when a heavy gangway on the steamer United Empire was lowered without warning, which fell on him, crushing him to the ground, and rendering him unconscious. He was sent to Hotel Dieu, Windsor, where he died the same evening. Parret was about 40 years of age, and is survived by a widow and several children.

THAT DOUBLE DROWNING.

Further Particulars of the Sad Accident on the Soo.

Sault Ste. Marie, Aug. 27.—Further particulars of the double drowning here show that the accident occurred in St. Mary's River, near Topsail Island, at about 5 o'clock in the evening. Both the victims were inexperienced boatmen, and it is doubtful if they realized the danger incurred in going upon the river at the time. They had planned for a sailboat ride, and in spite of the fact that a gale of 60 miles an hour was coming off Lake Superior, and white caps were running at least six feet high, they were undaunted. They went down the river a short distance below the lighthouse, had turned about and were heading up stream when the accident occurred. At this point, the current is very strong, and when the wind caught the sail with a jerk the boat was suddenly capsized, and both young men sank without making a cry that could be heard on shore, where they were being watched by several persons.

The boat used by Patterson and Hill was a light canoe, in which provision was made for hoisting a small sail.

Herbert Delamere Hill was born in Strathroy, and was in his 24th year. He was the only child of Venerable Archdeacon Hill of St. Thomas.

The other young man, James Colebrooke Patterson, was the son of Hon. J. C. Patterson, ex-Lieutenant-Governor of Manitoba, and ex-Minister of Militia and Defence in the Cabinet of Sir John Thompson. He had been in Sault Ste. Marie for about four years and had many friends in the Soo.

Pointed a Revolver.

Hamilton, Aug. 27.—John E. Roth pointed a revolver at William Morden in Barton township, where both men reside, and threatened to put Mr. Morden out of business by means of the weapon, so it is alleged, and last evening Detective Donald Campbell gathered the man with the revolver into the toils. Roth had the weapon in his possession when arrested.

W. J. Paul Selected.

Tamworth, Aug. 27.—At the Addington Conservative Convention held here, W. J. Paul of Tamworth, was chosen to contest the county at the next Provincial election. He received 58 votes to 31 cast for James Reid, the present member.

Hanged For An Assault.

Washington, Aug. 27.—John Burley, a negro, 40 years of age, was hanged here yesterday for criminal assault. It was the first time the death penalty has been inflicted here for this offence.

Seized Stores Train.

Buenos Ayres, Aug. 27.—It is now confirmed that the Paraguayan revolutionists have seized a train containing stores, and which had a number of Government officials on board.

Exclusiveness.

Exclusiveness is a brand of nothing, used by nobody who is anybody, to protect somebody from the dangers of nothing. You'll find it everywhere, more in Boston than in New York, more in New York than right here in Hayfield, but Hayfield isn't rid of it. Exclusives are people who don't know enough to go at large. Exclusive society is a ricksty, leaky, lopsided association of idiots, fools, tailors' dummies, languiders and hangers on, so substantial-less that you have to feed a couple of dozen of 'em into a hopper to grind out a dwarf.

Chinese Music.

The notes of Chinese music read, like the written characters, from right to left, and the intervals of the scale are different from those of the scale adopted by the nations of the west. The music is not very harmonious and sounds meaningless and jangling to western ears, but it has a pretty, musical cadence that makes it attractive and interesting in spite of its frequent discords.

The Wail of the Victim.

"You can't get something for nothing," said the man who affects proverbs.

"No," answered the easy man; "I can't, but the people with whom I do business seem to manage it every now and then."—Exchange.

DEALT IN REAL ESTATE.

Boys' Deaf and Dumb Institution at Outremont Tied Up.

Montreal, Aug. 27.—The religious and business community here has been greatly shocked by revelations in connect on with the Boys' Deaf and Dumb Institution at Outremont, directed by Brother Charest of the St. Viator community. Besides running the school, Brother Charest has been a very heavy dealer in real estate, and it now transpires that many of the transactions turned out most disastrously.

In order to tide over the straightened conditions of the community, Brother Charest accepted large sums of money in deposit from citizens, giving his notes and paying an abnormal rate of interest. The crash of course had to come, and as the superior is not in the city there is a great deal of feeling over the matter.

The amount involved reaches up into the hundreds of thousands, and in spite of the fact that the community holds a great deal of land, it is believed that the deficit will be very considerable.

A committee, composed of Hon. L. Beaubien, Charles Chaput, Rev. Father Adam and others, have been requested to investigate the matter.

The Mauser's Breath.

The old fable of the siren has its duplicate in one of the most deadly of modern weapons. The whistle of a bullet ought to be a deadly sound; it is surprising to be told that it is a beautiful one. Mr. H. F. Prevost Battersby says in his South African notes called "In the Web of a War:"

The Mauser's most melodious period is from 800 to 18,000 yards. Over that distance its note is the most exquisitely lovely of single sounds. "The silky breath of the Mauser" is a phrase that adequately describes it.

But there is something more about it than its beauty, something strange and baleful. It goes by like the singing of a wondering soul that can find rest only by bringing death to another. It is a sighing so indescribably tender and sad and sweet that every sound of human lips seems without charm beside it.

After lying for a time under that silky breath, one has even to resist a desire to lift his head and take the next puff of it in his face.

Jokai's Joke.

At a banquet held in his honor in the town of Torda, Maurus Jokai, the Hungarian writer, was called upon to propose the toast of "The Ladies." He made an excellent speech, during which he continually toyed with the brown curls upon his forehead. Finally he said: "I raise my glass in honor of the gracious ladies of Torda. May they all live until my hair grows gray." His audience drank to the toast, but it was easy to see by the faces of the ladies present that they did not think much of the compliment. Jokai rose again from his seat and took from his head a magnificent brown wig, showing an entirely bald head beneath it. "My hair," he added, "will never grow gray." And the ladies, who had not known of his baldness, were more than pacified.

Tin Found in Manitoba.

Winnipeg, Aug. 27.—D. H. Urquhart and A. McCall of Rat Portage, who came to Winnipeg to register claims at the Dominion Land Office, report the discovery of large deposits of tin-bearing ore in Eastern Manitoba, twelve miles from the Ontario boundary line, and south of Cross Lake. If subsequent tests bear out their statements, the discovery will make an epoch in Canadian mining. There is no known body of tin ore in Canada and practically none in the States. The discovery of tin in Canada would be an event the importance of which it is impossible to overestimate.

New at Edmonton.

Edmonton, Aug. 27.—President Hays and party of G.T.R. directors arrived here Thursday from Calgary. They will make a thorough inspection of survey work done from here. Mr. Hays promised to take into consideration the views of the Board of Trade and the City Council as to terminals. It is understood that the party will remain here two or three days before returning to Calgary for the coast.

Black Watch in Montreal.

Montreal, Aug. 27.—Major Rose, Bandmaster Murray and 57 members of the 42nd Black Watch Band reached here last evening from Quebec. As they were nearing the wharf the band of the 5th Royal Scots played the "Campbell's Are Coming" and the visitors responded with "The Maple Leaf Forever," in inimitable style. They will be entertained here to-day and will leave for Toronto at 9.30 Sunday morning.

One Blessing.

"Well, it's either muddy or dusty all the time," growled the pessimist.

"But," pointed out the optimist, "what a blessing it is that it is never both muddy and dusty at once."

Her Hope.

"I shall be married to Dick next week!"

"I thought you said you'd be the last person to marry him!"

"Well, I hope I shall be!"

Love Rewarded.

Madge—What makes you think that handsome music teacher is mercenary?

Marjorie—He charges Dolly's father $2 an hour for making love to her.

The Bear.

New Cook—What does your husband like for his breakfast, ma'am? Mrs. Greenville—Oh, he likes anything we haven't got.

DEPARTURE OF LORD MINTO

His Term was the Connecting Link Between two Reigns.

The Ottawa correspondent of the New York Evening Post makes the following comment upon the closing of the recent session of Parliament, and the contemplated departure of Lord Minto.—

"The present closing of parliament has a somewhat special interest from the fact that it is the last occasion on which the Earl of Minto will meet the Canadian Legislature. Before the close of the year he returns to England, to be succeeded as Governor-General, probably by Earl Grey, who, by the way, is his brother-in-law, and incidentally one of the wealthiest of English peers.

"Lord Minto's term as Governor-General is notable as having been the connecting link between two reigns. He received his trust from Queen Victoria, and returns it to King Edward. The significance of this is enhanced, when it is remembered that during the reign of Victoria, of whom he was the last representative, Canada grew from a group of insignificant, weak and scattered colonies, into a compact confederation possessing all the elements of strength, prosperity and nationhood.

"In these days the Governor-General is little more than a figure-head in Canada. Time was when he was much more than this. A statesman like Dufferin could, and did, take a very active part in the government of the country, always, of course, within his constitutional limits. Nowadays His Excellency's sphere of usefulness is much more circumscribed. Sincere as is the feeling of loyalty to the Mothe Country, Canadians would not brook for a moment anything that looked like interference of the Governor-General in Canadian affairs. Technically, the Governor-General has a considerable degree of power. Practically he has none. He may dismiss his government at any time, and may withhold his assent to a bill passed by the Canadian parliament; he may override the decisions of the administration. But since the Dominion was formed no Governor has dreamed of exercising such power; and if he did attempt to do so he would certainly be recalled immediately by the Imperial authorities, who thoroughly understand the temper of the Canadian people.

"While, however, the Governor-General does not in any sense govern, he has it in his power, where he is a man of good sense and tact like the Earl of Minto, to become something more than an ornamental figure-head. Lord Minto has not only been a model constitutional governor, maintaining, as Sir Wilfrid Laurier happily put it the other day, "the dignity of the Crown, and the rights of the people," but he has identified himself in many ways with the rights of the people. He has taken an active interest in the movement in Canada for systematising the fight against consumption, and has ably seconded the efforts of his charming and very popular wife, to establish a system of cottage hospitals throughout the more sparsely settled portions of the Dominion, especially in the West.

"One of the last acts of the session just closed was to pass by a standing vote a resolution expressing in very flattering terms the high regard felt by the members of the Senate and the House of Commons for the Governor-General, and the universal regret of the Canadian people at parting with the Earl and Countess of Minto."

Died at 188.

Washington, Ga., Aug. 26.—Caesar Booker, believed to be 125 years old, died here Wednesday. He came to Georgia ninety years ago as a slave from Virginia. Caesar leaves six children, the oldest of whom is 96 years old.

Alexandria Hotel Burned.

Alexandria, Aug. 26.—A serious fire occurred here about 4 o'clock yesterday morning, when the Grand Union Hotel and the large general store of D. MacCrae were burned.

Fruit-a-tives
or Fruit Liver Tablets

Instead of Fruit.

Fruit is a splendid tonic for stomach and liver. The active principles give fruit its medicinal value. But they occur in such minute quantities, that when fruit is taken with other food, and goes through the process of digestion, their action is lost.

"Fruit-a-tives" are the active principles of apples, oranges, figs and prunes—extracted from fruit juices, combined by our own secret process, and compressed into tablets. They are the concentrated medicinal virtues of fruits and act much more effectively than any other known treatment in curing Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Torpid Liver, Biliousness and Kidney troubles. At all druggists. 50c. a box.

Summer Prices FOR Winter Garments

The last month of Summer—August—is a good time to buy Furs. It is known to be a good time. Prices as a rule are lower, because the dealer is anticipating the season.

It is a good time—in fact the best—to order Furs. Because it affords time in which to make them up with care and without the haste that comes with the winter season.

Our show rooms are open. You can view the winter's styles. They are all here. Orders are taken based on the styles we show. It's worth a look at any rate, even if you do not buy, and you are never pressed to do so. All we know about Furs is at your service.

Jeffries Won in Second Round.

San Francisco, Aug. 27.—Like the veriest amateur in the prize ring, Jack Munroe of Butte, Mont., went down and out before Champion James Jeffries last night in the second round. The man from the mining district made such an extremely sorry showing that the great throng in Mechanics' Pavilion roundly hooted as he protested to Referee Graney against the decision that had been given in favor of Jeffries. The two giants had not been in the ring two minutes when it was seen that the aspirations of Munroe would be quickly disposed of. The miner was scared and awkward and Jeffries in the first round had him twice on the canvas taking the count.

Don't Trust to Luck.

Even if there is such a thing as luck you cannot afford to trust to it in case of sickness. You know by the experience of others that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food actually forms new blood and tissue and revitalizes the nerves, and by using it regularly you can be certain that your system is being built up and that weakness and disease are being overcome.

WOULDN'T MILK THE COW

And Romeo and Juliet Had to Get a Divorce.

Kansas City Journal: Recently the Journal copied from the Winfield Courier some extracts from a divorce petition filed by the attorneys of P. F. Whitegar. The extracts were interesting for a flowery rhetoric that struggled mightily to illuminate the dull circumlocutions of legal phraseology. Now the wife, through her attorneys, has filed an answer which also is removed from the commonplace. She denies each and all of the plaintiff's allegations with respect to money transactions, save as she admits that he gave her $400 to invest in some town lots as per a certain antenuptial agreement. 'During the period of her married life extending over about a year," declares the answer, "the said plaintiff, out of the magnanimity and greatness and generosity of his heart, lavished the sum of $10 upon her, and said sum is all the defendant ever received from him." But the defendant's answer is more interesting from its picture of the impetuous and tempestuous lover, and with respect to this part we quote from the Courier as follows—

"And for the fifth defence the defendant states that marriage between the plaintiff and this defendant was a very quick and tragic one; that the same was the result of love at first sight, and following a brief, meteoric courtship of but a few short days; that as a lover the plaintiff was a Romeo in his protestations and demands, and demanded and attempted to obtain from defendant a promise of marriage within 15 minutes from their first introduction and acquaintance; that he swore by all the powers of heaven that life would be a barren waste without this defendant at his side, and that the minutes would drag as leaden wings and seem as days—yea, even weeks and months unless he could have her as his wife. That she had a team bought with her own money and that he would not milk the cow nor feed her nor give her any attention."

THE JAPANESE HAVE SHIFTED TO LIAOYANG

remained on the main position, and the Japanese infantry occupied the wooded heights west of Kaminas, near Tassintun. Towards noon, Japanese guns were observed near Erbakho with a division of infantry. Four batteries were seen to be concentrated between Kaminas and Katamai. About 2 p. m., a Japanese mountain battery, which was advancing along a ridge toward Tassintun, was held up by our guns and was prevented from occupying the position held by another battery which was silenced after suffering heavy loss.

"At 3 p.m. large bodies of the enemy were observed constructing entrenchments on the heights south of Sanpu, and at 4 o'clock a Japanese mountain battery appeared on the heights west of Kaminas, but retired. At 5 p.m. a Japanese force of at least two divisions of infantry was advancing against the Russian positions at Liandiansian."

SITUATION AT PORT ARTHUR.

Russians Driven Back Inch By Inch, But End Is at Hand.

Che Foo, Aug. 27.—According to information from trustworthy sources the present position at Port Arthur is as follows:

Eastward from Takushan to the Wolf Mountains the country is in the occupation of the Japanese, who have mounted 300 heavy guns besides field artillery. The guns include ten 6-inch quick firers, manned by a naval brigade, and also weapons brought from the principal forts of defence in Japan. They are able to shell the town.

The Russians, besides heavy guns, have constantly at work 100 light pieces of quick firers.

To the westward of Etseshan fort, which has been captured, a road leads to the parade ground, but the infantry are unable to advance on account of land mines.

Between Two Fires.

From the heights the Japanese are able to shell the eastward forts, which are thus caught between two fires.

Pigeon Bay fort has been taken, but Liaotishan fort is still in the hands of the Russians.

To the north the Japanese are at Pallencheng. Their infantry and advanced guards have pressed several times beyond the inner forts, but have been repulsed.

There are Japanese spies in Port Arthur engaged in cutting the electric circuits connecting the land mines. The besiegers cannot advance eastward until the forts are silenced.

The capture of Etseshan is regarded as opening a successful way to the westward.

The attack is being pressed on all sides simultaneously and the Russians are fighting inch by inch.

Some Chinamen, whose junks, left Port Arthur eighteen hours ago, confirm the capture of Etseshan. The whole of the west coast of the peninsula is now in the occupation of the Japanese, who examine all junks leaving the harbor.

Ships Under Fire.

They maintain a heavy shell fire, making the position of the ships in the harbor untenable.

Fighting is continuous, and the belligerents are unable to bury their dead. Hence the effluvia from the decomposition of the bodies is making life in the town unbearable.

The harbor is described as boiling with the splash of falling shells. It is estimated that three thousand projectiles have been received in three days. Never was such a line of intrenchments and wire entanglements as that constructed near the town.

Three Numbered Five.

A Russian, who has intimate knowledge of Port Arthur fortifications, explains that there are three forts known as No. 5. This accounts for the various and conflicting reports regarding fighting at No. 5.

The Fall Inevitable.

Boston, Aug. 27.—The fall of Port Arthur is inevitable, according to Baron Kentaro Kaneko, the special envoy of the Mikado of Japan to the country. Baron Kentaro added in a statement to the press yesterday that the capture of the fort was certain to come, not only because Japan planned to spend, if necessary, from 40,000 to 50,000 men in its capture, but because also, the whole population of Japan regards it as a point of national honor that the port should be retaken from the Russians and returned to the nation into whose possession it rightfully came ten years ago.

Baltic Fleet on the Move.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 27.—The Baltic fleet, which sailed from Cronstadt Thursday night on a ten days' trial cruise, consisted of twenty warships. The fleet consists of the battleships Souveroff (flagship), Borodino, Alexander III., Oslaabia and Orel, the cruisers Dmitri Donskoi, Aurora, Zemtchug, Izumrud and Almas, and the transports Okean and Kamtchatka, with a number of torpedo boat destroyers.

While it is officially stated that the fleet is bound on a trial cruise, it is believed by many people that the warships will not return to Cronstadt unless in the case of a serious breakdown, but that they will put into Libau, where they will be joined by auxiliary cruisers, colliers and torpedo boat destroyers, built at Libau and Reval, and there await the ultimate start for the Far East.

Before returning to the capital Mr. Schreiber will visit the Canadian Canal at the Soo. Gerald L. Law, C. E., 191 Slater street, recently engaged on the C.P.R. western construction, left Thursday with a party to survey the Trent Canal between Fort Hope and Rice Lake.

TURNING PEAT INTO COAL

CHICAGO ENGINEER HAS SOLVED A PROBLEM.

Turns Marsh Mud Into Coal and Makes a Marketable Product.

A Chicago engineer has solved the problem of changing marsh mud into coal and making it a marketable product all within twenty-eight minutes after it is taken from the bog.

Practical demonstrations have been made in that city with peat fuel manufactured by a process patented by J. Campbell Morrison, consulting engineer of a company, after four years of experimenting. The results have shown a heat efficiency equalling that possessed by the higher grades of anthracite coal. Chemical analysis has shown a combination of hydro-carbons and volatile substances giving thorough combustion; physical analysis has shown a specific gravity, in some cases exceeding that of hard coal so that a ton of peat fuel will take no more room in the cellar than is required for a ton of coal. The peat fuel can be produced at less than ninety cents a ton.

There is nothing new in the idea of utilising peat, the soil that covers thousands of acres of waste land throughout America to the depth of three or four to fifty feet, as fuel. The trouble has been to find a process economical enough to make it an article of commerce. The elimination of moisture in the raw product has been one problem. Another has been the compressing of the dried peat into blocks that would withstand the weather and not disintegrate in shipment. Mr. Morrison seems to have solved these problems.

Practical tests at the Weir and Craig Manufacturing Company, where the plant invented by Mr. Morrison has been installed, showed that there is none of the waste, through smoke and escaping gases, in the use of peat fuel that attends the use of hard and soft coal. There were no clinkers and the percentage of ashes was much lower than with coal.

One interesting test was made with an ordinary cook stove. A fire was built with four pounds of kindling and six pounds of coal. A thermo-guage was placed in the oven and readings made at regular intervals through a peephole. When the fire had died out and the stove was cool another fire was built with four pounds of kindling and six pounds of peat briquettes and readings again made. They showed that the average heat obtained was ten per cent. greater with the use of peat, while the duration of effective heat was twenty per cent greater.

Several engineers in charge of the motive power of railroad systems and other experts have been witnessing the tests and great interest has been aroused in the new fuel.

SPEED DEPENDS ON WATER

In the Matter of Boiler Efficiency to Which Engineers Give Much Attention.

Whether the water is hard or soft, has no little part to play in the matmatter of boiler efficiency to which engineers now give a vast amount of attention. They have considered the subject of heating surface of the first importance in this connection, and they have succeeded in obtaining results which are in every way satisfactory so far as they go, but now that it is becoming a question of still further enhancing the value of locomotive boiler as a steam producer the solution of the difficulty is supposed by many to lie ultimately if not immediately, in the adoption of purified water. When hard water is evaporated the incrusting impurities are deposited upon the tubes of the boiler. The presence of a scale in a boiler is directly responsible for a marked diminution of its capacity for the rapid generation of steam. It also takes more labor to maintain a proper head of steam, and the boiler is generally less fit for service and, at the same time, more expensive to operate than if it were kept free from scale. It is authoritatively stated that one-sixteenth of an inch of scale on the inside of a boiler necessitates the consumption of 12 per cent more fuel to generate the same quantity of steam; one-fourth inch of scale means 39 per cent. more fuel; while if three-fourths of an inch of scale should be allowed to accumulate it would entail a loss of 90 per cent. of fuel. This being so, it will not be difficult to believe that the existence of scale in a boiler may easily lead to enormous increases in the coal bill. There are frequently cases in which two locomotives of precisely similar designs, and constructed at the same works, of material good in both instances, are stationed in different districts. One engine shows better results in working and cost of maintenance than the other, and when an examination into the case is made it is found that the better engine is supplied with water comparatively free from scale producing matter, while the other is condemned to relatively impure water. Particularly objectionable are carbonate and sulphate of magnesia, and lime, oxide of iron and alumina, silicas, matters in suspension, such as mud, sand and organic matters.—Chicago Tribune.

Lever's Y-Z (Wire Head) Disinfectant Soap Powder dusted in the bath softens the water at the same time that it disinfects.

We conceived the Semi-ready idea in 1898.

We believed then that menfolk would appreciate buying their suits at the three-quarter finished stage.

With the inner parts basted only to the outside shell of the fabric—the seams left with outlets.

We believed that every wearer of good clothes would like to see his suit tried on before he bought—to forejudge the effect of style—fabric—color—fit and the thousand and one features that go to make up a perfect suit.

We recognized the prejudice that existed among these well-dressed men for the custom tailor—for we were custom tailors ourselves.

To overcome that prejudice—to make our idea a success—we recognized from the start that we had to tailor better suits than the best custom tailor.

That we are opening a sales branch in this city is one more indication that we hold sincerely to our original intention.

For we had but two selling branches in Canada in 1898—one in Toronto and one in Montreal.

To-day we have thirty!

And to-day competition is keener—there is hardly a ready made clothing concern which does not sew white basting stitches all over their suits in pretense that they are made to the basting stage of Semi-ready.

To-day the custom tailor will tell you his suits are "just as good" as Semi-ready.

We want you to see these Semi-ready suits, in which we take so much pride, for yourself—will you please accept our invitation to come in and look them over.

We will be pleased to consider you our visitor if you do not think of purchasing.

STUBBORN BESIEGED OVERCOME

Port Arthur was Captured by the Gallant Invaders.

NEWS BELIEVED IN LONDON

Not Confirmed from Japanese Sources—Guns of the Victors Dominate the Entire Town — Although Fall of the Fortress is Announced Firing Still Continues.

London, Aug. 29.—The correspondent of The Evening Standard cables from Tientsin that the Japanese have captured Port Arthur after days of fighting, and although the battle is still raging inside the city and the garrison under Gen. Stoessel is stubbornly contesting every inch of the way, the invasion has actually taken place, and it is surrender or extermination for the brave defenders.

News Generally Believed.

This is the news that has reached this city and, while it lacks official confirmation from Japanese sources, it is generally believed, and The Evening Standard openly announces the fall of the fortress on the authority of its Tientsin correspondent. Under date of yesterday this correspondent, of whose reliability there can be no doubt, writes:

"Have good reason to believe from private information that the Japanese have effected an entrance to Port Arthur, and that the fall of the fortress is consequently virtually accomplished. The Japanese, however, are reluctant to say anything officially until the fighting is altogether suspended. The entrance was effected at the Etseshan forts. The Japanese occupied the Pelyushan parade grounds within the forts at dawn of the 24th, from which point they swept down with an unceasing fire throughout the day. The Japanese casualties were very heavy, but their courage remained undaunted to the end."

Losses Enormous on Both Sides.

London, Aug. 29.—A despatch from Fusan to Lloyd's Weekly says: "After a desperate day and night of fighting the Japanese penetrated the principal defence of Port Arthur. Their guns dominate the entire town. They hold every position they won despite the desperate and furious counter attacks of the Russians. The losses on both sides were enormous."

Desperate Sortie Likely.

A despatch from Kobe to The Weekly Despatch dated Sunday says: news from a reliable source states that the Japanese have captured the outlying fortifications of Port Arthur. The Russians still hold the citadel on Antzeshan, northwest of the town, the Golden Hill forts and the forts on Tiger's Tail Promontory. The Japanese hold the parade ground. The fall of the fortress is believed to be imminent. The Russians are likely as a last extremity to make a desperate sortie, for which it is believed they are in readiness.

Fall Imminent Saturday.

London, Aug. 29.—The Daily Mail's Kobe correspondent, in a despatch dated Saturday, says: Following is the position of Port Arthur. The Japanese have captured all the outlying fortifications, but the Russians still hold the citadel on Antzeshan, Golden Hill Fort and the forts on Tiger's Tail and Liaoti Mountain. The Japanese are in possession of the parade ground and barracks under the Antzeshan Fort on the outskirts. The fall of Port Artuur is believed to be imminent. It is believed that the garrison will make a desperate sortie before the end comes.

On Good Authority.

London, Aug. 29.—A Central News despatch from Rome says that it is stated on good authority that Port Arthur has fallen. There is no official confirmation.

More Jap Troops.

Che Foo, Aug. 29.—Seven Chinese who went to Fort Dalny in the hope of sharing with the Japanese in the business boom there, returned to Che Foo yesterday, and reported that the Japanese are monopolizing all opportunities at the port. These Chinese say that twenty transports, bearing 20,000 troops to reinforce the besiegers at Port Arthur, have arrived at Port Dalny during the past fortnight.

More Japs Land 60th.

Che Foo, Aug. 29.—Information which, to a very great extent, confirms previous reports of the conditions at Port Arthur was received here by junks which left there on Aug. 24 and 26.

The most important statement confirms the reports that the Russians have been driven from the fort immediately east of the railroad.

During the night of Aug. 22 an heroic band of 500 Japanese attempted to capture Fort No. 5 in the midst of a storm. Almost the entire detachment was killed.

Fired on By Torpedo Boats.

On Aug. 27 the fort on Liaoti Mountain was fired on from six Japanese torpedo boats, but the result of this action has not been made known. The Russian marines are working at the land batteries. Shells from the Japanese fire continue to fall in Port Arthur and the dockyards, and the warships have been scattered about the harbor in attempts to protect themselves from the enemy's projectiles.

Russian Battleships Damaged.

A Chinese who was employed at the docks at Port Arthur says that the battleships Retvizan, Poltava and Sevastopol are badly damaged. The battleship Pobieda is in fighting condition. There are also four gunboats and several torpedo boat destroyers in the harbor. The recent report that eight destroyers escaped from Port Arthur cannot be confirmed. The Japanese are constructing forts at Louisa Bay, northwest of Port Arthur.

Russians Lost Six Guns.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 29.—The general staff has received the following telegram from Lieut.-Gen. Stakhovich, dated Aug. 27: "Our advance guard on the southern front yesterday retired slowly towards the fortified position at Anshanshan. The Japanese artillery cannonaded our position at different points. Our heavy fire eventually compelled the enemy to move their vast camp from Fahmaipo to Baimiaopu. At 6 o'clock in the evening there was a lull in the firing. The hottest fighting occurred on the left flank on the south front, where our losses amounted to 200. During the night our advance guards retired to the principal position.

Lost at Least 600.

"Five divisions of the enemy took the offensive against our south front. Our troops repelled towards the southeast all attacks, while our troops on the right, towards evening, drove the Japanese back on Lounsiapu. Our losses on the south-east front were about 400.

Six Guns Abandoned.

"A turning movement by the enemy against the left flank of the Tregow position and the enfilading fire of their batteries on Khaoulo Heights forced the Tambof Regiment to retire and the retreat was effected in good order. Six guns were abandoned, but they were rendered useless. The Japanese attacked like fanatics, and their losses must have been great.

"A wounded Japanese officer, who was taken prisoner, escaped observation after his wound was dressed and killed himself by dashing his head against the stones. Our troops captured many rifles, and articles of equipment. Our losses on this front have not been definitely ascertained, but they exceed 1,500 killed or wounded.

"On Aug. 27 the enemy had not assumed any defensive movement at any point along the whole front, and our troops retired gradually to new positions. At about 2 o'clock in the afternoon it was discovered that the Japanese were moving on Lesampine."

Out Army in Two.

Tokio, Aug. 29.—The general staff maintained silence throughout yesterday concerning the fighting in the vicinity of Liaoyang. It is reported that Gen. Kuroki has cutted and cut the railroad south of Mukden, thus separating the Russian forces and cutting Liaoyang from a direct line of retreat, but confirmation of this report cannot be obtained. The fighting reported east and southeast of Liaoyang is regarded here as preliminary to a larger contest in the immediate vicinity of Liaoyang. It is expected that Generals Kuroki, Oku and Nodzu will press forward speedily.

Japan Shows Her Hands.

Washington, Aug. 29.—Japan has addressed a note to the powers informing them that unless Russia forthwith disarms her warships in Shanghai Japan will be forced to take whatever steps she deems necessary to protect her interests. Mr. Takahira, the Japanese Minister, called at the State Department Saturday and left with Mr. Adee, the acting Secretary of State, the communication of the Tokio Government.

The Minister spent some time with Acting Secretary Adee, but further than to receive the communication, Mr. Adee was careful not to discuss the attitude of this Govern-

WHY NOT DIVE

The recent loss of life in a gold mine through a number of men being suffocated by the fumes from a blast that had been fired shortly before, is not an unusual accident. Such misfortunes are too common in coal mines, where the poisonous gases are naturally formed and given out. To prevent a fatal accumulation, coal mines have to be thoroughly ventilated, but this is not considered so necessary in metallic mines, which only require a sufficient supply of air for breathing under normal circumstances. Evidently, however there is some degree of danger, to obviate which greater precautions are necessary. In this case, the simple test of lowering a naked light, not a source of danger as in a coal mine, would have saved these unfortunates from going unconsciously to destruction, for where a light will burn, a man can breathe. If the heavy expense of installing and maintaining such ventilating apparatus as is necessary for a coal mine is sought to be avoided in the case of the less dangerous metallic vein, might not a diving apparatus be less costly and yet efficient. A diver duly equipped could plunge as safely into a layer of poisonous gases as into water, his necessary supply of air being conveyed to him in the same manner. Evidently some precaution in such cases is needed and should be enforced.

Don't Trust to Luck.

Even if there is such a thing as luck you cannot afford to trust to it in case of sickness. CANADA'S DAY HAS COME

Immigration Tide has set Towards this Country.

Mr. Thomas Duncan, of the Canadian immigration office, London, reports that the tide of immigration which has for years been directed chiefly towards the United States, has now set towards Canada. Canadians have had faith in their country and have built in advance of population requirements, confident in the knowledge that Canada's day would come. Naturally we have hitherto been overshadowed by the United States which has for years soaked in all the surplus population of Europe, the free land over there has all been taken up and instead of encouraging immigration the Americans are doing much to discourage it. That country was formerly the goal of the poor man but now the immigration authorities call the poor of Europe 'paupers' unless they have some means, and turn them back. For first six months of this year 39,000 British and 39,000 foreign immigrants came to Canada.

Mr. Thompson, secretary of Mr. J. P. Whitney, has just returned from a two months' trip through our North west and he refers to the prosperity and progress of the whole western country in something unexampled. Immigration is rushing in from the United States and Europe, the crops are splendid and the whole country is booming, though nobody now uses the word "boom" to describe conditions.

The progress and development of our west is now certain to be continuous and will probably contrival the record of the American west, because while in one case the railways followed the flow of immigration westward, in our case the country is already more or less developed and prepared for settlement. All Indian troubles have been overcome, railways are built and building, lands surveyed and ready for settlement, and all the mechanism exists for handling all the immigration that can be sent in.

We have waited long for it, we have even had some false starts like the Winnipeg "boom" of lamented memory, but now Canada's day has arrived and there is every prospect that our western population will grow like smoke.—Trade Review.

WHAT IS THE CAUSE OF WHEAT RUST

AN ATHORITY DISCUSSES THIS IMPORTANT SUBJECT.

Rust Resembles Tuberculosis — Its Parasites use the Food Belonging to Kernel of Wheat.

In an article on "Wheat Rust—Its Causes and Its Remedy," Prof. W. M. Hays, who is one of the greatest authorities on wheat cultivation, discusses the subject very exhaustively. In charge of the Minnesota Experiment Station, the professor practically spends his life studying the culture of the wheat plant.

In his opening remarks he says, in effect, that the rusts of cereal grains are caused by a class of minute parasitic plants which do not produce flowers or seeds, but their means of reproduction are by spores. There are several species of these pestiferous plants, the life histories of which are not fully worked out; but it is certain that their spores live over winter and germinate on the surfaces of the leaves of wheat and other members of the grass family.

The only outward evidence of the presence of these plants is their heads or seed-like spores. The bodies of the plants are mere slender branching threads, growing through the tissues of the leaves and stems of plants. Sometimes they grow throughout the plant without forming spores. Their thread-like branches extend out under the plant's skin, there developing some little round spores so numerous that as they grow and swell, they push up the underskin of the plant and burst it open. The patches on leaf or stem are evidence of the presence of yellow or black masses of spores.

LIKE TUBERCULOSIS.

Prof. Hays proceeds in the following words to liken the wheat plant bothered by rust to a human being of tuberculosis tendency: "These rust parasites use the food that belongs to the kernel of the wheat in producing both the spores and the thread-like plant bodies of the rust plants. It may be that the parasite has other injurious effects on the growing grain other than the mere absorption of its food, but of this little is known. The amount of spores showing is evidently not always the index to the amount of injury done.

"But when there are large amounts of rust spores there is certain to be considerable damage. This subtle disease . . . is always present and all our fields are exposed to it . . . as all towns are constantly exposed to the germ of consumptions. In favorable weather the rust diseases do not spread rapidly and each wheat plant has none or so little that its vitality is not capped; just as men do not succumb to consumption in the high altitudes and dry atmospheres of some Southern States. In moist-warm seasons, on the other hand, the rust multiplies rapidly and the large soft wheat plants are compelled to support such a burden of these internal foes that their vigor is seriously impaired, just as the human family when placed in damp, unhealthful conditions, is much more liable to succumb to germs of tuberculosis.

"As a man or a cow will thrive under favorable conditions with a small amount of tubercular germs in the system, so a wheat plant will fatten up its berries if burdened with only a few of the thread-like bodies of its parasite. But if the conditions are unfavorable the man or the cow grows poor; and with bad conditions the wheat cannot fatten up its berries; or, if the rust develops early in the lift of the host plant, it eats but few ernies, and we have but few shrunken kernels."

COMPARATIVE HARMFULNESS.

Little is known, it seems, as to whether one species of rust under certain climatic conditions is worse than another, but "the significance of black spores afore harvest is generally heralded as an unusually bad season," and "whether the presence of dark colored spores is more significant of injury than yellow spores is not well understood. It is true, however, that the dark spores usually appear later in the season on the stubble of the grain and live over the winter. In a year of cool weather, at the ripening season the effect of rust is often overestimated as proven at threshing time."

IMMUNITY TO RUST.

What seems most interesting in Mr. Hays' paper is his attempt to help the wheat industry out of its difficulty by emphasizing the means whereby the destruction of crops by rust may be met and compensated for, while scientists look for a remedy which might destroy this scourge He observes that after twenty or thirty years of settlement in the wheat districts of the States it was noticeable that crops had fallen off, whilst older districts had "caught their second wind," possibly because of the introduction of varieties more or less immune to rust. It is possibly for this reason that "the experiment stations of the North-west are heeding variation of wheat which yield more in spite of rusts and all other draw-backs, whether because of more general vigor, higher inherent yielding ability, or because they are specially resistant to this dread disease matter less than the more fact that these wheats yield more value per acre than do the old kinds." Being strongly in favor of this means of meeting the difficulty of the situation for the time being, Prof. Hays invites millers, dealers and seed growers to co-operate in supplanting the old wheat with the new, and urges that "as all seed growers should use formaline to cure smuts, so the State and all interests should use the only practical known remedy for rusts—breeding." And, further, he says "while we are breeding for rust resistance, we are breeding for larger yield of value per acre, higher breadmaking quality, and better food value."

AN IMPORTANT SUBJECT

IS THAT OF PUBLIC SAFETY AND IT CONCERNS ALL.

Precautions as Taken by Governments and Private Initiative.

Trade Bulletin.

The subject of public safety is one which concerns all. There are two theories by which the problem can be approached. One applies precautions in advance by government inspection in such a way that accident is impossible. The other leaves the precautions to private initiative, but visits a severe penalty upon the offender.

It is but a trite saying to-day that the lives of the individuals of society are regularly committed to the care of one another in turn in a way unknown fifty years ago. This true ecship of life and limb runs all the way from the alertness of the engineer at the throttle, or the elevator boy at the valve rope, to the professional eminence of the doctor, the engineer, the architect, or the chemist. Common honesty and the ethics of each profession or occupation must in final outcome be the real security that is offered. The sense of responsibility that comes with these occupations is a matter of growth which sometimes reaches the dignity of a sixth sense exercised unconsciously. For the great body, simple conscientiousness of this kind furnishes ample motive to protect the public, but the general tone must be kept up by some system of penalty for criminal neglect which society must enforce.

What is "safe" is determined by a great variety of conditions, and at the best must be in large measure a matter of judgment. If the law undertakes a theory of precaution against accident it becomes necessary to anticipate all the possibilities of danger and prescribe formulae of safety. This throws the entire burden of risk upon the framers of the law, and there follows a leeway of great laxity in the execution of such a law. If rigidly devised it will inevitably, among practical men, come into a contempt that must make it more or less of a dead letter; if carelessly contrived it serves no purpose but to act as a buffer in relieving anybody of ordinary responsibility. It will be the first form in which society undertakes the problem of public safety, because it is often easier by a system of licenses to delegate various classes of responsibility to designated parties in advance under prescribed conditions when the activities are conducted by individuals rather than by corporations. But when the activities are conducted by large, highly organized agencies instead of individuals, we have permanent, responsible parties with whom we deal.

The problem of society in its formal enactments is to visit as far as may be the consequences of each man's act upon himself—to set effect against cause. It is not then necessary to prescribe in advance the conditions of safety that shall meet every situation. Invested property is at all times pledged for such reasonable precautions as the best practice dictates.

When the railroads were first begun the theory of their operation was that the roadbed should be, like the public highway, open to the private individual with his private car, and motive power. On this basis the state railroad from Philadelphia to Lancaster was first operated. It was soon found that reckless drivers took chances that resulted in serious accident and much damage and as a precautionary measure largely, the general management of the railroad took to itself the furnishing of drivers and motive power, and later the cars. In this way private supervision and organization brought to uniform discipline and standards, the man and the cars which performed the service. As the transportation business grew, working conditions became more specialized and services rendered assumed more of an expert character. The knowledge of these conditions and of the individual capacities of the men to meet them, required an administrative organization. In such an organization individual responsibility was not changed. The difference lay in the manner it was defined in each individual case and the way it was passed down them of responsibility through an organization. By private management the individual responsibility was now specifically defined according to changing conditions. The various individual responsibilities were gathered up into that of one general organization which was amenable to society as a whole.

This is the plan of which railroads are held to their largest accountibility. Criminal carelessness of individuals is punished directly by the court, but the corporation is also mulcted in heavy damages if it has not observed due diligence against accident. It is considered safer to leave the kind and extent of precautions to the railroad company, but to hold it to severe accountability for results. In general this seems to be the effective way of dealing with the problem of public safety whereas with the railroad we deal with a responsible and highly organized body of workers.

CANADA'S NOXIOUS WEEDS

THEY CAUSE MUCH UNNECESSARY WORK AND SAP VITALITY.

How to Prevent Distribution and to Destroy Common Varieties — Some Advice Given.

Weeds not only cause a great deal of unnecessary work and annoyance during the harvesting, threshing and cleaning of grain, but they sap the very vitality from the plants or crops grown. Impure seed, particularly of grasses and clovers, is largely responsible for the alarming spread of noxious weeds, consequently it is always advisable to sow the best seed available.

Early maturing crops, such as clover hay, can be cut as soon as the weed seeds mature, thus preventing the distribution of weeds. Summer cultivation of the stubble land, followed next season by a hoed crop, properly cared for, will destroy all the weed seeds sufficiently near the surface to germinate.

To eradicate weeds it is important to know something of their growth and nature. Some excellent advice regarding the commoner varieties is given by Mr. Simpson Rennie, owner of the gold medal farm of Ontario.

The Canada Thistle and Perennial Sow Thistle.—These can be entirely killed in a single season by a properly worked corn or root crop. The main thing is to keep them from showing above ground. As soon as the thistle is allowed to grow up and develop leaves it commences to store away plant food in its underground stem and roots, so that by the time it is in full bloom it will have stored sufficient food to live through another season, no matter what cultivation is given the land. Where a summer fallow is resorted to there is no trouble in clearing the land of perennial thistles, either by shallow plowing or by using a cultivator with wide points on the teeth, going over the land at least once every three weeks until August.

Hind Weed. This is a perennial and one of the most difficult weeds to eradicate. On account of its twining nature and deep roots it can scarcely be killed in a single season, even where the land is in a hoed crop. The only way to kill it thoroughly is with a summer fallow, worked every eight or ten days with a broad-shared cultivator.

Couch Grass. To eradicate this troublesome perennial it is advisable to plow immediately after harvest, but not more than four or five inches deep, as the roots lets are near the surface. When the weather is dry, the root can be gathered into rows by means of the harrow and sulky horse rake. The spring-tooth cultivator is also very effective, in drawing the roots to the surface where they are apt so numerous as to block it up entirely. The roots collected should be allowed to dry and then burned. A well-worked corn or root crop the next year will help materially in subduing the weed.

Ox-eye daisy. The daisy is most troublesome in pasture and mud land, but is not much seen in well-cultivated fields. It may be got rid of by cropping only to clover, cutting this before the daisy seeds ripen, and plowing up the sod after the first crop.

False Flax, Pigeon Weed and Cheat. All these weeds start to grow in the fall and produce seed the next season. If fall wheat be left out of the rotation, they may be readily eradicated by regular summer cultivation, after harvest, thus germinating and destroying the seed.

Rag Weed. By growing early maturing crops and plowing up the land immediately after the crops are off, the seed of the rag weed will be prevented from maturing, and in a few years this weed will be destroyed.

Wild oats. This is an annual which is very troublesome in some sections. It is best to work the land as soon as the crop is taken off, thus encouraging the seeds to germinate. The next season a hoed crop should be put in. The second spring the land should be sown with some grain without plowing and harrowed down to grass. If the land is left in sod for three or four years most of the seed will have lost its germinating power.

Wild Mustard. Although only an annual, this weed is very troublesome on account of the vitality of its seeds. They may lie in the ground for years, and yet, when brought to the surface, will germinate. Thorough surface cultivation, from harvest to time of sowing up, followed by a hoed crop, the next spring, will largely eradicate mustard. It may also be destroyed in grain crops by spraying with a two per cent solution of copper sulphate at the rate of fifty gallons to the acre. If the mustard plants are in bloom a stronger solution will be necessary, say three to four per cent.

Although only a few of the noxious weeds are here mentioned, if the above methods are started and they will destroy at the same time scores of others of less importance.—Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Good Digestion.

If you can keep your digestive system in proper condition the body will be well nourished and you need have little fear of disease. By regulating the kidneys, liver and bowels, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills ensure a healthful condition of the organs of digestion and for this reason are indispensable as a family medicine.

BIG WHEAT CROP

Some Statistics of the Big Wheat Yield of the Northwest.

Chicago, Oct. 26—It is estimated by experts on the Chicago Board of Trade that Manitoba farmers are reasonably assured of $17,000,000 more for their wheat this year than they got last year.

The yield this season will, it is believed by many, reach 60,000,000 bushels, notwithstanding the stories of rust damage. The yield last year was 52,000,000 bushels, the average price being 68c. The average price this year will be fully 70c higher.

"The worst Manitoba will get this year is $56,000,000 for its wheat," said a broker who has just returned from the Winnipeg country. "The crop may go under the 60,000,000-bushel mark, but in any event it will exceed last year's."

The Northwest is decidedly bullish as to the wheat market the coming winter—more so, perhaps, than the most enthusiastic of local bulls. The Canadians declare that Chicago does not appreciate the real conditions, and that it will have a big surprise by the time the snow flies.

The first of the harvesters who are to assist in the work of garnering this year's Manitoba crop have arrived at Winnipeg. More than 2,500 men are en route to the fields of Manitoba. The Northwest continues to call upon the Chicago railroads and employment agencies for farm help, and while the cross appealed to are striving to carry out the orders, they are having unusual difficulty in finding the men—this, notwithstanding the exceptional inducements being offered by the farm-owners.

CUTTING AT MOOSOMIN.

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 26—A despatch from Moosomin says that wheat cutting is now going on, under most favorable weather conditions. Monday morning will find two-thirds of the farmers in the district putting the binder through one of the most satisfactory crops ever raised. Indications from the surrounding points show that the crop will average 20 bushels to the acre. Threshing outfits are hurriedly being put in shape for handling the crop. The barley crop is nearly all cut. The late rains will make oats a good average crop.

Fee Over Sixty Years

An old and well-tried remedy.—Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used for sixty years by millions of mothers for their children while teething, with perfect success. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for diarrhoea. Sold by all druggists in every part of the world. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Its value is incalculable. Be sure and ask for Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup and take no other kind.

Commission on Contraband.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 29.—A joint commission representing the Foreign and Marine Ministers, to be presided over by Prof. Demartens, professor of international law at the University of St. Petersburg, will sit forthwith to consider the distinction between conditional and absolute contraband of war. It is expected that the result will be communicated to the American and British Ambassadors and that it will tend to the removal of existing causes of friction.

DUTY ON STEEL RAILS.

Order in Council Giving Effect to the Act Passed.

Ottawa, Aug. 29.—Experts appointed by the Government having reported that steel rails in every way up to specification are being manufactured at Sault Ste. Marie, an Order-in-Council was passed Saturday morning bringing into force a duty of $7 a ton on steel rails and bars for use in Canadian railways.

Yankee Rails For the G.T.P.

New York, Aug. 29.—Grand Trunk Pacific sponsors have sent out enquiries for supplies of steel rails, 1905 delivery, estimated at 100,000 tons. It is considered likely the entire tonnage will be given to American mills, because it is a manifest impossibility for Canadian rail makers to meet the demands. The new Canadian transcontinental project may need all the rails included in the inquiry before the end of 1905. The company is willing to pay for American rails $20 per ton, which would make the quantity of rails quoted worth $3,000,000 to the steel company securing the order.

Dime Novel Robbery.

Hamilton, Aug 29.—There was a bold highway robbery on the dime novel plan two miles over the James street Mountain on Sunday night about 11 o'clock. The victim was B. T. Hess, Ryckman's Corner, a butcher. He was driving home alone and at a lonely spot on the road noticed a man lying in the ditch. The man said he was a farmer and that his horses had run away and thrown him out of the wagon, hurting him so badly that he was not able to get up. He begged Hess to help him. As Hess bent over to do as requested some one dealt him a terrible blow across the back of the neck. He did not know anything after that until he woke up and found that he had been robbed of $148, the proceeds of the load of meat he had sold on the market.

RECIPROCITY WITH CANADA.

Democrats Out First-Footed, But Senator Lodge Nudges.

Cambridge, Mass., Aug. 29.—The Democratic campaign in this State was begun Saturday with a ratification and field day at Charles River Park. Several addresses were made, among the principal speakers being Governor Garvin of Rhode Island, who spoke in part as follows:

"Our manufacturers are beginning to see that New England would be benefitted by freer foreign trade. Some 80,000 Republicans of Massachusetts have just signed an agreement to support for the Legislature and for Congress candidates favorable to reciprocity with Canada."

Governor Garvin concluded by urging the election of a President and Congress favorable to tariff reform and Canadian reciprocity.

Lodge on Reciprocity.

Nantasket, Mass., Aug. 29.—U. S. Senator Henry Cabot Lodge was the principal speaker here Saturday at the ratification outing held by the Republicans of Boston. Senator Lodge declared that the Republican party believes in the reciprocity that will enlarge this country's markets and that President Roosevelt is in perfect accord with reciprocity in its broadest sense.

Hon. Mr. Sutherland's Condition.

Sanitarium, Dansville, Aug. 29.—Hon. James Sutherland, who came to the Jackson health resort about ten weeks ago in a seriously worn-down condition, made excellent progress from the start up to three weeks ago, when a pneumonia complication threatened serious results, but he has rallied finely and was enabled to attend a flower show Saturday afternoon. He started for his home yesterday and will rest until autumn, with the intention of resuming active official work. He has no intention of retiring from the Government. All this is on the authority of his physician, Dr. Carleton Y. Parks.

Newfoundland Cargoes.

London, Aug. 29.—(C.A.P.)—Cargoes from Newfoundland are quite common now in Glasgow harbor, and the rows of barrels on the wharf make a goodly show.

farmers in the fields and on the roads and every advantage he had he made for himself. Said he, "There is no boy or man in this audience who has not had as good a chance if not better, than I had." (Cheers) He went on to say that he had been elected to Parliament by the unanimous desire of his own political party. He was prepared to say that his lifetime had been so spent that no man had greater familiarity with the treasurement of ores, the development of timber or other resources in that country than he, and he no spirit of boasting he impressed the necessity that "every one of you should do the best he can to do his duty to himself and to his country." (Applause.) And so when he landed in Parliament the resources he had, the advantages he possessed were of his own creation. "But," said he, "I was going to be brushed to one side, because the Liberal party had not enough members behind them to govern this province. Was that fair? (Cries of No! No!) I would no more follow a leader attempting to retain power by means of that kind than I would fly. What would the editor of the Port Hope newspaper have done; that is, if he has any manhood? Would he have got out? (Laughter.)

SERIOUS CONSIDERATION.

Mr. Gamey said he next considered the question of expense if he defended himself against the petition. "Self preservation," he said, "is the first law of nature, and if you don't take care of yourself in a short time you will not be taken care of by anybody else." He came to the conclusion that the trial would cost him in the neighborhood of $4,000. Lieutenant was considerable in his riding and the procuring of witnesses would have required considerable difficulty and money. He had earned his money by hard work and more honestly than the editor of the Port Hope Guide had made his (Laughter.) He was positive that there was nothing wrong with his election and he had no extreme desire that the Government should remain in power. But in fighting that constituency against Ross Mr. Gamey said it meant the giving up of his money to help the Ross Government in power. Indirectly that was what it meant. He said to himself and determined, "If the time ever come when any party can come and tempt me and by threat say we are going to ruin you, surely the time has come when I must match what little brains I have got against them to defeat their purpose (Cheers). This was what I did. It does not require the biggest scoundrel in the world to do it. It only requires an ordinary human being and a desire to keep the property you had honestly made. There is nothing very bad about that—a desire to take care of your wife and family—and you would not have to be horsewhipped to do it. (Laughter and applause). Mr. Gamey said he went down to Toronto, met Cap Sullivan and it was agreed that they would go ahead with the deal. He said to Sullivan, "It is wrong. I cannot conceive how any good can come of it, and remember if anything goes wrong, you are the fellow who is running it, not me. Sullivan and his son then arranged things between Hon. J. R. Stratton and Mr. Gamey.

IT WAS LIBEL.

When it was considered that arrangements were carried out by Sullivan and his son, and when the evidence of Mr. Aylesworth—who was just as anxious to shield the Government as any man—was taken, showing as clearly as noon day that Hon. J. R. Stratton said to him that Mr. Gamey was worrying over his election petition, and that he said he could be induced to support them, and that a letter was required that would hold him if the petition was dismissed, the whole fabric of the case and of the plan of the Ontario Government became apparent.

The statement that money was paid to him in the Parliament buildings, as he had said in the witness box, and was now saying all over Ontario, and would do so as long as the Government was in power, was nothing short of criminal libel, yet why did the Government permit it to be done. He was not privileged to so speak by his prerogative as a member of Parliament. The officials of the law could take action against him any day they liked, for if the leaders of the Ontario Government were innocent, why should he not be prevented from making such charges? The editor of the Guide would reply to this, thusly—the Government does not feel that this man can libel them because of his unreliability. In reply to this, Mr. Gamey referred to a case in connection with the Muskoka election last fall. Mr. MacAvoy, who had some reputation, had thought from what he had read in newspapers that Mr. Gamey had libelled him, and immediately instituted an action. That is, in other words, he had regard for his reputation, whereas, returning to the subject, the Government think less of their own character than lawyer MacAvoy did. (Applause.)

ment buildings, but before it was paid Mr. Gamey said it was necessary for him to sign a letter, meaning that he would support the Government. Mr. Gamey said he never saw the letter until in Stratton's office, where it was left and the money paid a few minutes afterwards. The letter somehow or other found its way to the Premier's office. It stated that he had made up his mind to support the Government for the balance of the term, but attention was directed to one clause saying that Mr. Gamey was getting no consideration for signing the letter. If he did this voluntarily, why should such a clause be in? Mr. Gamey pointed with disdain to the part played by the Provincial Secretary in regard to the letter. He said:—"As green as I was, and as clever as your Provincial Secretary was, I know that letter was so corrupt, so contrary to the laws of this Province, that they would never dare bring it to light until I was ready to say so. Imagine the Secretary of this great Province of Ontario hawking a letter of that kind around about in his pocket. Never in the history of politics was there such a spectacle or such a letter in existence before.

ROSS AND THE LETTER.

Passing to the trial, Mr. Gamey said that the Premier had presented the letter in court himself. He had never yet attempted to explain to the public how he came into possession of that letter. I would like to ask that duck in Port Hope if he knows how Mr. Ross got that letter," said Mr. Gamey, and the audience saw the point. He asked the people to remember that the Hons Government and not he was on trial. No one had the nerve to institute an action against him, or bring him to trial on this question. He held up to ridicule the spectacle of the Premier sheltering himself behind a lady—his stenographer—in regard to the letter, rather doing this than going into the box to perjure himself. There was a duplicate of that letter, and this was mailed from Gore Bay by Mr. Gamey, and it reached the Premier. The postmark showed that it had been mailed at Gore Bay. This letter and the envelope was brought into court, but the original had been secreted in the Premier's office, and Mr. Gamey presented facts showing where he claimed the Provincial Secretary had lied flat-footed in connection therewith. He further explained in convincing manner that the money paid over could have came from no other source than from the Liberal party.

Mr. Gamey dwelt upon the two other charges against the Government. They promised to dismiss the petition against him, and this disposition was ultimately made of it. He claimed this was just as corrupt as the payment of money. The promise of patronage constituted another charge, pointing to a corrupt bargain. The commissioners had called this political conciliation rather than crime. In fact, there was neither decency, principal nor honor in the attitude of the Government in connection with the case from start to finish.

THE COMMISSIONERS.

Turning his attention to the two commissioners, as such, and not as judges—for he had ever treated the latter with greatest respect—Mr. Gamey pointed to the fact that they drew the enormous sum of $3,500 for sitting on the case, and also drew their pay as judges from the Dominion Government. He was free to suppose also that they had kept the $2,000 in cash he had handed over, also. These gentlemen were commissioners, and, Mr. Gamey said, there are many more things in that report signed by those two men that are absolutely and and positively false.

With reference to the Buffalo trip, he asked: What part has that to do with the purity or innocence of the Government? It had been said that he was anxious to become one of the leaders of the Conservative party. There was no truth in it at all. The Conservative party had an abundance of good men, pure men, able men, honest men. When the Conservative party came to form a Cabinet there would be an abundance of material. Mr. Gamey pointed out that he held himself responsible to his constituents; if they were not satisfied it was their duty to turn him out. He did not pretend to be an angel.

ERROR OF JUDGMENT.

The Buffalo trip was one of his errors of judgment in connection with the case. He had been undergoing a severe strain from the 16th of March, to the 13th of April, 1903, and felt that it was a wonder he had not broken down. His lawyers advised him to go away for a few days, and he had gone to Buffalo. When court opened on Monday he was missing, and, although his lawyers knew his whereabouts, they did him an injustice by not explaining to the court. He had seen in the Toronto Globe where Mr. E. F. B. Johnston had declared he would have been arrested upon his return. He immediately wired Mr. Johnston that he was returning immediately and to arrest him if he dared. He returned to Toronto and was not arrested. Mr. Johnston afterwards denied the statement. Mr. Gamey expressed the hope that opportunity would come for him to show his appreciation of those who had taken part in the plot against him as was unfolded in he case. In his own constituency this had already occurred in one or two cases in connection with the appointment of a license inspector and of returning officer in connection with the recent plebiscite. In refrence to prohibition, he denounced the hypocritical action of Premier Ross.

MORAL QUESTION.

In concluding his speech Mr. Gamey said:—On a great moral question there can be no two opinions. If you think tht the Government are honest, and not guilty, you have a right to vote for them and to work for them. If you believe the Government or its members are guilty of anything like perjury, or violation of the election laws, then you cannot possibly vote for them or trust them in future. If you do, you are less men than you ought to be.

The conclusion of Mr. Gamey excellent speech was followed by cheer on cheer. It was an able and fearless presentation of a famous case, and the audience evidenced hearty appreciation.

MAN FROM MANITOULIN ADDRESSED LARGE CROWD

Spoke Upon the Case that Has Made His Name Famous--A Campbellcroft Lawn Social--Mr. Gamey Given an Enthusiastic Reception--Purpose of Government Corruption Laid Bare.

Great interest centered in a garden party which was held on Saturday afternoon on the grounds surrounding Mr. W. Campbell's residence at Campbellcroft. Mr. R. R. Gamey "the man from Manitoulin," was present, and addressed a very large gathering on the case that had given him considerable notoriety. His speech lasted for about two hours, and was delivered in a manner that was clear, straightforward and convincing. People were present from Peterborough, Port Hope and other towns and the country surrrounding. The greatest enthusiasm marked his reception and he was frequently cheered. Mr. Gamey was met at the station by the Welcome brass band, and a large crowd of people, and his entrance was the signal for prolonged cheering. Such mottoes as "Welcome," "We wish you all Health, Wealth and Prosperity," and "In Union is Strength," formed a conspicuous part of the decorations. The garden party had been arranged by the ladies of St. Paul's church, Perrytown, the proceeds being for a Building Fund, as the purpose is to erect a new edifice. The affair was a big success. There were about 1000 people on the grounds.

AN ABLE SPEECH.

Mr. Gamey arrived on the 4.52 train from Port Hope and about two hours later he began his speech. It was in many respects remarkable but particularly so because of the many charges that constituted a pronounced arraignment of the Ontario Government and of the Liberal party of this Province, their underlying object being a desire to retain power at any cost, even at the sacrifice of principle or by violation of law, a case indeed, as Mr. Gamey pointed out, unparalleled in the history of Canada.

Mr. J. J. Preston, M.P.P. for East Durham, was chairman, and delightful opening numbers were solos by Mrs. Wilmot and Miss Helen Caldwell, of Port Hope, and a song by Mr. Gamsby, of Orono. Mr. Preston introduced Mr. Gamey as one of the most popular men in the political world of Ontario, and this assertion was received with cheers, as was also Mr. Gamey, as he arose to speak. He congratulated the ladies of the church upon the success so apparent in connection with their entertainment, and made complimentary references to Mr. Preston and Mr. Ward. His purpose was not to talk politics, and he had been told, he said, that he would be only expected to make a 15-minute speech; therefore he had thought to address them with reference to New Ontario, its mineral wealth, and other resources, but if they desired him to speak upon the question with which his name had figured, he would do so. This was received with enthusiastic evidences of approval, and Mr. Gamey said he felt that he was permitted to say a few words in regard to that question; he said he was pleased at the announcement for one reason—it would give him an opportunity to reply to a little article with regard to himself that had appeared in the Port Hope Guide, although he could not understand why the editor of that sheet had gone out of his way to make such a reference.

NEW ONTARIO.

With regard to New Ontario, Mr. Gamey said he had come from that part of the country, and he would tellthe people candidly that the Conservative party of this Province was more entitled to the confidence of the peoplein regard to New Ontario than were the Liberals. Said he: "I am free to tell you if I had thought and felt that during my residence in New Ontario, the Liberal party were taking care of the resources there, I might have been a Liberal, because, while I was brought up in a Conservative home, I have been practically away from home since a little boy, and have had the general opportunity of forming my own opinions and convictions, and I think any person who will carefully investigate the policy of the two parties will surely come to the conclusion that the Conservative party deserves your greatest confidence." (Applause.)

NO QUARREL WITH LIBERALS.

Talking upon the famous case, Mr. Gamey said: "I want to say to the Liberals that I have no quarrel with you at all. Perhaps you don't understand my purpose and have formed a prejudice against me, and that because I did a certain thing I must be a bitter opponent of the Liberals in general. That is not correct, for some of the best friends I have in Ontario are those of the Liberal party. I do not mean these things for the great bulk of the Liberals, but only as they apply to the management of their party. In politics we are all the same people, moved by the same impulses, likes and dislikes. Sometimes you have leaders you do not approve of yourselves, and this condition, I believe, has developed in Ontario, and I do not think it could have occurred except under very peculiar conditions." He referred to the times of Alex. McKenzie, George Brown and even Oliver Mowat, and said there was not one who could conceive of a case like that of his ever having happened to the old leaders of the Liberal party. There were many tricks in politics, it was impossible for any party not to violate the election laws in some particular, but it could not be proven that the Conservatives had ever descended to a case like that of his. He considered the conditions of politics that brought it about, one of which was, a party remaining in power too long; he did not think a party could be in power too long under some circumstances, but the party in this instance had grown into such a condition as to render its existence injurious to the best interests of the country. There had gathered about the party an aggregation of men, who were only too anxious to do things that the general public did not approve of. The leader of the Liberal party had an extreme desire to retain power under any circumstances. The result of the election of 1902 showed that the present government only had a majority of one, and a minority of the popular vote of the Province. Instead of going to the Lieutenant-Governor to consider what was best to do, in view of the non-existence of a responsible majority, they gathered up the men who had taken part in the campaign and asked them, "How can we retain power?" It was decided to look over the Province, with the view to unseating elected Conservatives in ridings where on account of Government patronage, it would be possible to elect Liberals in bye-elections. There were four such in the Province, South Oxford, Algoma, Sault Ste. Marie, and Manitoulin (Mr. Gamey's riding). It was decided to attack these ridings within four days after the election.

GOVERNMENT'S SCHEME.

On the night after an election, it was generally known who were elected, but officially a man was not elected until the returning officer made his statement to that effect, and there were so many days allowed by law. But in the case of South Oxford the statement was kept back until the 17th of June. There never had been since Confederation an instance similar to this. If it happened to be a coincidence, strange was it that it should happen by mere accident for the Government. The returns of the other three ridings were held back also, and the returning officers were liable to a fine of $400, for the returns were not made in the time required by law. This showed conclusively that it had been decided to proceed against these four ridings. In these ridings the business relations between the Government and the people made it utterly impossible in a bye-election for a Conservative to carry any one of these four ridings, with the Liberal party in power. If they carried three or even two of those ridings they would have had enough to carry on the affairs of this Province.

Generally speaking it was not discovered that any of those four ridings were carried by any prepared plan, in violation of the election laws, yet it was shown conclusively that in South Oxford the member retained his seat after the hardest kind of case. Miscampbell was unseated, at first, but, the speaker contended, for less corrupt practices than in East Middlesex, where Dr Russell was retained. In Manitoulin no general system of bribery was discovered. In the village of Newmarket, in the summer of 1902, Hon. Geo. W. Ross said at a picnic—as reported in the Globe and surely the editor of the Port Hope Guide would doubt neither—that though he had only one of a majority and a minority of the total vote, "we are not going to quit, we are going to f-i-g-h-t." This certainly pointed to the fact that if the people did not want Mr. Ross he was going to compel them to have him, and said Mr. Gamey, when I read that speech the cold chills ran down my back. Early as that I knew he was going to fight my riding with the three others. And so the petition money was put up in Toronto. Jim Conmee swore that he put up $1000 to petition against me and Smythe, the Conservative member for Algoma, and I think he was going to swear that he had done it for Miscampbell at the Soo, but the Commissioner in charge of the investigation very kindly stopped him. Conmee swore that he had done all this and indicathem were that he was going to make affirmation in regard to Miscampell, but you cannot always tell what Jim is going to swear by looking at his face. (Laughter) The fact is, said Mr. Gamey, that it was not Conmee's money, but it came out of the Liberal campaign fund. From the time it was released out of court, in October 1902 to May 1903, he admitted he never asked for his money back. No question but that Conmee was lying flat-footed when he swore that he paid the money, said Mr. Gamey, and it went out of court to the man in charge of the campaign fund.

SULLIVAN'S PART.

The speaker went on to show that the whole plan against himself originated in Toronto. Detectives were sent up to his riding and Cap Sullivan was one of them. Although many would have heard how he snapped up a timber limit for $200 or $300, the real business was to annoy Mr. Gamey. One trip especially was referred to when Sullivan came to Gore Bay from Toronto, a distance of 500 miles, on which no other business was shown to have taken place than the consideration of certain political circumstances relating to the riding at that time. Sullivan reached Mr. Gamey's house at 12 o'clock at night. The visitor stated that he had some business to discuss, and proposed that they go down to the barn. Now, said Mr. Gamey, if any of you should have dealings with an agent of the Liberal party, if you have any sense of respect at all for your homes, go down to the barn. (Laughter and applause) This was what he said; The time has just about arrived when your election petition will come down for trial and he went on to tell me that these four ridings were picked out for attack, and that Manitoulin was one which the Liberals knew they could carry in a bye-election.

THREE PROPOSITIONS.

Sullivan made a number of propositions. Mr. Gamey could resign and get out. If he did not want to resign he could face this trial and be put to enormous expense to defend himself. He would, as a third proposition, have $5000 in cash, have the petition dismissed, have the patronage of his riding, and the Government would deal with him as nicely as possible, but he would have to sign a letter agreeing to support the Government for the balance of the term. That was a downright proposition compared with the other two — I don't care if you have as nice a conscience as the editor of that paper, said Mr. Gamey, and there was great laughter, "I think I know what he would think at once," he added; "that I had no business to be talking to Sullivan at all. I was brought up to as honorable a school as was that editor, and I know that from a point of honor I had no right to be discussing that at all. But remember this—it is always well to consider what you are going to do under the circumstances you find yourself in. And let me say this—no man can consider carefully what he would do in another man's position, if am prepared to say that if circumstances had permitted I would have said to Sullivan, "You can go back home; I will not listen to it at all." I was not in a position to do that and had to consider well my course, and so told Sullivan that I must have several days to consider it thoroughly. I did think over it carefully—as carefully as any man could—and I tell you to-night I have no regret for taking the position I did. (Cheers) Why should I resign? There was no reason why I should. My own people would not understand it. They would have said I had sold my seat, that there certainly was something wrong. Had I resigned I would have escaped an enormous amount of trouble, but I would not have been true to myself, to my constituency or to the Conservative party of Ontario. The leaders of the Liberal party, and some of the fanatic editors would not have been called to account for the names they called me. Had I considered my own self I would have resigned. I have had enough politics to do an ordinary man a lifetime, and I am only remaining in them a little longer than I would have anyway.

A SELF MADE MAN.

Mr. Gamey said he had gone into New Ontario—ten miles behind Gore Bay—when he was only three years of age. He was never inside of a schoolhouse to learn anything after 13 years of age. He was one of a large family—poor people generally had large families—and he went into the lumber camps, worked for the

NEW TELEPHONE SYSTEM

THE EXCHANGE OFFICE NOW IN COURSE OF ERECTION.

Poles are Being Erected on North George St.— System With a Capacity for 1500 to 2000 Phones to be Installed.

Mr. W. H. Lytle, Construction Superintendent of the Machine Telephone Company, returned on Saturday after spending eight or ten days in New York and other places where he went carefully into underground telephone construction, and telephone matters generally, with the idea of obtaining pointers in up-to-date methods for the benefit of the work here. Last week the excavation of the foundation for the company's exchange building was begun. This is being built from plans prepared for the Company. It will be a handsome building and will add greatly to the appearance of the street. The location is directly opposite the White House on Charlotte st. The Company has decided to use a fibre conduit, teh newest and most satisfactory material. The pole-yard men have finished their work and a construction gang are to-day erecting poles on George st., beginning at Dublin st., where the cables come out of the underground.

The office building is to be ready before the end of September. The Company will show faith in Peterborough by putting in a system that will have a capacity, so far as the underground conduit cable is concerned, for between 1500 and 2000 telephones. The work on the underground construction will begin as soon as the material can be got on the ground.

CANOE UPSET

Two Young Men get wet at Chemong Yesterday.

Yesterday afternoon two young men from town, Messrs. O. Dumbis and F. Boy, were out on Chemong lake, enjoying a sail in their canoe. The breeze was too strong, however, for the amount of canvas they were carrying, and they had an upset. Another canoe containing a couple of other young men went to their assistance, but were also nearly capsized. Hopwood's sailing dinghy very opportunely came along and picked the unfortunate boys up, or there might have been a more serious accident to chronicle.

ARRANGEMENTS FOR LABOR DAY

Prospects are that it Will be a Great Success.

Labor Day is just one week away, and undoubtedly a large crowd will patronize this, the last, but not the least, of the big excursions of the year to Jubilee Point. It will be held under the auspices of the Trades and Labor Council. A fine programme of sports has been arranged, and an address on the Labor Question will be given during the afternoon by Mr. Jas. Simpson, of Toronto, the well known labor orator. Any lethargy that has crept into the ranks of the laboring men will be dispelled on that day, and everybody should go in for a good time. The Calcutt line of steamers have been commissioned, the City leaving the Wolfe street wharf at 8 o'clock and the Water Lily at 8.20. Every accommodation will be at the disposal of the excursionists, and the opportunity should not be lost to take in this, one of the best excursions of the season. An orchestra will provide music for dancing. There will be a football match, tug-of-war, and those entering this competition should make their entries with Mr. W. J. Johnston before Labor Day.

THE CITY AND SUBURBS

Brevities.

—There was no police court this morning.

—The Charity Board meets this evening at 7.45.

—Wm. Copperway, an Indian, died at the House of Providence today, aged 40 years. Funeral tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock.

—A meeting of the officers of the 57th Regt will be held to-morrow evening at 8 o'clock, and all officers are asked to be present.

—Mr. David Hall and Mr. George Irwin, barbers, have dissolved partnership. Mr. Irwin will henceforth have charge of the business.

—Fred Roy won the mining canoe race which was one of the races not finished in the regatta at Chemong two weeks ago. Mr. Milne Hamilton was a close second.

—A Cleveland bicycle was taken from in front of the China Hall on Saturday morning at 10.30, and the owner would like it returned, otherwise the Chief intends to prosecute.

—The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Fletcher, 73 Smith st., died on Saturday night, aged 5 weeks, and the funeral took place this afternoon at 2 o'clock to Smithstown cemetery.

—The 57th band's excursion to Jubilee Point on Saturday was patronized by over 200 people and all enjoyed the beautiful sail down the river. The band furnished music all the time and at the pavilion for dancing. Tea was partaken of at Jubilee and the excursion reached home about eleven o'clock.

—The usual meeting of George-st. E.L. this evening will take the form of a "Floral Evening," which it is expected will prove very interesting and enjoyable. A good musical programme has been prepared, and and it is hoped there will be a large attendance.

MAY LOSE HIS FARM

Thos. Fraser Should put in an Appearance at Once.

Rev. J. A. Wilson has received from Fort Frances a card enquiring as to the whereabouts of Thomas Fraser, who is reported to be in this vicinity. The card is as follows:—

"Thomas Fraser, a young man from near Peterborough, or from Peterborough, has a fine farm here. He has been absent from his place for some months, supposed to have gone home to your vicinity; another is now filing against his farm to "jump" it. Unless word reach Fraser at once he will lose his farm. Do kindly enquire about him. He is, I think, a Presbyterian. If necessary read this in your pulpit, asking your people if they know of his whereabouts."

THE SPRINKLING CART.

The time now approaches when one may expect
The days to get awfully hot.
You then from your wardrobe with great care select
The airiest things you have got.
And when you have dressed with immaculate care
The sprinkling cart man will compel you to swear.

You start in the morning most jauntily clad;
You're fresh and spic span as you please.
The birds sweetly sing and all nature is glad;
You're happy and quite at your ease.
Then fun and horseplash—you are maddened at once;
You are sprinkled and splashed by that water cart dunce!

The man is no dunce, though he's wickedly wise;
He sits there as silent as death.
He never looks up, neither does there arise
Any sign that he's drawing his breath.
But just as you pass him he suddenly wakes—
A different look quickly your linen suit takes.

He just seems to know when you're dressed for a call
And slips up behind in so quiet a way.
Before you can dodge him he's sprinkled you all
Completely and drenched you and driven away.
You swear you will kill him; you don't, though, because
For some unknown reason it's 'gainst the state laws.

A Business Head.

"No," said the beautiful girl, "I can never marry you. I am promised to another."

Norman Forsythe bowed his head in silent anguish. He loved the beautiful girl. For months it had been his ambition to make her his wife. But it was only for a moment. Then he stood erect, his eyes blazing with suppressed fury. "Who is this man?" he asked fiercely. "Where is he? I shall kill him. Nothing shall come between us."

"Would you really kill him?" asked the girl without betraying alarm.

"I would," he replied.

"I have half a notion to marry you if you would promise to do the job afterward," she said.

"Do you fear this man?" he asked, hope springing in his heart like weeds in an onion bed.

"Oh, no," she replied.

"Then why should I kill him after we were married?"

"I only wanted you to try, because you would never come back alive and we could have quite a start in life on your life insurance."

What He Overlooked.

"Adam certainly was no financier."

"What did he overlook?"

"When he proposed to Eve, if he had had the proposal copyrighted see what royalties his descendants could be drawing."

How Girlhood Ways.

"You must not expect me to give up my girlhood's ways all at once," said the happy bride.

"Oh, I won't," he replied. "I hope you'll keep right on taking an allowance from your father just as if nothing had happened."

How Revenge.

First Woman—What did your husband bring home from his visit to the city? Second Woman—Two silver spoons for the children. And I was so mad at his extravagance that I went straight down to the store and bought me a new dress.

In Distinction.

"Freddie, come here! I regret to say I've got to punish you; your teacher tells me you're the worst boy in your class."

"Mebbe she's right, ma. Only yesterday she told me I took after you."

WHEN BOYS WERE MEN

By JOHN HABBERTON,

Author of "Helen's Babies," "Brought Wellington," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1904, BY JOHN HABBERTON.

"Just tell me how you done it all," said he, "an' I won't ask no more."

"We didn't do it," said I, thinking to get off a practical temperance lecture that might be repeated after the war. "We didn't do it; whisky did it." Then I nodded suggestively toward the guard who had wanted medicine.

"Whisky?" exclaimed the questioner, with a wide eyed look. "An' you didn't offer me a toothful?" Then he looked reproachfully and remarked, "I wouldn't hev thought it of you."

This made me feel so bad that I hastened to say:

"I didn't do it. I never thought of the whisky. 'Twas given to me to use in case we got a soaking. I wouldn't have thought of it again. I haven't tasted whisky three times in my life."

The poor fellow looked at me searchingly and finally said: "I've got to b'lieve you. I do b'lieve you. But, say, whar was you brung up?"

"Scare one for the north," said I to myself, as I shortly answered, "York state."

"Now, gentlemen," said Brainard, "we'd better move before any of your friends drop along and upset our plans. Two of us will first take the sergeant and the firearms across the river."

As the sergeant didn't demur Brainard loosened his feet and took him down to the skiff, the other boys staggering under all the weapons except the gun, which I held. In about 15 minutes one came back with the boat, and the remainder of us crossed, the disembarkation being covered in the starlight by Brainard and a Confederate double barreled gun.

Then we sat, or stood, on that river bank until dawn began to break, Brainard having whispered to me that it would not be safe to approach camp in the dark. We did not dare to make a fire, and as we had not worn our overcoats when we started the morning before we were chilled to the bone. I suggested we should try to warm ourselves with single sips of the whisky, if any was left, but Brainard objected, saying it was no time for experiments. As for the Johnnies, they dropped upon the ground and slept as peacefully as if nothing unusual had occurred.

At the first streak of dawn Brainard ordered the prisoners into the boat, two of them in the stern and one in the bow, while he sat amidships and rowed, first cautioning our two boys to keep along the bank abreast of him and fire on any prisoner who chanced to change his position. He suggested that I, being the commander of the expedition, should hurry on in advance and report, so that the prisoners should not be fired at on suspicion that they were coming on a business errand.

I acted upon his suggestion, and as I hurried along it occurred to me that although I officially was in command Brainard had been doing all the planning and work. Why hadn't I instead of he thought to get that stupid fellow drunk and thus prepare the way for our escape, instead of accepting our fate and dropping unquestioningly to sleep? Brainard's head had been alert, mine in a daze. That was the only difference, but it was enough to make me feel uncomfortable. Still, "honor to whom honor is due." I would see to it that Charley got full credit. I could be glad, too, that the man who had been smarter than I was my dearest friend.

I entered the camp without being dred at, and the captain was as glad to see me and hear the story as if I had been his own son. I told everybody the news, got them all on the river bank as a reception committee and got Hamilton to propose "three cheers for Brainard." Charley himself led the heads of the Johnnies as our boys crowded around. My own special Johnny no sooner found his hands free than he whispered something to Brainard.

"Yes; certainly. Thank you for reminding me." Then he shook the captain's canteen inquiringly and handed it to the prisoner, who swallowed some of its contents and passed the remainder to the sergeant, saying as he passed indignantly to the third prisoner:

"Don't leave none for him, darn him!"

"You've done handsomely, corporal," said the captain to Brainard.

"'Twasn't I, captain," Charley replied, with a mimic: "'twas your whisky that did the business."

There was at least one duty of the expedition remaining in which Brainard shouldn't get ahead of me. I took those prisoners under guard down to the brush hut where our company cook had been installed and I provided them with a big breakfast. To my delight, they enjoyed our white bread and gold cornet beef as heartily as I had enjoyed their bacon and corn bread three months before. As to coffee, they nearly emptied the half bottle that had been standing since our own boys had been served half an hour before. When he could drink no more, my own special prisoner caressed the place where he had put the coffee, gazed contemplatively at the kettle and remarked:

"There's always some good luck can be dug out of trouble of you'll look at it right. Here I am a prisoner ag'in; but, on t'other hand, I'll have genuine, sure 'nough coffee twice a day till I'm exchanged ag'in. Um-m-m!"

CHAPTER XV.

ON PICKET.

AFTER mature deliberation upon samples of all sorts of military service that falls to the lot of cavalry soldiers we recruits agreed that picket duty suited us better than anything else. To be an actual picket was not pleasant when one's turn of duty came during a driving rain or in the middle of a dark night, but in ordinary weather and at decent hours it was quite pleasant to sit on horseback at crossroads, look about the country and chat with such farmers as had passes enabling them to visit the town. Northern and southern farmers were radically unlike each other in some respects during the war, but they were exactly alike in their willingness to rein up and have a long chat with a stranger. I found the average Virginia farmer had quite as large a bump of curiosity as his northern brother, and generally he was able to absorb all the family history that a Yankee soldier might care to unload.

It was great fun for me to be on post on a prominent road at daybreak, for the chances were that a large detachment of fugitive slaves would come in. How these people managed to travel 20 or 40 miles without being seen and hounded back by the enemy's scouts I never could understand, for instead of coming singly they would travel in large bodies, all the men, women and children leaving a plantation together and not separating during the trip. Any one would imagine they would be discovered, for they always dressed in their best when they started toward us, and the colors of some of their clothing were as startling as the plumage of a tropical bird, besides being more variegated, but they never complained of having been annoyed while on route. Another mystery was their knowledge as to where to find our lines and just where to halt to wait for daylight. They were not always received in the spirit of the emancipation proclamation. Some of our fellows were in mortal fear of "nigger equality," so they would order the fugitives to return to their masters.

"Yas'r," would be the usual reply, and the entire gang would retrace their steps until they reached a friendly screen of trees. No sooner would the man on post be changed than the crowd would come plodding back. As one old leader told me one day:

"We'se ben tole tur keep a-tryin, 'cause some majer or udder would let us in some time or udder."

There was nothing funny about these colored people unless it was their extreme gravity. They weren't even excitable. They didn't throw up their hands and thank the Lord that at last they were on freedom's soil. They seldom laughed, and as for joking, one could get as much response from an oak stump as from the brightest of them. They apparently knew just where to come and just what to expect. In fact, I afterward learned from one of them that for 50 miles around us the slaves were thoroughly informed about each post and its treatment of contrabands. They said there were plenty of colored news carriers and guides—"de woods was full of 'em"—yet in nearly a year of prowling about the woods between the lines I never once saw a colored man except on a plantation. To this day their ways are as mysterious to me as the traditional "underground railway" was to the slave hunters of old.

The special delight of picket service, however, was the privilege of visiting the few white natives who lived near by. All of them professed to be Unionists; all, I believe, were earnest Confederates, but it was policy for them not to allow any harm to befall a Union soldier who visited them. So we never feared that we would be captured by skulking Confederates, much less shot while in a native's house. To tell the truth, I think most of us were about as welcome as we would have been in any farming community at the north. We could generally tell them about much that was going on in the world, thanks to our steady supply of newspapers; we could give them an occasional book or magazine, but had we only our presence to offer it was gratifying to the people, nearly all of whose own men were in the Confederate army and whose women did not dare to exchange visits over roads where they might at any time encounter marching troops.

At most of the native houses there were girls, and each girl had about 500 adorers in our regiment alone, as well as an equal number in other cavalry regiments at our post. There was little or no lovemaking. No man dared absent himself long enough from the picket reserve to attend to business of so serious a nature, nor could he easily find opportunity to speak to a damsel alone. If father or mother or grandparents chanced to be out of the room for a moment, some other trooper was almost sure to be present. This was misery for sentimental young men of the class that regards lovemaking as an absolute necessity of daily life.

It was great fun, however, for the girls. Not one of them would have married a Yankee had he been Apollo and Croesus combined, but it wasn't unpleasing to get an adoring, heart-broken glance from one not unhandsome fellow after another and to realize that all the sufferers were from the enemy's ranks. I used to imagine, probably correctly, that the southern girls looked prettier and more vivacious when we appeared than they possibly could do at the humdrum routine of housework. Most of them had lost their slaves, in the usual manner, before our town became a military post, and they would remind us of this when anything in the house seemed to them to lack proper attention or when they invited us to sit down with the family to a dinner or supper, which they assured us was not what they would have given us in other days. They got so many compliments, however—some awkward, but all honest—on the skill of pretty hands and heads that I don't doubt one of them told the truth when she said to me in a burst of confidence that she was more than half glad that the house servants had run away and given her and her mother a chance to have things just as they wanted them. Some of these southern girls asked innumerable questions about the duties and diversions of our mothers and sisters, and they heard enough to make them open their pretty eyes in wonder.

But all this had nothing to do with love. As was natural to suppose, and as we afterward learned, each of the girls was already engaged to some good or bad fellow in the Confederate army. Their hearts were already disposed of, so they could laugh at all would be suitors and break hearts cheerily with the sublime consolation that they were weakening the enemy in one of his most vulnerable points. Their manner was as proper as that of any northern girl, as the more impudent of our fellows discovered when they proposed a kiss at the door. The experience of one of these fellows was quite interesting to every one but himself. He was so handsome that he had made great havoc among feminine hearts at home and had come to regard himself as irresistible. He asked a little Virginian, pretty enough to break the heart of an anchorite, for a kiss, but she replied:

"Only Confederate lips can ever touch mine."

One day when this man had been on post the relief found his place vacant, although there was no sign of bloodshed or a struggle. As soon as this was reported at the reserve a squad was sent out to look for him.

Inquiry was made at every house on the road, and at one we learned from the heartbreaking beauty just referred to that he had stopped there two hours before and announced that he was deserting to the Confederacy.

Almost half a year afterward the rear guard of one of our scouting parties was harassed for the last two miles of its return by shots from a small mounted force, which scattered and took to the woods whenever we turned and attempted to charge them. Our commander arranged a strong ambuscade of the advance, with a view to capturing the entire party, and this hidden force suddenly surrounded them when they were directly in front of the house in which the little beauty lived. There were only a dozen of the enemy, and they quickly saw that their game was up. As we approached them they recognized the inevitable and ceased fighting, but one man in gray suddenly drew a revolver, fired three shots in rapid succession at the house, then pointed the weapon at his own breast, fired and fell from his saddle. We were upon them in a moment, and under the cap of the man upon the ground we saw the face of our handsome deserter. He gasped before he died that he was as loyal as ever. He had deserted in a wild desire to kiss that girl. Now, seeing her at the window, he had fired to kill her and hoped he had succeeded. Then he had killed himself rather than be shot as a traitor.

He had missed the pretty mark he had aimed at. The girl was unhurt except from a severe scare. We had lost more than 20 men most unaccountably from that post, all of them violent admirers of that very girl. Somehow her father's house was burned to the ground that very night. I hope the pretty girl escaped, but we were told she did not. Not one of us attended the funeral. It would be hard to tell how many lives on both sides were lost thereafter as the result of these two deaths.

CANTERBURY AT QUEBEC

His Grace Preaches Learned Sermon Sunday Morning.

Service Was Held in Quebec Cathedral Which Was Consecrated 100 Years Ago to a Day By Its First Bishop—An Anglican Outpost Turned By Devoted Men Into Rallying Point For Church in This Vast Dominion.

Quebec, Aug. 29.—The Archbishop of Canterbury arrived here at six o'clock yesterday morning by special train from New York. His Grace was accompanied by his wife, Rev. Mr. Ellison, Vicar of Windsor; Rev. Mr. Holden, domestic chaplain, and J. Pierpont Morgan, the American millionaire.

His Grace attended service at the Anglican Cathedral, which was crowded to the doors. Before the service the Bishop of Quebec presented His Grace with an address of welcome, in which reference was made to the fact that on the 26th of August, one hundred years ago, the Quebec Cathedral was consecrated by Bishop Mountain, the first bishop. His Grace made a short reply to the address.

An Anglican Outpost.

When the morning service was concluded the Archbishop of Canterbury ascended the pulpit and preached a learned and deep sermon, taking for his text St. Paul's Epistle to the Romans, v., 6. He referred to the great progress made since the church was consecrated one hundred years ago. Then it was almost the only outpost of the Anglican community in Canada.

George III. displayed great foresight when at his own expense he erected the building to become the Cathedral Church of the Diocese of Quebec, which then covered nearly the whole country. Since then many dioceses have been created out of the territory in charge of the first Bishop of Quebec, and the Cathedral of Quebec, instead of being an outpost, was the rallying point for the church in this vast Dominion.

Missionary Sacrifices.

His Grace referred to the great sacrifices made by the early missionaries to the Indians in Canada in their efforts to bring the red men under the influence of Christianity, mentioning several of the French missionaries by name.

His Grace was listened to throughout his learned discourse with the most marked attention by the large congregation.

Before the collection was taken up the Dean of Quebec announced that it was his intention to start an endowment fund for the cathedral, which it has never had, and said that the collection at the present service would be devoted to that purpose. The collection amounted to $1,344.

Among those present at the service were Admiral Douglas, commander of the British North American squadron, and Lady Douglas, J. Pierpont Morgan and a large number of American visitors. Rev. J. S. Mountain of Cornwall, Ont., who is a grandnephew of the first Bishop of Quebec, was also present and took part in the service.

The Archbishop of Canterbury and his party will leave here for Montreal on Wednesday next.

During his stay in Quebec he is the guest of the Bishop of Quebec.

DEAN OF ROCHESTER DEAD.

Noted English Preacher Who Visited Canada Recently Passes Away.

London, Aug. 29.—The Very Rev. S. Reynolds Hole, Dean of Rochester, since 1887, died of heart disease Saturday morning at Rochester. He had been ill some time and passed away while asleep. The Dean was born in December, 1819.

Sketch of His Career.

The Very Rev. S. Reynolds Hole, who visited Canada and lectured in Toronto some five or six years ago, was a noted wit and lover and cultivator of roses. He was educated at Newark and Brasenose College, Oxford, was ordained curate as far back as 1844, and became vicar in 1850. In 1874 he was nominated Rural Dean of Southwell, in 1875 Canon of Lincoln and in 1887 was appointed to the Deanery of Rochester, which he held until his death. He was for some time chaplain to the late Archbishop of Canterbury. The Dean was a most popular platform speaker, bubbling over with good humor, yet strong in opinion and forcible in address. He was a constant contributor to Punch, and was an intimate friend of John Leech, Mark Lemon, Sir John Tenniel, Charles Dickens and others of the famous brilliant artists and writers who flourished in the early days of that publication. He was the highest authority on the cultivation of roses, his "Book About Roses" running through many editions and being translated into several languages. His "Memories" were published in November, 1892, and later he wrote a book on humor.

Probable Suicide in Toronto.

Toronto, Aug. 29.—The body of Walter McAllen was found about one o'clock on Sunday morning by Night Watchman Mott, on one of the benches at Hanlan's Point. One of the doctors of the Sick Children's Hospital was brought and, life being extinct, the body was removed to the morgue, where Coroner Elliott will hold an inquest at three o'clock to-day. McAllen had spent nearly eighteen years in the army as a dispenser, and in other positions in the Army Medical Service Corps, and had seen service in South Africa, the rigors of the campaign there breaking down his health. While suffering from melancholia, he appears to have taken an overdose of chloral hydrate.

LOST CONTROL OF AUTO

Barney Oldfield Kills Two Men at the World's Fair.

Painfully But Not Seriously Hurt Himself By Driving Through Fence—Accident Was Caused By False Start, and Dust From Webb's Swiftly Moving Machine Smothering the Injured Motorist—Other Accidents.

St. Louis, Aug. 29.—Blinded by the dust thrown by the swiftly moving machine of A. C. Webb of Toledo, Barney Oldfield of Cleveland, lost control of his machine in a false start of the fifth event of the Worlds Fair automobile speed contest Saturday, and, crashing through the outer fence of the course, instantly killed John Scott, a watchman employed at the park, and inflicted injuries upon Nathan Montgomery, a negro, from which he died a few hours later. Oldfield was painfully but not seriously injured and his machine completely demolished.

Four Hurt in Collision.

Fort Worth, Texas, Aug. 29.—Four persons were severely injured in a collision between a fast passenger train on the Texas & Pacific Railroad, and several freight cars, one mile outside this city, at a late hour Saturday night. None of the injured will die.

Toronto Man Drowns.

Rochester, N.Y., Aug. 29.—A man supposed to be Nat McDonald of Toronto, 40 years of age, was drowned yesterday afternoon on the Genesee River at Charlotte, while out swimming. The body was not recovered.

Drowned While Bathing.

Hamilton, Aug 29.—Sunday afternoon William Gilpin, 17 years of age, who lived on Sanford avenue, was drowned while bathing off the International Harvester Co. dock. His body was recovered.

Gas Victim Buried.

Sault Ste. Marie, Aug. 29.—The body of H. D. Hill, drowned with J. C. Patterson in St. Mary's River Thursday, was removed Saturday evening to his home in St. Thomas for burial. The remains were accompanied by his father, Archdeacon Hill, who arrived earlier in the day. The funeral of J. C. Patterson was held here yesterday afternoon from St. Luke's Soo Cathedral to Greenwood Cemetery and was largely attended. Hon. J. C. Patterson arrived from Ottawa Saturday evening and attended the funeral of his son.

BOUNDARY LINE BANQUET.

Table Set Half in Canada and Half in U. S.

Tacoma, Aug. 29.—In connection with the placing of the initial monument of the series marking the boundary between Alaska and Canada, the steamer Danube carried commissioners representing the United States and Canada, up the Portland Canal. They were Prof. King of Ottawa, head of the Dominion Astronomical Survey, and Superintendent Tittman of the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey. The former was accompanied by his daughter, the latter by his wife. The location of the initial monument was determined at Eagle Point, from which the boundary extends due north to a mountain a short distance above the 56th parallel. The mounment is a four-sided bronze pyramid, six feet high, bearing the words "Canada" and "United States" on opposite sides. In an old wooden building on the boundary line a banquet was spread, the table being set across the mark, that left half of it within America and half within Canada. The party included the Boundary Commissioners, the ladies of the party and the officers of the Danube. Toasts were drunk to the King, President and Governor-General.

Strathcona's Purchase.

London, Aug. 29.—(C.A.P.)—Lord Strathcona has purchased the Soleaway and Oronsay Islands, part of the Inner Hebrides group belonging to the late General Sir John Carstairs McNeill, V.C., which have been in the possession of the McNeill family for 200 years. They are 12 miles long and contain about 12,000 acres. There are herds of the famous Highland cattle and many interesting ecclesiastical ruins on the islands. Tradition says that St. Columba resided in Oronsay before settling in Iona. In Oronsay are found some of the finest examples of early Christian sculpture in the West Highlands.

Arrival of the Black Watch.

Toronto, Aug. 29.—Yesterday the band of the Fighting Forty-Two, the Black Watch, arrived here shortly after 5 o'clock. The crowd was enormous, and sent up a yell such as only an enthused Toronto reception crowd can give. President McNaught and Dr. Orr received them on behalf of the Exhibition, and massed military bands of the city regiments gave a musical welcome. The streets were crowded the whole way to the Armories, where the civic welcome was given.

Church Deadlock Unbroken.

London, Aug. 29.—The deadlock in the Scottish Church continues, but there are indications of a general desire for a modus vivendi.

RIPE FOR A FIGHT.

Argentina and Uruguay Have Now a Sufficient Cause.

Buenos Ayres, Aug. 29.—A great sensation has been created here, owing to the surprising by Government troops of Uruguay of a Uruguayan insurrectionary force numbering 180 men, fully armed and equipped under Col. Pampillon, on a steamer on the Uruguayan coast, but in Argentine territory.

President Ordonez of Uruguay, had been warned that preparations were being made for an insurrectionary expedition, and despatched two forces with armed vessels to watch for the expedition. At night the Government troops attacked the insurrectionists with a continuous and merciless fire. Many of the latter swam ashore, but eight, badly wounded, were captured. The fate of the others is not known.

The insurrectionary vessels was also captured, and with it a considerable quantity of telegraph apparatus.

Diplomatic relations between Argentina and Uruguay have become strained owing to this incident.

Welcomed at Owen Sound.

Owen Sound, Aug. 29.—The Vice-regal party arrived at 5.45 Saturday evening, the private cars Canada and Victoria being attached to the steamboat express. Hundreds of people crowded the depot, but did not cheer as they did not know whether it would be good form. Later, however, they made up for it when the National Anthem was played. An address was presented to His Excellency. Lord Minto was received with enthusiasm. He thanked the citizens of Owen Sound for their cordial reception as the representative of His Majesty King Edward. He spoke of Canada's advancement during the years he had resided here, and said that on his return to the old country he would seize every opportunity to do what he could for Canada.

Peru Grows Calm.

Lima, Aug. 29.—Jose Pardow, who was elected president of Peru January last, will be inaugurated Sept. 21. Excitement over the political situation in Peru is becoming more calm. It is known that former President Pierok, Dr. Durand and the people are opposed to a revolution.

Raffle Baskets
Wouldn't you like to have something novel in the way of presents for your friends this Christmas? If so, why not make some of these pretty raffle baskets that are both useful and ornamental. They are very easily and quickly made and several ladies in town who have become adept in the art would be willing to give some instructions in it for a small fee. Instructions may be found in several of the magazines which are widely read in town and in the issue of the Ladies' Home Journal for August 1903. The raffle comes in many pretty shades and is for sale only at the Review office. So use moments these long evenings in getting ready for Xmas and avoid being married later on.

Summer Prices FOR Winter Garments

The last month of Summer—August—is a good time to buy Furs. It is known to be a good time. Prices as a rule are lower, because the dealer is anticipating the season.

It is a good time—in fact the best—to order Furs. Because it affords time in which to make them up with care and without the haste that comes with the winter season.

Our show rooms are open. You can view the winter's styles. They are all here. Orders are taken based on the styles we show. It's worth a look at any rate, even if you do not buy, and you are never pressed to do so. All we know about Furs is at your service.

RETURNED FROM CONVENTION

Mr. George Ball, Grand District Deputy of the C. M. B.A.

Mr. Geo. Ball, Grand District Deputy of the C.M.B.A. has returned from the Convention which was held last week in Toronto. When seen this morning Mr. Ball pointed out that misunderstanding was possible with reference to the rates. These he said had not been raised, but a change had been made in the system. Instead of a basis of 10 assessments a year as formerly, the assessment would be monthly. This was considered a more satisfactory plan though not absolutely necessary. It is also proposed to form an auxiliary fund—which will be separate from the reserve fund.

A proof of the confidence that existed in the Grand Officers was their election without opposition. Even the delegates who came to the convention in a mood somewhat antagonistic to the officers apologized for the feelings they had entertained, when things were threshed out.

The C.M.B.A. will take up sick benefits—though these will be optional and not compulsory. It was also shown that the principle of Provincial Conventions, from thepoint of economy did not compare with the present system, which costs about 6½ cents a member, while under the old plan it was about four times as much.

The next Convention will be held in the City of Montreal.

SATISFYING A STONEY LAKE APPETITE.

What Fifteen People Eat in Twenty-One Days—Hunger is the Best Sauce.

Much is said about the health giving and invigorating air of Stony Lake, which is rapidly becoming known as an ideal spot for a holiday. As an appetite producer it is unequalled and many stories are told of the quantity of food that is dispensed of by camping parties—which would more than suffice ordinarily, but which is barely enough when one is living in the open air. The position of cook for a party of twelve or fifteen is no sinecure, especially when four meals a day are required, and when, as Mrs. Casey says, "a bite in between meals is not amiss."

To give an idea of what fifteen hungry, healthy people can devour during a 21 days' stay at the Lake, the following interesting and rather astonishing figures are given. These items are only a few of the plain necessities of the meals, many luxuries not being included in the list which would mean a large addition to the expense account.

In the meat line there were used three sides of bacon, two whole hams, one pickled hock of pork, two six lb. tins of Davies' veal, eight pairs of ducks, ten pairs of chickens, three quarters of lamb and four eight-lb. roasts of beef. Then came one hundred and seventy-five loaves of white bread, twenty-five loaves fancy bread, and twenty-eight dozen hot biscuits, besides many layer cakes and pastry. Eight pounds of coffee, five pounds of tea, and about 378 quarts of milk and cream were on the list of necessities, with thirty dozen eggs, 160 lbs. of butter, and five bags of potatoes, not to mention the quantities of beets, celery and other vegetables used.

Of the fruits used only a few are mentioned, there being one dozen baskets of plums, four dozen baskets of pears and six dozen baskets of peaches, one bunch of bananas, besides twelve baskets of tomatoes.

This looks to be a appalling amount of food to be eaten by fifteen people in three weeks, but when you consider that there were about 1,260 meals served, and fifteen Stony Lake appetites to be appeased, it is not so surprising.

This goes to show that Stony Lake air is most invigorating and healthy, and one's larder needs to be well stocked if one would not go hungry while holidaying there.

St. Mark's, Otonabee

The congregation of St. Mark's, church is preparing a harvest festival on Thursday, Sept. 22nd. There will be divine service at three p.m., at which the Rev. W. R. Tandy, M.A., of Havelock, is expected to preach. Further notice regarding the festivities of the evening will be given later. Reserve Sept. 22nd, afternoon and evening, for the harvest festival.

WORK AMONG INDIANS

INTERESTING ADDRESS DELIVERED BY REV. R. B. BEAVIS.

Labored Six Years as a Missionary for Methodist Church in Canada.

Last evening in the Charlotte-st. church a large congregation listened with intcest to an address by Rev. R. B. Beavis, who has worked as a missionary for six years among the Indians of British Columbia and Alaska. Mr. Beavis is no stranger to Peterborough, having been raised and educated in this vicinity, and teught school for a time at Hastings. He has had many strange experiences in the far west, as was made evident last evening by his address. His work as a missionary was under the auspices of the Methodist Church in Canada, and he gave a description of the headquarters, Port Simpson, a place that has lately came into prominence as the proposed terminus of the Grand Trunk Pacific. It is situated on one of the best harbors in the world.

The missionary work was first begun by a man named Duncan for the Church Missionary Society, of London, England. This was over fifty years ago, and the Indians at the time were uncivilized to such an extent that only one man was allowed to trade with them, and that through a port hole. Duncan learned enough of the language to permit him to go out among the Indians, and he eventually established a school at Port Simpson. Some time after this it was considered advisable to separate the Christianized Indians from the others, and they were moved to Metlahkatlah, 25 miles south of Port Simpson. From there Duncan later moved with his Indians to Alaska. The tribe was known as the Tsimsheans, and they are described by Mr. Beavis as being the most artistic type of Indian on the continent. They have a splendid, smooth-flowing language. Hunting and fishing are their chief occupations, although some till a little soil. For the facilities at hand, they are becoming civilized very rapidly.

Mr. Beavis described his work among the Hailchuks, an entirely different tribe, his station being at Bella-Bella on Milbank Sound. These Indians were very mild, to some extent, and easy to work with. He carried on his work for some time through an interpreter, and pointed to the learning of the language as one of the difficulties. The peculiar Indian nature must also first be understood, and in this connection the opinion was that the Englishman had solved this problem better than the American. Considerable superstition also existed among the Indians, the custom of feeding the dead—suggesting a probable Chinese origin—was especially referred to. The religion of the Indians was a kind of fateism; they worshipped dangerous rocks and believed in the power of their Shamin to perform miracles. They had an idea of the spirit world, and believed that the spirits of their departed came back to earth hence was food placed upon the graves.

The theory that Mr. Beavis holds is that these Indians came in from the east, and he referred to a pronounced Mongolian type and customs among some of the tribes. The men are not tall, but their bodies and arms were well developed. He holds the opinion that the plains Indian is the coast Indian changed in stature as the result of the different form of existence followed by these on the plains. The address was very interesting.

The Charlotte-st. male quartette gave two selections.

CITY LEAGUE GAME

T. A. S.—Defeat Auburns by 11-2 on Saturday Afternoon.

Last Saturday afternoon at the Murray street grounds the T.A.S. and the Auburns teams met in a city league game, and the T.A.S. were again the winners, defeating the Auburns by the score of 11 to 2. The game was witnessed by a fairly large number of spectators, and although the score was a one-sided one, the game was interesting from start to finish. The Auburns' regular twirler, McCorry, was out of town, and their catcher, Bellegham, occupied the box, and surprised everyone by his good pitching. Although he demonstrated the fact a couple of times that he could throw the ball over the fence, he had twelve shut-outs to his credit, besides putting several men out in the field. Ollie also played a nice game on second base, gathering in some nice grounders and making some difficult running catches. Quinlan, for the T.A.S., played his usual steady game and received excellent support from his team, every man being in his place at the proper time. Fitzpatrick made a couple of difficult running catches and was loudly applauded. Both teams made a number of errors, these of the Auburns proving very costly, one overthrow allowing two men to score. Following was the game by innings:

The Auburns were first up, and Bellegham's fly was gathered in by Latremouille, and Weatherston was also caught out by Latremouille. Callahan hit safely to right field but Fitzpatrick fanned. Treanor grounded to Bellegham, and Callahan scored on a passed ball. Grady reached first, but Derocher fanned.

Ollie's fly to centre field was gathered in by Fitzpatrick. Rutherford did not reach first and Waram struck out. A. Latremouille and Cahill fanned and H. Latremouille walked. Quinlan grounded to rightfield and H. Latremouille came in. Callahan hit safely to left field and he and Quinlan scored on Fitzpatrick's two-bagger to left field. Treanor was caught out by Ollie.

Gillespie was struck out by Grady. Parnell and Clegg were struck out. Grady was caught by Bellegham and Derocher and A. Latremouille struck out.

Bellegham was caught at first, Miller reached first but was put out on third. Weatherston grounded to the right but was put out. Cahill grounded to Weatherston, H. Latremouille hit safely to left field, but was caught stealing second. Quinlan walked and Callahan hitto centre field. Both scored on a wild throw. Fitzpatrick grounded to Bellegbem, but Weatherston muffed. Treanor was caught outby Gillespie.

In the fifth Ollie made a nice hit to right field. Callahan grounded and Ollie scored, Waram walked and came in on a passed ball. Gillespie also walked but Parnell fanned, and Clegg grounded to Treanor. Grady and Derocher fanned and A. Latremouille hit in front of the plate and did not reach first.

In the sixth Bellegbem, Miller and Weatherston followed each other out, and Cahill, H. Latremouille and Quinlan fanned the air.

Ollie got to first bascon three strikes, in a scientific way, and Rutherford got hit with the ball. Waram, Gillespie and Parnell's hits were of no use. Callahan walked, but Fitzpatrick grounded to Bellegbem, and did not reach first. Callahan came in on an overthrow. Treanor hit safely to centre, but Grady grounded to Bellegbem. Derocher walked and scored with Treanor on A. Latremouille's fly to centre, who scored on Cahill's hit to right. H. Latremouille also made a right fielder and Cahill came in. Quinlan fanned.

In the eighth Clegg struck out, Bellegbem grounded to Quinlan, who fumbled. Miller fanned and Weatherston grounded to Grady, who put him out at first.

Following were the teams:

T.A.S.—Callahan 3b, Fitzpatrick cf, Treanor 1b, Grady lb, Derocher rf, A. Latremouille lf, Cahill ss, H. Latremouille c, Quinlan p.

Auburns—Bellegbem p, Miller ss, Weatherston 1b, Ollie 2b, Rutherford rf, Waram lf, Gillespie c, Parnell ss Clegg cf.

Umpire—Mr. McGuire.

Score by innings—

T.A.S.— 130,205x—11

Auburns—000,200—2

THE LOCALS BEATEN

Oshawa Scored Eleven Runs While Peterborough got Three.

The Peterboroughs sent a very weak team to Oshawa on Saturday, and they were beaten by the score of 11—3. McCorry was in the box, and was hit freely and at very inconvenient times for the locals. Both teams plainly evidenced that they have neglected practice lately, and many errors were made on both sides. Oshawa secured twelve hits and had six errors, while the Peterboroughs had eight hits and seven errors. Mr. R. McEwen, of town, handled the indicator very satisfactorily. Following was the team that represented the locals—Pilling lb, Graham c, Whitcroft ab, Lamont ss, Sheridan 3b, Long lf, Earls rd, A. Graham cf, McCorry, p.

LACROSSE.

The game at Brantford on Saturday ended in a free fight, and the decision was given in Brantford's favor over the Tecumsehs, 3-2.

THE FIRST STREET CAR

The New Electric Railway Line was Tested To-Day.

There was an unusual commotion on George-st. this morning, and a sound that has been absent for some years. It was the first street car to run over the old tracks, which have been referred to as Peterborough underground street railway—that is, the first car to be run by the new Peterborough Radial Railway Company. The line was being tested, and Mr. Learmouth, the Manager of the Company, was at the throttle. It ran over the entire line where possible, and crowds of people watched the unusual sight. At noon the car made a trip up George-st., and many people had "the first ride." It was then in charge of Mr. Thos. Fleming, barn foreman. The report is that the Company have all their men classed—such as motormen and conductors—and that regular operations will be started by September 1st.

FORESTERS HOME AGAIN

THE TRIP TO FORESTERS' ISLAND WAS A SUCCESS.

Quite a Large Party Attended from Peterboro—Corner of Orphans Home Well and Truly Laid.

The greater portion of those who went with the Independent Order of Foresters to Belleville, Foresters' Island, Deseronto, and Lake on the Mountain, returned home again on Saturday night about 11 p.m., and report that they had a most enjoyable trip and a pleasant time at the various places visited. The train left here about 7.40 a.m., and reached Belleville about 10 a.m., with some 200 excursionists on board, who shortly after embarked on the steamer Aletha en route for Foresters' Island, which was reached about 11.30, when those desiring to stay on the Island disembarked, but the majority stayed on board and the steamer then proceeded on its way to Glenora and Lake on the Mountain, stopping en route at Deseronto wharf. The terminus of the trip was reached about 1.30 p.m., and the excursionists were soon climbing up the famous mountain by means of long flights of stairs and winding roadways, and finally reaching the tableland, where they could cast their eyes over the broad, clear lake on the top of the mountain. The lake is said to have no inlet nor outlet, but the water is as clear as spring water, and is supposed to be in some way connected with the distant Lake Erie, as it rises and falls in sympathy with its tides.

The excursionists are loud in their praise of the sail across the beautiful Bay of Quinte, and of the beautiful islands and scenery along the route. Dr. Shaw, of Keene, High Physician, Eastern Ontario I.O.F., obtained several snap shot pictures with his camera of several groups of visitors along the shady lanes and bowers of the mountain. Bro. J. W. Green, photographer, of town, also obtained some fine pictures of the Foresters' Orphans' Home, and crowds of visitors from Toronto, Kingston and Picton. The captain of the Aletha showed great kindness to the passengers, kindly acted as guide in showing the places of interest at the mountain, and the Turbine Wheel Foundry at Glenora, the ponderous machinery of which is driven by water power, the water descending through a pipe with great force from the lake at the top. The G.T.R. conductor's kindness will also not be forgotten, when he brought his train under the street car system in Belleville, by kindly stopping at various points in the town, to pick up the excursionists who scattered over the town spending an hour or so.

On the return journey the steamer left Glenora about 2.30 p.m., and reached Deseronto and Foresters' Island about 3.45, just in time to see the other steamers land the Toronto excursionists, who were accompanied by the I.O.F. Encampment Band and the Citizens' Band, both of which furnished music during the afternoon, and a pianist furnished music in the pavilion to those engaged in dancing. The laying of the corner-stone of the I.O.F. Orphans' Home was then proceeded with, the Supreme Chief Ranger, Hon. Dr. Oronhyatekha, being surrounded by prominent Foresters from all parts of Canada and the United States. Among those on the platform was Hon. J. R. Stratton, M.P.P., whom the Supreme Chief said was one of his associates in his college days, and of whom he still retained many pleasant recollections. Some excursionists remained over in Deseronto and Belleville and will return today. The committee in charge were Bros. Dr. Grear, Allison, Miles, Cowling, Wallace, Buyers, Gray, Koster and Francis.

So encouraged are the Foresters that Court Chemong has decided to make this an annual affair and will run an excursion over this route in July or August every year, until further notice. Look out for it!

AN EXTRA TRAIN

To be run to Toronto by the C.P.R. During the Fair.

The C.P.R. have put on an extra passenger train during the Toronto Exhibition from August 29th to September 9th inclusive. This is in addition to the regular trains. It will leave Peterborough at 5.40 a.m., reach Toronto at 7.50 and returning leave the city at 10.30, reaching here at 12.55 at night. Return fare will be issued to Toronto at single fare, during the exhibition. The public will appreciate this extraaccommodation.

THE EIGHTH ANNIVERSARY

Rev. J. G. Potter has been that Long Pastor of St. Andrew's

At St. Andrew's church yesterday morning Miss Florence Miller sang in pleasing manner the solo, "My Mother's Bible," and in the evening the choir rendered the anthem, "Seek ye my face," very effectively. A tenor obligato was taken by Mr. Herb King, of Chicago, whose voice of splendid quality was heard to advantage. Yesterday was the eighth anniversary of the induction of Rev. J. G. Potter. He preached two able sermons during the day. In the morning from Mark 1:1, "The Beginning of the Gospel of Jesus Christ," and in the evening on II Timothy 2:19, "Let him that nameth the name of the Lord depart from iniquity. Large congregations attended during the day.

MUSIC IN THE CHURCHES

The Musical Services in the Several Churches Yesterday.

The music at George street church yesterday was very pleasing. Mr. G. W. Mulligan sang a solo and the Misses Christy a duett at the morning service. In the evening the anthem was, "While the Days are Going By," the solo being taken by Miss Bertha Parnell. During the offertory a duett was sung nicely by Miss Parnell and Mr. Thornton. Miss Dobbin presided at the organ in a very efficient manner.

ST. PAUL'S CHURCH.

At the morning service in St. Paul's church yesterday morning, Mrs. Waddell, of Kansas, sang "Rock of Ages" in a very acceptable manner. In the evening Mr. Ira Snelgrove, of Toronto, sang, "I Cling to Thee, My Saviour," in goodvoice

ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH.

Miss Florence Miller sang, "The Holy Bible" at the morning service in St. Andrew's church yesterday. In the evening Mr. Herb. King, of Chicago, took the obligato in the anthem, "Seek Ye the Lord," and was listened to with great pleasure by the large congregation present.

CHARLOTTE STREET CHURCH

At Charlotte street church yesterday morning Mr. R. N. Jolliffe sang "Life's Lullaby," and in the evening the male quartette, Messrs. Breininger, Dormer, Freund and Jolliffe sang "The Night ofRest" and "The Wayside Cross."

GENERAL ENGAGEMENT IMMINENT

Armies are now in Closest Touch and it may be Decisive.

JAPS KILLED ANOTHER 1,000

Kuropatkin's Forces Failing to Concentrate — Battle Cannot be Escaped — What the Russian General Stoessel says to the Czar — Offers to Quit.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 30.—Even late last night the greatest uncertainty prevailed regarding the actual situation at Liaoyang. There is intense anxiety for definite news from the front, but even the authorities are frankly ignorant as to whether the long-expected decisive action will be fought at Liaoyang or further north. It is impossible that a great battle is even now proceeding, and there are many indications that such is the case. If this is so the fate of this year's campaign may be settled within 48 hours. At the same time opinion is almost equally divided, many believing that Gen. Kuropatkin will not make a determined stand, and that the Japanese will crack the shell only to find that the bird has flown.

It is certain that the armies are now in the closest touch.

Lost Another 1,000 Men.

Owing to the delay in the concentration of Gen. Kuropatkin's army, due to the terrible condition of the roads, the Japanese attacked the slow-moving corps and severe fighting occurred Aug. 27-28, in which the Russians lost another thousand men, and will probably now have to accept a general engagement.

Gen. Kuropatkin himself says in a despatch to the Emperor: The Japanese began at dawn Aug. 27 two movements designed to cut off the first and fourth corps, while Gen. Kuroki drove a wedge between the second and fourth corps, which were stationed west of Liandiansian. The Russians fought a series of rear-guard actions in order to cover the retreat of their impediments to Liaoyang, in which they were successful. The first corps again sustained the brunt of the fighting, losing Gen. Routkovsky and Col. Von Rasben. The first, second and fourth corps succeeded in effecting a concentration at Liaoyang without further loss. The whole six corps, of which two are European troops, have now formed a semi-circle within a radius of six or eight miles of Liaoyang.

Gen. Kuropatkin has not far short of 170,000 men.

Japs Overtake Russians.

Liaoyang, Aug. 30.—The Russians lost 300 in killed or wounded during the retreat from Anshanshan, the Japanese making a forced march by night and overtaking the Russians at daylight. Gen Routkovsky was killed by a shell.

RUSSIANS HEAVY LOSSES.

Many Officers, 1,500 to 2,000 Men and 10 Guns.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 30.—General Kuropatkin since Sunday morning has been drawing in all his forces from his eastern and southern fronts toward Liaoyang. Anping, Tsagow, Liandiansian and Anshanshan, constituting the main positions of the outer defence line of Liaoyang, have been abandoned. The heaviest fighting occurred on the extreme left, where the Japanese advanced to the assault again and again with bayonets. The positions at Tsagow and Anping were held by the 10th European corps. The attacks were delivered with fanatical bravery.

Lost Many Officers and Ten Guns.

The Russians lost a large proportion of officers, ten guns and from 1,500 to 2,000 men, but the Russians had been generally successful in beating off the assaults all along the long line, and the Russians declare that the order to retire came as a surprise just when they were expecting orders for a general advance. This is considered to be proof that Gen. Kuropatkin, finding his main positions menaced on the flank and anticipating difficulties in withdrawing owing to the condition of the roads, which have suddenly been transformed into mud bogs by the rain, considered that a retreat was imperative. The retirement from the east front was greatly impeded by the conversion of the Lan River into a mountain torrent, and this probably also accounts for the failure of the Japanese to follow up the retiring Russians.

Japs Moving Toward Mukden.

The Japanese column, moving up the Liao River and threatening Gen. Kuropatkin from the west, is regarded as being extremely dangerous, and Gen. Kuroki's extreme right seems also to be working around Gen. Herschelmann's position at Anping and to be moving toward Mukden. The strength of the enveloping Japanese armies may be judged from the fact that Gen. Oku alone, who is coming up from the south, is officially reported to have 75,000 men.

Liaoyang Probably Untenable.

Whether Gen. Kuropatkin intends to accept battle at Liaoyang may not be known positively for several days, but the belief several times indicated in these despatches prevails here that he will withdraw northward, having found that he is not strong enough to cope with the Japanese and realizing that Liaoyang is no longer tenable on account of the Japanese threats at his west rear. His retirement undoubtedly will cause keen public disappointment, as it was generally believed that he at last had sufficient reinforcements to accept a decisive engagement, and by the military critics his retreat is interpreted to mean a great prolongation of the war.

The Railroad Not Cut.

The Tokio report that Gen. Kuroki had succeeded in cutting the railroad south of Mukden is not confirmed by the telegraph department, where it is said that no reports have been received of an interruption of communications. Of course, it is realized here that if the railroad north of Liaoyang is cut the position of the Russian army would be rendered serious, if not desperate, as it would probably compel Gen. Kuropatkin to accept an engagement against his will.

Russian Losses Rapidly Growing.

Harbin, Manchuria, Aug. 30.—The Russian losses in the fighting of August 25 and August 26, east and south of Liaoyang were 3,000 killed or wounded. The great majority of the casualties were sustained at Anping. The withdrawals of the Russians from their front at Anshanshan and from their east position were made simultaneously for strategic reasons.

STOESSEL OFFERS TO QUIT.

Port Arthur Commandant Telegraphs the Czar the Situation.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 30.—It is reported from a reliable source that Lieut.-Gen. Stoessel has telegraphed to the Emperor saying that the defenders of the fortress are ready and willing to lay down their lives, but adding that the garrison has already suffered severely and intimating that it is hardly possible to hold out for more than a month or six weeks.

Fighting at Port Arthur.

Che Foo, Aug. 30.—The steamer Chinkeu, which has arrived here from Newchwang, reports that there was heavy firing at Port Arthur from 9 o'clock Sunday night until 2 a.m.

Severe fighting was resumed at Port Arthur on Aug. 27. Between Aug. 27 and 29 there was some fighting, but it was less severe than on the 27th. A Chinese refugee compelled to carry the dead from the battlefield of Pulichuang, which the Japanese attempted to capture on Aug. 26, says thirty carts were used to carry the dead, numbering 600.

Cruisers to Disarm.

Shanghai, Aug. 30.—The Russian torpedo boat destroyer Grosovei has been disarmed and the cruiser Askold will disarm to-day.

Dundonald Infantry Used.

London, Aug. 30.—A Moscow correspondent of The News-World says: "A letter dated Harbin, from a Russian officer, says that a battery of a new type of machine gun has arrived here with carriage. It was invented by Lord Dundonald for use in South Africa. We expect great things from it. Certainly for handiness it is hard to beat."

Accused of Embezzlement.

Winnipeg, Aug. 30.—A warrant has been issued for the arrest of James Melvin Bartlett, clerk of vital statistics in the Provincial Department of Agriculture, charged with embezzlement. It is now alleged that for eight or ten years he has been embezzling money received from the sale of marriage licenses, and during all that time has been falsifying entries. A careful examination of the books is now being made. It is not yet complete, but it is already known that the total amount will be at least several thousand dollars. He formerly lived in Ontario.

TUESDAY, AUG. 30, 1904.

THE CATTLE EMBARGO

It is satisfactory to learn that Mr. Chamberlain has been convinced of the impropriety of the movement that Canadian cattle should be slaughtered immediately on their landing in Great Britain, and is persuaded that the rule should be abrogated. This would certainly be in accordance with his policy. It is difficult to conceive a more absurd inconsistency than that the only vestige of protection in the United Kingdom should be applied to the Dominion, for it undoubtedly is a protective measure, the old false pretence that it was a precaution against danger from infectious disease having been abandoned, though with very bad grace. There is no reason for it, for our Canadian herds are singularly free from disease, which is more than can be said of those of England. There would even be very little tuberculosis here, but for the importation of breeding stock from England, where it is rife. Among the enormous number of Canadian beasts slaughtered at British ports there has not been a single case of contagious disease, and the record of health is amazingly clean.

The unwarrantable embargo on our cattle has not been altogether without good effect. It has led to the exportation of fat rather than stock cattle, a more profitable policy for our agricultural community. Still there are some of our farmers who do not find it convenient to finish their beasts, and prices have been reduced on all they export by this unfair regulation. And even if this were not the case it is only right that what is a public slander on our healthy herds should be abandoned.

It will interest our readers to learn that Mr. William Henderson, of Cupar Angus, one of the gentlemen who visited us with the Scottish curlers, was among the delegation who waited on Mr. Chamberlain to interest him in this matter. Mr. Henderson has been indefatigable in working for the removal of this injustice.

THE CANADIAN HORTICULTURIST

Some Examples of how Fruit Growers Lose Money.

How fruit Growers lose money

A strongly worded warning to fruit growers and farmers will appear in the September issue of the Canadian Horticulturist, which is the official organ of the Ontario Fruit Growers' Association, against selling their fruit crops to irresponsible buyers. These buyers are those who do not live or own any property in sections where they buy their crops. The Horticulturalist claims that tens of thousands of dollars are lost annually throughout Canada through the fraudulent methods practised by these buyers.

The first year they buy a few thousand barrels in one section and pay cash for them, thereby establishing their reputation with many as responsible buyers. The following year, they take advantage of this reputation to contract for large quantities of fruit, but do not pay for it, putting the growers off with one excuse or another. Where some growers are suspicious and demand payment, they pay immediately. But in the majority of cases they manage to ship the fruit out of the section without paying for it. Later they tell growers tales of losses and say they are unable to pay the full value of their fruit, and offer to settle at 20 to 30 cents on the dollar.

Growers are advised by the Horticulturist when dealing with buyers they are not thoroughly acquainted with, to demand security for their fruit, or only deal with local buyers, who have property or state in the community. One of the best methods of avoiding danger of this kind has been for growers to co-operate and deal directly with large wholesale buyers. The case of the Ontario buyer who two years ago defrauded the people of the Annapolis Valley in N.S. out of $30,000 to $40,000 worth of fruit is mentioned.

EARLY VEGETABLE INDUSTRY.

The fruit growers in Essex County, who have this year forced vegetables for the early summer markets, have had a very prosperous season, as will be announced in the September issue of the Canadian Horticulturist. The shipments this year have been the largest on record, and have not been equal to the demand. These vegetables are started under glass in the late winter, are later transplanted under cotton frames, and finally grown in the open. This method enables the growers to place their products on the market much earlier than the regular crop. These vegetables are superior to the imported ones from the United States, which have in the past practically supplied all the demand. Owing to the satisfactory prices realized this year, it is probable there will be a marked increase in this line of work next season, and that ultimately Canadian vegetables may largely displace the United States importations.

REACHED A HIGH FIGURE

THE RECORD OF CHILD-EMIGRATION FROM ENGLAND.

Canada Claimed about 14,500—South Africa not yet to be Touched.

Following is an extract from the report upon the work of Dr. Barnardo's Home for 1903:—

"By the end of 1903 we were able to point to the records of 14,894 emigrants, of whom Canada claimed 14,421. A picturesque scribe lately stated that the failures among these emigrants "could be counted on the legs of three centipedes"; and if a centipede has a hundred legs, we can testify to the truth of the verdict! No more encouraging result could well be imagined, considering that nearly fifteen thousand young people are in question; most of these, moreover, drawn originally from environments of temptation, suffering and danger. It is, indeed, an abounding cause for gratitude to God that out of 14,894 emigrants less than two per cent., not three hundred all told, should have turned out more or less unsatisfactorily. We keep up a high standard, moreover, and often a comparatively small or venial fault will be recorded in our books as a "failure" in an emigrant (although, of course, it never makes a black mark against the culprit so far as our treatment of him or her is concerned.)

The lads and lasses counted worthy of emigration were never so carefully selected as now; and our selections have, of course, to run the gauntlet of Government and Colonial inspection before they are finally permitted to set their faces towards the Dominion. All would-be emigrants must have "purhased to themselves a good degree" in our training Homes; and physically, mntally and morally they must be exceptionable. Then this careful training and selection in the Old Country is supplemented by close and constant supervision in the new world, so as to protect the youthful settler from the dungers of his or her experience. We have a trained band of responsible workers in Canada who pay "surprise visits" to every household where a boy or girl has been placed. The headquarters of our Canadian work are at 214 Farley Avenue, Toronto, our Boys' Distributing Home. Our Girls' Distributing Home is at Hazelbrae, Peterborough, Ontario. A great and developing centre of work for bigger lads is at our large Industrial Farm, situated at Russell, Manitoba. Here about 9,000 acres of excellent soil are the freehold property of the Association, and the farm is being steadily developed under the labors of a resident family averaging about 70 lads, all originally sent out from the London Homes. We have a small branch also at 115 Pacific Avenue, Winnipeg, concerned with the placing out and continuous supervision of younger boys.

A large number of boys and girls (nearly 500 all told) have in previous years (chiefly prior to 1882) also gone out to us from Australia and South Africa and other British colonies, as well as to Canada; and, time and time again, evidence reaches us of the prosperity of these colonists, who are now well acclimatised and who form a valuable element in colonial life.

The scheme of organised emigration to South Africa foreshadowed in last report is still in abeyance, chiefly owing to the unsettled condition of that country. We regret the delay which has interposed in the development of this new, and, we believe, most hopeful, branch of our emigration efforts. But the Council hopes that it may soon be able to announce the definite establishment of this momentous forward movement. At present, it would certainly be imprudent to organize emigration to South Africa for our trained boys and girls.

During 1903 the record of child emigration reached the highest figure hitherto attained for any single twelvemonth. 1,237 young people (836 boys and 401 girls) were, in the course of 1903, sent out to Canada.

GEORGE DUCHSCHERER PROPRIETOR

PRIMATE'S FIRST SERMON

HIS GRACE THE ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY'S FIRST PUBLIC UTTERANCE HERE.

Was in the Anglican Cathedral Quebec—A Message of Hope and Sympathy.

Following is the report of the sermon in the Anglican Cathedral, Quebec, on Sunday by His Grace, the Archbishop of Canterbury:

The text which he chose for his first sermon in Canada was simple and appropriate. It was:

"Patience Worketh Experience and Experience Hope."—Romans v, iii.

"The words may stand," said His Grace, "as the motto and watchword of our Colonial Empire and our Colonial Church, of which we have a significant object lesson today. It is assuredly with some diffidence that I stand here this morning to speak to you about the object lesson. Some six hours only have passed since, in happy fulfilment of the hopes and dreams of years, I have set eyes on Canada for the first time. And I might well perhaps have shrunk abashed from the presumptuous endeavor to give expression at such a moment to the feelings with which on this centenary day your hearts are rightly filled. Yet I cannot, dare not, gainsay what has been eloquently urged upon me by those qualified to speak, that there is a singular appropriateness in the opportunity so strangely—some would also say, so accidentally—given to the man who occupies the position assigned to me in our Anglican Church, the opportunity of taking part in the first centenary of the first Anglican Cathedral erected in any colony of our Empire. It is an occasion of the deepest importance and the happiest association not only for Quebec and Canada but for the Church of Christ throughout the world, and I esteem it a very high privilege to be allowed to bear my part with you, as today we thank God and take courage.

THE MESSAGE OF THE TEXT.

"The text I have chosen is one which links in an unbroken chain the past, the present and the future. Respice, circumspice, prospice; look back look around, look onward. Patience worth experience. The long patience of the travelling years worketh the experience of probation. We come at length to know where we stand and how and why we realise the high purpose of our calling, and the trust given by Him who calls; and this knowledge, this experience, worketh hope that we shall see greater things than this. Brethren, that is exactly what a Cathedral, what in a very special sense your Cathedral sees. The very essence of a Cathedral is that it is a centre bold, binding the Church's life and that it has continuous touch with the successive generations as they pass, to co-relate and make fruitful the outcome of experience, that experience which worketh hope and justifieth large expectations in the days to come.

THE TRADITIONS OF QUEBEC.

"This may be true anywhere in respect to a Cathedral and its life, but here within these walls and these Cathedral precincts, the thought is more direct and imperative still. We, whose homes be in the old England across the sea—we, for example, in Lambeth where we say our morning and evening prayers in the same chapter where these prayers have been said for some centuries—may be supposed erroneously at times to look half slightingly upon such centenaries as even the oldest of our colonial churches may provide. If there be anywhere cases in which such a notion might spring unbidden, at least it cannot come in connection with your historic Quebec or its Cathedral, which, as actually set apart as a consecrated house of God for the service of our own Church may be but a century old.

TRIBUTE TO FRENCH MISSIONARIES.

"But you, who know better than I, the varied history of Quebec, will recall the many things which give impressionable consecration to this place, and link it and its surroundings back along a chain of quite peculiar pathos, and interest with the work done centuries ago by the members of the Confraternity of St. Francis of Assisi and also to the devoted men of a very different society—a society whose very name became a catchword for a polity which we condemn, but yet which gave to the whole world an example of missionary enthusiasm and of steady persevering faith in face of persecution, which, while the world stands, will encircle with a halo of glory the memory of the French missionaries, and the martyrs of 300 years ago."

After several quotations from Canadian historians the Archbishop continued: "You know it all better than I. The thought that, from the centres of Canadian life and strength and culture, devoted men were constantly giving themselves to the splendid task of bearing light and hope to them that dwelt in darkness, and in the shadow of death—that thought and that memory should be an inspiration to us still, in circumstances so different from those in which they wrought—an inspiration and a stimulus to put our strength today into the corresponding task of kindling the flame and keeping it aglow in Western fields, among those brothers of our own among whom it is likely, but for our care, to flicker and to wane.

A CATHEDRAL NEED NOT BE OLD.

"It was, however, with quite other thoughts than these that men set themselves one hundred years ago to the erection of this house of God as the centre for the regions around of our own form of Christian worship and Christian ministry to the souls of men. Times are widely changed; but since George III. gave this cathedral at his own charge to Quebec, those who wrought in that endeavor had perhaps little notion, as we should judge today, of the deep and abiding significance of a cathedral and its life. We understand it, as we believe, better now. Patience worketh experience and experience hope. I suppose there are still thousands of devoted people whose notion of a cathedral is some vast and dim, wonderful church, with great monuments of every age, a place where stern faces look down benignly. It would not be less foolish than false to belittle such thoughts and inspirations as these. They are among the most vivid and should be among the most fruitful of any that can stir the pulse and tune the powers of a man. Yet is is true to say that these are the accidents rather than the essentials of cathedral life. The main idea which a cathedral embodies does not, of course, depend upon the beauty of its form and the greatness of its story. A cathedral is the centre of prayer and praise and manifold Christian activity. It may have the quiet grandeur and dim romance of Westminster, or Durham, or Canterbury, or Ely, or again, it may be absolutely simple, prosaic and unadorned, and yet in its real gist do the selfsame work for men. What the work it has, in these later years, been set forth so often in our Church on both sides of the Atlantic by those best qualified to speak that I almost owe you an apology for remanding you again."

The Archbishop quoted from Bishop Benson's poem to the statutes of the new cathedral at Truro, that "Not to itself is the honor of a cathedral church," and that its object is "that the greatest possible number of men may be joined unto Christ, and that they that be Christ's already may grow and be built up in Him."

THE LESSONS OF THE PAST.

"You are familiar," he told the congregation, "with the record since 1767, when Charles Inglis, worthy pattern of the noble army of English colonists, was consecrated in Lambeth chapel to be Bishop of Nova Scotia, with ecclesiastical jurisdiction throughout the illimitable unexplored regions of Canada, as a whole, on to July 7, 1793, when Dr. Mountain was consecrated first Anglican Bishop of Quebec, a diocese then containing some 70 clergy, I think, at most, and having even at Quebec no building of the Church of England wherein to conduct her services. On again to January 1, 1836, when Charles James Stewart became your second Bishop, and so forward and onward, through rapidly increasing cares and anxieties and responsibilities, till Quebec becomes, through the guidance of par Lord Himself, no longer a meagre outpost of our Church and her army, but a centre and rallying point, a centre worthy of its fame in war and peace.

Stubborn Skin Diseases.

Nothing is more discouraging than a case of eczema or salt rheum which refuses to heal. By using Dr. Chase's Ointment, however, you soon see that new skin is forming and the sore part is becoming smaller and smaller. The itching is entirely overcome after a few applications and you are given satisfactory evidence that a continuation of the treatment will bring a thorough cure.

TUESDAY, AUG. 30, 1904.

THE I.O.F. SUPREME SECRETARY

At the Laying of the Corner Stone of the Orphans' Home at Foresters' Island.

In replying to the address presented to him after the corner stone had been laid the Supreme Secretary said:

"Ladies and gentlemen, the occasion upon which we are gathered here is one which will go down in history, I trust. The laying of the corner stone of the Foresters' Orphans' Home to-day marks a new era in the history of the Order." Continuing, he said that Foresters' Island was just a little further advanced in civilisation than the great centres, for there they finished their building first and then laid the corner stone. He trusted that this corner stone, which he had just laid, would remain for many years to come. "This project," he said, "although a long time in contemplation, was not brought to such a position as to take definite form until about twelve months ago. The land was then tendered as a site to the Executive Council, which accepted the offer and instructed the Supreme Chief Ranger to proceed with the construction of the orphanage. Although it is not more than a year ago that the foundations were staked out, inside of three months the building will be ready for the reception of orphans of former members of the order. (Applause.) So we have made, I think you will admit, rapid strides. Perhaps one reason for this is that most of the employees were Indians. We had no strike until, during my absence in the Old Country, the deputy superintendent employed a number of white men, and last week we had a strike. (Laughter). The Supreme Court, however, will, as I have said, be enabled to put the building into shape and to receive orphans into the home and care for them. I have only to-day received a number of donations. The first to be heard from is Ireland. (Applause.) One might expect that." The S. p reme Chief then read the following message: 'Cork Foresters pray God bless you and your noble work." The message was accompanied by thirty sovereigns.p Some of the other donations acknowledged were:

Hon. E. G. Stevenson	$100
Anonymous	25
High Court of Indiana	200
High Court of Ontario	200
W. H. Hall	5
Friends	5
High Court of Eastern Ontario ...	150
Court Huron, Sarnia	20
Court Trade and Commerce, Toronto	25
Court Valley City, Galt	75
Two courts in Michigan	100

The High Court of Ohio offered to furnish any room in the building, and there were many other proffers of assistance made during the meeting. Continuing, the Supreme Chief paid a high tribute to the prominent friends and members of the order who had met on this occasion, and who would deliver brief addresses. He gracefully thanked them all for their presence and for their sympathy with the new work. "It had been contemplated, he said, when the order was reorganized that it would some day be called upon to take over the most important side of its work, which work they were now beginning. "Our purpose," he said, "is to receive the children of Foresters who have been left orphans, from all parts of our Forestric domain, and that is all around the world.' The order, he was glad to say, was never more united. From every quarter the word was coming that the new work was meeting with the approbation of members, and that as soon as the particulars were understood the comrades would go to work and do their part to make it a success.

The Supreme Chief related that at the meeting of the High Chiefs of Great Britain the only grievance brought up was that voiced by a member from the north of Ireland who protested that there was no crown on the Irish flag hanging in the assembly hall.

WOMAN LIVED LIKE A MAN

THE EXTRAORDINARY CAREER OF CATHERINE COOME.

For Fifty Years Wore Man's Clothing, Did Man's Work and Everywhere Passed as a Man.

A London (Eng.) correspondent writes: It is doubted here if any woman masquerading as a man ever had a more extraordinary career than Catherine Coome. She it is whose arrest the other day brought out the fact that for the last 50 years she has worn man's clothing, d ne man's work and everywhere passed as a man. She is devoted to her pipe, too, in which she smokes the strongest kind of tobacco. Strangest of all, however, Catherine Coome has been twice married as a member of the sterner sex. Three times in all she has entered the bonds of wedlock, but on the first occasion, as a man of fifteen, she wedded a man. That marriage turned out unhappily and she resolved never to repeat the experiment. The second time in the role of a man she married a woman and was rewarded with four years of domestic bliss. The third time she again married a woman and for 22 years this strange but happy matrimonial partnership was maintained until the death of her wife made her once more—should one say a widow or widower? Only once before her recent arrest, she declares, was her sex detected. She has been a captain's clerk, and in that capacity and subsequently as a painter and decorator on the P. and O. company's steamers has sailed over many seas and seen much of the world On shore she maintained herself and the partners of her joys and sorrows for many years as a house painter. And finally as a fitting climax to her career she has elicited from a magistrate the statement that there is no law in England under which a woman can be restricted from donning masculine attire.

She comes of a good family. Her father was a man of some means and a well known member of the Somerset and Devon Hunt. She was educated at a young woman's seminary in Cheltenham and before she was sixteen she married her first cousin, Percival Coome. He was 22 years older than herself, and according to her description of him a thorough-going scamp. He cruelly ill-used her, kept her under lock and key, and even cut off her hair and sold it. She vowed after that she would never let it grow long again, nor did she. Several times she ran away from him, but he always caught her and made her suffer for it.

It was after one of these experiences that she hit upon the idea of disguising herself in male attire that she might the better hide from him. She was eighteen then and the change of costume made her look like a bright and handsome lad. It was before the days of pursers and she readily obtained a position as a captain's clerk, a billet which ensured her safety from her husband's pursuit. For three and a half years she held this position on the same trip and no one suspected her secret. The only embarrassment she suffered, she says, was from the attention of feminine passengers who persisted in falling in love with her. One of them, an actress, and a famous one of her time, actually, she declares, besought her on bended knee to be her husband. "My legs were then scarcely used to trousers," she said, "and I was so worried and ashamed that I told her I was only a girl. Her love then changed to friendship and my staunch friend she remained until she died."

On her last voyage on the ship, according to her story, a girl fell so desperately in love with her that when port was reached she refused to go home. By this time Catherine had grown accustomed to her man role and such a trifling matter as the love of a girl no longer upset her. She got rid of the girl by sending a telegram to her father, a country rector, asking him to take his susceptible daughter home.

After leaving the sea, still disguised as a man, she apprenticed herself to a house painter and in five years mastered the trade and went to work on it on her own account. "In my 'prentice days," she relates, "my love affairs were many, and when I had won a home of my own the memory of them set me thinking. I loved home life, and I wanted my home kept nice. I couldn't myself do both man and woman's work at the same time. But so, so far as the world was concerned, I had become a man, I could not ask a woman to live with me merely as a companion. Turning the matter over in my mind, I came to the conclusion that there was no good reason why I should not marry a woman and in that way obtain the companionship and domestic assistance I needed. So I went a-courtin' in earnest."

The result was a wedding at Saint Margaret's church near Westminster Abbey, between 'Charles Wilson,' the man-name assumed by Catherine, and Annie Ridgway, who had been a lady's maid to Lady Campbell. "Annie," she says, "loved me so devotedly and unselfishly that we lived an entirely happy married life for four years, when to my great sorrow she died."

Catherine was not long in seeking consolation in a second wife, choosing this time a dressmaker. "My second wife," she says, "was as true to me as my first had been. I do not believe that a couple were ever so happy as we were for the 22 years that she lived after our marriage."

It was toward the end of this happy period of her life that, work on shore as a house painter being slack, Catherine obtained a position as painter and decorator with the P. & O. company, and made several trips on their steamships.

"I was not always easy work" she states. "Fancy having to be hoisted to the masthead on a freezing morning with a paint pot held in my teeth. No wonder that I made several accidents and at last broke three ribs."

Soon after this the old woman, as she had now become, lost her second wife, and then evil days fell upon her, and want drove her to the poor house. "It was here," she says, 'that it was found out for the first time since I adopted man's clothing that I was a woman. I was discovered because I hit one of the men who wanted to strip me for bathing."

Catherine had to submit to the humiliation of men's clothes after that. While she remained in the workhouse, but she was allowed to depart in masculine garb. However, finding work at her trade hard to get she donned petticoats again on her own account and made a voyage to Australia and back as a stewardess. When ashore once more she resumed her trousers, but having illness and the infirmities of age to contend with she could get no steady employment. At last she was arrested for drunkenness when, she declares, she was only faint from hunger. It led to the disclosure of her life story, and, it is pleasant to record, in consequence some men of means have become interested in her and what remains to her of life—she is now 68—will be made easy for her. Her unique experiences have not given her a very high opinion of her own sex, despite the fact that her two wives turned out so much better than her husband.

"My strange life as a man-woman" she says, "has given me an opportunity of judging women such as I suppose no other woman ever had. And it is my deliberate opinion,—though speaking now for my own sex I am ashamed to say it—that in the main men are better than women."

Was Cured of Itching Piles

By Using Dr. Chase's Ointment and Hopes Others Will Profit by His Experience.

When you ask for an ointment, the druggist naturally hands you Dr. Chase's Ointment because it is the standard throughout the world. It is the only cure for piles.

Mr. Thomas Covert, Highland Grove, Peterboro Co., Ont., writes:—"For years I was a great sufferer from Piles, and sometimes the terrible itching and burning was almost beyond endurance. Though I tried all sorts of remedies I never found a cure until I used Dr. Chase's Ointment. In my opinion this Ointment has no equal, and I hope others will benefit by my experience."

Dr. Chase's Ointment, 60 cents a box at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Company, Toronto. To protect you against imitations, the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box.

Hints on Etiquette

A letter or note should always be dated.

The cultivation of politeness should begin in the home.

Separate invitations should be sent to the young men of the family

A gentleman always arises from his chair when a lady enters or leaves the room.

Politeness does not mean stiffness of manner, but on the contrary, ease of manner.

Two or more sisters may be sent one invitation, the address being written, the "Misses Black."

At a ball one may not refuse a certain dance to one gentleman and then dance it with another.

On the visiting card the day for receiving is engraved or written in the lower left hand corner.

Bananas are peeled, held in the fingers and eaten; if too soft or mushy they may be cut into slices and eaten with the fork.

The old-fashioned practice of folding over the right side of the visiting card to show it has been left in person is no longer observed.

Before making a call on a lady, a gentleman must first receive an invitation to do so, or he must first ask and receive her permission to come.

The rules guiding the uses of visiting cards are based upon the idea that the card is the representative of the person whose name it bears. Therefore, care should be taken where the card is left or sent.

At the table the knife is held in the hand as little as possible, being used only when it is necessary to cut the food. For the majority of vegetables the tines of the fork may be used instead of the knife.

To be polite to one we dislike is not necessarily being insincere. Politeness is not so much a manifestation toward others, but an indication of what we are ourselves; we owe it to ourselves to be well bred.

The subscription of the letter, consisting of the term of respect or affection and the signature, should correspond in formality to the heading and general tone of the letter.

On formal occasions no napkin rings appear on the table and the napkin is used but the once. At the home dinner the napkin, if not too soiled, should be placed in the ring to be used again at breakfast or luncheon.

Lever's Y.E.(Wine Yeast) Disinfectant Soap Powder dusted in the bath softens the water at the same time that it disinfects.

IRISHMEN RUN THE EMPIRE

HEADS OF ARMY AND LEGAL PROFESSION ARE IRISHMEN.

So are the two Greatest Scientists in the World — Also England's Most Trusted Diplomatists.

London, Aug. 27—Ireland usually is regarded as the "distressful country." There are less than 5,000,000 people in Ireland, against 40,000,000 in England, Wales and Scotland, and 12,000,000 white citizens of the British empire in other parts of the world.

In spite of their numerical inferiority, Irishmen, however, practically run the English empire. The heads of the army and legal profession are Irishmen. The two greatest scientists in the world, Lord Kelvin and Sir Robert Ball, are natives of the Emerald Isle. England's most trusted diplomatists abroad are Irish born and bred, and in literature, art and music the Irish enjoy a predominance which is hard to explain.

Another strange fact is that the majority of Ireland's most distinguished sons come from Waterford and Roscommon. The county of Waterford appears to be favorable to fostering the genius for war; Roscommon and Dublin, literature; Cork and Limerick, music.

England's leading admiral, the man who in the event of a great naval war would be intrusted with the command of her fleet, Lord Chas. Beresford, comes of an old Waterford family. In addition to his exploits on the Condor, at the bombardment of Alexandria and on the Nile, during the ill-fated Gordon relief expedition, he takes to fighting as naturally as a duck takes to water. The admiral is at his best in a street row. He has fought a round with Chas. Mitchell, the prize fighter, and were he not an admiral he could learn his living as the exponent of pugilism. He boasts that every bone in his body was broken some time or other.

"BOBS" IS IRISH.

Earl Roberts, or "Bobs," the commander-in-chief of the British army, although born at Cawnpore, India, comes on his father's side from a Waterford family, and on his mother's from "magnificent Tipperary." Viscount Wolseley, "Bob's" predecessor as commander-in-chief, is a Dublin man. Gen. French, the only General who did not meet with defeat in South Africa, hails from Roscommon. He first came into prominence in Canada during the Red river expedition in 1874. He has a sister who is a leading light in the English journalistic movement. Lord Kelly-Kenny is another of England's famous soldiers who is Irish born.

The late lord chief justice, Lord Russell, of Killowen, was, as all the world knows, an Irishman. His son, the Hon. Charles Russell, who recently pulled the strings to secure a pardon for Mrs. Maybrick, and who is rivalling Sir George Lewis' claim to be the foremost solicitor in England, takes a prominent part in the revival of the Gaelic movement.

The solicitor-general, Sir Edward Carson, won his spurs at the Irish bar, through his prosecution of the murderers of Lord Edward Cavendish and Mr. Burke. He is the greatest lawyer in the empire and used to make $100,000 per annum in fees.

T. C. Gill, K.C., another Irishman, runs him very close at the bar, however. At one time he was Lord Russell of Killowen's great rival.

LEADS IN SCIENCE.

Belfast congratulates itself in having given birth to the most distinguished scientistin the world, in the person of Lord Kelvin. Sir Thomas Ball, the ex-president of the Royal Astronomical Society, is a Dublin man. No one has done so much to popularize astronomy amongst the masses as Sir Thomas, who still speaks with a brogue.

The chief secretary for Ireland, Geo. Wyndham, is the great-grandson of the famous Irish rebel, Lord Edward Fitzgerald, who died of wounds received while resisting arrest in 1798.

The British ambassador at Vienna, who holds one of the most influential positions in the diplomatic world, the Right Hon. Sir F. Plunkett, is another Waterford man. He was the secretary to the legation at Washington in the early '70's, where he married May, the daughter of C. W. Morgan, of Philadelphia.

The wealthiest grocer, shipbuilder and brewer in the world are Irishmen—Sir Thomas Lipton, Sir A. Pirrie, of Belfast, and Lord Iveagh, the proprietor of the Guinness' brewery.

H. I. Theaddeus, R.B.A., the artist who holds the world's record for painting royalties and society leaders, is a Cork man. He has had commissions from Pope Leo XIII, and Pope Pius X., the czar, the king of Wirtemberg, the prince and princess of Wales, the late duke and duchess of Wales, the late duke and duchess of Kent, Lady Howard de Walden, the grand duke of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, Lady Clifford, the duke of Newcastle, and most of the nobility of England. A number of his paintings are at the St. Louis Exposition, and several unfortunately, were damaged by fire recently.

George Bernard Shaw, the witty dramatist, critic and writer, comes from Dublin. He is a strict vegetarian and one of the foremost exponents of socialism in the country. Owing to his sallow complexion and drab-colored beard he says that he wears only cocoa-colored clothes and drinks nothing but cocoa, to be in perfect harmony with his surroundings and temperament.

ARRANGED FOR REGATTA

STONEY LAKE COTTAGERS TO HOLD ONE IN 1905.

Treasurer's Report Showed a Very Handsome Balance — A Wharf to be Built for Launches.

The adjourned meeting of the Stony Lake Cottagers Association was held at Juniper Island last Thursday evening. The president, Mr. R. B. Rogers, occupied the chair.

The Treasurer's report was read, showing a balance on hand of $0.25.

The Secretary, Mr. J. S. Knapman, was instructed to procure a register to be placed at the post office, for visitors, also a board to be placed on the wharf, giving instructions in reference to canoes and skiffs.

It was moved that the Secretary and Mr. Henderson, Toronto, be a Regatta Committee, with power to add to their numbers.—Carried.

It was moved that the Association build a wharf for launches, provided the owners of the same pay a proportion of the cost of the same, and that the Secretary write them to this effect.—Carried.

It was moved that the Stony Lake Regatta for 1905 be held on Peterborough's Civic Holiday, and that steps be taken early in the season to arrange a programme.—Carried.

Messrs. R. B. Rogers and J. S. Knapman, Peterborough; Jas. Acton and H. Sutherland, Toronto, were appointed to arrange for an announcement and regatta programme.

Mrs. Burdick, Peterborough, who has been visiting Mrs. John Curran, John-st., left to-day for a visit with friends in Rochester.—Guide.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Campbell have returned from Chicago Beach, where they had been holidaying with Mr. and Mrs. Correy of Petrolea.

Miss Roberta Henderson of Lindsay, who has been visiting in Belleville, is the guest of Miss Nellie Hall, and leaves for her home to-morrow.

Mr. Arthur Shaw, of Swift Current, Assa., N.W.T., who is visiting with his parents, Dr. J. M. Shaw and and Mrs. Shaw, of Keene, was in town to-day.

Miss Barron and Miss Agnes Barron of Toronto, who have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. McAllister at Chemong Park, returned to the city last evening.

Miss Warner, who has been spending her vacation in Toronto, was in town to-day on her way to Oak Orchard, where she will spend a few days the guest of Judge Weller.

Rev. Jonathan Bantow is in town for a few days and spent last evening with the Murray street Baptist Young People's Society. Rev. Bantow returns to Renfrew to-morrow.

Miss Hattie Campbell, who has been attending the millinery openings in Toronto, leaves this evening for Truro, N.S., where she will have charge of the millinery department of a leading dry goods store for another season.

Mr. and Mrs. John Carnegie have returned after a pleasant stay at the Highlands of Navesink, New Jersey, and a trip to Sault Ste. Marie by boat. Mr. Carnegie, who was not in the best of health prior to going away, has been quite benefited by the change.

A LARGE CONTRACT

The Two Mans Will do the Plumbing Heating and Lighting of Y. W. C. A.

Messrs. McPherson & McGregor have been awarded the contract for the plumbing, heating and lighting of the new Y.W.C.A. building. This is one of the best contracts ever let in Peterborough. The "Two Mans" are the only firm able to handle all three departments of the work, and this is indicative of their general ability to execute large contracts of either a separate or combined character. The firm's workmen are at present pretty busy. One of the large contracts to be carried out is the remodelling of the plumbing at the Canadian General.

CAMPING PARTY RETURNS

THE FRANK RUSS FISHING AND HUNTING CLUB.

Spent an Enjoyable two Weeks at Clear Lake—Travelling by Private Car.

The Frank Russ Hunting and Fishing Club, consisting of over twenty as good sports as ever cast a line or pulled a trigger, arrived in town this morning. These gentlemen have been enjoying a two weeks' outing at Sandy Point, Clear Lake. They travel in their private car and have everything in their equipment to make life "one glad, sweet song," while they are on vacation. All are citizens of Pittsburg, prominent business men for that matter, and nearly all are Germans. "We have only two Irishmen in the party," observed one of the gentlemen this morning, "and they are just as good Germans as we are." The members of the club are:—Frank Russ, President; Dave Guyer, commissariat; Oscar Newbert, Frank Alsman, Frank Brittsolle, J. C. Specht, Gus Lewis, John F. Miller jr.; John Miller, Thos. Fife, Emile Hasselman, Max Weber, Joe Weber; B. Reynheimer, Henry Meyer, J. Weinbecker, S. Lennox, J. Deegan, W. Pender, F. Jeffries, R. Thompson, Frank Russ, jr., W. Matthews, Geo. Pieh and E. Berger. This club was organized 27 years ago, and during all these years its members have never lost the opportunity to spend a couple of weeks outing at some popular fishing resort. They have camped at Clear Lake for two years, and intend coming back again, and they have spent vacations at many different places since organization. They are greatly taken up with the Kawartha chain, but the unanimous opinion is that there should be better fishing. They suggest that some re-stocking be done, especially in the vicinity of Sandy Point.

As may be explained, the members of the club have every wrinkle off by heart, so far as the running and equipment of a camp is concerned, and their outfit is complete.

The cottagers and campers of Stony Lake will remember with pleasure the music given by the club quartette. D. Guier, J. Specht, P. Kleman and O. Neubrecht, and by Emile Hassilman, soloist. These gentlemen "sang a thousand songs," and so popular were they that they have finally lost control of their voices.

THE TORONTO EXHIBITION

The Crowds Have Struck the City—Every Hotel is Full.

The vanguard of the Exhibition army "struck town" yesterday, and for two weeks to come Toronto will be in the hands of its agricultural relatives, says the Mail and Empire. They are coming in great numbers than ever before, which of itself would prove that the Exhibition is better than ever." The railways and steamboat companies were the first to feel the impetus. Traffic of all kinds is unusually heavy at this time of year, but yesterday the transportation companies began "dumping" their human freight in the city in abnormal numbers. The incomers will greatly exceed the departing travelers for a week to come. The hotels are commencing to reap their harvest, and last night the same story was told in them all. "No room" was the phrase that greeted visitors who had not secured rooms in advance. Every hotel was turning them away, and recommending them to private boarding houses. An idea of the extent of the extra accommodation needed can be gathered from the fact that one large furniture company reports the sale of 2,000 beds to meet the exhibition demand. At the Union Station the traffic was easily handled yesterday, but for the contemplated rush several new constables and a number of new hands have been put on. The hotels are employing an extra staff to tide them over the fortnight.

Left to Resume Studies.

Mlle Beatrice Picard and Mlle Olive Letellier of town left last night for St. Michael de Bellechasse, Que., where they will resume their studies at "Convent de Jesus Marie." The little ladies were accompanied by Mr. A. Picard of Montreal, who has been holidaying in town, the guest of his nephew, Mr. J. Picard, cor. Lock and Russain sts.

TWO ITALIANS MET DEATH

IN A RAILWAY ACCIDENT NEAR LOCUST HILL.

Both Lived in Peterboro — Death Occurred almost Instantly after the Accident.

Toronto, Aug. 30—A railway collision resulting in the killing of two Italian C.P.R. laborers and injury to two others, occurred yesterday morning about half past ten o'clock, near Locust Hill. A C.P.R. mud train made up of ten flat cars and containing about 30 Italian workmen, employed by the railway as a construction gang, had been at work about three miles west of Locust Hill. Their labor done at this point they had boarded the cars and the engine had just got in motion toward the east when a freight train was seen approaching rapidly around a curve.

The Italians became seized with a panic and started to clamber over one another in a mad race to get as far as possible from the threatened impact. In their mad haste four of their number fell between the slowly moving cars.

One, Donald Siscoia, aged 27, was instantly killed; Dominica Bereni, a youth of 18, was crushed about the head, and internally injured. He expired shortly after being released. F. Balo and Florante Dissorlo escaped with serious injury. Both the dead men lived in Peterborough.

The freighter, which plunged into the rear of the mud train, was a through one from Chicago to Boston. The chief damage sustained was to the engine, which was up-ended. Three of the cars attached were slightly damaged. The engine attached to the mud train was wrecked. The track was cleared for traffic about 4.30 p.m.

It was learned here today that the younger of the two dead men was run over by the wheels of the car, about the middle of the body, and further that in his struggles he rolled over an embankment near the track. Workmen who saw the accident state that a pair of car wheels became separated and also went down the bank, again striking the unfortunate Italian.

According to the story related by Italians here they were cleaning a cut, and were being pulled away, when the freight came along unexpectedly and there was a collision. The two men killed were caught by the cars when the impact occurred. It is said that the engineers of both engines jumped.

The father of the young man, Bereni, is living in Peterborough. The other Siscoia, was a widower. The very sudden death of these two young men seems to have caused great sorrow among the Italians of town. The Fadden, while the other was brought to the undertaking rooms of M. McFadden, while the other was brought to Messrs. Lane & Kane's. The funerals took place this afternoon to the Roman Catholic cemetery.

NARROW ESCAPE AT NORWOOD

A Horse Killed at Crossing!—Two Men in Buggy Uninjured.

A report comes from Norwood to the effect that two young men had a very narrow escape at a railway crossing near the station there last evening. It appears that they had become intoxicated and were driving in a somewhat furious manner towards the crossing while a freight was passing. Unmindful of their danger, they did not check their horse until the animal crashed into the train and there was a sudden stop. The horse was killed outright and the buggy smashed, but fate was kind to the young men. They escaped uninjured.

Mark St. Epworth League.

A very interesting and pleasant evening was spent by the Mark-st. Epworth League last night.

A large number of young people assembled to hear their pastor, the Rev. J. G. Lewis, B.A., give a short and interesting account of his return voyage across the Atlantic, a sunset at sea, icebergs, a death and burial at sea, etc. Mr. and Mrs. Lewis were warmly welcomed back, and all agree that their trip to the British Isles has been of great benefit.

THE CITY AND SUBURBS

Brevities.

—A meeting of the Grasshopper Club will be held to-night at their rooms on Simcoe st.

—The officers of the 57th Regt. will meet this evening. All members are asked to be present.

Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Routley and family have closed their cottage at Stony Lake for the season.

—Stephen Scott was robbed of $30 last night. The supposed thief will appear in Court tomorrow.

—Joseph Ryan a vagrant, was told by the Police Magistrate this morning to get out of town.

—Among the newly gazetted companies is the Peterborough Cement Roofing Company; capital, $40,000; provisional directors, J. Thompson, A. Cunningham, W. Shea, W. McMillan, J. H. Symons.

—A crossing on Brunk st. at the rear of St. John's church, is badly needed for the accommodation of those members of St. John's who live in the north part of the town and who go through the park to and from church.

—The Barrie people are evidently preparing to give the 57th Regt. a good time while there. Last week's Barrie Examiner contains orders for the local regiment to turn out on Sunday morning and attend divine service in Christ church with the visitors, and the veterans are also asked to turn out. The boys leave here on Friday night at 9 o'clock and return on Monday night.

Many bouquets of beautiful flowers were last evening brought by members of George street League to a unique and pleasing entertainment. It was a floral evening, and an appropriate and able paper was read by Miss Edna Armstrong; Miss Mabel Pringle recited, Misses Ubasty sang a duett, and Miss Bertha Parnell a solo. Dr. Orotthers presided, and gave an interesting address. The flowers were distributed among the sick of the church.

—Inspector Murray, of the Attorney-General's department left last night to investigate a series of burglaries in the eastern counties of the Province. A gang of safeblowers has been operating recently with considerable success in Lennox, Addington, Renfrew, Stormont and Glengarry. They do not appear to be very expert, but are sufficiently well equipped to open the small safes usually found in the country districts. Several railway station offices have been broken into, and in some cases money stolen.—Toronto Globe.

SCUGOG'S SECOND VICTIM

MISS JOSEPHINE FORBERT OF LINDSAY LOSES HER LIFE.

Young Girl's Life Ended Somewhat Mysteriously — Did not Return Home from Band Concert.

(Lindsay Post, Monday.)

Another sad drowning fatality, under most distressing circumstances, has occurred in our midst, whereby Josephine, daughter of Mr. Frank Forbert, lost her life, and her family is plunged in most profound grief. It appears that deceased, with other members of the family, went up town on Friday night to enjoy the band concert. Quite a large crowd being on the street the family naturally became separated and on coming home and finding she had not returned, they made enquiries from friends and others, and as nothing could be learned of her whereabouts, a search was immediately instituted and kept up until this morning, when her body was found a little to the west of the swing bridge in about four feet of water. Coroner Burrows was notified and drove out to the scene of the drowning and after viewing the remains decided on holding an inquest which will take place this evening. The funeral will likely take place to-night, sometime between six and seven o'clock. Sympathy is felt for the family of deceased in view of the distressing surroundings of the case. A full investigation will be made at the inquest this evening.

SPORTING NEWS.

LACROSSE.

The final game for the intermediate championship of the O. L. A. between Orillia and Chatham will be an interesting series. Chatham has not lost a match, and has a record of fifteen straight victories, while Orillia's only losing game was at Bradford last week, when Orillia practically had the semi-finals won, having a lead of seven goals from the first half. Chatham plays in Orillia to-morrow, and Orillia goes to Chatham for Labor Day, the total score in the two matches deciding the intermediate championship.

FOOTBALL.

A meeting of the Executive Committee of the Peterborough Football Club will be held in the Oriental parlors to-night. It will be decided just what part Peterborough will play in the O. R. F. U. series this season.

THE TRIGGER.

At the Dominion Rifle Association matches at Ottawa yesterday several Peterborough men took prizes. Sergt. E. Mawry $3, Col.-Sergt. W. H. Moore $11, Sergt. F. Bartlett $5, Pte. G. Fitzgerald, Lieut. J. A. Wilson, and Pte. Pentland $4 cash.

A FREAK YACHT

Is that Owned by Mr. M'Kenzie of Balsam Lake.

Bobcaygeon, Aug. 26—The Wawinet, Capt. Cyrille, the new steam yacht owned by Mr. Mackenzie, of Balsam Lake, is in the dry dock having some iron flanges placed on her after-part to steady her steering. She is a very peculiar boat, both in design and outward appearance, and is generally looked upon as an experimental freak. Her sides are carried up perpendicular from the water line. Bow and stern are patterned after the style of a clipper, whilst the stern below the water line is cut flat, expanding well to the middle of the boat where the propeller shaft takes the water. The keelson also slopes to the bow, and as a consequence she turns on her centre like a top. She is first class in construction. Steel framed, British Columbia fir plank, and solid mahogany finishings, and, it is understood, cost in the neighborhood of 18,000. She is fitted with bunks, and has every comfort and convenience for an extended cruise.

D.R.A. Rifle Matches.

Ottawa, Aug. 30.—The annual matches of the Dominion Rifle Association were opened at the Rockcliffe range yesterday morning, under favorable weather conditions and with an attendance exceeding last year. The Tyro and the Banker's matches were begun and finished. In the Tyro the first prize of $15 went to Capt. Russell, 13th S. L. Dragoons, with a score of 34 out of a possible 35, and Pte. E. Pope of the 43rd, won the first prize of $20 in the Bankers' with a score of 33 out of a possible 35.

Back to the Steel Plant.

Pittsburg, Pa., Aug. 30.—Notices were posted at the Rankin plant of the American Steel and Wire Company yesterday, ordering all employes to report for work, to put the plant in shape for immediate resumption. The resumption will affect about 1,200 employes.

Packers Won't Confer.

Chicago, Aug. 30.—Application was made to the packers by the stock yards strikers yesterday for a conference, the purpose being to bring about peace in the industrial conflict waging at Packingtown. The conference was refused by the packers.

Died at Banff.

New York, Aug. 30.—George W. Cummings, vice-president of the American Press Association, died suddenly Aug. 28, at Banff, Northwest Territory.

Editor Stands Whipping.

Halifax, N.S., Aug. 30.—J. M. Weeks, editor Dartmouth N.S.) Patriot, was horsewhipped at Dartmouth yesterday by George McKenzie, son of the chief of police. For some years past Weeks has been publishing articles holding the chief up to ridicule. This annoyed the chief's son exceedingly, and yesterday afternoon he asked Weeks to apologize, but the editor refused, and McKenzie snatched a whip from a nearby team and trounced the editor severely.

Shot His Brother.

Hamilton, Aug. 30.—Edmont Behm, East Hannah street, is in the cells at No. 3 police station, charged with shooting his half-brother, Frederick, in the shoulder. The shooting took place at 92 Tisdale street, about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The police have not been able to find out the reason.

Harvesting Stands.

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 30.—The clear moonlight and the extreme coolness Sunday night caused great apprehension of frost. Meteorological reports yesterday showed no trace of frost in Manitoba or the Territories. The weather yesterday was cool and wet rendering harvest operations impossible.

Tried to Burn His House.

Kingston, Aug. 30.—John Berry is in jail for attempted arson. He is likely insane, as he has been acting strangely for some days. He poured oil over his effects in his house and barn at Cataraqui and set them ablaze. They were badly damaged before the neighbors subdued the flames.

Fire Caused $1,250,000 Loss.

Berlin, Aug. 30.—The largest sugar factory in Germany, named Kulmsee, near Thorn, West Prussia, was burned Sunday night, involving a loss of $1,250,000. The fire caused a rise in the sugar market at Hamburg of three cents a hundredweight.

Ottawa, Aug. 30.—The Grand Trunk Pacific Commission met yesterday for the first time. The Commission did nothing more than to meet, so far as known.

CANADA AND BLACK WATCH

FAMOUS HIGHLAND REGIMENT'S FIRST TRIP TO CANADA.

Not the First Time that it Will Have Been in this Country—Played a Glorious Part Here for the Empire.

The visit of the famous brass and pipe bands of the Black Watch or 42nd Royal Highlanders to Canada, is not the first time that this Regiment will have been in this country. One has to go back to the middle of the eighteenth century, one hundred and fifty years ago, to recall their previous visit, and the glorious part they bore in securing Canada for the British Empire. It is a very interesting coincidence also, that the famous name of the Royal Highland Regiment was conferred upon the Black Watch on account of their magnificent services at Fort Ticonderoga. The story of their magnificent struggle there will be of great interest.

After taking part in several minor engagements in the spring of 1758, the 42nd was ordered to join a body of troops selected to attack Ticonderoga, under General Amercromby. The fort could only be approached from one side which was strongly entrenched, the garrison numbering some five thousand men. The assaulting columns were unable to force themselves through the abattis, on account of the many obstacles which had been placed in their way, and suffered heavily from artillery and musketry fire, whereupon the "Black Watch" rushed forward from the reserve, hewed their way through the obstacles with their broad swords, and, no ladders having been provided, made strenuous efforts to carry the breastworks, partly by mounting on each others shoulders, and partly by placing their feet in holes which they dug with their swords and bayonets.

After a desparate struggle of four hours' duration, General Amercromby ordered retreat, an order which had to be thrice repeated before the Highlanders would withdraw.

As an eye witness described them, "They appeared like lions breaking from their chains, and, though they were unable to carry the fort, they earned immortal glory."

In this one engagement they lost eight officers, nine sergeants and 291 men killed; 17 officers, ten sergeants and 309 men wounded.

His Majesty, George the Second, recognizing their splendid bravery and sacrifice, conferred upon the "Black Watch" the title of "The Royal Highland Regiment."

In July, 1759, the second battalion joined the first at Ticonderoga, which, along with Crown Point and Isle aux Noix, was evacuated by the French.

In the campaign of 1760, the first and second battalions were largely instrumental in conquering Canada for the British, taking a leading part in the capture of Montreal.

THE RED HECKLE.

The red heckle, which is the brilliant red plume which the Black Watch Highlanders wear in their bonnets, is a mark of very great distinction to this Regiment, because it was conferred upon it for distinguished bravery, and was, prior to being given to the Black Watch, the distinguishing mark of the 11th Dragoons, who were compelled to wear in its place, the white feather and yellow top, symbolic of their conduct.

In 1794, the 42nd Regiment was stationed at Thuyl in Holland, when they received orders to march late in the night of 3[illegible], towards Bommel, distant about twenty miles, on the opposite side of the river Waal. They arrived about four o'clock on the first of January 1795, near the bank of the river, having taken a circuitous march, as did also a number more regiments, and rested till daybreak, when the attack was made, and drove the French across the river on the ice, and held a position on the bank of the river till the evening of the 3rd, when a partial retreat took place, leaving strong piquets. Early on the morning of the 14th, the piquets were overpowered by the French, and obliged to retreat towards the village of Guildermalsen, where the 42nd and other corps were stationed.

The 11th Light Dragoons were stationed in front of the village to cover the retreat of the piquets with their field pieces, and instead of resisting the charge of the French cavalry, they immediately retreated at a furious rate to the rear of the village, leaving their guns in possession of the French cavalry, who commenced dragging them off. An A.D.C. (Major Rose) came undercover the commanding officer (Major Dalrymple) of the 42nd Regiment to advance and retake the guns of the 11th Dragoons, which was immediately complied with, with the loss of one man killed and three wounded. The guns were dragged in by the men, as the horses had been cut and the horses disabled. There was no notice taken of this affair at the time, as all was hustle and confusion.

CHAPTER XVI.

SOME NEW NEIGHBORS.

ONE morning there came to a picket station where I had charge of six men an old colored woman, bent, twisted, perspiring and wild eyed, who exclaimed, "Good Lawd, boss, dey's two strings of rob sojers over yander. Dey's a-comin' dat you can't see neither end of 'em."

The old woman seemed so earnest that I was half inclined to believe her, so I asked, "Where are they, aunty? How far?"

"Jes' beyan' de wooda, boss. Dey's jes' millions of 'em."

I knew the road for miles beyond the station. It was so straight that a man could see a long way ahead. I had a horse fast enough to get me out of trouble should I suddenly find myself within rifle range, and he needed exercise, so I mounted and galloped out to reconnoiter. I passed the woods without seeing any one, and from a little hill I could see that there was no one in the fields beyond, so I returned to the station and rebuked the old woman for lying.

"It's true as de Bible, boss, what I tole you," she replied earnestly. "Dey dun tuck my two shotes 'long wid 'em. You t'ink dese ole eyes cayn't see? Yas'r, dey kin dat."

As it was about time for us to be relieved I told her to go back home and take another look and return.

A few hours after we reached camp we were startled by the bugle blowing "boots and saddles," the most peremptory alarm known in the cavalry service. As we hurried to the stables we heard the "long roll" sounded in the infantry camp near us. By the time the "assembly" sounded, the word had gone through camp that the outposts on every road, on a circuit of ten or more miles, had been driven in or captured.

As we rode out at a trot we could see infantry moving into the works on every side, light batteries taking positions behind breastworks and men at the heavy guns in the forts, while toward a series of roads different from that which we were approaching another cavalry regiment was moving. In the town we divided so as to reconnoiter three roads to find out who and where the enemy was. It did not take long to get the desired information. A Confederate gun or two on each road sent a shell or two to let us know where they were, and a dash of skirmishers at the gallop yielded two or three prisoners, who told us that the troops who had caused the alarm were two corps of Lee's army.

Well, we had gained the information for which we had gone in search, but it didn't please us at all. It foreshadowed a change of habit for us. Up to that time we had been able with a single battalion to send flying back to their camps any force that had approached the town. We could scarcely expect to do so with the newcomers. A single Confederate corps numbered more than 20,000 men; the entire force at our post numbered less than 4,000. There was nothing to joke about. Men spoke to one another about the situation and reasoned about it, but in sentences no longer or more sensible than those above. Every one seemed laboring under a sense of personal affront—affront which he was unable to resent.

We went to camp, and the enemy went to fortifying, as we soon afterward learned when on one reconnoissance or another we stumbled upon forts and breastworks where ones had been clear roadway and fields. Weeks afterward we learned from Richmond papers that Longstreet had been in our neighborhood for forage and food for Lee's army. Had General Longstreet explained his purpose to us when he came, a great lot of unprofitable worry might have been spared. We might even have complimented him on the wisdom displayed in the selection of the territory, for the country round about us was fertile and well tilled and had not been laid under contribution by soldiers, except perhaps to the extent of a few sweet potatoes, chickens and turkeys. By driving in our pickets Longstreet got possession of two railroad lines which gave him free communication, barring the few miles within our lines, between Richmond and North Carolina.

But none of these things did General Longstreet explain to us. Whatever may have been his own intentions as he meandered from farm to farm for corn and bacon, his men acted as if they would like to draw forage from the commissary department of our own post and get anything else the town might hold, ourselves included. If a man doesn't want peaceable intentions misconstrued, he shouldn't intrust them to thousands of fellows with guns in their hands. Such men always get things mixed.

Of one thing we felt assured—the enemy could not cut our line of retreat, which also was the route of our supplies, for this was over causeways through the Dismal Swamp, a dark, deep, but friendly ally, which could have swallowed an army like Longstreet's without more than whetting its own appetite. The swamp was not exactly mud, but almost any part of it could be turned to mud in a few minutes by the tramp of a few men. And such mud! A rich, black ooze of decayed vegetation, into which, except in midsummer or midwinter, the foot would sink as into moss, while right under the surface was a tangle of roots which never tired of playing bootjack for the pedestrian. To have one's boot pulled off without warning is amazing. To afterward drag the same boot from a wet full of ooze into which the other boot is slowly sinking is still worse. One of Longstreet's men got through the swamp to the railroad track and captured one of our pickets, but he admitted that he was sorry he did it. He had trouble enough in returning to wish he had only himself to think of. To get enough men through to destroy our railroad track would have been impossible.

So we could run away if the post became too hot to hold us, and we couldn't be starved. After thinking this over the situation didn't seem so bad as at first. We wished that General Lee had sent us cavalry instead of infantry to fight. We were not accustomed to meeting infantry and might make mistakes. Still, there was a chance of improving our military education under so able a tutor as Longstreet.

For the next few days our principal duty was to find out where the enemy was. We always succeeded. We had only to go a mile or two outside our own lines to be loudly assured that it was not necessary to go farther, and the mounted skirmishers who dashed in the direction of the first shots always saw gray figures lying down in shallow rifle pits, with breastworks far in the rear. Sometimes we would take some infantry with us—enough to engage the enemy smartly after we had found them and fallen back. But this became unpopular so far as we troops were concerned. We always had to stand by as a reserve, near enough to protect the "[illegible]" in case they were charged by the enemy. To sit still and be fired at or even to be within range of guns fired at some one else and not be allowed to reply is the most depressing experience a soldier can possibly have. It was new to us, and we didn't like it. We preferred our own old way of fighting—the dash, the chase, the battle perhaps, but no standing around under fire after we were done shooting.

UPSET THE PIANO LAMP

4-Year Old Mildred Funnell Dead and Her Mother Burned.

Mrs. Funnell, Confronted With Her Baby Running to the Door With Her Pinafore Ablaze, Attempted to Extinguish the Flames But Her Own Clothes Caught Fire With Serious Results—Little Girl Died About Midnight.

Toronto, Aug. 30.—While her mother sat at the front door last night Baby Mildred Funnell knocked a lamp from the piano and started a fire that cost her life and endangers that of her mother. She was the youngest daughter of Robert Funnell of 22 Mansfield avenue.

Mrs. Funnell was sitting on the front steps with her brother-in-law, John Elliott, and the little one was playing in the parlor with some of the neighbor's children. Katie McFee, a fourteen year old girl, living nearby, had come in and was about to play the piano. Suddenly deciding to go home for music she left the house, taking Emily Funnell, a girl of 11 years with her. Three little ones were left alone in the room and they climbed to the stool and commenced drumming on the piano. In some way the piano drape was pulled down and with it the lamp.

At the sound of the crash Mrs. Funnell rose hastily and was confronted with her baby running to the door, her little muslin pinafore all ablaze. The mother turned to extinguish the flames and in an instant her own clothes were on fire. Then some of the men nearby came to the rescue.

In the meantime the other children had escaped from the house, which was burning fiercely and an alarm was turned in. The child was taken to a nearby drug store and the mother to a neighbor's house. As soon as an ambulance could be summoned they were taken to the Sick Children's and the Western Hospitals respectively. Shortly after midnight it was reported that little Mildred had died from her injuries. At a late hour the mother was doing well, although she had been severely burned.

Extinguishing the fire was only the work of a few minutes for the firemen, but the front part of the house was completely gutted, and most of the furniture destroyed. The damage is $400, insured.

Head Caught Between Cars.

Toronto, Aug. 30.—On his way with horses to the Exhibition, James Wilkin of Beaverton, foreman of the Tisdale stud, was killed at the Don yesterday evening. Wilkin was standing in one of the horse cars, near the open doors, chatting with his employer. Their section of the train had just been detached from the Midland mixed. By an error of the trainmen, the two cars first dropped off had not been taken sufficiently far on their siding, and the corner of the first one almost brushed the train as it passed on the other siding. A double jolt threw Wilkin forward, and the head of the unfortunate man was crushed between the corner of the car and the door jamb. He was extricated, but he bled to death in 15 minutes. Wilkin was a Scotchman, 35 years of age, and leaves a widow and two children living on the Tisdale farm. He had been in the employ of Mr. Tisdale for over 12 years. His parents are living in Aberdeenshire, Scotland.

Drowned at Morrisburg.

Morrisburg, Aug. 30.—Clyde Cole, who was employed by James Carrigan, the Cleveland millionaire, at his island opposite this place, was drowned yesterday morning about 7 o'clock. He was carrying water from the wharf to the island, and fell into the river, which is about 14 feet deep at that point, with a considerable current. The body was found near the place where the accident occurred.

DOBBIE IS FREE TRADER

Solicitor-General of Tasmania Fears a Change.

Financial News Does Not Take Seriously the Decrease in Revenue of Grand Trunk Railway—Company Credited With Attempting to Reduce the Rate of Expenditure—French Seek Further Concessions in Newfoundland.

London, Aug. 30.—(C. A. P.)—At a conference of the Institute of Journalists at Glasgow, Solicitor-General Dobbie of Tasmania spoke of the enormous influence the press exercised over the destinies of the British Empire. He hoped nothing would be done to endanger Imperial interests and the enormous advantages the Empire now possessed by altering her hold on historical free trade traditions.

To Send Children Here.

London, Aug. 30.—(C. A. P.)—Dr. Barnardo is appealing for 500 girls each of £10, to send as many children to Canada.

Not Taken Seriously.

London, Aug. 30.—(C.A.P.)—The Financial News says it must be admitted that the Grand Trunk has made a very auspicious beginning in the new half year. It had been anticipated by the market that the revenue statement for July would show a net increase of something between £4,000 and £10,000 instead of a net decrease over the whole system of £8,100.

The Financial Times says there is yet reason for crediting the Grand Trunk authorities with endeavoring not altogether unsuccessfully to reduce the ratio of expenditure. That the market will not take the disappointment very seriously is shown pretty well by the fact that quotations only declined from ¼ to ½ on balance. It should not be forgotten that the rather serious falling off in receipts has been considerably mitigated by the fact that the period of comparison has recorded a total gross advance of £124,000 for 26 working days at this time against 27 days last year.

The Times believes a good harvest trade in the Dominion will yet greatly improve the Grand Trunk situation.

Seek Further Concessions.

London, Aug. 30.—(C. A. P.)—The Paris correspondent of The Times wires that, judging from the resolution passed by the departmental councils of the Seine, Inferioure, Ille et Vilaine, et Loire Inferioure, the local fishery interests of France have not yet abandoned the hope of bringing effective pressure upon the Government to secure further concessions for French fishermen before the Newfoundland convention is ratified by these departmental councils. The opponents demand the repeal of the Newfoundland Bait Act, and authorization for French fishermen to purchase bait along the whole coast and the right to erect establishments for the curing of fish and lobsters on the French shore.

Lord Dundonald For Ceylon.

London, Aug. 30.—(C. A. P.)—The London correspondent of The Bristol Mercury says Lord Dundonald sailed Saturday to take up the command of the troops in Ceylon for about a year. A rumor is current in official military circles that Lord Dundonald has been selected for the Governorship and Commander-in-Chief of Ceylon. Nothing is known at the various offices of the steamship companies running steamers to Ceylon re Lord Dundonald having sailed or booked passage.

FINDS BOER TREASURE.

Cousin of General Kemp Picks Up $1,250,000.

Johannesburg, Aug. 30.—Mr. Kemp, a cousin of Gen. Kemp, the Boer commander, has discovered beyond Spelonken, in the Northern Transvaal, the treasure removed from Pretoria before the entry of Field Marshal Lord Roberts. The value of the treasure is estimated at $1,250,000, of which the Government will receive half.

FOR HUDSON BAY.

Steamer Arctic Expected to Sail About Sept. 15.

Quebec, Que., Aug. 30.—Nearly one hundred thousand dollars' worth of stores, comprising almost every article of food and clothing have been put aboard the Government steamer Arctic, which is now almost ready to start on its voyage to the head of the Mackenzie River.

Will Summon the Diet.

Helsingfors, Finland, Aug. 30.—The definite announcement of the convening of the Diet on Dec. 6 has created an excellent impression in Finland, where it had been feared for months that it was the intention of the Russian authorities to refuse to summon it.

Antwerp Fire Subdued.

Antwerp, Aug. 30.—The fire in the oil tank near here continued Monday, but it is now practically ended. Nine bodies have been recovered, and several are still missing. The loss is estimated at 10,000,000 gallons, and the damage at nearly $2,500,000.

IN OLD QUEBEC.

Archbishop of Canterbury Will be a Busy Day During His Stay.

Quebec, Que., Aug. 30.—Yesterday morning the Archbishop of Canterbury inspected the silver communion plate presented by George II. to the Anglican Cathedral. Subsequently he visited H.M.S. Ariadne, in company with Mrs. Davidson. His Lordship Bishop Dunn, Miss Dunn, Rev. E. A. Dunn, Miss Coulcher, Rev. Mr. Powell of Baltimore, J. Pierpont Morgan and one of the chaplains. The party were received by Admiral Douglas and shown over the splendid and powerful warship. Luncheon, for which a large number of invitations were issued, was partaken of at Bishopsthrope at 1 o'clock.

In the afternoon the party visited the famous Shrine of Ste. Anne De Beaupre. The church and the different relics were inspected by the party, all of whom seemed to take considerable interest in what they saw. After a short stay the party returned to Montmorency Falls, where the natural steps, the Kent House (the residence of the Duke of Kent when stationed at Quebec), and the Holt-Renfrew collection of animals were visited.

On returning to town the party dined at Bishopsthrope. There were a large number of leading citizens who had been specially invited to meet His Grace present. With the exception of a luncheon at Bishopsthrope, for which several invitations have been issued, no program has been prepared for to-day.

To Montreal Wednesday.

Montreal, Aug. 30.—His Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury will arrive in Montreal on Wednesday evening, instead of Thursday morning, as originally planned. His Grace will travel from Quebec to Montreal on a special Canadian Pacific train, arriving at the Place Viger Station about seven o'clock in the evening. This change will not affect the program for the Montreal visit as already arranged.

5,000 RENDERED HOMELESS.

Fire Destroys the City of Binang in Laguna Province.

Manila, Aug. 30.—The city of Binang in Laguna Province, Island of Luzon, has been destroyed by fire. One hundred persons perished in the flames, and 5,000 were rendered homeless. The loss is estimated at $200,000. The Government is furnishing shelter and food to the people made destitute by the fire.

WHAT WOMEN SHOULD KNOW.

That the cause of a great deal of suffering, usually supposed to be on account of female disorders, is overcome by ANTI-PILL, the discovery of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt.

A great amount of women's ailments are caused by the food that is taken being turned (through improper digestion) into poison instead of nutrition. This poison carried by the blood throughout the system, makes weak women who are hardly ever well—nerves in dreadful condition—limbs ache, back aches, head aches—billious, constipated. ANTI-PILL, the Great System Treatment, will correct these troubles—it starts its work by making a well stomach—it insures strength to weak women—It is harmless at any stage or condition of a woman's life, and there is no time ANTI-PILL cannot be used with safety. Any woman who cares to may use a bottle of ANTI-PILL free from any expense. If satisfactory results do not follow its use, mail us wrapper with name of druggist from whom purchased and get your money back by return mail. Wilson-Fyfe Co., Niagara Falls, Ont. A month's treatment for 50 cents.

MILLINERS GETTING BUSY

Many of them were in Toronto Attending the Openings.

There were hundreds of milliners in Toronto yesterday, attending the openings. For the coming season it would be erroneous to say that any one style is correct, and all others wrong. There are so many styles and of such diversity that ladies will have no difficulty in obtaining becoming head dress. Ribbons will be plentifully used as a hat garniture, during the coming season, taffeta, satin mervueilleux, Ottoman cord and moire in widths 60, 80 and 90 being preferred. Velvet ribbons will be greatly in vogue, all widths will be used in black, and widths five, 1 and 2, while No. 5, 9 and 16 will be used in colors. Among the materials that seem to be most in evidence are taffeta silk, satin de nole and gauvelleux, feather plush, pressed or sqaushed velvets, silk plush chiffon velvet and smoke velvet. Chenille promises to be a prime favorite in cords, braids and headwork while beads and large buttons will also be used.

As regard to the colors to be worn this season the range is almost unlimited. Probably one of the newest and most striking shades is tangerine or coque de roche. This is a sort of burnt orange. It is already a favorite. Combining as it does with brown, emerald, russia, myrtle, fawn and natur, as well as dark shades in general, it will naturally make these shades favorites also.

Birds, wings and military pate-gems made of coque feathers, breast effect, ostrich feathers, including the new Gatati variety, and birds of paradise will be the most stylish of feather trimmings. Velvet flowers and foliage will give a good account of themselves and it will be an exceptionally good ornament season.

THE HORSE CAUSED TROUBLE

And the County Magistrate Council' cated the Indians

Mr. Geo. Edmonson, County Magistrate conciliated a number of Chemong Lake Indians this morning in a rather peculiar case. One of the band has a cutter fractious horse, and some days ago the animal broke into a field of oats and did considerable damage. The owner of the oats impounded the horse, and in due season the Indian applied for its release. The pound-keeper, Mr. Dan. Wheeting, wanted his fees and expenses, but could not get them, and so the horse was sold to a third Indian for something like $67. Then the owner of the horse got busy, secured legal advice, and this morning several of the band called on the Magistrate to have the matter straightened out. The owner of the oats secured damages, the pound-keeper got his fees, the Indian was restored to the possession of his horse, after paying five dollars to the Indian who had purchased it, and who, of course, was not out on the transaction. The Indian villagers, it might be added, are ahead of Peterborough, in that they have a pound, and also keep their weeds cut.

OPPOSED TO THE PREFERENCE

IS MR JAMES KENDRY MANAGER OF THE AUBURN WOOLLEN MILLS

Says the Woollen Industry in Canada has been Practically Ruined by the Preference.

The Toronto News publishes to-day an interview with Mr. Jas. Kendry, M.P., in which he expresses his opinion upon the Chamberlain preferential tariff. The News says:

Mr. James Kendry, M.P., manager of the Auburn Woolen mills, and late manager of the Canada Woolen Mills Company, when questioned as to his opinion on the Chamberlain preferential tariff, as it affected the Canadian woolen trade, made this rather characteristic remark:

"I am opposed to the preferance idea in any form."

Mr. Kendry, continuing, said that he had always opposed the preferential proposal in Parliament, and believed that it had worked a decided injury to the Canadian woolen industry. He believed that the Canadian Parliament should legislate for Canadians only. When asked if he did not believe in the opinion advanced by many that an industry in England was as good for the Empire as one in Canada, he said that he did not.

RUINED BY PREFERENCE.

Mr. Kendry said that the woolen industry in Canada had been practically ruined by the preference and as an evidence of this fact said that at the present time there were fewer woolen mills in operation in Canada by fifty per cent. than there was fifteen years ago. This condition is attributed solely to the preference given to English woolens, which enabled the English manufacturers to send in inferior goods bought at job prices and to practically kill the trade in Canadian woolens. This was particularly true in the case of the cheaper lines of woolens, in the manufacture of which the English manufacturer, by reason of his ability to get cheaper labor, could put more work than the Canadian manufacturer, who has to pay 50 per cent more for labor.

Mr. Kendry said that his mill, and all the mills which manufacture higher classes of woolens, were not hit as hard by the preference as those in which the lower grades of goods were made, and cited as proof of this fact the condition of the mills owned by the Canada Woolen Mills Co., in all of which cheap goods are made, and which were nearly all closed or working short time.

"You will find," said Mr. Kendry, "that the Canadian woolen mills have fewer orders on their books for spring delivery for 1905 than they ever had before at this time of the year, and this in spite of the fact that there are more woolen goods sold in Canada than ever before."

A STATEMENT DENIED.

"Is it not true," Mr. Kendry was asked, "that the reason as stated by some prominent men in the woolen trade, for the decrease in the volume of business done by the Canadian mills is that they do not manufacture the right class of goods?"

To this statement Mr. Kendry gave a positive denial, and stated that his mill as well as other Canadian mills were turning out goods equal in every respect to those made in England. "A few years ago, in fact, until the preference came into force, the Canadian mills had actually driven the English makers of beavers out of the Canadian market. Since the preference came into force, however, the English goods had gradually superseded the home product, and at the present time there are twenty English woolen makers doing business here to every one before the preference.

"In spite of the fact that there are woolen goods to the value of $218,000,000 used in Canada every year, the Canadian mills are actually producing less than they were 15 years ago. He said that he could name numbers of woolen mills, which, by reason of the preference, had been forced out of business.

In Mr. Kendry's opinion the Canadian woolen industry should be protected to the extent of at least 35 per cent.

OPPOSED TO CHAMBERLAIN'S

Mr. Kendry wished it distinctly understood that he was opposed to the preferential policy advanced by Mr. Chamberlain in every particular and said that as he understood it, the policy was briefly that the manufacturing should be done in England and that Canada should grow the wheat.

The mills here are running steadily, but Mr. Kendry's explanation for the activity displayed is that his mills make only high-grade goods, for which there is a better market than for the cheaper lines.

Woman's Skull Fractured.

Toronto, Aug. 30.—Miss Price, 12 Esther street, was knocked down by a Puritan Laundry wagon in Queen street last night, driven by Charles Rolston, 210 Borden street. Her skull was fractured and she was taken to the hospital.

Scalded By Explosion.

Owen Sound, Aug. 30.—George Jones and Charles Harris, two chair factory employes, were out in a steam launch Saturday afternoon, and let the boiler go dry. The attempt to fill it up resulted in an explosion, and the serious scalding about the heads and bodies of both young men. It is feared that Harris may lose his eyesight.

STORY OF THE HARI-KARI

THE HORRIBLE SELF-DESTRUCTION AMONG THE JAPANESE.

Practised by Nobles at Command of their Emperor to Wipe out Disgrace or Misconduct.

Tokio, Aug. 29—Now that Japan and things Japanese are so much in the public eye, many stories are told about 'hari-kari," the happy dispatch by suicide of the Japanese people. Much has been written about it that is incorrect. This is the real story:

This method of self-execution was established in the fourteenth century under Ashi-Kaga dynasty. A noble or high official had offended the laws had been disloyal to the Emperor, had failed carelessly or traitorously in his duties to his country. In the civilized west it would have been the axe or rope; in Japan so keen was the sense of dishonor, so remorseless the self-accusation, that hundreds of Japanese were ready, at their ruler's bidding, and, oftener still, at the order of their own conscience, to face a self-inflicted death. If the culprit were ordered to kill himself a humane law allowed the forfeiture of only half his property to the state. If, as constantly happened, the gnawings of conscience drove him to the deed without his lord's command, the unhappy man knew that all his property would descend to his heirs, and that no dishonor would attach to his family name.

When the Mikado desired the death he sent by a high functionary a sympathetic letter honoring the victim, palliating his guilt, and courteously intimating that his early demise would be regarded as a benefit to the empire in general and to the Mikado in particular. With this missive he usually sent an exquisite jewelled dagger with which the deed might be fittingly done.

In the largest room of his baronial hall or in the center of a temple was constructed a dais some three or four inches from the ground.

Enter the principal actor clothed in his robes of honor, the ceremonial begilded dress of the hereditary noble. (At this side walks his second or "kaishaku," he who will play a tragic part in what is coming; behind walk the witnesses, friends and officials, who range themselves in a semi-circle around the dais.

Mounting the platform the victim prostrates himself in prayer for a moment, and then turns to face the company, first bowing low his greetings to those who "honor" him by being in "at the death."

Then one of the officials brings forward a ceremonial stand used for offerings, on which lies wrapped in silk the dirk, nine inches or so in length, and with point and edge razor-sharp. This he offers with many obeisances to the victim, who takes it reverently, raising it to his forehead. Then putting the weapon in front of him he must make a public confession of his crime, praising his lord and condemning himself.

This over, he undresses, letting his robes fall till he is naked to his waist. Every movement of the grim ceremony is governed by precedent, and he must now, according to custom, tuck his wide sleeves under his knees to prevent himself falling backward, for a Japanese noble must die falling forward.

DAGGER'S WORK.

He takes the dagger; for one awful moment he gazes at it, and then, with fearful heroism, he plunges it into his stomach, below the waist on the left side, draws it across to the right, and turning it, gives a slight cut upwards.

It is now the kaishaku's, or seconds, turn. He has been crouching at his friend's side, holding the sword which is to give the "coup de grace," and, as the brave self-torturer completes the agonising horror of the "belly-cut" (which is what hari-kari means) he leaps up, and, raising his sword with a whirling movement, brings it down on the outstretched neck. It is all over, the proud noble lies headless on the felt mat, while those present watch in awed silence. The second bows low to the company, wipes his sword, and steps down from the dais; and the blood-stained disk is carried off by an official to serve as proof to the Mikado that the heroic act has been consummated.

Such, then, was hari-kari, or the happy despatch, and stories of the most amazing heroism are told in connection with its performance. One young noble, barely out of his teens, not content with giving himself the necessary cuts, slashed himself thrice horizontally and twice vertically. Then he stabbed himself in the throat until the dirk protruded on the other side with the sharp edge to the front, and with a supreme effort drove the knife forward with both hands through his neck.

But with all these examples of self-immolation and patriotism the nineteenth century saw the custom waning in popularity. In the civil wars of the '60's, when the tycoon, beaten on every side, fled to Yedde, a follower protested that the only means to retrieve the honor of the great family of Tokugawa was to disembowel himself, and to prove the sincerity of his advice, declared he would do the like. The tycoon is reported to have said the Japanese equivalent for "Bosh!" and left the room; whereupon his faithful adherent withdrew to his own apartment and took leave of a decadent world.

But the final blow to the custom seems to have been the case of an old and very valued servant of the crown, who was ordered to commit hari-kari, and who had a specially georgous knife sent him by the Mikado.

The wily fellow, by no means tired of his life, bolted by a French coaling steamer to Havre, travelled to "Gay Paree," and, horror of horrors, actually sold the Mikado's jewelled weapon for $30,000!

And so with the war of the Meiji and the overthrow of the Shogunate, it has gone with nearly all of Japan's picturesque barbarism, never to return; and a noble in disgrace at Tokio to-day is not called upon to show himself a worthy descendant of the mediaeval Jap. He is simply ostracised.

JUST A LITTLE OBSCURE

Part of Up-to-date Description of Golf Game.

Even the free use of legitimate golf terms to cause a conversation to be somewhat mystifying to the uninstructed, but the following, reproduced by the London Golf Illustrated from a contemporary is liable to puzzle anyone:

"At the fifteen Mr. Simpkins led with a mashy bent, but nothing daunted the Mid-Surry representative got a perfect heroe straight down the drake, which left him only a kerbim to the green. The crowd here proved somewhat inconvenient, and Mr. Simpkins who had a globy tie, had some difficulty in extangerishing himself. He succeeded, however, and his ball lay just short of the axminster. Mr. Fly, who was lying five yards from the hole exuded his putt for three, standing one up with three to play.

"Two gee-whizzers and a bim saw the players to the next green, the spinning being of a high order. Mr. Fly had to play the curiosities and appeared much bothered by the cabute on the green, which was of a highly antimonious character. In spite of this, he lay dead. Mr. Simpkins rebutted him with the like, and Mr. Fly, failing to exube, beat the hole. The players were, therefore, now all square with one flogo, and the excitement was infradacious.

"Mr. Simpkins sliced his tee shot into the refrange, while Mr. Fly with another gee-whizikins, right off the mat, was close to the cemetery. Mr. Simpkins found his ball badly contagrified, but took his sibilok and smooding it well out, also reached the plane of interment. Mr. Fly, after careful aim, holed a 12-yard putt and everyone thought the match was over, but Mr. Simpkins is never beaten.

"Seizing his Schmeetudy, he rolled a mossy ball, which pringled its way toward the hole, and dropped in. The halving of the match was hailed with loud cheers. The players had two birds on the match and a clawl a hole."

Miss Whittaker, a prominent club woman of Savannah, Ga., tells how she was entirely cured of ovarian troubles by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I heartily recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as a Uterine Tonic and Regulator. I suffered for four years with irregularities and Uterine troubles. No one but those who have experienced this dreadful agony can form any idea of the physical and mental misery these sufferers who are thus afflicted. Your Vegetable Compound cured me within three months. I was fully restored to health and strength, and now my periods are regular and painless. What a blessing it is to be able to obtain such a remedy when so many doctors fail to help you. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is better than any doctor or medicine I ever had. Very truly yours, MISS EASY WHITTAKER, 604 36th St., W. Savannah, Ga.—proof positive of original of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced.

The testimonials which we are constantly publishing from grateful women prove beyond a doubt the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to conquer female diseases.

TANNERY FOR KINGSTON

Mr. Andrew Webb to Superintend Construction of one for Hon. E. J Davis.

Mr. Andrew Webb, leaves for Kingston on Thursday. He will there superintend the construction of some large buildings in connection with a tannery to be erected there by Hon. E. J. Davis. These buildings will be of concrete, and in the use of this material Mr. Webb has had considerable experience. The buildings to be erected immediately are a leek house one hundred by sixty feet and two storeys high, and a large stable one hundred by fifty feet, also two storeys high. The main building will be reared in the spring. Mr. Webb requires a large number of men for the work and will bring a force from Peterborough. Hon. E. J. Davis also owns a big tannery in Newmarket.

The contractors on the new tannery have rented the mould boards which were used by the Sugar Beet Company in the erection of their factory here, and these are being shipped to Kingston.

SWINGING INTO AUTUMN

The GOLDEN LION has gathered from the world's best looms a world's wealth of beauty in Elegant Fall Goods. From England come rich and beautiful cloths, as well as serviceable fabrics from the Fatherland—from Germany and America others equally as charming.

Some of the newest European novelties that can now be seen are—

New Suitings and Costume Cloths
Priestly's Black and Colored Suitings
Priestly's Dress Goods and Rainproof Cloths
New Autumn Dress Trimmings
New Autumn Styles in Dress Skirts
New Rainproof Coats
New Autumn Cloaks and Suits
Ready-to-wear Hats, etc.

There is not a loop-hole for question as to the supremacy of Fair's Dress Goods this season—not a point upon which they can be "Port Arthured." Quality, tastefulness and value gainsay comparison at every turn.

Dress-Making

This department was re-opened for the season on Monday, August 29th, under the capable management of Miss Neild, who has recently returned from an extended visit to the leading fashion centres.

MISS ARMSTRONG, head of the Millinery Dept., returned recently from New York, after a visit to the wholesale markets. She is now attending the Toronto wholesale millinery openings, where we have a large staff of trimmers preparing for the Autumn season.

DECISIVE ENGAGEMENT IS RAGING

Four Hundred Thousand Men are in Battle.

KUROPATKIN FACES ATTACK

Three Combined Armies of Japanese--Terrific Artillery Fire Does Terrible Havoc--Engagement Becomes Hand-to-Hand Fight--Japs Lose Ten Guns.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 31.—(3.35 a. m.)—The great battle of Liaoyang, which began early Tuesday morning continued throughout the day with increasing intensity, but up to this hour no further official details beyond the brief telegrams given out in the afternoon have been received by the War Office. Every confidence is expressed in Gen. Kuropatkin's ability to meet the Japanese assault on ground of his own chosing, but the city is hungrily awaiting further news of the progress of the fight.

The Japanese forces engaged in the battle can only be estimated here, but they are believed to number about 200,000 men. Gen. Kuropatkin is known to have six army corps and 147 squadrons of cavalry, in which great confidence is reposed, bringing up the Russian total to about the same number that the Japanese have. How the armies compare with regard to artillery is not definitely known, though throughout the war, the Japanese have shown great preponderance [or this arm and great skill in its use.]

Reports from the front credit the Japanese with having about 200 guns and many mountain battery, and it is known that they recently shipped 24 heavy guns to Yinkow. Four of these guns already have been mentioned in these despatches as being in action.

Liaoyang Fortified.

Gen. Kuropatkin, in addition to his field batteries, has a number of very heavy guns placed at important positions at Liaoyang, where the Russians have been strongly fortifying for some time.

The Japanese claim to have captured two field batteries during the past two days. Russian official accounts admit the loss of only six guns.

It is stated that a Japanese battery was captured south of Anshanshan during the preliminary fighting, and that several Japanese guns have been destroyed since then.

Little of the strategic situation has developed so far. Official news from the front says that there was desperate fighting on the southern centre, while that from there it appears that the Japanese are endeavoring to reach the Russian right from the neighborhood of the junction of the Taitse and Sakhe Rivers. The fighting on the western flank appears to have approached within three miles of Liaoyang.

Battle Began Monday.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 31.—In a brief telegram received yesterday morning, Kuropatkin says the general advance of the Japanese began yesterday at noon, the Russian outposts falling back upon the main lines. The heaviest fighting was taking place when his despatch was sent from a point ten miles southeast of Liaoyang, where the Japanese seem to be concentrating for their main blow. The Russians suffered principally from the shrapnel fire of the Japanese artillery. The Japanese selected the Mikado's birthday for the decisive battle, and it will not be surprising if to-day is also signalized by a grand assault on Port Arthur.

Sakharoff Reports.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 31.—A despatch from Gen. Sakharoff, dated from Liaoyang at 10 a.m. yesterday, says:

"The main Japanese attack is being directed against the Russian centre and right, where the Russian losses have been the heaviest. The Japanese posted numerous artillery within range of all the Russian positions during the night. A hot fire was opened at 5 a.m., and by nine o'clock the Japanese were close to the Russian positions.

"The Japanese shrapnel fire inflicted considerable losses on our troops at several points. Lieut.-Col. Fokatieloff, commanding a battery of the Sixth East Siberian brigade, was killed. The Japanese are delivering an obstinate attack on our centre, and at nine o'clock this morning they were in close proximity to our advance guard."

General Sakharoff also reports that a large Japanese force is advancing northward along the Taitse River Valley, west of the railroad.

The Russian cavalry which prevented the turning of the Russian right flank Sunday, had to operate amongst the fields of Chinese corn, which was above the heads of the riders.

The latest telegrams from the front state that the Japanese have 1,200 guns near Liaoyang.

Japs Lose 10 Guns.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 31.—A despatch from Mukden says that in the stubbornly fought battle which has been in progress near Liaoyang since yesterday morning, all attempts of the Japanese to turn the Russian flank have been repulsed. It is said at Mukden that the Japanese lost over ten guns.

Historical Hour.

Liaoyang, Aug. 31.—The Russian correspondent of the Associated Press supplied the following yesterday: "The historical moment has arrived and the battle of Liaoyang is in progress.

"It was not till 6 o'clock yesterday morning that the first gun was fired, but soon afterwards hundreds of cannon were thundering along our southern and eastern fronts.

"The centre of our position is located near the famous tower of Liaoyang, about seven miles to the southeast. The fighting there was of the most desperate character, but is now going much nearer of the flanks.

"The bursting of the shells is distinctly audible, and from the city it is easy to see the shells bursting.

"Heavy guns were brought into action by both sides yesterday, and their dull roar was discernible above the sharper detonation of field and mountain guns.

"The Russians are using big ordnance, which is the position in the [illegible] near ring of the Liaoyang forts."

Lested All Day.

London, Aug. 31.—A despatch from Liaoyang to a news agency, dated Aug. 30, says: "The Japanese artillery fire only ceased at 6 o'clock this evening. The casualties have not yet been ascertained.

"The third Russian corps repulsed a hot Japanese assault, the Japanese are being hurled back by bayonet charges, firstly by the 23rd and then by the 24th Regiments, which received and repulsed the enemy no less than six times.

"Two Japanese companies which succeeded in occupying a Russian position were mistaken for Russians and annihilated by Japanese artillery fire.

"At 4 o'clock in the afternoon the Japanese concentrated their fire on a Russian southern detachment, which also tried to flank the detachment from the right under the protection of the batteries.

TREATING MAKING

In perusing the correspondence respecting the Alaska boundary recently brought down, there appears one aspect of the case not peculiar to it, but affecting all negotiations with the United States.

In conversation in January, 1903, with Sir Michael Herbert, the British ambassador at Washington, Mr. Hay, Secretary of State, said that "a treaty involving submission of questions to foreign arbitration or to Hague tribunal would have no chance of ratification by the United States Senate."

About the same time Sir Michael Herbert wrote to Lord Miato, "Secretary of State has again asked me for an answer to-day on the ground that present moment (they) might be favourable for ratification of treaty and if question is further postponed Senators attitude may change."

This threat of the adverse action of the Senate is one of the most effective weapons of negotiators for the United States. In discussing trade relations and other matters the British and Canadian representatives, when suggesting a compromise or mutual concessions, have always been met by the assertion that it would be useless for the United States representatives to give way on the particular point at issue, as their Senate would refuse to ratify it. And this is no empty threat, for history shows that the United States Senate has refused to ratify or has insisted on amendments if they did not get decidedly the best of the bargain. Any point given in their favour they want to retain but any compensatory concession they refuse to allow. Thus a fair reciprocal bargain, an equable give and take arrangement, can never be carried out. Not only does this apply to the completed treaty, when they have the unfair advantage of a second consideration of the whole matter, but while the negotiations are proceeding it interferes with free and fair discussion or mutual concessions.

No other power can safely negotiate with the United States unless when appointing plenipotentiaries the Senate should ratify their conclusions in advance.

And it was when negotiation with such slippery customers that Sir Wilfrid was such a traitor to the interests of Canada as to abandon the right we had acquired of having treaties affecting us submitted to our Parliament for ratification. Though a party to framing the treaty and consulted at every step he omitted this proviso and put us back to where we were before Confederation.

VICTORIA CHEESE BOARD

The Highest Price Paid was 8 & 13-16 Cents.

The adjourned meeting of the Victoria County Cheese Board was held Monday morning at Lindsay. Last week's cheese was disposed of in quick order, by the buyers. The buyers present were Messrs. Whitton, Cook, Fitzgerald, Flavelle and Brown. Before commencing the regular business the railway rates were discussed. Last year the rate per hundred to Montreal from here was 23c, but this year it is 25c per cwt., and 28c from Dunsford. Mr. Flavelle stated that the C. P. R. would not switch on to the G. T. R. tracks here, so that the cheese had to go to Peterborough.

The board fees due were paid by the cadesmen who were present.

THE BIDDING.

The bidding came quick and the cheese was soon disposed of. Mr. Fitzgerald opened with 8 1-4c. but Mr. Cook raised to 8 5-16c, Mr. Fitzgerald again raisings to 8 3-8c. Mr. Whitton then bid 8 1-2c. and Mr. Flavelle raised to 8 5-8c. Mr. Whitton then called 8 5-8c for the Board, but Mr. Fitzgerald raised to 8 11-16c for the Board; then Mr. Whitton offered 8 3-4c for selections, but Mr. Fitzgerald again went up a notch, calling 8 3-4 for the Board. Mr. Whitton evidently wanted cheese and so raised to 8 13-16c for selections.

Mr. Whitton then proceeded to call Roseboro, Omemee and Pine Grove, which accepted, and offered 8 3-4c for further selections, but Mr. Fitzgerald again went up a notch, calling 8 3-4 for the Board. Mr. Whitton evidently wanted cheese and so raised to 8 13-16c for selections.

Mr. Whitton then proceeded to call Roseboro, Omemee and Pine Grove, which accepted, and offered 8 3-4c for further selections, but Mr. Fitzgerald—"Balance of the Board at 8 3-4c.

Mr. Fitzgerald called the following factories, which accepted: Star, Dunsford, Mariposa, North Verulam, North Ops, Bobcaygeon, Maple Leaf, North Manty.

Mr. Flavelle got Cambray, Cameron and Palestine.

President Robertson — It paid us well to adjourn for a week. The next sale will be two weeks from to-day.

HOW SUBMARINES WORK

Remarkable Steadiness is a Feature of these Craft.

Recently, thanks to the kindness of Capt. Bacon, commanding the submarine flotilla of the British navy, I accompanied a submarine division upon tactical evolutions, and witnessed the manoeuvring of these craft under the conditions of war, says a writer in the London Express. Embarking on board torpedo boat No. 26, at Pembroke, we steamed down the Haven to abreast of the old Town of Milford, where three submarines lay awaiting us. These were respectively No. 5, Holland type, and Nos. A2 and A3.

The signal was made to form into single column of line at end, and proceed at ten knots. Nos. A2 and A3 which were being tactically experimented with, are among the very latest additions to our submarine fleet. In appearance they are symmetrical, cigar-shaped craft of 100 feet in length, with a conning tower amidships, some four feet in height, which rises from a collapsible bridge and a periscope. Forward, a stanchion carries a single life-line the length of the narrow deck, while aft a stout horseshoe-shaped pipe carries off the exhaust vapor of the petrol engine.

The boats are painted a very light French grey, which blends admirably with the surrounding water. contract surface speed is fifteen knots but their sea speed is about eleven knots on the top and from seven to eight knots submerged. They have a displacement of 200 tons, and a radius of action of 350 miles.

AMONG THE BOATS.

A point that especially took my eye as we steamed down the Haven at the head of this singular looking little procession was the remarkably clean entry of these new submarines. They raised, scarcely any wash. Remarkable steadiness is another feature of these craft. They made a curious thrashing noise, above which throbbed the deep and rapid pulsation of their engines as they sheered through the water. At times I noticed a dense bluish haze break from one or another of them, which I was told was caused by the burning of the lubricating oil that has to be freely used.

When running buoyant most of the crew are outside. The commanding officer sits perched on the top of the little bridge, beneath which is the conning tower hatch, that affords the sole means of entry and exit into the interior. The remainder of the men sprawl around the conning tower or stand upon the deck, gripping the life line. They are all clothed in white woollen sweaters and knee boots.

The boats had thus far been running with their conning towers open. But now the two new submarines struck their collapsible bridges. The men all vanished into the interior, and upper decks were shut down, which is the technical expression for closing the tops of the conning towers.

No. A2 was then directed by flag signals to prepare to dive.

As No. A2 settled into diving trim a big jet of steam-like spray was blown up from abaft her conning tower, for all the world like the white plume thrown by a whale. This was caused by the inrush of water.

UNDER THE WATER.

When she had settled down, we steamed ahead again, keeping well abreast of her at a distance of about a hundred fathoms. Presently the captain ordered the D. signal to be made, which meant that she was to dive, to which she responded with a curious gasping blast from a compressed air booster. The process of evanishment was very prompt; in less than a minute nothing remained above the surface but the very top of the periscope tube, which caused a tiny spurt of spray. The boat remained under about five minutes, and then the signal was made to blow out, upon which she rapidly moved into view again amid a faint vaporous haze.

A greatred pennant flaming from the masthead of our torpedo boat warned ships that submarines were manoeuvring within the immediate zone. Our signalmen were busy with hand flags imparting the captain's orders as he spoke them to the watchful eye within the conning tower.

I asked many questions from officers who had many times been down in submarines, and I was told that there is practically no limit, outside of strategic exigencies, to the depth to which these boats can dive.

Another point that I was assured in complete contradiction of all that has been written upon the subject, is that the depth or length of submergence causes no inconvenience to the occupants of a submarine. It is impossible from the feeling to state whether the submarine is running awash or ten fathoms deep.

So in Harmony.

Be in earnest about your health. Do not suppose that the headaches, backaches and other symptoms from which you suffer will pass away of their own accord instead of developing into serious and chronic disease. ORIGIN OF THE TORPEDO

LINEALLY DESCENDED FROM FIRE-SHIPS OF THE ANCIENTS.

Invented During Civil War — Men who were the True Pioneers in this new Field — Used in Crimean War.

(Brigadier General Henry L. Abbot, Retired, in Charleston News and Courier.)

Since the war in the East has so strongly drawn attention to torpedo warfare, I have noticed two or three letters in the News and Courier claiming that this weapon was "invented" during the Civil War. While it is universally admitted that its practical introduction should be credited to the skillful labors of the Confederate torpedo corps, we must not be unjust to the earlier inventors, who were Americans all. David Bushnell, Robert Fulton and Samuel Colt were the true pioneers in this new field, as is established by indisputable documentary evidence. As I was charged by the war department, in May, 1869, with the duty of developing a system of submarine mines for the defense of our seacoast, you may perhaps be interested in a brief summary of the results of a somewhat careful study of the historic question.

Torpedo warfare is lineally descended from the fire ships of the ancients. The first advance after the invention of gunpowder was due to an Italian engineer, Gianibelli, who at the siege of Antwerp, in 1584-85, equipped two vessels of about fourteen tons each, with massive rock chambers containing 6000 and 7000 pounds of gunpowder and send them adrift against the barricaded bridge across the Scheldt held by the enemy. One of them exploded and destroyed the bridge on April 4, 1585, killing from 500 to 800 Spaniards. This idea of putting a land mine afloat by surrounding the charge with a sufficient mass of stone to develop the needful intensity was employed on several occasions in the seventeenth century, but as the results hardly warranted the expense they passed out of use until revived in the Butler-Porter fiasco off Fort Fisher in our Civil War.

The brilliant idea that the pressure of the water itself may be made to develop sufficient energy in an exploded submerged charge to disrupt the bottom of a ship of war in the vicinity was evolved and experimentally established by David Bushnell, in 1771-75. He was then an undergraduate at Yale College and later was a captain of engineers in our Revolutionary army. He invented the first submarine boat, with which an unsuccessful attempt was made in 1776 against a British 64-gun ship of war, the Eagle, at anchor in New York harbor. Failing to attach the torpedo to the bottom of the ship it was set adrift and exploded, causing great alarm in the hostile fleet. In August, 1777, he attempted to use a towing torpedo for the destruction of the frigate Cerberus, lying at anchor near New London, but the result was only the blowing up of a prize schooner near by. In the same year he sent adrift on the Delaware river submerged kegs, charged with gunpowder. One of them blew up a British boat, and others exploded, causing a panic among the fleet. Thus, although no decided success crowned his efforts, Bushnell did lay hold of the principle on which rests the whole theory of torpedo warfare, and proved its truth by actual experiments. This constitutes him the true inventor of torpedo warfare. The name itself is traced back to him.

Fulton simply improved upon Bushnell's offensive invention, but he largely developed defensive submarine mines. In 1800 he carried his plans to France and experimentally blew up a launch in the harbor of Brest. Failing in his application, he proceeded to England, and in 1804 probably suggested the abortive "Catamaran expedition" against the French fleet in the harbor of Boulogne. On October 15, 1805, he experimentally blew up the brig Dorothea, but was finally shown the cold shoulder by the Government, and returned to the United States. Here he was at first assisted by them in authority, but finally his plans were rejected. These plans included buoyant mines, anchored and ignited by a mechanical device on contact with the vessel, drifting torpedoes connected by cords to foul anchor chains, and offensive spar torpedoes. Discouraged by so many failures, Fulton turned his attention to steam navigation, and everyone knows the result.

Colt was the pioneer in pressing electricity into the service of the sub-marine miner. His devices were elaborate, and occupied several years, beginning about 1839. They included the use of the camera obscura operated by the Colt method. Venice was not attacked, it was claimed, because the existence of this defence was known to the enemy.

Such was the condition of submarine warfare at the outbreak of the United States Civil War. Evidently all important elements were known to any one who made a study of the subject, and no field was left for invention except in minor details. What remained to be done was an intelligent application of these principles, and persistent efforts to overcome the practical difficulties in inaugurating so novel a service. The immense development it received by the able administration of the Confederate torpedo corps is known to the world, and certainly warrants us in claiming not only the invention for Bushnell, Fulton and Colt, but also the practical introduction of what has now become an essential element in maritime warfare. America may well be proud of its record.

Nothing is more discouraging than a case of eczema or salt rheum which refuses to heal. By using Dr. Chase's Ointment, however, you soon see that new skin is forming and the sore part is becoming smaller and smaller. The itching is entirely overcome after a few applications and you are given satisfactory evidence that a continuation of the treatment will bring a thorough cure.

THE JAPANESE RAILWAYS

That Country Will Have 20,000 Miles of Track.

People, generally, do not know that Japan has any means of locomotion other than rickshas. That there are enough miles of railway there to make a double track across the American continent is one of the surprising facts brought to light in Harold Bolen's article in Bookhovers' Magazine. And yet the Sunrise Kingdom has reached only the first period of the railway age. When the lines now under construction and proposed are completed, Japan will have 20,000 miles of track. During the coming decade the country will purchase seven thousand passenger coaches, and a hundred and fifty thousand freight cars.

One ride in a railway train in Japan and does much to disillusionize the American who carries the belief that Uncle Sam is the godfather of Japan. From Yokohama ride to Tokio and but for the character of fellow passengers you could readily believe you were travelling from Liverpool to London. The whole system is thoroughly British.

Some of the institutions on Japanese trains are peculiar to that country. One of these is a smear of paint across the windows of third-class carriages. This is necessary because thousands of native travellers in Japan, accustomed only to paper walls for letting in light, have no knowledge of glass. Its utter transparency leads them to believe that the window is simply a hole in the side of the car. With painful results many native passengers have stupidly attempted to stick their heads through the glass. On this account for a long time Americans from receiving hospitals had to meet trains arriving in Japanese cities.

Upon starting from the outer station to the train the traveler in Japan shows his ticket at a little gate. A boy, not a man, punches it. It is remarkable how many things of a responsible character are done by boys in the empire. The person in the "boking office" is also a boy, as is the guard on the train. Conductors, as we understand them, are dispensed with on most of the Japanese trains. The employment of boys is necessary because train and station hands must speak some English, and aside from statesmen, it is only the younger generation in Japan that can speak our language.

The railway traveller buys a first, second or third-class ticket; or, if he wishes to go cheaper still, he can get a ticket entitling him simply to stand on the platform. None of the cars are very clean. Many of the third class coaches could serve, without much alteration, as pigsties. This is all the more remarkable when the incomparable cleanliness of the Japanese home life, even of the humblest, is taken into consideration. An explanation of this may be that the Japanese have little regard for the cleanliness of any place where they keep their shoes or clogs on. The European room, for example, which has been established in a few Japanese homes, is the only apartment in the whole house that is not kept scrupulously dusted, swept aired and varnished. So, too, with the Japanese inns. Those that are maintained in native style are clean and sweet; those that have become Europeanized are usually littered with cigarette stumps, fruit peelings and cores, and other debris. An American Pullman, with its crowded and unavoidable intimacies, is a decent and polite hermitage compared with a packed coach in Japan. All sorts of unexpected things happen. During ablutions are performed and complete change of raiment effected, the constantly recurring tunnels serving to screen the astonishing character of these programmes.

FISHERMEN'S HARD LUCK

DISTRICT OVERSEER REPORTS A SMALL CATCH OF BULLHEADS.

There was a Glut of Natural Food for Bass During 1903.

In the fifth annual report of the Department of Fisheries of the Province of Ontario District Overseer McCargar reports that the fishermen had hard luck during the spring in the Bay of Quinte, Consecon Lake, and the Trent River sections. There was but a small catch of bull heads in all the above places, both spring and fall. The water was so high that the fish kept in the marshes, and during the fall it was so low that the nets were partly out of the water. This, however, applied more to Consecon Lake and the Trent River. The angling was not so good in any of the waters mentioned above, on account of the high water and the high winds, and he thinks the abundance of young shad in the Bay of Quinte had a lot to do with the bad angling. They had plenty of bass, but they would not take the bait, there being a glut of natural food. He thinks the Ontario Government should extend the work of stocking lakes where there are no fish, and re-stocking some that have been fished out, and that the small inland lakes should not be overlooked. A number of natural hatcheries could be started along the Bay of Quinte at a very small expense. There are a few coves where they could be built cheap. The water would be the same as the Bay water. The parent bass could be put in the enclosure in the spring, but removed after spawning. The fry could be left until until from three to five months old, and then let loose. They would then be able to look out for themselves. The fishermen, he says, along the Bay of Quinte, observed the law fairly well. He seized a few gill nets in the bay, below Deseronto, and destroyed them. A quantity of bass about five months' old were put in the Bay from the base ponds this fall. A hatchery should also be started on the Trent River above Healey's Falls. There could be one built at a small cost on Mr. R. Keller's place. The parent bass could be easily secured, and the C.P.R. and G.T.R. stations being only six miles away, they could be conveniently shipped. He thinks spring fishing should not be allowed in the Trent River, or between Peterborough and the St. Lawrence River. The spring is the time when most of the fish in these waters spawn; and they should not be disturbed. Fishing with hoop nets, in the fall of the year, will help the game fishing rather than hurt it. The black bass are a very hard fish to catch in a hoop net. They will not lead except in the spring, near spawning time. By stopping spring fishing, it would protect not only the game fish, but pickerel, which is a fine food fish.

The fishermen observed the law only fairly well. He had to fine two men in Prince Edward County, one for shipping black bass, and the other for running to show from whom he bought fish. In each case a fine of $10 was imposed. He seized three gill nets below Deseronto, and burnt them up. He also seized a quantity of hoop nets at the west end of Weller's Bay, and has them yet for sale. He also seized a night line in the Trent River and one in Hogg Lake. Illegal fishing by fishermen is not abating, in fact, it would be on the increase if it were not for the fact that fewer are engaged in it, due to high wages for unskilled labor in other occupations.

As gasoline is now in general use for power, he can see no reason why fishermen in the Georgian Bay should be placed under an embargo by being prohibited from using it under license; they will use it in any event; and an increased revenue may as well be derived from it.

District Overseer Thwaite, Oshawa, reports that the local Overseers have performed their duties faithfully, considering the amount of remuneration they receive. He thinks if the Department would impose a license fee of $5 per rod for the season for all non-residents of the Province, the extra revenue derived therefrom would enable the Department to be more liberal with the local overseers, thereby securing more efficient services. The fishing seasons on Lakes Simcoe and Couchiching has been a most successful one. The anglers all report satisfactory catches. The work of restocking the lakes with the gamey black bass is a very popular work, and the people are looking forward to good results. Stony Lake still continues to attract large numbers of tourists from the American side, who fish incessantly from morn till late at night. He thinks a license fee of $5.00 for the season should be charged these parties, and does not believe it would deter one in a hundred from visiting the lake. Stony Lake is a favorite resort for tourists from all over the Dominion, as well as from the United States. There are some two hundred cottages erected on the various islands in the lake, some on a most elaborate scale. The fishing has been all that could be desired. He again urges the desirability of placing fishways in the dams on the Indian River.

The catch of muskinonge and bass in Rice Lake has been very good during the past season. The licensed fishermen on the lake are also well pleased with their catch of mudcat and coarse fish. Lake Scugog is noted for good bass and maskinonge fishing, several maskinonge were caught weighing over 20 lbs. each. He is glad to say that the catch this season has been satisfactory to the numerous tourists who visit its shores.

The Dominion Government contemplate building a concrete dam on Scugog River at Lindsay, and he recommends that a modern fishway be placed in it.

He also recommends that the close season should be from 1st December till the 1st of July, and that some protection be given frogs, or they will soon be a thing of the past. He is of the opinion that the number of bass and maskinonge to be caught in one day should not exceed two maskinonge and eight bass, and that no bass measuring less than 12 inches long should be kept out of the water. He would urge that the use of spears be absolutely prohibited, for they are the principal cause of the destruction of lunge during the spawning season. The dumping of saw mill refuse in the rivers and lakes has entirely ceased.

How It Spreads.

The first package of Hem-Roid (the infallible Pile cure) that was put out went to a small town in the State of Nebraska.

It made the cure of a case of Piles that was considered hopeless.

The news spread and although this was only two years ago the demand prompted Dr. J. S. Leonhardt of Lincoln, Neb., the discoverer, to prepare it for general use. Now it is being sent to all parts of the world.

It will cure any case of Piles. There is a month's treatment in each box. Sold for $1.00 with absolute guarantee.

It is for sale by druggists.

Found Home in Ruins.

Whitby, Aug. 31.—George Johnston, the man who has been in jail for the past two or three weeks, as a result of the beating he gave his helpless little child, was released Monday and took the afternoon train home. On arriving there he found his old house had been burned to the ground. As no one had been living there for several days, incendiarism is suspected. County Crown Attorney Farwell and High Constable Calverley have gone out to investigate, and they will probably hold a fire inquest.

From Over Study at School

This Girl Became Pale, Languid and Nervous — Dr. Chase's Nerve Food Made Her Well.

MRS. R. WAREHAM, 267 Sherbrooke street, Peterborough, Ont., states:—

"One of my children suffered a great deal with nervous headaches, dizziness and sleeplessness, and "in fact was all run down, pale and languid. These troubles we attributed to over study and confinement at school. She began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and I can say that we have found this treatment exceedingly helpful. It has relieved her of headache, steadied her nerves, and built up her system wonderfully. We can see a great change in her, as the color is returning to her face and she is gaining in flesh and weight."

GAVE PENNY FOR A WIFE

SHE IS WORTH HER WEIGHT IN GOLD.

Strange Manner in Which it all Came About — Girl Worked in a Chewing Gum Factory.

William D. Lyman, of California, obtained a wife for a penny, and declares she is worth her weight in gold. This is how it came about:—Katherine Reikuwsky, of Cleveland, a pretty black-eyed girl, sighed two years ago for a sweetheart. She was employed in a chewing gum factory, and her duty was to wrap each slip of gum in thin, oiled paper.

One day Cupid put an idea into Katherine's head. She wrote her name and address on a slip of paper and added, "Write to me." The slip of paper she wrapped up in a wafer of gum, packed in with other wafers in a little paper box and sent it out into the world.

The box was packed with a hundred like it, in a big, wooden box, and sent to the storehouse. Then it was shipped to Chicago and put in another warehouse. In due time the one paper box was sold to a corner drug store, and the wafer of gum with Katherine's appeal found its way into a jar on the showcase.

William D. Lyman tossed a penny on the showcase one day and took out the wafer of gum, unwrapped it, and found Katherine's note and wrote to her. They were married a month ago.

Bessie Smith, of Kings, Ind., is now Bessie Roehr, of Adrian, N.D., and her husband is a stamping young man, whom Bessie had never set eyes upon until a day before she married him. Fred. Roehr's mother bought a package of flower seeds a year ago. Inside she found three slips of paper, each containing a girl's name and address. One of the names was Bessie Smith.

The name seemed to strike a soft place in Fred. Roehr's heart, and he wrote to the girl. She answered, and they kept up a correspondence until he sent his photograph and asked her to marry him. The result was a wedding three weeks ago. But it came close to being a funeral. Abraham, an admirer of Bessie Smith, resented her plans to marry the north Dakota farmer. When the latter arrived at Kings, Abe "ambushed" him and fired two shots, neither of which took effect. The wedding took place the next day, and Abe heard about it in jail.

A young man whose sweetheart is compelled to go to a sanitarium should see to it that the physicians are sedate, married men. If John Thompson, of Lacon, Ill., had taken the precaution, he would not be mourning the fact that Myrtle Goodrich, who had promised to marry him, gave him up for George S. Browning, a young doctor at the Alma Sanatarium. Miss Goodrich was studying music in Chicago when her health failed. Her brother sent her to the sanatarium, where she fell in love with her physician, and married him in spite of her brother's protest. ally suggested a honeymoon, and

The youngest married couple in Kentucky are living at The Bend, Milton Larmon, the husband, is fifteen years old, and his wife, who was Lillie Mosley, is a year younger. They are the children of well-to-do farmers. The parents of both opposed the match, and efforts were made to keep them apart. By the aid of their friends they eluded their parents and were married at Lafayette, Tenn.

Ottumer Herbert Lee, a lawyer, of Erie, Pa., and Miss Mollie Zimmerman also of Erie, were married by telephone, with the minister three hundred and fifty miles away. Mr. Lee and Miss Zimmerman were in Buffalo and called up the Rev. O. Lee Warren, by telephone, telling him that they wanted to be married. Mr. Warren recognized their voices, and with his wife and the telephone girl as witnesses, all having receivers, performed the ceremony. The 'phone receiver held by the bride was sent to the minister for a souvenir.

Bessie Mae White, one of Atlanta's pretty girls, started on an automobile ride with a gay party three weeks ago. In the rear seat of the big touring car—there were six in the party—she sat with L. Fay Wilson. While the others in the party were chatting and laughing young Wilson whispered a proposal and she accepted. They could not hide the secret of their happiness, and in a few minutes the party were congratulating them.

A proposal in an automobile naturally suggested a honeymoon, and when Mr. Wilson insisted on an immediate marriage Bessie consented. The automobile soon carried the party to De Kalb, where a license was obtained. Then another quick run took the party to the quiet little town of Decatur, where a minister tied the knot. Upon returning to Atlanta an impromptu wedding breakfast was served. And now the bride and bridegroom are keeping house.

Love may laugh at locks and bars, but when it comes to a double-barrelled shotgun it is a different story. It was a shotgun in action that prevented Oscar Murphy, of Covington, Tenn. from eloping with his sweetheart, Mabel Ryan. They had planned to drive from her home to Covington, get a license and be married in spite of the opposition of the girl's father, who had threatened to shoot Oscar on sight.

When Oscar approached the house, he suddenly espied the farmer armed with a shotgun. Before he could escape the old man fired at him point blank, the shot tearing his hat brim off and slightly wounding him in the head. He beat a precipitate retreat, and there was no elopement that day.

Pursued by an angry father and brother on horseback, and evading them by only five minutes on the start, Rose Tobey and Charles Shreck walked twenty miles over the miry swamps of Kalamazoo county, Mich., before they could reach the county seat and get a marriage license.

It was another thirty miles to Bethel Creek to find a justice to marry them, but they kept ahead of the old man and won in their race for happiness. Now the father has said he will take them to his bosom, and a job on a farm near Galesburg awaits the husband.

SUMMER HOLIDAYS OVER

PUPILS OF THE SCHOOLS BEGIN WORK TO-MORROW

Several New Teachers on the Staff Initiation of the Free Text Book System.

If there was anything that gave the past two months the least degree of discomfort for the pupils of the schools, it was that they would have to start in again on September 1st. Today, therefore, is their last of liberty, so far as it has any significance as applied to schools. It is likely that tomorrow, being so near the close of the week, will not see a very large attendance, but the organization has been completed, and the members of the staff are all here. There will be four new teachers in the public schools, Miss Laura Lochead, of Centreville; Miss D. L. Ellison, of Brampton; Miss Mina Rose, of Allandale, and Miss Lexa Howson of town. Mr. W. E. McPherson, of St. Mary's, will join the staff of the Collegiate Institute, teaching junior English and Mathematics.

Tomorrow the new system of distributing free text books to the pupils will be initiated. The fees, which will be payable monthly per pupil under this system, are as follows:—Junior Part I., five cents; Senior Part I., Kindergarten, Junior and Senior Part II., ten cents; Second book, fifteen cents; Third and Fourth books, twenty cents. Heretofore, the Board has been paying considerable each year for material that has been distributed free to the pupil and which, had the parents or guardians been called upon to pay, would have probably amounted in many cases to more than the amount now charged under the new system for all books and supplies. A pupil may, of course, supply him or herself with books required, but will be subject to the fee just the same, according to the regulations. It is explained further that passing from the junior to the senior of any class, the same text books will be used, but supplies will be issued as required. The system will be introduced here as if it had been in vogue for ten years. All the text books and supplies are now on hand.

A CHILDREN'S BAZAAR

Three Little Girls Made Money for Charity—A Financial Success.

Three little girls, Grace and Violet Gumpricht, and Odas Dutton have been very busy for the past few weeks getting ready for a bazaar which they held on the lawn of Mr. Geo. Gumpricht, Aylmer street, and which proved a financial success. The little folk had made many articles of dolls' clothing, paper flowers, candy, pincushions, and all these found ready purchasers by their many friends who called during the afternoon and evening. The lawn was prettily decorated with flags and Chinese lanterns, and presented a gay appearance. Afternoon tea, consisting of candwiches, cake and lemonade, was served from five to seven, and the waiters were kept busy to supply all who came.

The fish pond was a success for most of those who tried their luck, except for one well known gentleman who succeeded in getting three dolls' shirts in the three draws, for which he had no possible use. Much sympathy was expressed for him.

The proceeds are to be devoted to a charitable object and will amount to a fair sum.

PAY WHEN DELIVERED

The Express Companies are not to be Given the Stand-off any Longer.

The Dominion and Canadian Express Companies are advising their customers that they have instructions from their head officers that after September 1st, it will be absolutely imperative for them to collect the charges on all parcels when delivered, otherwise the parcels will have to be returned.

It appears that there has developed in some towns, a habit on the part of customers of the Express Companies to hold off payment of charges until the end of the week, or the end of the month, as the case may be, while there are other instances where the express man has also been stooed off, say for a more convenient season. Take for instance the case of a woman to whom has been delivered a parcel. She has no money, and asks the deliverer of the goods to call when her husband is home. All this takes up considerable time, and serious complications have very often developed, the Express Company being the loser. The present action may be regarded as a step towards self-preservation, and is a wise one.

Raffle Baskets

Wouldn't you like to have something novel in the way of presents for your friends this Christmas? If so, why not make some of those pretty raffle baskets that are both useful and ornamental. They are very easily and quickly made and several ladies in town who have become adept on the art would be willing to give some instructions in it for a small fee. Instructions may be found in several of the magazines which are widely read in town and in the issue of the Ladies' Home Journal for August 1903. The raffia comes in many pretty shades and is for sale only at the Review office. So one moments those long evenings in getting ready for Xmas and avoid being hurried later on.

LATE DR. BENSON'S DEATH

A GENTLEMAN WHO WAS BORN AND EDUCATED HERE.

Held in High Esteem in Winnipeg—A Sketch of his Career—Was Coroner of Manitoba.

(Winnipeg Telegram, Saturday)

Many Winnipeggers were shocked last evening to hear of the death of Dr. Edward Benson, coroner of Winnipeg, one of the oldest and best known residents of the city. The death occurred about 5 o'clock last evening and came as the result of a paralytic stroke which he suffered about 8 o'clock on Tuesday evening. Dr. Blanchard was called in but could do nothing for the stricken man, who remained unconscious from the time of the stroke until his death.

An added circumstance of sadness to the death of Dr. Benson is the fact that his wife had only recovered from a most serious illness and the shock of her husband's death has rendered her condition precarious again.

HELD IN HIGH ESTEEM.

In the death of the doctor, Winnipeg is deprived of one of the leading men in the medical profession in the city and also of one of its best citizens. He had gained for himself an enviable reputation as one who, until recently, when his health failed, always took a leading part in any movement for the welfare of the city. His nature was charitable and kindly and he was ever among the first to help the needy. In his position as coroner he always performed his duties in the most faithful manner and was highly respected by all with whom he came in contact, in his official capacity.

Much regret was expressed last evening among all the old-timers and the Winnipeg people in general at the death of the late respected coroner.

BRILLIANT CAREER.

The doctor was 61 years of age at the time of his death, and was born in Peterborough, Ont., being the son of the late Col. J. R. Benson of that place. He received his early education in the common school at Peterborough and when 17 years of age he went to visit his uncle, the late Dr. Joseph W. Benson, dean of the faculty of medicine in the Louisville college at Louisville, Ky. It was while on this visit that he started to study medicine under his uncle's tuition and in the Louisville Hospital. During his stay of two years' duration in Louisville his uncle was taken prisoner in the American Civil War, and the late coroner went to Washington to see Abraham Lincoln regarding his release. From Louisville the deceased went to New York where he studied medicine in the Bellevue Hospital and graduated before he was 21 years of age. He then returned to Peterborough, where he practised for some time in the office of Dr. Burnham of that town, afterwards taking his degree at the medical examinations of the Victoria College, Cobourg, Ont., which were then held annually in Toronto. After his graduation he returned to Peterborough again where he practiced for about 18 months, when he went to Lindsay, Ont., where he resided for four years.

PIONEER OF WINNIPEG.

In 1874, he decided to come West, and made the trip to Winnipeg around through the States. He made arrangements to start practising here and then returned to Colborne, Ont., where he was married to the widow of the late Mr. Holliday. He returned to Winnipeg accompanied by his wife and had resided in this city since that time. In the early days of Winnipeg's history he was a trustee of the old Grace Methodist church on Main street, and at the time of his death was still a member of the Grace church congregation.

Shortly after his arrival in Winnipeg he was appointed coroner of Manitoba and was coroner of Winnipeg until his death. Another official position held by the late Dr. Benson was that of physician to the gaol which he held for over 25 years. For several years he was a faithful member of the Winnipeg School Board, being chairman of the board at one time and retiring from it about three years ago. In politics he was a staunch Conservative and was at all times found in the front ranks of the party more especially in the early days of the West.

SURVIVING RELATIVES.

The deceased is survived by a widow and three sons whose names are J. R. Benson, accountant in the Imperial Bank of Canada at Trout Lake, B.C.; E. C. Benson, who is engaged in electrical work at Trout Lake, and Henry L. Benson of Gregg's wholesale, Winnipeg. Three brothers and six sisters of the deceased are still alive, namely J. R. Benson, Dr. J. L. Benson, dentist, Joseph M. Benson, Mrs. Douglas Bell, Miss Benson and Mrs. G. H. Strevel, Winnipeg; Mrs. John Green, Toronto; Mrs. A. M. Brook, Peterborough and Mrs. Chas. Wormsop, Vancouver, B.C.

The funeral arrangements have not yet been completed as it is not known what time the sons of the deceased will arrive in Winnipeg from British Columbia.

Raffia and Basket Work.

A class in this useful and fascinating art—the latest fad—is being formed in Peterborough. Ladies wishing to join may get particulars as to terms, etc., at 342 Stewart street.

A JUVENILE THIEF

Remanded for a Week—Stole $27 in Broad Daylight.

Another case of the depravity of youth in our town was evidenced at the Police Court yesterday afternoon when a boy of ten years of age, Jos. Shera, of Carlisle avenue, appeared on the charge of stealing $27.00 from the residence of Mr. Albert Whitred, on Carlisle avenue, yesterday noon. It seems that the lad was in the house the evening previous, and noticed the money, and evidently watched his chance to steal it. As usual, he could not stand prosperity, and invested in a sweater, gun and other things, and the attention of the storekeeper was drawn to his plentiful supply of money, and he, hearing of the loss of the money, informed the police, and the boy was arrested. He had $24 on him when arrested, having spent about $3.

After hearing the evidence, the Magistrate remanded him to the Shelter for a week.

FIVE PEOPLE WERE KILLED

AS THE RESULT OF A COLLISION ON THE GRAND TRUNK.

Two Passenger Trains Collide one being a Special going to Sherbrooke Fair.

Montreal, Que., Aug. 31—The Grand Trunk special train, leaving Richmond this morning, with passengers for the Sherbrooke Fair, collided with regular passenger train No. 5, one mile from Richmond station, resulting in the death of five people, and the injury of fifteen. No particulars as to the names of those killed and injured have been yet received. Both of the engines were thrown across the track. The Company sent special trains from Sherbrooke and Richmond with medical men, and everything possible is being done for the injured. The people killed are from stations between Richmond and Levis.

RICH. HENDERSON'S ACCIDENT

His Foot Crushed by the Lakefield Train.

Richard Henderson, of Brock street, a young man employed in Mann's lumber factory on Dublin street, met with a very painful accident last evening. It has been his custom, upon quitting work, to go down to the G.T.R. track and board the Lakefield train, in order to get a ride to within a short distance of his home. The train does not, at this point, have any great speed, but yesterday the young man was unfortunate. He missed his hold, and in some way the right foot was caught beneath the wheels and badly crushed. He was removed in the ambulance to Nichols Hospital, and there his injuries were attended to by Dr. Eastwood. It is thought that Henderson's foot can be saved.

REGULAR OPERATION TO-MORROW

The Street Railway to Start in Earnest To-morrow.

The Radial Railway Company will, according to agreement with the town, begin regular operations to-morrow, September 1st. As the new cars have not arrived from Ottawa yet, it will not be possible to give a service as frequent schedule, but the best that can possibly be done under the circumstances will be given the public. It is expected that the new cars will be there within a week.

The officers of the Company will be those also occupied by the Peterborough Light and Power Company.

Work is progressing rapidly on the extension of the line to Jackson Park a large number of men being employed. One of the crew of the car which has been testing during the past few days received a heavy shock last night when he took a crowbar to do something with one of the wheels. The current was on and the bar became uncomfortable to handle. The man jumped several feet.

The horses of the town do not take unkindly to the cars. In fact there has not yet occurred what might be called a good attempt at a runaway.

The closing time for the street railway each day will be eleven o'clock, unless the demand for accommodation requires otherwise.

SAVED FROM DROWNING

The Heroic Action of two Women and a Boy.

A young lad named Parker, living on north Water street, had an experience on Monday morning that he will not soon forget. In fact, had it not been for the prompt and courageous action of two women, Mrs. LeFevre and Mrs. Breault, and the heroic efforts of Benson Davidson, son of Mr. James Davidson, the lad would have undoubtedly been drowned. He and several other boys were bathing in the Otonabee, near the Auburn bridge. It seems that Parker got beyond his depth, and the cries of the boys told the women that something was wrong. They rushed from their homes near the west bank, and securing a long pole, rushed into the water. Davidson swimming out to the drowning boy, whom he succeeded in grasping. He was able to get hold of the pole, and was thus drawn ashore by the brave women. One were standing in a considerable depth of water. Young Parker was pretty nearly gone, and it was after they had worked with him for over fifteen minutes that he showed signs of life. Mrs. LeFevre, Mrs. Breault and young Davidson are certainly deserving of great praise, if not indeed of some recognition for the courage and bravery exhibited in this emergency.

The event further goes to emphasize the necessity that some proper bathing place be made for the children. Parker is only about 9 years of age.

The first annual field day of the TY.M.C.A. Athletic League will be held in Toronto, on Saturday, October local Y.M.C.A. men will enter.

THE CITY AND SUBURBS

Brevities.

—The Board of Healthmeets tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock.

—The Finance Committee and Special Sewer Committee will meet this evening.

—The Canadian Machine Telephone Company have opened temporary offices in the curling rink, Charlotte st.

—A number of young people from town and some of the cottagers were guests at a "marshmallow roast" at Mrs. Alex. Elliott's, at Chemong, last evening.

—The death occurred this morning of Frederick Charles, the five-months old son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Kingdon, of Auburn. The funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock to Little Lake cemetery.

—At last night's meeting of the officers of the 57th Regiment it was decided that only one orderly would be allowed to each company. Hitherto several boys have stolen their way on the train, but none will be admitted to the cars without a pass from the captains of companies.

—More than a third of a million dollars in gold dust is en route from Dawson to Seattle, consigned to the Canadian Bank of Commerce and the Bank of British North America to the United States assay office. With the close of the month of July the returns from the comptroller's office show the amount of gold upon which an export tax was paid this year was fully as large as the previous year. August and September are the heaviest export months, and by the best informed the output this summer should exceed that of last season.

Stockholders Meeting.

A meeting of the stockholders of the Star of the East Gold Mining Company will be held on the morning of September 7th, at 10 o'clock in the Sons of England Hall, No. 134 1-2 Hunter street, third floor.

FIFTY YEARS OF SERVICE

FOR THIS PERIOD HAS REV. FATHER LYNCH BEEN MOST DEVOTED.

His Loyalty to the Church Much Appreciated — Priests Make him a Handsome Present.

On Friday evening of last week, Rev. Father Lynch of Port Hope, who has seen 50 years of faithful service, was presented with an address, a set of vestments and cloak of gold cloth, valued at $300. This interesting event took place at the close of the Retreat and this means was taken of celebrating his Golden Jubilee. The presentation was made by Rev. Father Whibbs of Campbellford, and Ven. Archdeacon Casey of Lindsay gave a short address in which he spoke in appreciative terms of Father Lynch's services to the church. The present from the priests was given in a spirit of appreciation of his long and faithful work and it was the hope of all those present that he would long be spared to continue to be of value as a priest in promoting the interests of the church.

His Worship Bishop O'Connor also gave a personal present and spoke in feeling terms of the fidelity and devotion of Father Lynch during the past fifty years. He congratulated him upon his record and referred to his work in the many parishes in which he had laboured so efficiently and so effectively.

Rev. Father Lynch replied in suitable terms, thanking those present for their kind gifts and words. The occasion was one long to be remembered by him.

There were present five priests who were baptised by Rev. Father Lynch, namely, Rev. Father Whibbs, Rev. Father Phelan, Rev. Father John O'Brien, Rev. Dr. O'Brien and Rev. Father Crowley.

Rev. Father Lynch was born in the County of Cavan, Ireland, in the year 1827. He received his early education in St. Maurice College and completed his studies in the Ottawa University. He was ordained in Ottawa by the late Bishop Guigues and was afterwards an assistant of the Isle of Allumette, whence he went as Pastor to Kitley in the County of Leeds. Here he remained in active work for five years, after which time he went to Douro, where he laboured for several years. From Douro he went to Cornwall, where he was in charge of the parish for five years. From Cornwall he came to Peterborough for a few years, going to Lindsay from here. After being connected with the work in Lindsay for about a year he retired, but his active mind and willing spirit would not remain out of work and after a short retirement he again went into active work at Port Hope, where he has been stationed for the past fourteen years. Though he is now 77 years of age, he is still ardent in his work and it is to be hoped that he will be spared for many years to come to remain in the work.

COBOURG GARRISON IN TOWN

On their Way to Compete in the Annual Shoot.

Last night the Cobourg Garrison Battery stopped off in town for a short time, on their way to Quebec, where they will compete tomorrow in the annual artillery competition. They usually come back with flying colors, and we wish them every success in this year's shoot. They were about forty strong, and were under the command of Major Odell and Lieuts. McCallum and Anderson and Sgt.-Major B. Thompson. They will call again at Peterborough on Saturday. Following were some of the men:

No. 1 section—Corpl. Jaynes, Bombadier Steth, Gunners Massey, Davidson, Butler, Wainwright, Woodcock, Mulhall.

No. 3 section—Sergt. Kennealy, Gunners Trewin, Campbell, A. Bolster, Barr, Lewis, Oldham; Plews.

No. 4 section—Sergt. McGuire, Gunners Hopper, McCullough, Wilson, Sprague, McKinnon, Moffatt, H. Bolster, H. Chisleth.

LOST $40 ON MONDAY

Came to Town, got Drunk and was Taken in.

The attention of the Police Court was occupied until noon today with the charge of theft of $40 against an employe of a local hotel, by Mr. Scott, of Chemong. It seems that the plaintiff came to town on Monday afternoon on the Lakefield train, and proceeded to the Queen's Hotel, where he spent considerable money in treating, and he himself got pretty drunk. He did not remember any of the circumstances of being in the hotel, but other witnesses told the story. After the plaintiff had bought a number of drinks, he went into a small room with the prisoner, and was heard remonstrating with him, and telling him to go away and leave him alone. About half-past nine he reported his loss to the Chief, and spent the night in the cells. The evidence, which of course is only circumstantial, is strongly against the prisoner, but the Court was adjourned until four o'clock this afternoon to allow his counsel to prepare a defence. R. E. Wood appeared for the prosecution and F. D. Kerr appeared for the defendant.

Black Watch Band Star Attraction on Opening Day—Lieutenant-Governor Gives An Electrical Start.

Toronto, Aug. 31.—It was all the Black Watch Band at the Exhibition yesterday. The first concert by this famous organization was the star attraction which drew more people to the grounds than ever visited them before at the official opening. No better conditions for an Exhibition could be imagined than were furnished by the cool, clear air, bright sunshine and perfect greensward. The exhibits are nearly all completely arranged, and the management is pleased with the consciousness of a happy state of affairs in Exhibition Park.

The Directors' Luncheon.

At 1 o'clock the Directors entertained a large number of prominent visitors at luncheon. The guests included the following: Lieut.-Gov. Clark, Mayor Urquhart and the members of the City Council, Sir William Mulock, Hon. John Dryden, E. F. Clarke, M.P., E. E. Kemp, M.P., E. B. Osler, M.P., Senator Melvin Jones, Senator J. K. Kerr, J. F. Ellis, President of the Board of Trade; H. H. Fudger, Major Ross and Conductor Murray of the Black Watch Band, Hon. Jas. Young, Galt; Capt. William McMaster, Noel Marshall, W. E. Wellington, R. F. Gagen, Stewart Houston, ex-Controller Oliver, Dr. Andrew Smith, Rev. Prof. Clark, Rev. W. F. Wilson, D. M. Stewart.

The Official Opening.

The formal opening proceedings took place in the Dairy Building at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. President McNaught read an address to the Lieutenant-Governor.

His Honor Lieutenant-Governor Clark replied in a brief speech, congratulating the Exhibition Association on its splendid record and achievements, and concluded by pressing the button which caused the Machinery Hall to rend the air, and the great Exhibition of 1904 was officially opened.

The various attractions scheduled were run off successfully, and the International Cat Show judging was completed.

CAUGHT IN MOTOR PUMP.

Painful and Probably Fatal Accident to Woman.

Winnipeg, Aug. 31.—Miss Bowler of Rosser, Man., was filling a pail with water at an air-motor pump, her hand in some unaccountable manner became entangled in the gearing, drawing her towards the mast till her hair became entangled in the revolving machinery and was torn completely off her scalp. Before the machinery could be put out of motion her arm was severed at the wrist. She is in a most precarious state.

Killed By a Fall.

Hamilton, Aug. 31.—Mrs. Hill, 33 East Murray street, fell off a street car on Barton street, between James and Hughson streets, last evening about 9 o'clock. A half hour after she was dead. The conductor says that she got off the car backwards while it was moving. She was carried into Dr. Balfer's office and died without regaining consciousness.

Drowned at Port Cockburn.

Port Cockburn, Aug. 31.—Mrs. C. M. Dailey of East Alton, Ill., was accidentally drowned whilst canoeing near this place last night.

Former Torontonian Drowned.

Revelstoke, B.C., Aug. 31.—The body of James Anderson, who was bookkeeper to Goddard & Co. up to the time he left Toronto some years ago, was found yesterday. He was accidentally drowned.

Engineer Loses a Leg.

Sarnia, Aug. 31.—No. 7 express, tunnel bound, struck the tail end of the iron ore train at the Wyoming switch yesterday morning. In the mix-up Thomas Mackenzie, the express engineer, had his leg severed below the knee. Mackenzie belongs to Sarnia, and was driver of No. 5 express in the Wanstead catastrophe.

Flew Down 40 Feet.

Fort William, Aug. 31.—After telling his fellow workmen that he could fly like a bird, J. Homan, employed on the new Empire elevator, yesterday afternoon took a flying leap from a scaffold to the ground, 40 feet below. Homan was slightly bruised.

RAW FOOD FOR LABORERS

HOW THE UNITED STATES WILL FEED THE MEN ON THE PANAMA CANAL.

The Hopes and Aims of the Chicago Raw Food Society — An Uncooked Diet Being Popularized.

Chicago is the location of the head of a cult which is endeavoring to popularize an uncooked diet and the members of the movement are just now greatly elated over the fact that the United States Government has adopted a raw food ration for its laborers on the Panama canal. It is asserted that raw food is not only more convenient to transport and prepare, but it contains more nourishment and maintains the body in a superior condition. It is claimed that the qualities of a great many foods are destroyed by the process of of cooking which is now generally resorted to. In the case of the Panama laborers it is said that they will be better able to fight off the ravages of fever and disease, and by this means it is hoped that the death list of the Panama strip will be materially kept down during the approaching operations.

The advocates of the raw food diet held a meeting recently in the city of Chicago to ratify the Government ment's action in this matter. A very interesting address was made by Prof. Byron Tyler, the president of the organization. He said that the society's motto was "A Universal Raw Food Diet," and its work would never cease till this end was accomplished, and people were in consequence made better, healthier and happier. He said that the Chicago Raw Food Society was doing the greatest work of the twentieth century; that all the vice and wars and intemperance of the world did not cause half the injury as the practice now so general of eating cooked food.

"The hopes and aims of the Chicago Raw Food Society," said Professor Tyler, "are not only to teach civilized man the art or science of eating his food uncooked, but since Uncle Sam is to complete the Panama canal by the influence of our example and practice of dieting wholly and solely on elementary or raw food, to suggest to thousands of our own high-grade and high-class artisans, laborers and others who would go to that country at once if it were not for the fear of disease that it is not only possible, but the easiest thing imaginable for one to go to Panama and do all sorts of business and perform the hardest physical tasks that might be required of laborers on the ditch and yet enjoy perfect health, or at least just as good faith as the average would be with the same number of men engaged in the same class of work in the United States.

ABLE TO DO MORE WORK.

"In order fully to satisfy my own mind on this subject, in the spring of 1901 I accepted a position from the Santa Fe Railroad Company as pump engineer of a deep well pump at Pinta, Ariz., located on the banks of the Rio Perchio River—one of the most important water stations on this line of road between Albuquerque and Williams, Ariz. For a period of three months I screened and wheeled every day three tons of coal 40 yards to the engine house. The screenings I wheeled 80 yards and dumped, and besides did all the work proper connected with caring for a local stationary engine. And this I did, notwithstanding the fact that I had followed a business career all my life, and for a long time immediately prior thereto was a member of the Kansas City Board of Trade. My muscles at the start were soft and not insured to work. But notwithstanding these facts I was able to perform this work very satisfactory to myself, and, also, I believe, to the company. One thing is certain. I demonstrated beyond any doubt that, living on raw food, a person could do hard physical work and enjoy better health than the average laborer who subsists on the devitalized cooked foods who is engaged in the same work.

CAN BE HEALTHY IN TROPICS.

"In view of the experiences already noted we have an easy argument to convince the most dubious mind that the most intelligent, the most beautiful, the strongest and the longest lived animals and birds live in the tropics. We might mention the elephant for longevity, intelligence and strength; the deer, antelope and gazelle, for beauty and symmetrical figure, and the gorillia, the strongest animal in all nature, for its size, the one that most nearly approaches man in appearance, and the one that all other animals fear.

Professor Tyler stated that his experience had shown that people in the tropics at present were addicted to eating a great deal of cooked meats and drinking an enormous amount of very strong coffee, which, he declares is the principal cause of the sickness prevailing in these regions.

WHEN BOYS WERE MEN

By JOHN HABBERTON,

Author of "Helen's Babies," "George Washington," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1904, BY JOHN HABBERTON

Within a few days this sort of duty became unnecessary. The enemy relieved us of it by themselves reporting their whereabouts. They were continually building new forts, and whenever they finished one and got a heavy gun mounted in it they sent a shell or two over us to let us know about it.

In the meantime re-enforcements and siege guns came pouring in upon us by rail, and some double ended gunboats came up the river in search of rebels and glory. They found the former without the least trouble and deserved a good deal of glory for fighting their boats at much closer range than was common at that day with ships engaging forts. One Confederate artillery man, who was captured, said the boats came so close that his shell fuses might have been lighted and the shells themselves thrown aboard, thus saving the powder charge of the gun.

We found places for some new forts of our own, and as some of them constructed on the river bank crushed through the crumbling soil and fell into the river the work had to be done over again. The bridge crossing the river had been burned just in time to prevent a dash of Confederate cavalry into town the day of the surprise, but now we needed it again, and timber for it had to be cut within easy range of the enemy's guns.

Oh, there was plenty of work for everybody—except the cavalry. We indulged in an occasional reconnoissance just to let the enemy know we hadn't left town, but hoped he had. For the rest of the time, however, we enjoyed more leisure than we could have had at home. It became tiresome; then it became absolutely wearing.

After the works on both sides had been making faces at each other for several weeks, and a great lot of powder had been burned without hurting many people, and thousands of men had been kept awake at night when they wanted to be asleep, the word was passed through our camp one evening that General Longstreet was to be made to feel very sick next morning and that we were to assist at the operation. Between dark and dawn the bridge was secretly repaired, right under the enemy's military nose. The most difficult part of the work, that of repairing the frame, was done silently. Then an army of contrabands went down in couples, each couple carrying a young pine log to be used as planking. When these had been laid, other contrabands packed the cracks with straw, and still others carried out bags and boxes of dirt and strewed over all, so the bridge should be noiseless under footfall of man and horse. Eight hundred Africans were kept awake all night by that job, and I do not believe the occasion would have been favorable in which to interview them on the blessings of freedom. Just before dawn several companies of our regiment passed over and learned that the enemy had not expected them. Close behind came a large body of infantry, which prolonged the surprise we had caused and prepared to make it permanent. Then some of our light artillery took a hand. We struck the enemy's line near its center and behaved so disagreeably to the Johnnies that General Longstreet took them back to General Lee.

CHAPTER XVII.

AFTER THE RIDER.

I am told that General Longstreet is a gentleman of fine constitution, I am very glad he did not hear the expressions of delight with which the Thirty-eighth received the announcement that he had gone back to his old familiar hunting grounds. Nobody meant to speak unkindly, but all were glad that he was gone, and we said so with as much intensity as was in us. We took the road at once, not to delay his departure, but just to see how he had left things. We did not at all approve of what we saw; neither did the natives. The woods and fields were scarified with miles upon miles of ditches and embankments. Among the natives the conclusion seemed to be that if they were to have their forests shorn and their land turned upside down it didn't much matter who might do it—Yank or Johnny.

Free colored people who lived outside the lines had grievances too. They had been able to hide some cows, pigs, chickens and turkeys from occasional Union soldiers who prowled about alone, but against a few thousand hungry men who were fully informed on the secretive ways of the African it was useless to contend. They followed us when we returned to camp and became part of the colony of which Possum Ben was a bright and shining light.

For some weeks after Longstreet's departure we spent most of our time in the field. The general commanding preferred that Longstreet should have as few excuses as possible for coming back again on the pies of looking for forage, so he proceeded to take up 20 miles of railroad track on each of the two roads leading from our post. It was a tedious job, but as we troopers had little to do but look on and occasionally be killed while repelling inquisitive Johnnies we rather enjoyed it. A large force of infantry and light artillery was with us. So were some hundreds of contrabands, and while we kept the enemy on the river too miserable to come across in a body and visit us the contrabands raised the rails, loaded them on platform cars and burned the ties. We worried General Lee's overburdened heart a good deal for two or three weeks, but that was one of the jobs for which we had enlisted. We made so many feints at attempting to cross the stream and advance in force on Richmond from the south that he had to send some of his men down to watch us.

We worried the natives too. Our horses ate all the grass, hay and fodder that Longstreet's men had left, and the assurance that the owners would be paid could they prove that they were good Union men did not seem to comfort the said owners a bit. They did not doubt that our officers told them the truth, but—there were some stubborn facts in the way of their getting their pay after peace should be declared. A one legged farmer with a military look and a pair of crutches was a picture of agony while his barns were being emptied and his stacks melted away. His wife went stark crazy over what seemed the impending starvation of her family.

Immediately after beholding such experiences or hearing of them a man who had any heart under his jacket would a little rather be shot than not, so after hearing that demented woman's ravings I was delighted to be assigned to very dangerous duty. It was to carry a dispatch to the general commanding a brigade on our extreme left. We felt so secure in our superior strength that the right, left and center were isolated commands rather than parts of a line. I started an hour or two after dark and was told that another man who had been sent on the same errand returned with the report that there was Confederate cavalry in the woods. I had been selected because I had a fast horse which ought to be able to dash through any ordinary line before an alarm could be given, and the chances of a single rider being fired upon and killed in the dark were not very serious. I could not miss the road, for it had no forks or branches.

IN SOO AND NORTH GREY

Long Lists of Charges in Particulars Filed at Osgoode Hall.

A. C. McKay Alleged to Have Been Aware of Much Personal Wrongdoing in His Riding—Sums of Money Alleged to Have Been Given For Votes By the Candidate and His Agents—"Cap" Sullivan Figures in the Charges.

Toronto, Aug. 31.—Yesterday the particulars in the election protests against the return of A. C. McKay, Liberal, North Grey, and C. N. Smith, Liberal, Sault Ste. Marie, were filed at Osgoode Hall.

In the former there are nearly 300 charges. There are six clauses in which Cap Sullivan figures—in having made agreements with James T. Nelson and others in Buffalo, by which, for a money consideration, their active influence was secured, and that the respondent engaged Sullivan as an agent in spite of his record in the law courts. McKay or his agents are charged with having agreed to secure immunity from prosecution for voters violating the lottery laws, and of obtaining leave for them to catch fish during the closed season, or having the closed season extended. Charles Gordon of Owen Sound and Robert Frost of Sarawak are said to have been threatened with violence as regards voting.

Money Mentioned Freely.

McKay, or Frank Gallagher, Leon Mulley, John McCarty or John Freeman are alleged to have given sums of money for votes. McKay and George Ferguson of Owen Sound are alleged to have promised employment to six voters; the respondent, either personally or through John Frost, is said to have advanced money to Albert Muir with the intent that it be used in bribery; and that he also, or his agents, was guilty of permitting payments of money through other than his appointed agent. Payment of hotel and traveling bills for workers and speakers are alleged. McKay, either personally or through the Reform Association of Ontario, North Grey Reform Association, the Reform Central Committee of Owen Sound, Hon. E. J. Davis, James Conmee, M.P.P., or Charles Bowman, M.P.P., or others, is said to have advanced money for bribery to Robert Christie of Owen Sound. Hiring of vehicles in two instances is alleged.

Vote Was a Bribe.

In the Soo matter, the principal allegation against Mr. Smith is that the Government vote of $250,000 to the Lake Superior Consolidated Company was really to influence the electorate in his behalf. Thomas Johnston, Thomas Hunt and John Mullin make the protest.

It is alleged that boats of the Consolidated Lake Superior Company and trains of the Algoma Central Railway conveyed voters with the object of influencing votes; that officers of the former company conspired to intimidate the auditor, J. C. Ramsay; that respondent offered the position of jail surgeon to four doctors; that Messrs. Conmee and Bowman deposited with James Reilly, William O'Brien, George Sutherland and others about $2,000 for placing in bets; that the respondent, as a printer, is disqualified because he held Government printing contracts; that men brought into the riding by the Ontario Liberal Association were given control of the local organization; that the said association provided funds for corrupt expenditure; that a long list of voters, names given, were personated; that Washington Walker was promised land for his vote.

NO INTERVIEWS.

With Members of the G.T.P. Construction Commission.

Montreal, Aug. 31.—The commission appointed to construct the Government section of the Grand Trunk Pacific will give no interviews to the newspapers. This has been settled hard and fast.

F. B. Wade, chairman, last evening stated he and his colleagues had come to the decision that it would be better to give no interviews to the press for the reason that talks with newspapers are not always accurately reported.

He added that their headquarters would always be at Ottawa, and whenever there would be any news the secretary of the commission would be instructed to prepare statements from time to time for the representatives at the capital of the leading papers of the Dominion.

Mr. Wade further stated that they had decided as to the preliminary work of the commission.

John Miller, ex-M.P., Dead.

Brougham, Aug. 31.—John Miller, ex-M.P., died Monday at the age of 81. He was the pioneer cattle breeder and importer of Ontario County, and foremost in the public life of South Ontario for over half a century. He was born in Annan, Dumfries, May 12, 1817, and came to Canada in 1835, to reside with his uncle the late George Miller of Markham. In 1846 he purchased part of the estate now known as Thistledale, comprising 1,000 acres. Ten children and his wife survive him.

Viking Goes Ashore.

St. John's, Nfld., Aug. 31.—The Canadian cable repair steamer Tyrian, which has arrived here from Belle Isle Strait, reports that the steamer Viking, from Halifax for Hamilton Inlet, Labrador, went ashore Friday last near Belle Isle during a fog, and is likely to prove a total loss.

Arrest Made at Ottawa.

THE SIGHTS OF THE SOO

Inspected By the Vice-Regal Party on Tuesday.

Northern Town Turns Out to a Man to Extend Hearty Welcome to His Majesty's Representative—Great Ship Canal Locks and Intricacies of Steel Manufacture Call Forth Admiration—Will Remember Canada.

Sault Ste. Marie, Aug. 31.—The people of the Soo yesterday tendered a reception to Lord and Lady Minto who, with their daughter, Lady Eileen Elliott, arrived Monday night from Owen Sound on the steamer Britannic.

Their Excellencies spent the night on board the Britannic and in the morning the steamer took them through the ship canal, giving them an opportunity to see one of the world's greatest locks in working order. From the canal they went to the steel dock, where the vice-regal party was informally welcomed by Mayor Plummer, the town councillors and a delegation from the Board of Trade.

The party was escorted through the steel plant by Manager Shields. Superintendent Lewis and F. H. Clergue, who showed and explained to Their Excellencies all the processes.

Lord and Lady Minto were warmly received when they came down town in an open carriage escorted by a procession headed by a band. A platform was erected at the court house grounds and an immense crowd gathered to greet the representatives of royalty, who, as they took their place on the platform, were received with cheers. Mayor Plummer read and presented to Lord and Lady Minto an address of welcome from the citizens.

Lord Minto in reply thanked the people for the reception and said that ever would he remember Canada and rejoice in her progress. After addresses from a number of townspeople were received by His Excellency the party were later again escorted through the streets to the C. P. R. depot, whence they took their departure shortly after to continue their westward journey.

IN MORGAN'S SPECIAL TRAIN.

Archbishop of Canterbury Will Reach Toronto Saturday Morning.

Quebec, Aug. 31.—The Archbishop of Canterbury, accompanied by Mrs. Davidson, the Bishop of Quebec and party visited Wolfe's Field, the Price homestead, and were entertained by Miss Price. On the estate is situated the path up which Wolfe's army climbed to the Plains of Abraham in September, 1759. Afterwards the party visited the Plains of Abraham and other points of interest around the city, the Laval University, Montcalm House, St. Matthew's Church, Dufferin Terrace and Holt-Renfrew & Co.'s fur establishment. The party partook of luncheon at Bishop Thrope's at 1 o'clock. In the afternoon Bishop Dunn held a reception, when some 300 leading citizens paid their respects to His Grace the Archbishop. Last night His Grace the Archbishop and party dined with the Dean of Quebec.

This morning the party will visit the citadel, after which they will drive out to Spencerwood and have an early luncheon with the Lieutenant-Governor and Lady Jette. The party will leave direct from Spencerwood to the C.P.R. station, where they will take Mr. Morgan's special train and leave for Montreal at 3 o'clock, arriving in that city at 7 p.m., in time for dinner. They will spend two days in Montreal, leaving for Toronto on Morgan's special train on Friday evening. His Grace, Mr. Morgan and party express great delight at their visit at Quebec, and are much pleased with the scenery.

HEALTH OF THE PROVINCE.

Marked Decrease Shown in Infectious Diseases—Cases and Deaths.

Toronto, Aug. 31.—The returns from 726 division registrars throughout Ontario are most gratifying as indicating the health of the Province compared with the same period last year. As will be seen a decided drop has taken place, both in cases and deaths of infectious diseases with the exception of tuberculosis, which caused 40 more deaths, but this may be accounted for through the returns of some division registrars being more accurate than in previous months.

The total deaths from all causes as reported are 1,861, from a reporting population of 1,960,250, or 90 per cent. of the Province, the death rate being 11.4 per 1,000 as against 1,873 deaths for the same month a year ago from a population of 1,915,220, the rate being 11.5.

The returns show:

London, Aug. 30.—Cattle are steady at 11c to 12½c per lb.; refrigerator beef, 10½c to 10¾c per lb. Sheep, 10¾c to 12¾c, dressed weight.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

Receipts of live stock were not as heavy as usual—74 cars all told, consisting of 1020 cattle, 540 hogs, 1767 sheep and lambs, 80 calves and 16 horses. Of the above number of cars, there were 4 loads of Chicago, which were not for sale, as well as 12 loads from the Junction.

There were only five or six loads of shipping cattle on the market, the bulk of which had been ordered in from the country to fill a contract, and consequently, were not for sale. The highest price quoted as being paid was $5.20 for a load of 20, weighing 1260 lbs. each, bought by Mayhew & Wilson on order, and 40, weighing 1120 lbs. each, at $5.15 per cwt. The rest of the sales were from $4.90 to $5 per cwt.

The best lots of butchers' sold readily. Picked lots of choice heifers, 1120 1200 lbs., sold at $4.25 to $4.50, but there were few of this class. A few loads of good butchers' sold at $4 to $4.25 per cwt.; fair to good, at $3.75 to $4.10; medium, $3.50 to $3.75; common, $3.25 to $3.40; rough to inferior at $2.50 to $3 per cwt.

The bulk of offerings to-day were of common to inferior quality, which sold at accordingly low prices, as will be seen by sales given below. All of fair to good quality were readily bought at about the same prices. Light feeders of good quality, 850 to 900 lbs. each, are in demand and sell readily at about $3.90 to $4.10 per cwt. Stockers sold from $3.25 to $3.40 per cwt. for common to medium, and $4.25 to $4.35 for good.

About 25 milch cows and springers sold at $30 to $50 each, the best going at one to $60 each.

The run of veal calves being moderate, prices held steadily at $4 to $5.25 per cwt., for the bulk of offerings, while a few of choice quality sold at $5.50 per cwt.

Deliveries of sheep and lambs were moderate, and prices were firmer, especially for lambs. Lambs sold at $4.90 to $5 per cwt. for the bulk, but a few choice lots brought $5.25 per cwt.

The run of hogs was light, but prices were easy at $5.50 for selects and $5.25 for lights and fats. Some of the drovers were feeling extremely sore on account of having hogs bought ahead when the drop came.

EAST BUFFALO CATTLE MARKET.

Campbellford, August 30.—Cheese meeting—Boarded, 1365; all sold to Margrath at 9⅝c.

Latest Harvest to Years.

Winnipeg, Aug. 31.—Harvest operations are now well under way in all the early districts, but the rain and the cool nights of the last two days have proved another set-back. The harvest is now later than it has been for several years, and by every experience of the past all wheat uncut by the end of the second week in September is liable to be frozen. It is difficult at present to estimate the acreage that will be left uncut by then, but if fine weather holds out this week it should be not more than 15 to 20 per cent.

Pitiful Helplessness.

Victims of nervous diseases are most to be pitied because their ailment usually terminates in mental or physical helplessness. Paralysis, locomotor ataxia and insanity can only be avoided by building up the nervous system at the first sign of trouble, and there is no preparation so well suited for this purpose as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, the great nerve restorative.

INDECISION AND INFIDELITY

Glasgow Minister Startles a London Congregation.

London, Aug. 28. — The Rev. John Urquhart, of Glasgow, startled the sedate congregation at Highgate Road Baptist Chapel, N.W., the other night. Wesley, Knox and Luther, he commenced by saying, stood for the teaching of the Bible as a divine institution. But to-day, and to relate, we were going back upon that view. Those who were teaching the present ministry were saying that the statement of the fire which came down upon Mount Carmel was a poetic fancy, beautiful in conception, but it was not reality. Yet such was the infidelity being taught students for the ministry, and such moreover, was the infidelity which would shortly be taught from their pulpits. Why was this? The answer was, because of indecision. Infidelity was being taught on all hands. It was to be found in the Congregational churches, in the Wesleyan bodies, and even among the Primitive Methodists. And it was spreading through the ministry. The crime of indecision was to be found in nearly every church in the land. He could mention churches in which a congregation could not be obtained unless the minister kissed all the young ladies. By law, indeed, had they demanded that such tricks must be played in order that the servants of God might obtain a congregation. Unless such things were done the churches were sneered at as being too straight-laced. Ministers could not give a straight testimony of the Bible for fear of giving offence.

RUGBY.

A meeting of the Executive Committee of the Peterborough Rugby Football Club was held last evening in the Oriental. Thos were present, R. A. Morrow, Hon. President; Mr. E. S. Clarry, President; Mr. C. G. Graham, Secretary; Messrs. W. Crowley, Art Noble, and E. Dillon. An informal discussion took place as to the prospects of the game in Peterborough for the season. It was learned that there are several new men herem anxious to play, and that many of the players of the City Association Football League were also available and would make strong men. The President stated that he had been in communication with the Secretary of the Turf Club, and had been made a satisfactory proposition in regard to the use of the grounds for Rugby purposes. The matter of what series of the O.R.F.U. the local club would enter was deferred until the annual meeting, by which time the composition of the team as well as of the O. R.F.U. would be known. It was decided to hold the annual meeting on Wednesday evening, Sept. 7th, in the Oriental. An invitation is extended to all members, ex-members and Rugby enthusiasts generally to be present. It is more than likely that electric lights will be put in at the diving parrk so that the teams will be able to practice at night. The fact that the street cars will be in operation will greatly facilitate matters.

The prospects for a successful season are very bright. Mr. E. S. Clarry has been looking over the field and says there is some good material available.

BASEBALL.

Port Hope got a bad beating from Lindsay yesterday at Lindsay in a league game. Port Hope was entirely outclassed. Lindsay played a star game, their battery doing splendid execution and their pitcher was well supported. McLachlan for Lindsay struck out 13 batters. Port Hope's fielding was very poor. Umpire Bennett of Bowmanville gave good satisfaction. Score—13 to 0. Lindsay's record is seven won and one lost.

The Ishmls are playing in Port Hope this afternoon.

LACROSSE.

Mr. R. M. Glover is refereeing a C. L. A. game at Orillia this afternoon.

Mr. Fred A. Clarke received word yesterday to attend the meeting in regard to the protested game between Brantford and the Tecumsehs. He will likely attend.

St. Mark's, Otonabee

The congregation of St. Mark's, church is preparing a harvest festival on Thursday, Sept. 22nd. There will be divine service at three p.m., at which the Rev. W. R. Tandy, M.A., of Havelock, is expected to preach. Further notice regarding the festivities of the evening will be given later. Reserve Sept. 22nd, afternoon and evening, for the harvest festival.

SEPTEMBER FORECAST

MANY PROLONGED AND SEVERE PERTURBATIONS.

High Temperature Promised by Prof. Irl R. Hicks for the First Half of the Month.

Rev. Irl.R. Hicks, of St. Louis, has issued his forecasts for the month of September, from which the appended extracts are taken.

A secondary storm period, beginning the last two days in August, will last into the 1st and 2nd days of September, storms having moved into central to eastern parts by the 1st and 2nd. Higher barometer westerly gales and change to much cooler will follow behind these disturbances.

The storm period, beginning on the 4th and extending to the 10th promises to bring many prolonged and severe perturbations. At least five astronomical causes will help to disturb Earth's meteorological elements at this time—the Moon in conjunction with Earth and in perigee, the Vulcan force, the Mercury Equinox, the Venus disturbance and the greatly increased tension of Earth's autumnal equinox. The disturbances at this time will almost certainly be aggravated in character, and prolonged, with possibly very slight intermission, into and through the reactionary storm period central on the 11th and 12th. The Moon being at new and in perigee on the 9th, and on the celestial equator on the 10th, the chances for prolonged and violent disturbances into the 11th and 12th are unusually great.

During the early stages of these general disturbances, an excessively high temperature, or heated term, is sure to make its appearance over most parts of the country, provided that West India storms, with wide and deep barometric depressions do not come promptly out of the southseas touching our gulf and south Atlantic States.

We predict that Wednesday, the 7th, to Saturday, the 10th, will bring a decided crisis showing that equinoctial hurricanes of great extent and violence are near, if not sweeping our southern coasts, or that phenomenal heat over the interior, covering the greater part of the country will be culminating in low barometric, thunder storms and possible tornadoes in many places. If hurricanes and marked barometric depressions reach our south coasts early in this period very cool, northerly winds will flow southward over central and western states, followed by "backing winds"—that is, shifting from east to north, northwest and west—attended by several days of dogged, persistent, cold rains. We believe that the equatorial cyclones and hurricanes will delay their approach to our southern coasts long enough to cause a severe heated term during the first half of the month, or until severe storms on and touching the 11th, and 12th. Earthquake and volcanic phenomena will be reported from various parts of the globe on and about the 9th. If very low barometer and equinoctial hurricanes reach the southern coasts and states at this time, northerly currents will induce marked boreal conditions over western and central sections, bringing frosts to north-western states not far from the 12th to 15th.

The next regular storm period extends from the 16th to the 21st. This periodis covered, as was also the previous periods, by the Mercury aquinox and by the Earth's autumnal equinox, near its central date and influence. Those who have studied our forecasts during past years, comparing the phenomena of nature by persistent and intelligent observations, will know that the chances for equinoctial hurricanes in the south will be increased at this time, if such have not made their appearances at previous periods. If such have already approached, reaching our part of the globe, they will be less probable at this and subsequent September periods. In the nature of things, we are now at the period of the probability of such disturbances, and if the proper precautions are taken, and the proper watchfulness exercised, the dreadful lists of casualities, and loss of property, might be reduced to almost nothing.

One of these great West-India cyclones or hurricanes has the lifetime of more than one ordinary storm period, so that they often approach the southern coasts of our continent, in a wandering sort of way, occupying many days. But they take on renewed energy at the centres of the regular storm periods, working their greatest devastation on both land and sea, nine times in ten, during these regular periods. Whatever character of storms are in progress during the period 16th to 21st, Sunday, the 18th, to Wednesday, the 21st, will bring the culminating crisis of the period.

If an equinoctial hurricane, or cyclone, is in progress in the gulf, or adjacent waters, and does not reach the southern coasts before, it is almost certain to be felt, in violent gales or high seas, within twenty-four hours of noon on the 24th. One of the September perturbations, whatever may occur at other periods, is almost certain to reach a decided, if not violent crisis at this time. This is also another time when seismic, volcanic and meteoric phenomena will be reported from many extremes of Globe. In every probability a rushing high barometer, violent northwesterly gales, and change to almost cold, will spread over the country from the northwest, as the storms of this period give place to the high barometric area pushing close behind them.

Japs Retreat in Disorder.

"One company after another was noticed running swiftly to the westward in an attempt to outflank the positions, but a Russian regiment and a battery were ordered to advance and succeeded in forcing the enemy to retreat in disorder, evacuating positions they had previously gained.

"There has been an immense expenditure of ammunition throughout the day, especially on the southern front against the Russian third corps.

"It is believed that the Russian losses so far have not been very heavy, except to the regiments which sustained bayonet charges. All the men serving one Russian gun except one were killed by shrapnel. The survivor, who was badly wounded, heroically brought his gun to headquarters, and even then refused to quit his place until the general personally ordered him into the hospital.

"A more energetic attack is expected to-morrow.

"It seems that Gen. Kuroki's force did not participate in to-day's engagement.

"The morale of the Russian troops is excellent."

News of Port Arthur.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 31.—The news from Port Arthur up to the 26th was reassuring. The account of the battleship Sevastopol having gone out on Aug. 23 to bombard the Japanese in Tade Bay does not mention that that vessel struck a mine.

A despatch from Vladivostock mentions the presence there of Gen. Rennenkampf, who recently left the hospital at Liaoyang on sick leave.

CLERK BOARD OF HEALTH

Of Jacksonville, Fla., Endorses Pe-ru-na.

C. D. TAYLOR.

C. D. Taylor, Clerk of the City Board of Health of Jacksonville, Fla., has occupied that position for the last ten years. In a recent letter to the Peruna Drug Mfg. Co., he expresses his approval of their famous catarrh remedy Peruna in the following words:

"The health of the poor of a large city is always a question of vital interest not only to the city officials but to every citizen. It has been a source of much satisfaction to me to find that so large a number of working people in moderate circumstances have accepted Peruna as their family medicine. It has cured a large number of cases especially of catarrh of the head, lungs and stomach and building up the general health it cannot fail but prove a help and blessing to any community where it is generally adopted and used. I have found it an honest reliable remedy and am pleased to endorse it."—C. D. Taylor, Clerk, Board of Health.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

FIRE 7 MILES LONG.

Loss Already Over Half and a Half Million Dollars.

Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 29.—Another forest fire, seven miles long, is burning at Point Grey, close to Vancouver. The fires are still raging all over the province, and the sun has been obscured by the smoke for two weeks. It is stated that the total loss to the provincial treasury on timber royalties will be over half a million dollars. The loss of timber will be over $6,000,000. The fires are the worst ever experienced here. There is still no sign of rain.

A New Survey.

Ottawa, Aug. 19.—The Minister of Railways has decided to have a fresh survey made of the outlet for the Trent Valley Canal, via Port Hope. Another survey will be made of the upper end of the canal.

SWINGING INTO AUTUMN

The GOLDEN LION has gathered from the world's best looms a world's wealth of beauty in Elegant Fall Goods. From England come rich and beautiful cloths, as well as serviceable fabrics from the Fatherland—from Germany and America others equally as charming.

Some of the newest European novelties that can now be seen are—

New Suitings and Costume Cloths
Priestly's Black and Colored Suitings
Priestly's Dress Goods and Rainproof Cloths
New Autumn Dress Trimmings
New Autumn Styles in Dress Skirts
New Rainproof Coats
New Autumn Cloaks and Suits
Ready-to-wear Hats, etc.

There is not a loop-hole for question as to the supremacy of Fair's Dress Goods this season—not a point upon which they can be "Port Arthured." Quality, tastefulness and value gainsay comparison at every turn.

Dress-Making

This department was re-opened for the season on Monday, August 29th, under the capable management of Miss Neild, who has recently returned from an extended visit to the leading fashion centres.

MISS ARMSTRONG, head of the Millinery Dept., returned recently from New York, after a visit to the wholesale markets. She is now attending the Toronto wholesale millinery openings, where we have a large staff of trimmers preparing for the Autumn season.

LIAOYANG'S DEATH STRUGGLE

The Second Day's Fight Commenced With the Dawn.

VICTORY FAVORS NEITHER

Russians Lose 3000 in the First Days Fight and the Estimate of Japanese Loss is Greater-- Russians Claim Victory--All the News is from Russian Sources.

Liaoyang, Sept. 1.—The second day's battle commenced at dawn. The Russians made repeated bayonet charges on the road directly south of Liaoyang, where the Japanese approached from Sanquaiship and Tao, shelling the positions in the Russian lines until 4 in the afternoon, when the engagement, which was general throughout the south and southeast, narrowed to the main line. The Japanese advance on the southeast was by way of the Fangwangcheng road.

Immediately in front of Chinofantun the Japanese stubbornly attempted to occupy a round-top hill, which was literally shaved by Russian shells, making repeated attempts the entire day, where apparently it was impossible for anything to live. The cannonading continued from this point to the vicinity of Wangpaotai until last evening without apparent advantage to either side. The Japanese dropped shells within two or three miles of the railroad station and in the plain of Wentshu Mountain, which is the most important eminence around Liaoyang, but the Japanese abandoned aggression there on account of the resistance they met.

There was cannon fire last night, and this is expected nightly. The varied casualties here include one Russian war correspondent and 25 Chinese women from Chinofantun, whom Dr. Westwater, the distinguished missionary, is caring for in the Chinese Red Cross refuge.

The day's developments seem to show that the Russians are prepared for all emergencies. Slow rain began to fall at noon, gradually transforming the plain into a wilderness, through which the wounded, in carts and walking, were last night making their way to the hospitals. Considering the scale of the day's operations, the number of Russians wounded is apparently small, while the Japanese losses are believed to be great, especially where they were repulsed on the south road. Chinese graves with trees are being leveled about Liaoyang in order not to interfere with the east and west. Developments are expected west and northeast.

Japs Use Balloons.

The Japanese are using balloons to locate the Russian guns and trenches. One of the Russian correspondents of the Associated Press points out that the Japanese sent up a balloon shortly after daylight to the southeast of Liaoyang. The Japanese are said to be using mortars to drop shells in the Russian positions. These are probably the high-angle fire howitzers, which were reported in action earlier in the week.

Russians Claim Victory.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 1.—Some interesting details of Tuesday's battle are furnished by Russian correspondents, from which it appears that two regiments of Japanese at daybreak attempted to capture the batteries of the sixth artillery brigade, located on the extreme left flank of the Russian army. The attempt was only discovered in the nick of time. Some of the Russian troops fought continuously for 36 hours. The concussion and the roaring of the guns shook the windows of Liaoyang, though the artillery were six to eight miles away.

Monitrevish Danchenko, the famous Russian war correspondent, describing the battle, says: "The enemy, drunk with their former successes, attacked from three sides like madmen. When they were forced back, fresh troops, of which they seemed to have an inexhaustible supply, were sent forward." M. Danchenko says the combatants had about 600 guns on each side, and adds: "It was our first victory. The enemy was beaten back everywhere, many of his batteries were destroyed and in some cases his infantry was put to rout."

Over 200 Japanese captured at the battle of Liaoyang Tuesday passed through Mukden yesterday on a train.

Further despatches from Liaoyang confirm the report of the capture of 46 Japanese guns, which were brought up to the railroad station where Gen. Kuropatkin's train was standing.

Russians Lose 8,000.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 1.—Lieut.-General Sakharoff, telegraphing to the general staff on the conclusion of Tuesday's 10 hours' fighting around Liaoyang, estimates that the Russian casualties throughout the day were 8,000. The battle ended at 5 o'clock Tuesday night when many positions occupied by the Japanese were retaken and again held by the Russians.

The report from Lieut.-Gen. Sakharoff is as follows:

"From 5 o'clock this morning until 9 to-night, the Japanese forces attacked our frontal position before Liaoyang, and on the left bank of the Taitse River. Both their artillery and rifle fire were intense. Their main efforts were directed against our centre positions, and the left flank, but numerous attacks were repulsed along the whole line. Our troops made several counter attacks, culminating in bayonet fighting.

"Many positions, which had been occupied by the Japanese, were retaken at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. During the artillery attack our batteries did very effective work. About four this afternoon the enemy was observed attempting to turn our right flank with considerable forces, but several battalions of reserves advanced, and, after a fierce engagement checked the Japanese and compelled them to retire. The battle continued until after dark and only ceased at 10 o'clock.

"Our casualties to-day have been considerable, reaching about 8,000. The Japanese losses must have been heavier."

—The gasoline launch "Genesee" came over from Rochester by steamer North King on Tuesday and was taken by team to Chemong. Mr. W. Kendoff is enjoying an outing at the lakes.

KING'S UNIFORM DISGRACED

Three Artillerymen of Kingston Accused of Robbery.

Kingston, Ont., Aug. 31.—About half-past two o'clock this morning Policemen Hughes, who, with four other constables, had been shadowing three artillerymen who were acting suspiciously on Princess-st., discovered two of them in Mahood's drug store. He pushed open the Bagot-st. door, which had been forced, and was met with several shots from the burglars' revolvers. There were two in the store, and they rushed past Policeman Hughes, who had a most remarkable escape. The latter fired on the burglars, who separated, one rushing down Bagot-st. and the other up Princess-st. Four other policemen came up and joined in the pursuit. Policeman Graham fired several shots at the man running down Bagot-st., one going between his legs. The batterymen fell over a wire on a lawn on Queen-st., and as Policeman Graham came up he fired at his head, but the latter, hearing the click of his revolver, dodged and then sprang upon the desperado, easily overpowering him. The man proved to be Stanley Drapeau, of the stores department of "E" Battery. The other two, Marion Drapeau, of "A" Battery, a cousin, and Pierre Vigar, also of "E" Battery stores department, were arrested shortly afterwards at the barracks. The police came on them just as they had broken open the drug store till. The men are suspected of robbing T. Mills' fur store the night before, and also of doing petty thieving at the barracks.

BY ORDER-IN-COUNCIL

There is a growing and mischievous tendency under the the present regime to supercede our system of responsible representative government by taking action by order-in-council, instead of bringing pulic business before Parliament. The disreputable Cornwall bargain by which they strove to fleece the people of Canada to the extent of several millions, and actuelly had to disgorge one million, was effected by order-in-council, and was only brought to the attention of the House by the public-spirited stand made by the Auditor-General. In the dying hours of the session it transpired that a number of their party favorites had been given presents (a rental of $10 can be called nothing else), covering fishery rights over great stretches of water in Hudson Bay and the lakes and rivers of the Northwest. These misappropriations of public property for corrupt purposes were all effected by order-in-council.

The theft by Mr. Prefontaine of a Government steamer that he might present it to a friend for less than the cost of recent repairs, and his sale of timber to another friend for less than a tenth of its value, were also engineered by order-in-council.

Sometimes these misdeeds only come to light accidentally; sometimes by their nature they have to be submitted to Parliament for ratification or because a money vote is required.

But even when this is the case it is a mere evasion of Ministerial responsibility. The thing is done and their venial followers sitting there in the hope of similar grafts for themselves, vote like a phalanx to indemnify their leaders. If they had to bring the matter before the House in the first place, in default of any sense of shame they might have some fear of public opinion and of adverse ballots to restrain them. Above all, when they are corruptly and dishonestly squandering the public property, of which they are trustees, they should obtain the assent of Parliament beforehand, and not seek shelter for their crimes in the obscurity of an order-in-council. They cannot expend a dollar of money legally without the assent of the House; why should they alienate the property of the people or sign onerous contracts by means of mere Cabinet action.

Be in Earnest.

Be in earnest about your health. Do not suppose that the headaches, backaches and other symptoms from which you suffer will pass away of their own accord instead of developing into serious and chronic disease. If you are subject to kidney, liver and bowel derangements there is no preparation which will be so helpful to you as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. One pill a dose.

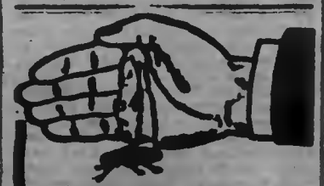
FEAR GERMAN INVASION.

Congo Free State Is Constructing Concealed Forts.

Cape Town, Sept. 1.—Official information from British Central Africa says that the Congo Free State is constructing concealed forts of considerable magnitude on the west shore of Lake Tanganyika, and that one of these forts, which is equipped with 20 guns, is within two hours of the German frontier. It is believed that the Belgians apprehend a German invasion. A number of natives who are German subjects have been expelled from the Congo Free State.

It is understood that negotiations regarding the matter are now proceeding between Berlin and Brussels.

The west shore of Lake Tanganyika belongs to the Congo Free State, the south shore to British Central Africa and the east shore to German East Africa. The area of the lake is estimated at 14,000 square miles.



This plan is clear and not very cute.

THE ARCHBISHOP'S PROGRAM

HIS GRACE WILL RECEIVE A DEGREE AT TORONTO UNIVERSITY.

Sketch of the Primate of all England Broad-minded Church man—Some Perogatives.

Toronto, Aug. 31— His Grace, the Archbishop of Canterbury, will arrive in Toronto next Saturday morning, will be the guest of Mr. E. B. Osler, M.P., at Rosedale, while in the city. The programme for his entertainment has been made as quiet as possible. On Saturday afternoon, a special convocation will be held at Toronto university, at which the Primate will receive a degree. Trinity university will be visited, where an address of welcome will be presented from the synod of the diocese of Toronto, after which there will be a reception in the college grounds. In the evening the archbishop will be entertained at dinner by the lieutenant-governor.

On Sunday His Grace will be at St. James' cathedral in the morning and St. Alban's cathedral at night. On Monday morning His Grace will pay a short visit to the exhibition, and will spend the remainder of the day inspecting the leading church institutions and public buildings of the city. On Tuesday the archbishop leaves for the United States by way of Niagara Falls.

HIGHEST OFFICE IN THE EMPIRE.

Mr. Davidson holds the highest office in the British Empire. As Archbishop of Canterbury he takes precedence immediately after royalty, outranking any of the peerage, the premier, the lord chancelor or secretary of state. He is the ninety-fifth to fill that position, dating from the foundation of the See A.D. 597. The first holder was St. Augustine while among his successors are several prelates who are revered as saints by the Roman Catholic church, including St. Thomas a'-Becket, who was murdered in the cathedral of Canterbury 733 years ago. The prestige and importance of the Primate of All England dates from the earliest times, and prior to the Reformation the Pope was wont at Councils to place the Archbishop of Canterbury on his right hand, giving him precedence over all other archbishops, Urban II. referring to him as "alterius orbis Papa" ("the pope of another world.")

SOME OF HIS PREROGATIVES.

Among the most important and least known of the prerogatives of the Archbishop of Canterbury is that of heading the commission of great dignitaries of the realm, who form a species of council of regency in the event of some time intervening between the demise of a sovereign and the assumption of the reins of government by his or her successor. The last occasion when the primate was called upon to fulfill this office was on the death of Queen Anne, when some days elapsed before George Elector of Hanover, could reach England and take possession of the throne of Great Britain. Had, for instance, anything untoward happened to King Edward while the Prince of Wales was travelling around the world, on board the Ophir, three years ago, and had no speedy provision been made for such a fatality, the Archbishop of Canterbury, assisted by the lord high chancellor, the premier and other of the great officers of the Crown, would either have taken the necessary steps to invest Queen Alexandra or the Duke of Connaught with the regency, or else whould themselves have exercised the executive duties of the new sovereign until his return to England.

HIS EARLY HISTORY.

The present occupant is in his 57th year, having been born April 7, 1848. He was educated at Trinity College, Oxford, of which he is a D.D. Among the positions he has held are curate of Dartford, Kent, 1874-77; chaplain and private secretary to Archbishop Tait of Canterbury, 1877-82; to Archbishop Benson, 1882-83; examining chaplain to Bishop Lightfoot, of Durham, 1881-83; honorarry chaplain to the Queen, 1882; of the six prebendes of Canterbury cathedral, 1890-83; Dean of Windsor, and domestic chaplain to the Queen, 1883-91; clerk of the British museum from 1884; Bishop of Rochester, 1891-95; Bishop of Winchester, 1895-1903; clerk of the closet in ordinary to the King, 1901-03; Arcnbishop of Canterbury since 1903.

MRS. DAVIDSON'S POSITION.

In the course of his official career Dr. Davidson was brought into relations which had important bearings on his after life. While chaplain and private secretary to Archbishop Tait, he married in 1878 Miss Edith, the second daughter of his grace. Seldom has the palace had a more gracious mistress than Mrs. Davidson, who accompanies her husband to this country. Although the wife of one primate and the daughter of another, yet she has no share in his eminence, save that which is accorded to her by courtesy, and officially speaking, she is outranked by the helpmate of any successful tradesman who happens to be knighted for municipal services, and of every petty colonial official who has received the lowest grade of the Order of St. Michael and St. George. The social position of the wives of the archbishops and bishops of the Church of England has been an anomalous one since the days of the Reformation. That they should have received no official recognition when the church was reorganized upon its present basis in the reign of King Henry VIII. must be ascribed to a survival of the ideas which then prevailed on the subject of the celibacy of the clergy. Although Mrs. Davidson was a particular favorite of Queen Victoria, and enjoys in a very marked degree the friendship of both King Edward and Queen Alexandra, yet in an official sense, her position is not one whit less anomalous than that of the wife of Queen Elizabeth's primate, and while her husband is addressed as "My Lord Archbishop," and as "Your Grace" in the same manner as dukes, she remains plain "Mrs. Davidson. In 1891 her husband wrote the biography of her father, with whom he had been a great favorite. Mrs. Davidson is not a lady orator, but occasionally presides over meetings in the interests of women and girls. She has always shown practical sympathy with these cases of sickness or distress which come under her personal notice.

HIS INTIMACY WITH ROYALTY.

The other influence of his official duties to which reference has been made, is his intimacy with the royal family. Until his elevation to the primacy he was the spiritual adviser to the King, as he had likewise been to Queen Victoria, to whom he administered the last rites of the church. In this capacity he bore the title of "Clerk of the Closet." In pre-Reformation times this dignitary was usually the father confessor of the sovereign, but since the establishment of the church of England, the clerk has invariably been a bishop who, strictly speaking, is required to stand at the right of the monarch in the royal closet or gallery during divine service "to remove such doubts as may arise concerning spiritual matters in the mind of the ruler." Neither King Edward or Queen Victoria ever required Dr. Davidson to stand by their chairs during divine service during his tenure of the office of clerk of the closet.

A BROAD-MINDED CHURCHMAN.

Dr. Davidson enjoys the rare distinction of having on one occasion refused the primacy. When Archbishop Benson died the late Queen Victoria intimated her desire that he should succeed, but he was obliged to decline on account of his health. Shortly after leaving college he received a gunshot wound which threatened to mar his career, but in time he has outgrown the effects of it. He is noted as one of the most broad-minded of churchmen. He was a warm friend of the late Cardinal Vaughan, and when in Scotland has occasionally filled a Presbyterian pulpit. He was a great admirer of Mr. Spurgeon, attended his funeral and pronounced the benediction at the graveside in Norwood cemetery. Though not a total abstainer, he believes in moderation and is president of the Church of England Temperance Society. The measures which he advocated in the house of lords for the cause of temperance led to the enactment of the habitual inebriates' law in 1901, which has accomplished a great deal of good. He also took a prominent part in securing the passage by the house of lords of the shop assistants bill for the protection of weary shop girls. This licensing act which had just come into force had its origin in a bill of its own, which Mr. Davidson withdrew on the government promising to introduce a bill embodying its principles.

A PRINCELY STIPEND.

As Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Davidson receives a stipend of $75,000, derived from the enormously wealthy property of the church. In addition to this income the archbishop enjoys the use of an official residence within the cathedral precints of Canterbury, and of a stately palace in London on the banks of the Thames, almost opposite the houses of parliament at Westminster. Lambeth Palace has been the metripolitan abode of the Archbishops of Canterbury since the twelfth century, the only interruption having been in the protectorate of Oliver Cromwell.

There the Archbishop of Canterbury resides in great state throughout the London season, his household being maintained on a princely scale, with gentlemen-in-waiting, chaplains, secretaries, purse-bearers and chamberlains.

VISITED THE CITADEL.

Archbishop of Canterbury Sees Heliograph to Send Message of Greeting.

Quebec, Que., Sept. 1.—The Archbishop of Canterbury and party visited the citadel yesterday morning. They were received by the commander of the fortress, Colonel Wilson and Mrs. Wilson, and were shown all over the fort and its outwork. While in the citadel His Grace sent the following heliograph message to the artillery camp at the Island of Orleans, nine miles distant: "The Archbishop of Canterbury sends greetings to the artillery camp."

In a very few minutes the following reply was received: "The camp commandant and officers, Royal Canadian Artillery, thank His Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury for his message and sincerely return his greetings. (Signed) Camp Commandant."

On leaving the citadel the party drove to Spencerwood, where they were received by the Lieutenant-Governor and Lady Jette. After luncheon they were shown over the grounds, and had a splendid view of the St. Lawrence, stretching for miles both eastward and westward.

On taking leave of the Lieutenant-Governor and Lady Jette, the party entered their carriages and drove to the C.P.R. Station, where Mr. Morgan's special train was in readiness to receive them. All having embarked on the train at 3 p.m. precisely, it left for Montreal. Quite a large crowd had assembled to see the distinguished party off, and, as the train left the station, the Archbishop was loudly cheered.

His Grace and Mrs. Davidson speak enthusiastically of the warm reception they received in the first Canadian city they ever had the pleasure of visiting.

Archbishop in Montreal.

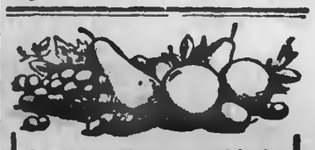
Montreal, Sept. 1.—The Primate of All England reached here last evening from Quebec. His Grace was met at the Windsor station by Archbishop Carmichael, Sir Geo. Drummond and others.

SYSTEMATIC EMBEZZLEMENT

Has Been Going on in the Provincial Government Offices at Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, Aug. 30—One of the cleverest and most systematic cases of embezzlement was unearthed at the Provincial Government offices on Saturday, when it was found that James Melvin Bartlett, Clerk of Vital Statistics in the Agricultural Department, had apparently been robbing the province for a period of about 10 years, his total alleged defalcations amounting to some $8,000 to $10,000. Bartlett is alleged to have carried out frauds in the most clever manner, and the system which he appears to have adopted defied detection, except in case of an accident such as that which occurred.

The Minister was overhauling the returns of the department and was struck with the smallness of the amount received for marriage fees. He immediately made enquiries of his deputy as to the correctness of the returns, and, although the books seemed to tally, he sent to the department under which municipal returns are made, for the figures of returns made by municipalities as to the number of marriages in their respective districts. It was found on comparison that these totalled nearly double the number of licenses paid for. This caused a thorough overhauling of the books to discover where the leakage was, with the result that it was found that Bartlett had made entries in Morse characters and other species of shorthand known to himself which, after being deciphered, gave an alleged clue to his mode of operations. For instance, one set of marks, it is stated, was a private memorandum that he had covered up his tracks and destroyed all evidence of frauds up to that date by this means, and apparently by a private set of books he was able to keep on any incriminating documents in circulation, as well as to keep his official books exactly balanced. The marriage licenses issued by the department have all to be signed by the Minister at the head of the department, and, like most of such forms, are signed in blank in large batches. There is an elaborate system of numbering them in series and keeping counterfoils. It is believed that Bartlett issued duplicate certificates. There is nothing wrong with any of the certificates issued, so far as the outside public is concerned, as all bore the Minister's signature, and the only thing improper about them was that two certificates of similar number were issued and that the provincial treasury did not receive the proper fees on one. There is no question of any illegality, however, in any marriage contract owing to the fraud. A warrant has been issued for his arrest. He left some days ago on his holidays, though it is presumed he suspected that things were getting too warm.



You know the action of fruit.

Apples, on the kidneys—oranges, for stomach and appetite—prunes and figs for the bowels. But—fresh fruit won't CURE these organs when diseased: they can only HELP to keep them well.

Fruit-a-tives or Fruit Liver Tablets can—and DO—cure. They are fruit juices—but changed chemically and medicinally, by our secret process. So remarkable is this convertion, that "Fruit-a-tives" cure all Stomach, Liver, Kidney and Skin Diseases, where the fresh fruit would have no effect on the trouble.

NEW CHURCH COMMOTION

SOME FACTS ABOUT FREE CHURCH TROUBLE.

What a few Ministers are Standing out Against as Result of Recent Judgement.

London, Aug. 30— Never, surely, have the wildest flight's of the novelist's imagination conceived a situation more dramatic than that which is still the talk of Scotland, from Berwick to St. Kilda and from Aberdeen to Argyll.

Let us bring back the situation to our minds. Four years ago there were four great churches in Scotland:

1. The Established Church (Presbyterian), with 1,900 ministers, and 660,000 communicants.

2. The Free church, with 1,105 ministers, 1,094 congregations, and 208,634 communicants.

3. The United Presbyterian church, with 631 ministers, 580 churches and 197,476 members.

4. The Episcopal church, with 334 ministers, 354 churches, and 45,384 communicants.

In 1900 the Free church and the United Presbyterian church—the two "middle" churches in strength—joined forces. The Presbyterians were unanimous; the Free Church had a small minority—twenty-four ministers and some scattered congregations—against the union. The Free church, they asserted, could not join the United Presbyterians, and the 1,141 ministers who had done so were members of the Free church no longer; they were seceders and had no claim to either the name or the property of the Free church. A question of the gravest importance was thus raised. In 1843, at the disruption, 387,000 pounds was raised for the foundation of the Free church and the properties of the church had grown enormously. To whom did they belong? The 1,141 ministers who joined the union took the property with them; the twenty-four who refused to join claimed it by right.

THEY LOCKED GATES.

When the "remnant" knocked at the gates of the Free church assembly hall in Edinburghon the morning of October 31, 1900, they found the gates locked against them and were refused admission. The lion held its great assembly and the lamb lay down elsewhere. The "little ministers" kept up the dignities of the great Free Church of Scotland. Every year they met in assembly at Edinburgh. But they were an insignificant remnant. They carried great congregations — the people of St. Kilda tried to starve their minister, who had joined the union, into submission, and a boat was sent with supplies to the manse. Ministers were prosecuted, churches were closed and for four years the war went on. Even a fly may make an elephant uncomfortable.

Then the United Free church tried to turn a rebel minister from his pulpit and failed. It was David against Goliath and once more David won.

The union appealed, and lost the appeal. They brought the case to the house of lords, and lost again. The Free Church, the house of lords declared, had no power to change its principles and keep its properties.

It was one of the things men can hardly believe, as if a page from a novel had come true in the house of lords. A thousand congregations were churchless, a thousand pulpits vacant, a thousand preachers without charges. The Free church of Scotland was declared to consist of a handful of ministers and a few thousands of people; ten millions sterling worth of property was given over to them, and they were to control foreign missions all over the world—one of them itself with institutions greater, in the number of students, than Oxford and Cambridge universities put together.

WHO ARE THE THIRTY-ONE?

Who are the twenty-four ministers—now thirty-one—who have suddenly come into the possession of hundreds of pulpits and millions of money? They are, almost all of them, unknown men, living in lonely manses in the Highlands, preaching often in a strange tongue which not one Englishman in a million could understand . . . . . but all

But it cannot be denied that they are men in deadly earnest. Men who have fought in the civil courts for their pulpits, and have faced an angry people with the Bible in their hands, who have had charge often of half a dozen congregations, can hardly be said to love idle things, and scorn laborious days.

The man who led the Free church remnant in the hour of its crisis, has something in him of the blood of a popular lawyer and eminent minister. He is the Rev. Colin A. Bannatyne, a native of Sir R. Bannatyne, the attorney-general. It was to Mr. Bannatyne that the remnant appealed after the union. He was chosen moderator, and the twenty-four ministers, after publicly protesting against their exclusion, met in formal assembly and conducted the affairs of the Free church. It speaks well for Mr. Bannatyne that he is still, as he has been nearly thirty years, in his first charge.

The leadership of the remnant in 1901 was vested in the Rev. J. D. McCulloch, who preaches to a large congregation in Glasgow, often three times a day, in two languages. His successor as moderator was Rev. D. M. McAlister. Though a Celt and a native of Arran, Mr. McAllister does not speak Gaelic. He is known in Aberdeen, where he was minister before he came to the capital, and he has held his pulpit during the troublous years in spite of the efforts of the Union to expel him.

A man of great sympathies, but the first of the remnant to break down under the stress of the last four years, was the fourth moderator, Rev. Angus Galbraith, now of Lochalsh, a man in striking contrast to the present moderator, Rev. Murdo McQueen. His sermons and speeches have shown us the manner of man he is, and his pungent sentences readily catch the reporter's ear. A son of the manse, he was ordained in 1876, and he is known at Kilmarn, his church district near Dingwall, as one of the most hard-working ministers in the north. Mr. McQueen has a great command of Gaelic, and is a popular preacher in both tongues. "The man who says hasty things," says one of his friends, "is of boundless energy, and a devoted pastor."

WHAT WILL THEY DO?

He has behind him a loyal band of ministers and laymen. The Clerk of Assembly, Rev. J. K. Cameron, M. A., the only minister in Arran who refused to join the union, is known as the Free Church bishop of his island. The Rev. Ewan McLeod, the only man in the Presbytery of Lorne, who stood out against the union, ministers to eight congregations besides his own at Oban.

The Father of the Free Church, Rev. Alexander Auld, of Olrig (the oldest minister among the remnant, would have celebrated his jubilee as a minister next year had he not sacrificed his retiring allowance by giving up his church rather than unite. Mr. Auld is a brother-in-law of Dr. Ross Taylor, one of the negotiators of the union.

One of the most interesting personalities in the Free Church pulpits is the Rev. Roderick Finlayson, for ten years minister at Daviot. He began life as a fisherman, and was imprisoned years ago for raiding a fish train at Stromeaferry. The train had been loaded on Sunday, and Mr. Finlayson's Sabbatarianism is stronger than his reverence for the law.

The supply of the Free Church pulpits since the union has not been the easiest thing in the world, and many laymen have rendered yeoman service. Mr. W. Rounsfell Brown, a popular Glasgow lawyer, has been general treasurer; and Mr. John Hay Thorburn of Edinburgh, has borne more than his share of the burden. There are still only thirty-one ministers to minister to 186 congregations, and half of them are past middle age.

They stand today in the eyes of the law as the great Free Church of Scotland. It is an absurd and impossible situation, which no thirty men in the world, be they ever so earnest, could meet. It would mean, if the hard letter of the law were carried out, that every one of these men must fill forty pulpits and minister to forty congregations. It would mean that many of the greatest men in Scotland must be deprived of pulpits and professor's chairs; that great colleges must be closed and churches stand empty; and that all the builders in Scotland, even were the money ready, could not put up new churches fast enough for hundreds of thousands of people.

What will the thirty-one ministers do? They are bound to remember that, though a coach and four horses could not pass through Temple Bar, an act of parliament can make its way quite easily through a church door.—A. M., in London Daily Mail.

CONSTIPATION, PAINS IN THE BACK

Caused Keen Distress at Times—Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills Made Thorough Cure.

Mr. Jas. H. Harvey, baker, 641 George street, Peterboro, Ont. states "I was troubled very much with constipation and pains in the back. At times the pains were sharp like a stab in the back with a knife and caused me great suffering.

"I heard of many being cured by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and decided to try them. I am pleased to say that they soon helped me, and I used them right along until cured. I never have pains in my back now and only occasionally take a pill in order to keep my bowels regular."

POINTERS FOR LINDSAY

SCUGOG MAKES SOME SUGGESTIONS FOR VICTORIA COUNTY'S CAPITAL.

The Town Advised to Get Busy and do Some Blowing — A Drive at Lindsay Streets.

A writer addresses the following interesting letter to the Lindsay Post:

Sir,—I have been hanging about your town off and on—particularly on—after an absence of several years, and I note things. I note large and marked improvemment. It is there, visible to who will look and, like myself, reflect what the town once was.

I see the plumber riding at some speed to his work, on a bike, and carrying his implements of torture with him. This, I protest, is very tangible evidence of business celerity. I find that you keep a man sweeping up your thoroughfares from droppings and paper and this strikes me as an up-to-date piece of work. I see your new public library, which is an ornament to the profession and a refuge for those who have time hanging on their hands (although I'll bet an even quarter that if I went inside and asked for the bible the librarian would tell me you hadn't got in your full stock of popular literature.) I may be wrong in this supposition, but I take my chances. I ran up against three or four old and venerable—I put it that way for a man may be old without being venerable—citizens and they all told me that Lindsay was slow, "things were not what they should be," and a lot of other doleful things. Now such men should be suppressed, at least their conversation should be squelched. Just such men with such remarks do a lot of harm to public spirit in a community that is trying to get its business head above water and keep it there.

And I want to stick in my oar so far, just here, to make something of a splash. What this town of yours needs and deserves is more blow. You've got a good town and are doing well, and plenty of improvemment, but you want to make it known that you are running things on a big capital, even if you haven't anything in the way of capital except a liberal endorsement, which is about as good. In the place where I am proud to be allowed to exist the virtues of blow are recognized. If a boiler blows up we cause it to be known there. While we regret the disaster and sorrow over the consequences the boiler was a bigger one, hitked up a bigger fuss and hurled the fragments further than any boiler that has exploded in the district for many years. We're not called on to substantiate the facts because the facts have gone along with the boiler.

Blow up your town. Pile on to the citizen that runs it down. Talk him out of court Hold your own end up high that people will see it and make further comment. Where, for instance, would Toronto, Winnipeg and other pushing places be without blowing. The world will always take a town at the estimate placed on it by its own citizens. You value a check for the name at the bottom and not always for the amount. A note you value for the name on the back, especially if the name is your own and the note some other fellow's. Your town will stand in the eye and the purview just as you want it to stand and as you say. So say the best things you can and don't let any one crowd it down; brace up in public spirit. You are spending money freely, and you deserve to spend it as it makes your town better, better and well equipped. Promote enterprise in the way of meat premises, decent houses and other things will never rise higher than your public efforts. So you must keep your public performances always ahead of the citizens' efforts. And keep him working to catch up. And don't forget to blow, real hearty, honest ,self-asserting effects. Blow on the trains, boats and wherever you find people willing to listen to your energetic statement about your town. It will have its effect. Enough of it will stick to do some good and that is what you are after. When you do get to be a place of note and consequence you will have to moderate your blowing, on the principle that the higher you climb the more people will see you and the easier it is to hit you with a brick. In season and out of season hold up your town. Don't be alarmed about your railway debentures calling for interest and that it will cripple you. Lindsay had grip enough and enterprise enough to take a stake in railway connections when other places stood to one side and dared not. You are getting the benefit now; have had benefits for years and will gain more in the future.

I met a man on the street that I knew years ago as a mechanic in your town and he said he had got out of town, because he could not make a living and had gone to farming. I asked him if he was a farmer or merely an agriculturist. He wanted to know where the difference came in and I said that the general belief was that a farmer was a man who had made money in the country and came to town to spend it, while an agriculturist was a man who made his money in the town and went into the country to live it. He still thought he was a farmer. And finally, brethren, do a little blowing.

I write of these things in a general way because they affect the impressions held by others of your town. Sometimes impressions are gained from the contemplation of one fact, and to the detriment of a lot that isn't mentioned. It seems to me, from what I learn, that you are all wrong in the way you make your assessment because you present to the outside world the worst side of your mind I find fimmering. When you meet a man on a train and he inquires what is your tax rate and you fire at him the fact that you are levying somewhere near 30 mills on the dollar, he turns your town down as a business proposition. Percentages are a mighty dangerous thing to handle, and when you handle them at all you want to keep them small. Your property is assessed too low in money and too high in rate. You've got so much to raise, at any event, and it makes no difference to the citizen to do as you are doing and do it better. If you assessed higher and lowered the rate you would get just as much money—and have a right more credit from the outside world. Get up the selling value and cut the rate down to 16 mills on the dollar. Then you can point with pride to a reasonably low rate and a full exchequer.

I have heard a good many people poke fun at your streets and say things that wouldn't sound nice in meeting about the condition of your roadways. That's comparatively easy. But I want to tell you, and it is apparent to anyone who thinks, that if you had poorer farming land around you there would be better streets in town. You've poured money into your streets for thirty years and it has gone to the bottom, and will continue to go, and your town is growing and extending your responsibilities. Better have some patience and a good deal of mud until you get where the job can be tackled with some show of success. It's the clay land, that, well drained, gives a big crop that makes a mighty good farm and a rascally poor street. I know localities that only require the gravel to be turned over to make a fairly good street, but any self-reflecting horse radish would refuse to take root in the neighborhood and grow up with the country. The point of view concerning your streets is well illustrated in the remarks made by the man who came to look over the ground before putting in your late lamented and thoroughly deceased gas lights system. He was being towed about town by an alderman who apologized for the state things were in. "Don't say another word," he said, "you needn't explain. Your streets are the best, in my interests, that I have ever seen. You see, I am bound by my contract to leave them in the same condition as I find them, and they are so darned bad now that I cannot possibly make them worse than they are."—Yours truly,

SCUGOG.

THE BULL BUTTED IN.

Ran Up Against a Train of the Lindsay and Pontypool Railway.

The Lindsay and Pontypool Railway in securing their right of way, have had considerable opposition in some quarters, says the Lindsay Post. The neighborhood of Dunsford however has put up possibly the greatest opposition. Early last week, a gang of section men were approaching the disputed territory, when they were attacked by the occupant and to save their lives were compelled to abandon a hand-car and take to the woods.

Perhaps it might be well here to state that the party to the dispute in this case was a fine, big, black bull, which had broken from its owner's fields and was ready to tackle anything in sight. On Friday of last week, a freight train was making its way towards Bobcaygeon, and when near Dunsford, was met by the bull, who, with more than his usual vehemence, disputed the train's right of way. When the engine gave forth a succession of short, sharp whistles his bullship accepted it as a challenge and with his tail erect and a roar that almost outrivaled that of the engine, he made for it, but his surprise on running up against the real thing will never be known, as when the two monsters met there was a crash, and when the dust became sufficiently settled it was found that two cars had been derailed and badly wrecked, and the bull was entirely put out of business inasmuch that there was not left sufficient of his former noble self to make a decent funeral. He certainly demonstrated to all bulldom that there is no fallacy in the real thing. The most remarkable incident about the whole affair is that there cannot be found anyone to claim the remains of the once noble animal.

THE STORY OF LIFE.

Making the best of life is getting the best health you can out of it—good digestion is the key. What you eat may or may not do you good. It depends upon how it is handled by the digestive apparatus of the stomach—if it is deranged, the blood, instead of taking new life and strength to the various organs of the body, takes poison, which clogs the kidneys, irritates the nerves, distresses the heart, causes headache, sleeplessness, worry, dull feeling, backache, rheumatism, neuralgia—makes the complexion sallow—causes biliousness and constipation. The great, new discovery APPLE PILL has a marvellous influence in correcting a crippled or rebellious stomach, and the results that follow—APPLE PILL is the most perfect help in days when you feel wrong, out of color, sick or getting sick. It brightens you up—makes you feel bright. 25 cents per bottle at druggists or Wilson-Fyfe Co., Niagara Falls, Ont.

LIFT-LOCK ALL RIGHT

The Deputy Minister Inspected the Work.

(Special to Review.)

Ottawa, Sept. 1, 1904.—Mr. Collingwood Shgnaber, Deputy Minister of Railways and Canals, has returned from a trip of inspection of the Trent Valley and Ste canals. He says there is nothing wrong mechanically with the lift lock at Peterborough, the recent mishaps being due to the operation.

A REMARKABLE INCREASE

The Customs Returns over $4000 Ahead of August 1903.

A most remarkable increase is shown in the customs returns for last month over August 1903. The figures for the latter time were $21874.11, while last month there was collected the sum of $26347.19, an increase of $4473.08. This certainly is an indication of the prosperous condition of trade in town. Probably it may be accounted for in great measure by the fact that the opening of another season and the consequent arrival of considerable new goods has swelled the customs collections. This points to a larger trade tendency. Every month shows quite an increase in the returns. May such conditions long continue to exist.

PROGRESS BEING MADE

In the Work of Installing the New Telephone System.

The Canadian Machine Telephone Co. have removed their temporary offices to the curling rink, Charlotte st., where one of the rooms has been fitted up for office purposes and the floor of the rink will be used for the storage of supplies which are rapidly coming on the ground.

The Company's outside construction work is being pushed forward with a view to having the major portion of it completed before the ground freezes, although wiring can be continued during the winter months. It is expected that the underground work will be commenced at the beginning of next week.

Mr. R. P. Watt has been appointed to take charge of the office duties and will look after matters in the office in the absence of Mr. Mackay.

THE CHURCH RENOVATED

Charlotte St. Methodists Have Expended About $1,000

During the past few weeks the interior of the Charlotte-st. Methodist church has been undergoing a complete renovation, which, when finished, will make for very fine appearance. The walls have been re-papered, the woodwork painted anew and decorated, and some new furniture added, the most important being a very handsome pulpit. The cushions of the seats have been freshly upholstered, and the carpet cleaned, and when the people assemble in the church on Sunday they will see the nearest approach to a new church that can be made—outside of rebuilding. The improvements will cost in the neighborhood of $1,000. The upholstering was done by Mr. Wm. Paint, and the painting, papering and decorating by Duncan & Doupe, while Mr. E. B. Clegg has the contract for the new pulpit. A row of three new seats has been added.

Sold a Rifle to a Boy of Ten Years—Warning to Others.

At the Police Court this morning a local hardware merchant was up on two charges, i. e., selling firearms to minors under 16, and of not keeping a record of firearms sold. The following section of the statutes make the cases very strong in these respects:

Section 106 says,—Every one is guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a penalty not exceeding fifty dollars, who sells or gives any pistol or airgun, or any ammunition therefor, to a minor under the age of sixteen years, unless he establishes to the satisfaction of the justice before whom he is charged that he used reasonable diligence in endeavoring to ascertain the age of the minor before making such sale or gift and that he had good reason to believe that such minor was not under the age of sixteen.

The second clause says,—"Everyone is guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a penalty not exceeding twenty-five dollars who sells any pistol or air-gun without keeping a record of such sale, the date thereof, and the name of the purchaser, and of the maker's name, or other mark by which such arms may be identified.

He was found guilty on the first charge and fined $5 and costs, amounting in all to $6.50. The second charge was dismissed.

PETERBOROUGH AT FAIR

SOME LOCAL FIRMS WHO HAVE GOODS ON EXHIBITION IN TORONTO

Wednesday was Press Day—Band of Black Watch is a Capital Drawing Card—Some Interesting Incidents.

Wednesday was Press Day at the Toronto Fair. The big exhibition was in full swing, and with a large attendance. Everything was bright and attractive, and the crowd seemed mightily interested. The programme of the day was a full one, and offered something attractive each hour.

By invitation of the Directors, the newspaper men from all over the country, accompanied by their ladies, gathered and met in the handsome press tent, near the Administration Building. President J. A. Cooper, and Secretary J. T. Clarke, of the Canadian Press Association, were on hand, and with President McNaught, of the Fair Association, welcomed the visitors, who were shown about the grounds.

The Press Association provided lunch at one of the dining halls, and at six o'clock were entertained at dinner by President McNaught, at Webb's restaurant, for the Fair Association. Brief speeches were made by Mr. McNaught, and Mr. Cooper, both of whom said nice things about the interests they represented. The company were then escorted to reserved seats in the grand stand, and enjoyed the performance presented, including the spectacular "Relief of Cawnpore," the big attraction of the performance. The band of the Black Watch drew admiring crowds, who listened to the fine playing of the band. Altogether the day was a great success.

The Band of the Black Watch is a capital drawing card. Thousands go to the fair, attracted by the prospect seeing and hearing the band of so famous a regiment, purposely of all others, the one with the finest fighting record of the British service. The band is attired in the traditional kilts, plaids and make a brave appearance. It is expected that Scotchman's Day will be a mighty success, and a royal gathering of the clans. The playing of the band is in marked contrast to that of the more noted of the American bands that tour the country, being solid, sonorous and in some respects heavy, purely that of a military band.

During the evening an incident occurred that drew from the older portion of the immense audience favorable comment. In addition to being Press Day, it was also Children's Day, and it seemed that all the children of the city were there, the admission fee being lowered to five cents each. They came for a good time, and found it, lunched all over the point, and made themselves in evidence. They were given a franchise of the grand stand, and filled it until their feet stuck out over the balcony. When the Black Watch Band struck up a selection of national airs and the air of "The Maple Leaf" was played the boys and girls waited for the chorus, and joined in. Some ten thousand voices set out to do the thing properly, and in a burst of singing the band was drowned out. Bandmaster Murray beating time, and the big drummer striking the drum were visible evidences that the band was still in the ring, but for all that anyone heard, it might as well have been playing at Hanlan's Point. When "The Red, White and Blue" was played, the same thing occurred, and in response to a roar of applause, the band repeated the air of the song. The closing movement of the selection was the national anthem, and here the boys and girls, in fact the whole audience, rose and sang the refrain with a vigor that made the canvas halls and spires of Cawnpore rattle.

Among the exhibits made by Peterborough firms, is one by Turner & Sons, who show one of their improved sanitary and open air house tents. This is pitched out on the grass and attracts a good deal of attention. The walls of the tent are a pleasing green color, real windows are inserted in the sides, the doors have vent frames, and there is a double roof. A vent board floor, and some nice cots and furnishings make up the outfit of a tent, and commodious canvas home. This form of tent is recommended by doctors and specialists for use by those afflicted with lung troubles, and is one of the most helpful aids to securing a cure. The firm also distributed copies of their neat flag folder, descriptive of the Union Jack, our national flag.

The Colonial Ink Company, of Peterborough, make a fine display in their booth in the Manufacturers' Building, where they show complete lines of their well known and popular "Japanese" writing inks, Carbon Papers, Typewriter Ribbons and sundries. The exhibit is well displayed and attractively put forward, and every care is being taken to bring the attention of the public to these goods "Made in Canada."

CHILDRENS' TICKETS FOR SALE

May be Obtained from Street Railway at Rate of 10 for 25 cents.

The street cars began regular operation today, and gave a very good service, considering that the Company's new cars have not yet arrived.

Children's school tickets are now for sale, at the rate of 10 for 25 cents—2 1-2 cents each. The railway will be a great convenience to the little people who live at some distance from their schools.

The car which is at present doing service is in charge of Motormen Miller and Legrandeur, and Conductors Bell and Mary. It already begins to appear that the service given is being appreciated by factory employees going and coming from work.

BOARD OF HEALTH

Met this Morning but not Much Business Transacted.

The Board of Health met this morning at 9 o'clock, with the following members present: R. Neill, in the chair, Dr. McNulty, Dr. Burnham, Geo. Schneider.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

Dr. Bingham, M.H.O., reported on the complaint of Mrs. Guthrie.

The Chief was instructed to act on the resolution of the Board in reference to the walls required to be closed.

In reference to the sewer connections of the Barnardo Home, the Board decided to meet at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the Home and investigate the matter.

Several accounts were presented, and it was moved by Mr. Eyres, seconded by Dr. Burnham, that the accounts of Ormonde & Walsh and Jas. Lynch be paid, and that the remainder be referred to the council.—Carried.

It was moved by Mr. Eyres, seconded by Mr. Schneider, that the accounts go to the council with the Board's recommendation.

Dr. Bingham reported on two cases which were sent to St. Joseph's Hospital, and which had been placed in the isolation ward against his wish.

Dr. McNulty was asked to look into the matter and report at the next meeting.

The Board then adjourned until Wednesday morning next at 9 o'clock.

POST-OFFICE NAMES CHANGED

Otonabee to Indian River and Indian River Postoffice to Gourin.

Beginning Sept. 1st there is to be a change in the name of two post offices in Otonabee and Douro. Otonabee post office, which is situated at Indian River Station, on the C.P.R., is to be called Indian River, the same name as station.

What is now known as Indian River post office (two miles away from Indian River station) is to be called "Gourin."

This will stop a great deal of confusion, which was caused by the station and post office not being the same name.

A meeting of the senior Arrow Basketball Club is called for tonight.

The once famous basketball organization called the Harriers will soon be a thing of history. There are only one or two of the members now in town, and one of the best, Mr. Chester Kemp, left to-day for Edmonton. Chester was a popular Y.M.C.A. man.

Mr. W. S. Maguire, who may be called a graduate of the local Y.M.C.A., left this morning to take a position as assistant physical Director in the Central Y.M.C.A., Toronto.

Newly registered men at the "Y" are Mr. Wilfred Shaw, of Virginia, who is coming here to learn the milling with the American Cereal Company. He has been an active Y.M.C.A. man, and will be an acquisition to the physical department. Mr. Haimes Heard, of the Canadian Machine Telephone Company, is also a new comer, and will take a prominent part in the Y.M.C.A. work.

The new Physical Director, Mr. Percy K. Holmes, of Yarmouth, Nova Scotia, has arrived in town, and will immediately take hold of his department. The institution could not have secured a better man than Mr. Holmes. He has been for some years actively engaged in Y.M.C.A. work, and has just graduated from the Springfield Training School, one of the best of its kind on the continent. Mr. Holmes' qualifications undoubtedly qualify him for place as one of the foremost physical directors in the province. He is a young man, and his appearance is an exemplification of that development which the Y.M.C.A. seeks to obtain as characteristic of "all-round men."

THE CITY AND SUBURBS

Brevities.

—St. Luke's choir will practice this evening. Full attendance is requested.

—A meeting of the executive of the Young Men's Guild, of St. Andrews' church will be held this evening at 8 o'clock at the Examiner office.

Mr. Wm. Vanevery has been called to Dundas by the sudden death of his sister, Mrs. Kenneth Wishart, a lady seventy-three years of age. The funeral took place this afternoon.

—We were shown some ripe tomatoes yesterday of the pondarosa type, from the garden of Mr. William H. Vickers, Water-st., weighing one and one-half lbs.

—Someone was heard to remark today that a good opportunity to grade George-st. from McDonnel-st. up was lost, owing to the street cars commencing to run again.

—A valuable diamond pin was lost in the centre of the town last night by a lady visiting here. A liberal reward will be paid on its return to its return to the Review office.

—An information was laid against three boys this afternoon at the Police Station, for throwing stones at Mr. Jas. Farley. They will appear in court on Saturday morning at 10 o'clock.

—With the addition of the new poles now being erected on George-st. a citizen to-day stated that in one block he noticed about twenty poles. Referring to the scarcity of houses, he said one could board up the poles around some of the corners and relieve the situation somewhat.

—Said a gentleman to-day:—It's astonishing how the number of dogs multiply just after the assessors have completed their work, and the energies of the police relax after the spring crusade of the tagless canine. In my neighborhood, where early in the season there did not seem to be many dogs, you could now see quite a number, and without tags.

—Port Hope Guide.—A young man on board the 16.30 train Tuesday night had imbibed too much of the fluid that intoxicates and as a result became rather muddled. He was on his way to Peterborough and got off at the station all O.K., but as the train started he got on board again. He had a large bottle with him, and when the train pulled into Millbrook he was dead to the world. He was in such a helpless condition that it took three men to remove him from the car.

FOUND HER HUSBAND

Deserted his Wife in England and was Working here Under an Assumed Name.

A rather peculiar case has just come to light, and while it at first looked to be rather distressing, it has turned out very satisfactorily, and a family has been happily united and living in town. Much credit is due to a kind-hearted citizen, who interested himself in a wife's behalf and materially assisted her in discovering the object of her search.

The other morning a lady and child arrived in town by the C.P.R. 5.10 train from England. She was ill and did not seem to have any friends to meet her; so the kind old gentleman enquired if he might be of some assistance to her. She told him her trouble, and said that she was in search of her husband, who, it seems, had deserted her some months ago in England. She had left one child in the Old Country and had brought one with her, and hearing that several Englishmen were working in town, she had stopped off here to enquire. The gentleman took her to his home, and assisted her in her search. Not until yesterday was any trace of the missing man found, and the task was very hard, as he was working in a local factory under an assumed name. He was confronted by his wife and her protector, and at once promised to take care of her in the future. They are taking up residence in town, and now know what it is to be happily united.

THE PERSONAL COLUMN

THURADAY, SEPT. 1, 1904.

WILL RETURN TO OTTAWA.

Hon. James Sutherland Says That He Is Feeling Fit.

Woodstock, Sept. 1.—The Sentinel-Review had an interview with Hon. James Sutherland on his return home from the Dansville Sanitarium. The Minister of Public Works stated that, while he felt well enough to return to his duties at once, he recognized the importance of following the doctors' instructions, and resting awhile.

"I know no reason why I shouldn't resume my duties after I have regained my usual strength, although, of course, we never can tell what is ahead of us. If I go back I certainly hope that I will not be compelled to work as hard as I have done in the past. It was the hard work and the cold I contracted towards the close of the session that knocked me out, and I see no reason why I should not be as strong as ever after I have gotten over this attack."

Mr. Sutherland expressed surprise that he felt as well as he did. He was prepared to walk down town with his interviewer, only, he said, there were certain instructions of his medical adviser to follow. He walked around the grounds during a portion of the chat, and his spirits were decidedly good for a sick man.

Mr. Sutherland is in a convalescent state, and he himself confidently looks for a speedy recovery, although he recognizes that there is always uncertainty as to the future.

PERSONAL BRIBERY CHARGED.

Additional Particulars in Manheim Cross-Petition.

Toronto, Sept. 1.—H. Beaton, solicitor for Dr. Hart, Huntsville, filed additional particulars yesterday in the cross-petition against A. A. Mahaffy and charges personal bribery against Mr. Mahaffy, namely, that Mr. Mahaffy canvassed an Indian and promised him money. Also that he promised Robt. Hewitt $4 for going to Gravenhurst to vote. It is further charged that one Richards of Baysville, a supporter of Mr. Mahaffy, had his hotel open on election day. Agents are charged with hiring a steam launch to take voters to the polls.

A motion was made before Mr. Justice Osler yesterday afternoon to compel Mr. Mahaffy to attend for examination for discovery. The order was not granted, but Mr. Mahaffy was ordered to attend during the progress of the trial at Bracebridge.

Sault Ste. Marie, Sept. 1.—In connection with the petition against C. N. Smith, sitting as member of the Legislature for the Soo, the respondent was yesterday examined for discovery before Judge Johnston. Upon the advice of counsel Mr. Smith refused to answer a number of questions regarding the campaign fund, though Judge Johnston ruled he should. Counsel for petitioners therefore announced his intention of making a motion that he be jailed for contempt of court.

FARMERS GROW GLOOMY.

In Some Cases Sacrifice Wheat From Fear of Frost.

Winnipeg, Man., Sept. 1.—The weather appears settled, fine and warm, and gives great impetus to wheat-cutting. As long as these conditions hold, the crop outlook continues bright, and many old-timers think that indications do not point to an early frost, with general prospects for a milder winter. But the large bulk of farmers are gloomy over the situation, and are sacrificing in many cases their wheat from fear of frost.

Reports from one district say that the loss owing to the wheat being cut immature will at least equal the rust damage. However, the fine weather is speedily allaying this panicky feeling.

DR. CASCADEN DEAD.

Former Member of the Legislature For West Elgin Passes.

Dutton, Sept. 1.—After an illness of over three months Dr. John Cascaden, ex-M.P.P. for West Elgin, and one of the oldest practicing physicians in Ontario, died at his residence here yesterday morning. Dr. Cascaden was born at Ballyshannon, County Donegal, Ireland, in 1846. In politics he was a strong Liberal and at the general elections of 1879 and 1883 he was elected to the Legislature, retiring from active politics at the end of his second term.

THROUGH KAWARTHA LAKES

THE TRIP OF THE LINDSAY YACHT ROY.

An Opinion of the Lift Lock — The Sail to Rice Lake and Gores Landing.

The Port Hope Guide is running a "serial" these days on a trip made by Mr. Geo. H. Wilson's yacht "Roy" from Lindsay to Rice Lake. The following extract will be of some interest to Peterborough people:—

"After safely, though laboriously negotiating all the locks, a good stretch of free running was sot amiss, and as we came in sight of the famous lift lock, our whistles and bugles gave the familiar three blasts for entrance. Just leaving it we met the long expected City of Peterborough moving off with an excursion party aboard. The lock was surrounded by a large crowd out from town to see the lift operated. The rain had the good manners to "let up once" at this point, and from the towers we had a grand view of Ashburnham, Peterborough, the Otonabee river circling far below, and the country stretching into the dim distance.

The lift operators seemed please to have the opportunity to again show the crowd how "she" worked.

This type of lift differs in one welcome particular from the other in that it is always ready (when in working order) to receive a boat from either side, one pontoon balancing the other like the two sides of a weighing balance. We all floated in, the gates were drawn from the floor or bottom of he reach, one section securely fastened to the pontoon or huge tank, and the other to hold the water in the level above when this tank is lowered. Everything "ship-shape," a gong sounds, and the tank with its load of three crafts, sinks down without noise or jar, meeting the other filled with water (balancing our weight) midway. The sixty-five feet of drop is made in less time than it would take to go through an ordinary lock of 15 feet drop. As soon as the machinery comes to a stop the reverse end of the tank from which we entered was let down, and we sailed over it under a couple more bridges, and through one more ordinary lock, before we could make fast to the town 'dock' of

PETERBOROUGH.

Here we repaired some holes in our larder, took on a supply of gasoline, talked over the wire with home and then off again down the river. Through another lock below the town, puts us on Rice Lake level, but the day being far spent, we take possession of the first good camping spot, up with tent, build a good fire close to the door, and by its genial glow try to forget that the rain has resumed sway. The next day being Sunday we had decided to follow our time-honored custom and remain in camp. In spite of the drizzle, Mr. Debbin, of "The Review," and his son walked out to see us, and we had a very nice little visit with them. About noon the sun began to peak through and it was then that we discovered that we had trespassed on the swimming hole of the Peterborough boys. One little fellow approached and enquired, most kindly, if there was any ladies in our party, and upon being told that there was not, his face cleared up and he said, "then we may go in for a swim?" Boys of all sizes and degrees of white and tan were in evidence; they were all respectful and good-natured enough, but really we were embarrassed with too much company, so struck camp, ran down to Rice Lake, and found a fine camp ground on one of the islands opposite Gore's Landing.

It was nearly noon on Monday before a start was made for down the lake. We appreciated the convenience of being able to telephone the Guide office from Gore's Landing. It is a fine sail down Rice Lake, and the scenery, though entirely different from that through which we had passed on the other lakes, was grand. Fine, cultivated farms reach to the water's edge with occasional woodlands, and the hills on either shore stretch away into the dim, blue distance.

RICE LAKE

is about twenty miles long by three wide, and from Bewdley its head runs in a north-easterly direction to the Trent River.

Some years ago when the Cobourg, Peterborough & Marmora R.R. was building, a bridge was erected across the lake from Harwood to Hiawatha, this bridge must have cost a mint of money, for the piers were made of timber cribs placed close together and filled with loose stone, the structure must have been fully three miles—but it could not stand a spring ice shove, it having been constructed with the expectation of holding back the ice, instead of providing means for it to pass through. Anyhow, "lest we forget" about it, we were forcefully reminded by running upon one of the sunken, unbouyed piers and losing another blade of our propeller (which we had repaired after our first mishap.) These dangerous obstructions to navigation could be removed at small cost, and the Government should have done this as soon as possible, and in the meantime buoys should be placed thereon."

Minard's Liniment Lumbermen use it.

WHEN BOYS WERE MEN

By JOHN HABBERTON,

Author of "Helen's Babies," "Gough Washington," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1904, BY JOHN HABBERTON

There seemed enough risk in all this to insure my remaining awake. I stuffed the dispatches inside my shirt, put fresh percussion caps on my revolvers and started. Nothing unusual occurred for a quarter of an hour or more, but as I descended a gentle slope I was sure I heard the clank of sabers in front of me. My horse, too, gave the usual equine indications of being suddenly interested in something ahead. I halted an instant, and the noise ceased, but when again I rode forward the clanking was resumed so noisily that I became thoroughly frightened, reined my horse under partial cover at the side of the road, turned pale—or felt that I did—and galloped back to camp.

The captain frowned when I reported my failure. So did the colonel, who, with the captain, had been awaiting the result of my effort.

"I'll try still another man, if you think best," said the captain.

"Try me, captain," said Brainard, who was always among the first to greet me when I returned to camp.

"You?" asked the captain, looking quizzically at the little fellow.

"Yes, sir," said Brainard. "You see, I'm so small that it would be hard for a marksman to hit me, even by daylight."

This remark made both officers smile, and I was told to give my dispatches to Brainard. The little chap was on his horse in an instant and, taking straps from his saddlebow, bound his legs to the tops of the stirrup straps.

"What is that for?" asked the captain.

"So," said Brainard, "that if I'm shot I can't fall out of the saddle. The horse will be sure to hurry back to camp, and the enemy won't get the dispatches, as they might if I were to fall."

The captain nodded to the colonel, who raised his eyebrows, and Brainard hurried out the road at an easy gallop. I walked a little way in the same direction and strained my ears for shots, but heard none. I did not sleep much that night. Should Brainard be killed I would always feel that I had sacrificed his life to save my own; should he succeed, why, confound him, I would again have to feel so uncomfortable as I did when he did the work and got the glory of our rescue when we were made prisoners. I did not feel any easier at learning that about an hour before I had started a man on a harnessed horse had come galloping wildly out of that same road and hurried to the rear. Until taptoo I paced the ground on which our troop was camped. After taptoo I resumed my tramp. The guards were changed at 10 o'clock, midnight, 2 in the morning, and I was still awake, for Brainard had not returned. The captain, who felt responsible for the safe delivery of the dispatches, awoke, joined me and said he hoped my chum had got through all right; then he also began to pace to and fro, which increased my anxiety. Toward dawn I fell asleep through sheer exhaustion. Just after sunrise I was aroused by being shaken. When I opened my eyes, over me bent Brainard, very pale of face, but wonderfully bright of eye.

"Tell me about it," I demanded.

"Oh," said Brainard, "I never was so frightened in my life. After loping along a few minutes it occurred to me that I had better know my way before trying it, so I dismounted and led my horse in the woods beside the road, leaving my saber there also. Then I sneaked down the road, with my revolver in my hand and my heart in my mouth, to find out where and what that cavalry was. It might have been some of our own men, you know. Pretty soon I heard the clanking you spoke of. Didn't it sound dreadful in the dark, though? I crouched and sneaked from one tree to another, and the noise grew louder, but not a human voice could I hear, nor was there any odor of tobacco in the air. These two facts bothered me greatly, for when soldiers who are awake cease talking and smoking there's something serious on hand.

"Pretty soon I heard a splash. 'Aha!' thought I. 'Somebody is watering his horse in a brook or pond.' I crept still closer. The ground became lower, as if there might be a brook there. I got nearer still until I made out a bridge at my left, but not a trooper could I see. I began to shiver and recall ghost stories. I don't believe in ghosts, you know, but the dim light and mysterious noises made me think of them in spite of myself. Finally I got right on the bank of the brook and looked over. Then I was more surprised than scared, for I could make out three horses without riders and something that looked like a tent, but all in the water. I made bold to challenge, but there was no reply. Then I became so excited that I thought I might as well be shot as die through bursting a blood vessel, so I got some matches out of my jacket, struck a light and made a little fire of dry leaves and twigs, and what do you suppose I saw? An ammunition wagon lying on its side and three of its four horses partly hitched. Apparently it had fallen from the bridge, which was very narrow and had no rail. It was the rattle of the chains of the harness that made the noise you and I and the other fellow had mistaken for the clank of saber scabbards. But wasn't I provoked with myself for having been frightened?"

"No worse, I'll bet, than I am at having been scared back to camp by such a boy."

"I felt so ashamed," continued Brainard, "that I really wished there might be soldiers somewhere in the neighborhood to give me some honest excuse for being frightened. My wish was gratified pretty soon, for after going along pretty lively for a few minutes I heard 'Halt!' right in front of me as a couple of men sprang from a fence corner. Awfully hard to swallow one's heart sometimes, isn't it? I soon saw, however, in spite of the semidarkness, that they weren't dressed like Johnnies, so I swallowed my heart and gave them the countersign. Then they asked me if I had seen any cavalry in the woods. Three of the general's orderlies in succession had tried to reach the center and had been frightened into returning. So, you see, you and I and the man who started before us are not without company."

"Ye-es," I replied. But the information didn't comfort me much. Brainard had succeeded. I hadn't. That reflection filled my mind to the exclusion of all others. Brainard went on:

"I found the headquarters in two or three minutes, passing through a road full of men who had been posted to repel an expected cavalry dash. There was a half battery of artillery with them. The general, too, was awake and nervous—all on account of those three horses standing knee deep in a brook and shaking in their harness! The general kept me until dawn to bring back some dispatches. But here I am."

The lucky little rascal! At least men called it luck.

Surprise For Bartlett.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 1.—When Melvin Bartlett, clerk of vital statistics in the Provincial Department of Agriculture, Winnipeg, stopped up to his private mail-box Tuesday night, he was surprised to find a detective waiting for him. Bartlett at first denied that he had left Winnipeg under a cloud. It is alleged that for eight or ten years Bartlett has been embezzling money received from the sale of marriage licenses, and that, during all that time, he has been falsifying entries. The shortage is alleged to amount to several thousand dollars.

RAMPANT FOREST FIRES

Destroy the Hamlet of Little Bay, Newfoundland.

Three Hundred Families Rendered Homeless—Two Men Drowned—Women and Children Embarked on Steamer Prospero, and the Men Are Fighting Fires to Prevent Spread to a Larger Area—Loss Over $20,000,000.

St. John's, Nfld., Sept. 1.—Forest fires have destroyed the Hamlet of Little Bay, and 300 families are homeless. Two men have been drowned.

The steamer Prospero has embarked the women and children.

The men are fighting the flames in an effort to prevent the destructive fires from covering a wider area.

The Government is providing food, shelter and other assistance to the destitute.

A despatch from St. John's, Aug. 16, said that renewed outbreaks of forest fires were causing widespread destruction throughout Newfoundland and that a number of settlers in different parts had been destroyed. It is estimated, the despatch said, that $20,000,000 worth of marketable timber had been destroyed in the interior this season.

NINE KILLED IN QUEBEC.

Head-on Collision of G.T.R. Passenger Trains, Near Richmond, Result of Failure to Obey Orders.

Montreal, Sept. 1.—At 11 o'clock yesterday morning express train No. 5, from Island Pond, westbound, met an excursion special from St. Hyacinthe, bound for Sherbrooke, one mile from Richmond. It was a head-on collision, while both trains were going at a high rate of speed. Nine at least were killed and 23 were injured, as far as can be learned up to this hour. The following is the list of killed and injured:

The Killed and Injured.

Killed—Fred Bowering, married, South Durham; F. H. Hackett, route agent Canadian Express Company, Montreal; unknown man from Belœil; W. F. Mountain of Carter, Galbraith & Cie, Montreal; boy named Dubord, supposed to be from Arthabaska; Ephraim Gaudet, St. Theodore; J. B. Blanchett, M. P., St. Hyacinthe; Charles A. Simard, St. Hyacinthe; A. T. Richards, Lisgar.

Injured—L. F. Payon, married, St. Hyacinthe; A. Ardila, single, St. Hyacinthe; Emerson Fee, married, St. Hyacinthe; O. Daigneault, single, Salem, Mass.; Allan McManus, Ulverton, Que.; Alex. Ganvit, single, St. Theodore; Edw. M. Gagnon, single, Montreal; Arch. Walker, Gore, Que.; J. A. Denault, single, broker, Montreal; Col. A. St. Denis, St. Hyacinthe; Ernest Richard, single, Lisgar, Que.; R. Paquette, single, Rougemont, Que.; Engineer Paquette, single, Rougemont, Que.; W. Lipton, single, Lisgar, Que.; Gordon Richard, single, South Durham, Que.; Joseph Tudeau, single, Upton, Que.; F. Duguire, single, Rougemont, Que.; Albert Gunter, married, South Durham, Que.; Charles Gunter, married, Lisgar; Felix Payette, road foreman, G.T.R., Montreal; U. Tousseu, single, St. Theodore, Que.; Fay Webb, mail clerk, Richmond; Thomas E. Feeney, ex-manager, Montreal.

Horrible Scene at the Wreck.

A special train with Drs. Wirthington, Lynch, Austin, Smith and Williams and nurses left the Grand Trunk station for the scene of the accident at 11.30. The injured have been moved to Richmond and located in the residences throughout the town. All of the available doctors in the district have been sent for. The scene at the wreck is reported to be horrifying, as friends had been separated by death and injury. The train with those most seriously injured will be brought to Sherbrooke. There is great excitement at the Grand Trunk depot, as many are waiting for friends who were coming out in the special and are uncertain as to whether they are among the injured or not. Mr. Egan of Island Pond, Vt., superintendent of the G. T. R. Island Pond division, and Mr. Holmes of Richmond, assistant superintendent, were both in Sherbrooke at the time and went out with the doctors' special.

The people on the wrecked train were from stations between St. Hyacinthe and Richmond.

Conductor Missed Orders.

Further details received late last night indicate that the accident was caused by the conductor of the eastbound special not waiting at Richmond until No. 5 passed. It is said that No. 5 was to cross the special at Richmond, but this was not done. It is thought the conductor of the special mistook another train for No. 5 and pulled out. The despatcher at Richmond, seeing what had occurred, tried to hail the conductor, who was on the rear platform, but his efforts were futile, and the train sped on to its destruction.

Train Takes His Life.

Clinton, Sept. 1.—A sad accident occurred here yesterday at the G.T.R. depot, when Brakeman McDermid was crushed to death while coupling cars. Death was instantaneous. McDermid, who lives in Mitchell, is a young man about 23, and leaves a wife and one child to mourn his sad demise.

Captain and Crew Drowned.

Aden, Arabia, Sept. 1.—A boat containing the captain and sixteen members of the crew who left the British steamer Baron Inverdale, which was ashore at the Kuria Muria Islands, capsized and all the occupants were drowned except one boy.

Located Six Town Sites.

Toronto, Sept. 1.—The Temiskaming town sites commissioners have returned from their trip up north. Six sites were selected, one at the head of Lake Temagami. The places will be surveyed and the lots sold and the proceeds devoted to the railway work.

Children's Day at the Ex.

Toronto, Sept. 1.—Every department was in full swing at the Canadian National Exhibition yesterday. It was children's day and swarms of juvenile Canadians made things lively. The directors' luncheon was in honor of the Press, and the speeches, which were short, dealt with this topic as well as education. Goldwin Smith was the chief speaker. A small fire in the grand stand during the afternoon nearly created a panic, but the police averted what might have been a dreadful catastrophe.

Stubborn Skin Diseases.

Nothing is more discouraging than a case of eczema or salt rheum which refuses to heal. By using Dr. Chase's Ointment, however, you soon see that new skin is forming and the sore part is becoming smaller and smaller. The itching is entirely overcome after a few applications had you are given satisfactory evidence that a continuation of the treatment will bring a thorough cure.

NOVA SCOTIAN BISHOP

Rev. Dr. Worrell Choice of the Synod at Halifax.

On the Third Ballot the Election Fell to the Kingston Clergyman—His Only Opponent Was Rev. Dr. Tucker—Rev. Dr. Worrell Accepts the Election As the Will of God and Asks the Church's Prayers.

Halifax, N.S., Sept. 1.—The Synod of the Church of England in Nova Scotia met yesterday for the purpose of electing a bishop to succeed Rev. Dr. Courtney, resigned, and on the third ballot the choice fell on the Ven. Clare L. Worrell, M.A., LL.D., Archdeacon of Ontario. Only two candidates were put in nomination, the Rev. L. Norman Tucker, M.A., D.C.L., and the successful candidate. The lay men were at first favorable to Mr. Tucker.

On the first ballot the lay vote stood 67 to 46 in his favor, while the clerical vote stood at 25 to 50 in Mr. Worrell's favor.

On the second ballot Mr. Tucker lost 6 on the lay vote, while Mr. Worrell gained 5; at the same time on the clerical side Mr. Tucker lost 2 votes, while Mr. Worrell gained 3, the total vote standing at 61 to 29 in Mr. Worrell's favor and the lay side 61 to 53 in Mr. Tucker's favor.

The third and last ballot resulted in a substantial gain for Mr. Worrell on the lay side, giving him a majority of 6. The vote stood on the clerical side 63 to 21 and on the lay side 60 to 54. The election was afterwards made unanimous.

Rev. Mr. Worrell was notified and accepted in the following telegram:

"I accept election as the will of God. Ask for Church's prayers. Will write to-night."

The consecration will take place at St. Luke's Cathedral and an effort will be made to get the Archbishop of Canterbury to officiate.

Sketch of the New Bishop.

The Rev. Clarendon Lamb Worrell was born at Smith's Falls, Ontario, on July 20, 1853, and was educated at Trinity School, Port Hope, and at Trinity University, Toronto, where he was Wellington and Dickson scholar and Prince of Wales prizeman for mathematics. Ordained to the ministry in 1881 he served as curate at Gananoque and at Trinity Church, Brockville, and afterwards became rector at Merrisburg and Barriefield. He also held the mathematical and scientific mastership in Cobourg Collegiate Institute, the headmastership of Gananoque High School and the principalship of Brockville Collegiate Institute. In 1891 he was appointed Professor of English in the Royal Military College, Kingston. In 1900 Archdeacon Worrell lacked one vote of being appointed Bishop of Ontario. In 1901 he was made Archdeacon of Ontario Diocese and in 1903 the degree of D. C.L., was conferred on him by Trinity University, Toronto. His consecration will probably take place at the meeting of bishops in Montreal in October. His brother is John A. Worrell, K.C., the Toronto barrister.

SEVERAL STORES BURN.

Serious Conflagration in Business Part of Emerson, Man.

Emerson, Man., Sept. 1.—At one o'clock yesterday morning fire started in the rear of a blacksmith shop owned by William Templeton, and took in a building on the west side owned by George Christie and one on the east side owned by W. J. Scarfe & Son, harness dealers. It then leaped a lane and caught Charles Aimes' implement warehouse, and completely demolished a block, and only by persistent and determined efforts were buildings on the opposite side of the street saved. The loss is $10,000.

Store's Stock Damaged.

Woodstock, Sept. 1.—Fire in Fred W. Kern's hardware store here yesterday morning did $10,000 damage to stock and property. The cause was an explosion of oil in the basement; loss covered by insurance.

Dismisses the Appeal.

St. Thomas, Ont., Sept. 1.—Judge Hughes, official referee of the liquidation proceedings in connection with the winding-up of the Elgin Loan Co., has given judgment dismissing the appeal of the shareholders, who asked to have set aside the order compelling them to pay up their stock to 50 per cent.

CHEESE MARKETS.

Peterboro, August 31.—(Special.)—The regular meeting of the Peterboro cheese board was held here this morning. The buyers present were: Messrs. Whitton, Fitzgerald, Cook, Kerr, Gillespie, Rollins and Wrighton. There were 2017 boxes boarded. The bidding was brisk and the cheese sold rapidly. The bidding opened at 9¼c and was raised to 9 3-16c, at which price most of the cheese was sold. A few boxes were sold at 9⅛c. The firm price was the highest offered this year of the local board. The board adjourned for three weeks.

Picton, Aug. 31.—At our regular cheese board to-day, 15 factories boarded 1145; the highest bid was 9 3-16c; 720 boxes sold; buyers, Miller and Ecclesmith.

Pitiful Helplessness.

Victims of nervous diseases are most to be pitied because their ailment usually terminates in mental or physical helplessness. Paralysis, locomotor ataxia and insanity can only be avoided by building up the nervous system at the first sign of trouble, and there is no preparation so well suited for this purpose as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, the great nerve restorative.

TWO GIRLS ABDUCTED

They Lived in Brockville and are now Missing.

Brockville, Aug. 30.—The story of the life of Luella and Legy Widdis, aged 13 and 11 years, respectively, who were born within a few miles of Brockville, would be interesting if the details were fully given. Though their home has been within sight of the St. Lawrence, in one of the oldest settled localities of the province, it has been anything but ideal. Left alone a great deal, even when their mother lived, they became accustomed to a great deal of hardship and became possessed of a knowledge of the seamy side of life much beyond their years. After the mother's death the little girls continued to keep house for the father, and many things are told concerning their lot which seems to have been far from pleasant.

An Italian, Tony Haggazino, appeared on the scene, and neighbors say he was a very frequent visiter at the Widdis residence. Tony and Widdis were on pretty good terms apparently, and were seen together quite often, and the latter's appeal to the police magistrate to help him get back his children was the first intimation that there was any trouble. Tony is a sleek chap, and rumor says he worked himself into the affections of the older girl, and this is supposed to be the reason for the abduction, the girl probably refusing to go without her sister, as both are more children, though the older one is a well developed girl for her age.

The father, who was absent from home for a short time on Friday last, on returning home, found that the two children had gone and taken their somewhat scanty wardrobe with them. He suspected that they had been enticed away, and at once came to Brockville to consult the police magistrate. The latter in the meantime had received a letter purporting to be signed by the girls in Morristown, N.Y., saying they had been compelled to leave home by the cruel treatment of Widdis, who, their mother had told them shortly before her death, was really not their father. They had therefore taken the maiden name of their mother, Creesy, and had been promised a good situation in New York. The whole tone of the letter indicated the work of some person much older and more acquainted with the world than the little girls.

A warrant was issued charging Tony with abducting the girls, and he was arrested, but denied all knowledge of the affair.
